"Tut-tut." Arthur Jones clucked. "Not this s'prise, Miss Leeana. I'm all excited my own self. Why, when he called out from town—"

"Arthur!" reprimanded Mrs. Carstairs.

The old man bobbed his head, grinned toothlessly at them. "That young man of yours has a head on his shoulders all right, Miss Leeana."

Leeana felt a wild urge to laugh, to be gay. Mart was her "young man." Old Arthur said so.

Then she heard Mart calling as he came in the door.

"Leeana? Hey—honey!"

Jumping up, Leeana ran into the hall. Mart swept her into his arms, kissed her soundly, and then held her away from him.

"Something in the mail for you" he said, too casually.

Leeana saw the twinkle in his eyes burst into a shower of infectious gaiety. She ran to the door.

"Pop!" she shrieked when it opened in her face and the tall graying man stepped inside. "Oh Pops!"

Roger Thorne's arms were strong, like Mart's, and his shoulder was broad enough for the weeping that had been shuttered within her for so long. Leeana took full advantage of it.

"It's been bad, hasn't it? I came as fast as I could. But"—and Roger Thorne looked from his daughter to Mart, "you seem to have done all right, honey. The law was on your side."

"From the first," Mart vowed. Chuckling Roger Thorne added: "Of course I'd have come anyhow. A father sort of likes to give his daughter to the man who will be his son."

"Thanks, sir." Mart gripped his outstretched hand. "Thanks — Pops."

Jasper came then and they talked of murder, of the wedding, of going away—of new happiness to Thorne Hill.

"Sondra wanted too much, Jasper said. "Far too much. So did Peter. Me?" The husky softness faded, his voice became hard proud. "I am slow, satisfied—dumb, but I'm still alive."

Leeana thought. Alive — and free. Free for the first time. But no, Jasper was not free . . .

He was too much a Thorne to forget it . . . She looked at her father, and at Mart, and felt warm with happiness. She was the lucky one.

Anti-British Feeling Mounts In Iran as Government Waits For British to Deliver Note

Tehran, Iran, May 17. (Reuters) —Anti-British feeling mounted in Iran today as the government waited for Sir Francis Shepherd, British ambassador, to deliver his latest note on the oil nationalization dispute.

Haly Zadeh, a deputy in the Majlis (Lower House of Parliament), said Iran had every right to take over the British-controlled Anglo-Iranian Oil Company and asserted at reports that Britain had mobilized a brigade of paratroopers for possible use in the oil region.

"Britain cannot frighten us with a few parachutists," he declared.

They would make a small moussel for our frontier tribes. Britain is mistaken in thinking of turning Iran into another Korea. If they land paratroopers in, a Third World War cannot be prevented."

(British authorities have made no threats to use the paratroop brigade abroad. It was put on the alert last week-end —and rumors here and in Britain have said it might be sent to Anglo-Iranian holdings in Iran if it became necessary to safeguard British lives and property.)

Newspaper reports said the Iranian government is expanding a "blacklist" of Britons who will be accused of spying and other acts detrimental to the state.

The government has also sent a note to all its departments warning that any official who fails to refer to the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company as "the former company" will be severely dealt with.

Political observers here said there is a strong body of opinion favoring settlement of the oil dispute by negotiation, though Premier Mohammed Mussadegh is believed to be receiving support from the underground pro-communist Tudeh party.

His position in relation to another group—the fanatical Fadayian Islam sect—is obscure. The sect champions nationalization, which has also been Mussadegh's policy, but yesterday its deputy leader told police he had marked the prime minister for death.

Arrested in a raid on a bazaar, Abdul Qasim Rafii said: "Mussadegh is lucky I have been arrested, otherwise I would have killed him within three days."

CALL OFF STRIKE

Oslo, Norway, May 17 (Reuters)—Farmers last night called off their two-week strike in which they have sowed no spring wheat and taken no produce to market. They went on strike in a protest against the government fixing new prices without the agreement of the farmers' union.

Honorary Degree Of Law Given Dr. R. C. Wallace

Edmonton, May 17 (CP) —Dr. R. C. Wallace, principal of Queen's University, Kingston, Wednesday received an honorary Doctorate of Law from the University of Alberta, of which he was president from 1928 to 1936. It was his 19th honorary degree.

A similar honor was conferred on Dr. G. D. Stanley of Calgary, prominent in medical and education circles, at the university's two-day convocation got under way.

Dr. Wallace, who delivered Wednesday's convocation address said there is a grave crisis education in Canada that it is the things of the mind and the spirit which persist through the ages.

"There is a frank confession that an inventory of the intellectual and spiritual contribution which Canada has made hitherto is more modest than the opportunities which have been given to this end. . ."

What Canada did in production of material wealth would soon be forgotten. The challenge to young people today was to contribute to the deeper values of life.

Convocation will end today when R. G. Winspear of Edmonton, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, also will receive an honorary Doctorate of Law and deliver the second convocation address.

Grand Bend Votes To Become Part Lambton County

Grand Bend, Ont., May 17 (CP) —This western Ontario village which straddles the boundary between Lambton and Huron counties voted Wednesday to become part of Lambton.

The vote was 262 to 11 in favor of joining Lambton. Only 353 of the village's voters are qualified.

The vote ended a bitter campaign by opposing forces in the village of 700, a popular summer resort on Lake Huron.

Chief issue in the campaign was the question of whether liquor laws would apply to Grand Bend.

Huron is covered by the Canada Temperance Act which prohibits all sale of liquor and beer although it permits hotels to be brought into the county.

Lambton is under the Ontario Liquor Control Act as a result of Wednesday's vote the village will be able to hold another plebiscite on the question of setting up taverns and licensed beer and liquor store.

The main street of Grand Bend has divided the county line and the government of the village has been complicated with the two counties sharing responsibility for various services.

UNION SIGNS AGREEMENT

Oshawa, May 17 — (CP) Members of local 2784, United Steelworkers of America (C. I. O. — C. C. L.), Wednesday night approved a one-year contract with the Pedlar People Ltd. which will give the plant's more than 300 employees a package agreement valued at 14½ cents an hour.

The contract provides for wage increases of 10 cents an hour, a cost-of-living plan for wage adjustment, and company payment of approximately 2½ cents an hour in a health and insurance plan. The work week will be reduced from 45 to 44 hours.

Scientists Beset by Rough Weather in Indian Survey

New Delhi. (CP)—Three scientists who made a successful mission into an island of "rats, bats and cats" to survey skin disease ended up fighting for their lives against a cyclone in the Indian Ocean.

The men arrived here recently after a three-month journey into the Maldive Islands, on the equator about 400 miles west of Ceylon.

The trio, Dr. M. O. T. Iyengar, of Calcutta, Dr. M. Mathew and M. A. U. Menon, of Travancore, told of their work in the islands and of the storm that smashed at their tiny 50-ton vessel for 42 hours.

Their assignment came from the World Health Organization of the United Nations. It asked them to survey the disease called Filariasis, or Elephantiasis, which causes a person's skin to resemble an elephant hide.

They completed their work by the middle of March and then learned there was no steamer available to take them home. So they set out for Ceylon on the small government schooner on which they had been living during the survey.

The vessel was caught in a westerly drift and carried far out into the Indian Ocean. But the schooner survived the battering and 12 days later struggled back to Male, the Maldive capital. There they were picked up by a steamer which was diverted from its course to Colombo, and brought back.

Ragged Isle

During their stay on the islands the scientists had to contend with a monotonous and unappetizing diet which led to dysentery.

Dr. Iyengar explained "there is no agriculture on these islands, and no animals except bats, rats and cats, plus a few domestic fowl. The people live by coconut farming and fishing."

He said that of 4,000 persons examined there one in every three suffered from Filariasis. Altogether they treated 23 lepers in the three southern atolls of the archipelago, where Filariasis is a serious problem.

In a small laboratory aboard the schooner the scientists checked various specimens of mosquitoes believed transmitters of Filariasis, as well as malaria. They investigated breeding spots and were able to recommend simple, inexpensive methods of controlling the sources.

Famed Engineer Declined $38,000 Offer on United Nations Billet

By J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Wellington, N.Z. (CP)—Few men nowadays would turn down a job offering $38,000 a year—tax free—and stick to one paying about $5,000. But that's New Zealand's deputy works commissioner, F. M. Hanson, is a man of faith and resolution and he's done just that.

He was offered the post of assistant secretary-general in the Middle East for the United Nations, at a salary said to be the highest ever offered to an engineer in New Zealand. Neither the job nor his decision to decline it surprised the men who fought under Brigadier Hanson in the last war ,when he won the D.S.O. and Bar and the Military Medal. He also holds the O.B.E.

Field Marshal Viscount Alexander, now governor-general of Canada, said once that the Engineers Hanson commanded set a standard of military engineering which would probably stand for all time. Their work was a large factor in the fame attached to the New Zealand division for its battles in Italy and the Middle East.

"Bull" Hanson and his engineers developed mine-removal tactics in the western desert which were followed in Field Marshal Montgomery's great battle at El Alamein, and later became standard practice.

One of the world's leading experts on road-building, Hanson played a large part in getting the New Zealand division through "impassable" country in the desert. In Italy, the campaign time and again depended on the speed with which rivers could be bridged and here the New Zealand engineers continually exceeded expectations.

Hanson always seem got bridges across so fast that formations on their flanks had to come over and use them to keep up.

The post which he was offered recently would have involved work in an area with which he is closely associated, requiring supervision of projects in which he is an acknowledged authority. Hanson was in highway and bridge construction, irrigation works, housing and farm development throughout the Middle East.

Hanson considered the offer carefully before reaching his decision. "I am first and foremost a New Zealander with a great faith in the future of this country," he said, "and that was of first importance towards the decision not to accept, greatly attractive though the offer was for work in so wide a field."

He is already near the top in government engineering service in New Zealand, and cannot hope for any great increase in his present salary. But he doesn't see anything remarkable in his decision to stay on here.

"What would I do with all that money," he said with a grin.

Agar Encounters Delay in Getting Marriage Licence

Las Vegas, Nev., May 17 (AP) —John Agar 30, Shirley Temple's former husband, was married Wednesday to a brunette model, Loretta Barrett Combs, 28, of Los Angeles.

Agar encountered delay in obtaining the marriage license.

County Clerk Helen Scott Reed said Agar was "too unsteady" and refused to issue the license. The actor went to a nearby cafe, swigged down two cups of coffee, straight, returned and got the necessary paper.

It was the second marriage for both Agar and Mrs. Combs. He was divorced by Shirley Temple Dec. 5, 1949, after she complained of his drinking.

Woman Bitten By Rattlesnake

Port Colborne, May 17 — (CP) A rattlesnake bite serum rushed by a relay of police cruisers from Windsor to Port Colborne — was administered early today to a woman who was bitten by a two-foot rattler.

The woman, 35-year-old Mrs. Teresa Notar, was bitten on the finger last night when she reached into a nest while collecting eggs in the barn.

Several snake bite treatments were tried out but were not fully effective. Dr. G. N. Black, who treated Mrs. Notar, found there was none of the antidote known as anti-venom available in the Niagara valley. Only one packet was available in Buffalo, N. Y., 15 miles away.

While Mrs. Notar's son drove to Buffalo for the serum, police made arrangements to bring additional supplies from Windsor where it is manufactured.

The snake, later stunned by blows from a stick, was found to be a prairie rattler, common in the marshy area near the Notar home. It had six rattles.

Head of Military Junta In Bolivia May Call New Presidential Elections Soon

La Paz, Bolivia, May 17.—(AP)—Gen. Hugo Ballivian, head of the military Junta which took control of tin-rich Bolivia in a bloodless coup yesterday, said last night that he may call new presidential elections next month.

This appeared to be a new step in finding peace for the presidency exiled Victor Paz Estenssoro, leader of the National Revolutionary party, who ran far ahead in the May 6 presidential election but failed to secure the necessary majority.

Ballivian promised, meanwhile, that Bolivia will continue to maintain friendly relations with her western hemisphere neighbors and will adhere to the "treaties and conventions to which the nation is pledged."

Government of this turbulent little country was handed over to the Junta of three generals and seven colonels yesterday by President Mamerto Urriolagoita. The president resigned and took a plane to Chile.

Police officials charged Paz Estenssoro's Socialistic party, which draws its main strength from the country's tin miners, had joined the outlawed communists in a "silver-shirt front" which had some Nazi-like features.

U.S. Building Huge Air Base At Okinawa

Okinawa, May 15 (Delayed)—(AP) — United States is building a huge air base here that will bring all east Asia within striking distance of mighty B-36 bombers.

A $65,000,000 construction program is rapidly transforming Kadena airfield into one of the strongest outposts of American power in the Orient.

Okinawa's role is to discourage any aggressive move by communists, or to help check such a move if and when it comes.

B-29 Superforts based here have been striking at the reds in North Korea since the early months of the Korean war.

Use of Torches To Destroy Wasp Nests Dangerous

Toronto—The use of torches to set rid of wasp nests is a dangerous practice that has caused forest fires and resulted in summer cottages being destroyed, says the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests in suggesting a simple alternative method.

An example of how dangerous the use of fire can be for this purpose was related by a fire control officer:

"Last summer a fuel wood cutter was annoyed by a wasps' nest on one of his piles of wood and tried to smoke the creatures out. He succeeded all right, but in the process started a fire that not only destroyed thousands of dollars' worth of wood but a new truck as well. The arrival of rangers was the only thing that prevented a serious forest fire."

His suggestion for getting rid of wasps, when chemical sprays are not available or for some reason or other are not convenient to do the job with:

"On a damp night, that is one during which the dew has formed, the wasps' nest can be safely pick-ed up on a long stick and carried to a safe place for destruction, such as an incinerator or stove on other steams. The principle behind this is that the wasps' wings are damp rendering them incapable of flight and they are easily to destroy. Attack the nest. However, a long stick is essential since the wasps, while unable to fly, can still sting."

For fishermen or picnickers who carry thermos bottles, the idea with ground nests be had the following tip: "Move to another more convenient location. However it is illegal to set out fire other than for cooking or warmth in the fire district."

Women's Supply Hosiery Likely To be Adequate

By FORBES REUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Apparently women don't need to worry yet about a return of the hosiery scarcities of the Second World War.

Assurance is contained in the current issue of Textiles, published by the Primary Textiles Institute, Toronto. It says:

"Unless defence orders requiring cotton yarn are suddenly and greatly increased, there is little danger of running into a shortage of full-fashioned hosiery in the near future.

"With Canada's 42 hosiery knitting mills at present supplying an all-time high civilian demand, there was, fortunately, a reasonably-adequate supply of domestic nylon last year."

According to statistics, each Canadian woman over 15 years of age buys, on the average, eight pairs of hosiery in a year.

Costly to Move Things

It costs a lot of money just to move things about—from here to there.

John A. Leach, general manager of the Canadian Exporters' Association, illustrated this with some figures in an address last night to the Canadian Industrial Traffic League in Hamilton. He said:

"It is a surprising fact that of Canada's total trade in 1950 no better than $6,000,000,000, both import and export, transportation and navigation services accounted for $1,582,000,000, or approximately 26 per cent of all Canadian commerce.

"Transportation and navigation services include rail and water freight, motor transport, telegraph and telephone, port charges, marine insurance, and so on.

RAWDON

Mother's Day Commemorated By Special Service

Rawdon— A special Mother's Day Service was held last Sunday afternoon in Mount Pleasant-Rawdon United Church, with the theme, "If Ye Love Me, Keep My Commands."

The edifice was a bower of beauty, with potted plants and cut flowers. The children of the Sunday School and Mission Band occupied the choir loft and sang two numbers, "Happy the Home," and "Can a Little Child Like Me?". The Junior choir was trained by Mrs. Marguerite McMullen and Mrs. Herbert Smith. A vocal trio "The Sweet Story of Old", was rendered by Rodger Smith, David Potts and Rasheen Scott. Miss Betty McConnell was pianist for the service.

The Scripture lesson was given by Eleanor Smith, Lois Mitts, Marjorie Scott, Walter Wrightman and Doreen Bailey.

Judy Ruth Sharp gave the splendid story entitled "Chen Yu".

Several Mission Band members gave their own short prayers with the junior choir singing a response after each, and at the close the assistant leader of the Mission Band, Mrs. John Mullen, led them all together in a prayer of honor of mother.

The first Mother's Day was founded in 1907 by Miss Anna M. Jarvis and in 1914 President Woodrow Wilson proclaimed the second Sunday of May as Mother's Day and now over forty countries recognize this occasion.

Rite of Baptism

The pastor and the Sunday School superintendent presided over various parts of the service with the pastor giving a brief message on "Mother". He also conducted a baptismal service when Glenn Frances Spencer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Spencer Jr., was christened. Baby's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wilson, Trent River, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Spencer, Mount Pleasant and great grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Spencer, Rawdon, and Mrs. Don Holbert and family, and Mrs. Ray Parr were in attendance at the service.

Memorial Service

On Sunday afternoon, Carmel United Church in Rawdon township, was profusely decorated with potted plants, basket of flowers, vases of wild flowers and memorial cut flowers. They were given in memory of Mrs. Mc. Fyear by her husband and her daughter, Mrs. Helen Neal.

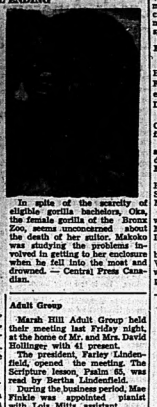
The guest soloist was Mrs. Melda Hunter Fowler, of Toronto, who rendered two fine selections.

The pupils of Glen Ross public school, under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. Jack Bush, sang "The Books of the Old Testament", which had a poetic arrangement of rhyme and music.

The pastor, Rev. A. E. Baker, conducted the service and he also officiated at the baptism of Leslie Daryl, three-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fyear. The baby's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fyear, and Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Robson were in attendance at the service.

MAKOKO'S COURTING HAD A FATAL ENDING

Keepers are shown working unsuccessfully to revive Makoko, the 440-pound gorilla at the Bronx Park Zoo. The huge simian, long a favorite of zoogoers, accidentally spilled into the water-filled moat in front of his quarters as thousands of visitors watched. Ten minutes later, keepers finally got Makoko out, but were unable to revive him. — Central Press Canadian.



In spite of the scarcity of eligible gorilla bachelors, Oka, the female gorilla of the Bronx Zoo, seems unconcerned about the death of her suitor, Makoko was slurping the problems involved in getting to her enclosure when he fell into the moat and drowned. — Central Press Canadian.

The printed Mother's Day service was held in the Sunday School period with the lesson used in the place of the story.

River is Home to Barge Residents on the River

By PHILIP CLARKE

Aboard the Barge St. Honorine, Seine River. (AP)—This is the life!

No morning rush hour. No boats to dodge. No telephone, time clocks or crowded buses to contend with. Just that whistle, crank up the engine and away we go down the Seine River from Paris to the sea.

"Your home is the river," says the St. Honorine's captain, Paul Canone, a lean, pipe-puffing man who has lived 36 of his 49 years on river boats. "On shore, I feel like a fish out of water."

Canone, like other bargemen, never seems to tire of traveling the same route year after year. "Everything changes with the seasons—the trees, the skies, the people living along the riverbanks. Like the smiliest colony along the river at Villeneuve. It's a nice place for sailors when the boats approach."

About 100,000 Frenchmen—seamen and their families—live on the 12,000 or so barges which ply 6,000 miles of navigable river and canals carrying everything from apples to coal.

The barge range from 1183s 200 tonners towed by tugs in strings of six to 300-ton self-propelled ships like St. Honorine. There are wives on many, too.

The Canones joined the St. Honorine and her happy-go-lucky fleet at sleepy Melun, a three-day voyage down the meandering Seine from Paris to Le Havre.

The St. Honorine is a 130-foot long, slim and stub-nosed. She rides high in the water now because her tanks are empty. Full biggest port.

Life Unhurried

Life aboard is unhurried. Suzanne, pretty young wife of first mate Roger Debosq, has plenty of time to hang out the family wash.

Chris-haired Marie Claude, the Debosq' four-year-old daughter, romps about the deck with Mickey a fuzzy-faced little dog.

There are three cabins with bunk beds, a table and a few chairs, a radio and a kitchen stove and sink.

Captain Canone knows every bend in the Seine. He often steers with one hand, holding a newspaper with the other. He slows the barge while passing houseboats or fishing boats. "That way the waves to rock them," he explains.

Mooring at sundown nestles beside other barges at one of France's 838 river ports. The crews and women go ashore often taking their bicycles with them. They drink wine and talk shop in favorite taverns. The women buy bread and other provisions.

A little more than half of the barge captains own their own boats. The remainder are operated by companies.

Captains draw about 30,000 francs ($87) a month, ordinary seamen about 10,000 francs. The men get vast to pay and all utilities are taken care of aboard the company-owned boats.

Barge operators bid against one another for cargoes at various semi-official auctions. On the average year, barges transport about 45,000,000 tons of freight compared to some 140,000,000 tons by rail. Paris, more than 100 miles from the sea, is France's biggest port.

Filbert Nuts Chief Product Of B.C. Farm

Vancouver, (CP)—Fred Seifert, 48-year-old farmer, is looking for security for his four-year-old son, and he believes he has found it.

"The farm is the only place a man can be independent," he said in selling of his place.

His 300-acre farm in the lush Fraser Valley near Langley Prairie, 25 miles east of Vancouver, is unique in British Columbia, both in scope and size for his type of farming.

Seifert has a vast grove of small fruits, plantations of a vegetable garden, a poultry establishment and dairy farm.

There are 7,000 nut trees, three and four years old, which will bear this year. A harvest of three or four tons is expected and when the groves are mature, at 13 years, the yield will reach 75 tons.

He figures the sons will have security when the trees mature. If they come up to expectations they should yield $1,000 an acre.

A filbert tree is good for 100 years or more and there are already three generations of Seiferts on the farm.

Besides, other fields may spell security. There are 750 Italian prune trees due to bear this year, 10 acres of raspberries with 20 more to be planted this year.

And, there should never be a shortage of chickens. He has 3,000 laying hens, Hampshires, housed in modern chicken houses.

UNWELCOME PEST

The corn borer was originally a European insect which was first found in early established in Ontario by 1920 and later spread.

Pottery Proves Clue to Ancient Civilization

New Delhi (Reuters)—An ancient civilization of 5,000 years ago is being uncovered in the Rajasthan desert near Pakistan's frontier.

Indian archaeologists there today say pottery discoveries made so far indicate a discovery that might rival that of the Indus River Valley civilizations unearthed in 1920 at Mohenjo Daro and Harappa, two presesg day cities.

These two cities covered the remains of several more built one on top of the other. Those excavated dated back 5,000 years.

Even then people had bathrooms, the Mohenjo Daro diggings showed. They also had drainage, paved streets and wheeled carts and implements for cultivating the fertile land on which they lived.

Jewelry and stone sculpture unearthed proved their high artistic gifts.

The new excavations began last fall and are being postponed until after the summer months when work will begin on eight selected sites.

Plans are to lay bare cities lying near the dry bed of what was once the river Ghaggar.

Just as the river dried up and disappeared so did the land of Sind in which lay ancient Mohenjo Daro, a well-laid-out city with a great public bath and broad streets running at right angles.

In those far-off eras Sind was a fertile, well-watered country, something like the Ganges delta. But now it is a waterless, arid desert with no trace of its former greatness.

READY FOR BUSINESS

Pittsburgh, May 16 — (AP) — Police accused an admitted gamblers writer yesterday of setting up a cash register on the back seat of an automobile to keep track of his curbstone transactions. After police told a judge that Thomas Mullen, 39, had his numbers business organized like a corner store, Mullen pleaded guilty. He was fined $250 and placed on a year's probation.

Crack Amateur Comet Chaser Once Farm Boy

Delphos, O. (AP)—Leslie C. Peltier is probably the world's best amateur astronomer because he once picked 200 quarts of strawberries.

That was 35 years ago when he needed $16 to buy a telescope. Picking strawberries was the only way the 16-year-old Ohio farm boy knew to raise that much money.

After 35 years of deep-space fishing the 51-year-old furniture designer now owns a heavenly harem of 10 bodies—10 new comets man never had seen before. Each is named after him.

Receives Many honors

These discoveries and 90,000 reports on changes in variable stars have brought Peltier unusual honors. He is the only honorary life member of the Amateur Astronomers Association. He received the first award of merit of the association of variable star observers.

He holds the amateur astronomers medal "for meritorious service to the science of astronomy in the field of discovery and observation of comets and other celestial objects." He was the second such award.

In 1924, he and 'Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard University Observatory, introduces him as "the world's greatest non-professional astronomer."

On a typical evening, Peltier comes home from his work of designing juvenile furniture at the Delphos Handling Co., plant. He'll grab a bite to eat, bundle up in his overcoat and walk out to his little tin observatory in his backyard.

There he trains his telescope on the sky and begins fishing for a star. Ten times in 35 years he has hit the jackpot. The first one came March 28, 1925, and he named it Peltier 1925A. The 'A' means it was the first new comet reported that year.

Peltier reports with pride his banner catch in 1943—two new comets that year.

In 1946, Peltier found a new comet that rounded its path closer to the sun than any comet ever has. He knows it could be seen on that day by the naked eye before disappearing again in space.

But hundreds of nights have gone by without any such discoveries. The only thing that happens is the slow, careful compilation of information about changes in the brightness of stars that vary.

Peltier has found out many things about comets in 35 years of chasing them through outer space. You may think comets are always globs of light with long tails. Peltier knows they may be just hazy spots in the lens without a tail. If there is a tail, chances are the tail will be out front.

He will can't figure out where comets come from. For that matter, other scientists are just as puzzled.

He designed his own tiny observatory in the corner of his backyard, a unique tin stack on a turntable.

"There's not another like it in the world," he says proudly.

About seven feet square, the tiny building is mounted on four steel wheels on a circular track in cement. From the inside, the observer can rotate the entire building by an automobile steering wheel and a rope and pulley arrangement.

Peltier uses a six-inch telescope given him by Princeton University in 1906. It required a four-year apprenticeship by Harvard University in 1919.

Small Moose Herd Survives In N.Z. Forest

Auckland, N.Z. (CP)—For the first time for more than 20 years a moose has been shot in New Zealand. It was one of a small herd which inhabits New Zealand's Fiordland in the extreme south-west corner of the country and which is the only moose herd in the southern hemisphere.

Four bull and six cow moose of Saskatchewan stock were liberated in Dusky Sound in the wild, uninhabited area in 1910. Earlier efforts to establish moose in New Zealand had been unsuccessful, but this herd survived.

Dusky Sound has one of the heaviest rainfall records in the world, with an annual fall of about 300 inches, and the wetter and warmer climate has caused the moose to change their natural habits drastically.

Dangerous swamps in the valleys have forced them to move to drier gullies and steep slopes, where their chief food appears to be fern, native grasses and moss. There is little of the soft vegetable food they like, but though not increasing greatly in numbers, the herd appears to be holding its own.

The last hunter who succeeded in shooting a moose in New Zealand did so in the '30s. Several parties have searched for the herd in vain as the country is heavily forested and very rugged. R.W. Wodzicki, who liberated the animals recently, estimates that the herd numbers only about 30. The moose he shot was a fairly young one in excellent condition.

Scots Isle Turns To Mink Breeding

Knock, Lewis, Scotland (CP)—Mink breeding has spread to Scotland's western Isles.

In a small village five miles from Stornoway, Colin Morrison is starting in a small way with four males and two females. He thinks local conditions will prove favorable and hopes to build up a large farm.

"I became interested in mink breeding through a well-known Scottish breeder," said Colin. "He started in a small way in 1940 and now has a stock of more than 1,000."

MAJORITY CUT TO FOUR

London, May 16 — (AP) — The Tolley government's effective majority in the House of Commons was cut to four last night with the resignation of Rhys J. Davies, Nationalist.

Davies has been in bad health. He has been in the Commons 20 years and is known as the "father of the Parliament" in his party." He represented Westhoughton, which he won by a majority of 11,852 in the last general election.

U.S. URGES ALLIANCE OF BALKAN-ANTI-COMMUNIST COUNTRIES

Urgent study of possible use of combined Greek and Turkish forces in event of a red attack on Yugoslavia is being pressed by U. S. officials through the Greek-Turkish aid program. An alliance would be an alliance of Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia. An attack is believed likely to involve western Europe as well as the Soviet Union itself. Experts think if Moscow and the red satellites make the move, Bulgaria would attack both Yugoslavia and Greece, with Hungary and Romania moving into Yugoslavia from the north (arrows). Defence strategy would call for Yugoslavia and Greece to occupy satellite Albania. — Central Press Canadian.

Pension Cheques and Living Costs Harass U.S. Hobo

New York. (AP)—Because of increasing paternalism in government and the high cost of living, the American hobo is rapidly becoming extinct.

"If this keeps up, there won't be one left in 20 years," says Ben Benson, four-time king of the hobos ("don't," he warns, "go putting quotes around my title because it's official, damn it.").

Ben is five feet tall, weighs 110 pounds, uses a hearing aid and talks faster than a used-car salesman. In the last 30 years of bumming, he has covered more than 500,000 miles, he estimates. Started at 11.

"Been on the road since I was 11," he says. "Never seen anything like it. Not one-tenth the boy travelling nowadays there was 10, 15 years ago.

"Right here in New York, out of 10,000 men on the Bowery, maybe 6,000 used to be travelling bums, now they're on relief or old age pensions. Can't travel. Got most of the time I bummed at the back doors of houses. In the days when food was cheap, they wouldn't turn you away.

"Now, they don't have enough food for themselves. Why even the Salvation Army and other missions don't put up the feed the way they used to."

Character Changing

The character of American hoboes is changing, too. They used the more intelligent, Ben reports, more interested in the working man, if not interested in working themselves.

"Now everybody is afraid of being called a communist," he says. "Last summer, out in Colorado, a farmer asked me if I wanted a short job. How much? I says. Dollar and a half, he says. Nothing doing, I says. I want three dollars a day, good food and a good place to sleep not in the barn next to the cows. He called me a red."

Ben was elected to his, fourth term as king of the hoboes at a convention last year in Britt, Ia. He is 67.

"I positively won't run for a fifth term," he insists. "I want to get out of the hobo movement. Want to get into the youth movement."

Posters Help Boost British Churchgoing

Aberdeen, Scotland. (CP) — Walk down University Road here and you will be confronted by a large Canadian poster.

Depicting a tiny country church it bids: "Come to Church—every life needs an altar and faith for lasting times."

The posters were presented to Britain when a British billposting company could not get permission to buy them in Canada.

From many parts of Britain, requests for copies are reaching church officials in Aberdeen. Authorities believe the posters will help boost the recent "back to church" movement.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma is still trying to make pop think we need a television set, and after supper she said to him, William, materials are getting scarce.

Is that a delicate way of warning me that ladies' skerts are going to be shorter again? pop said, and ma said, Some women probably hope so, and they're generally the very ones that shouldn't. I was speeking of the materials needed to make television sets. One day it's the metal and the next it's the other, till pritty soon the manufacturers wont have anything left but their bare tubes, she said.

The poor chaps, pop said, and ma said, You're the one you should be sorry for, I mean if you keep on dilly dallying and procrastinating and putting it off from day to day, you'll wake up one fine cold morning and there wont be another set on the market, she said.

Then by gollys I wont waste another minute, pop said, and ma said, Do you really mean it, William?

I do indeed, pop said. I'll decide rite here and now not to get a set, and then I wont have a thing to worry about, he said, and ma said, William, dont you dare say sutch a thing even as a joke. And besides, William, there may be a certain amount of exaggeration in these reports about scarcities of this that and the other. In fact it may be practically all exaggeration, she said.

In that case I guess I'll keep considering the question, pop said, and ma said, Of course, William, goodness.

And she started to do the bridge problem in the paper looking like somebody feeling partly lucky.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. GARTER, Sports Editor

LOOKS LIKE A TEAM!

With the acquisition of Pat Wilson as playing coach, the Belleville Rodmen entry in the Central Ontario Baseball League would appear to have the makings of a well-balanced team. With Johnny Brown behind the catching duties, and Johnny Mowat, Dick Fitzpatrick, Billy Strahan and possibly a left-hander who is said to be somewhat "pumkins" as a pitching staff, other than the regular duty pitchers, is in for a treat if fair play rules the village having a right smart ball season this summer.

The team executive is holding a meeting tonight in the city hall and a lot of wrinkles will be ironed out. Finances appear to be the big bugbear at the moment but with everybody booting down on his particular job, it may not be so tough as would appear.

It is expected, in fact arrangements are already under way for opening day ceremonies on Thursday May 24th, when the Fleisher Athletics will assist the Rodmen in opening the season. There will be a parade with bands along Front Street, with intact players riding out in their own way. City and county officials will preside at the ceremonies and it should be quite a baseball event. The Rodmen will be garbed in their white uniforms with black stripes, and the name "Rodmen" in scarlet outlined in black on their shirts. They will wear red caps with a white "B" above the Visor.

While nothing definite has been done regarding playing rosters, Frontsman Jack Carson has been switched to the box at the greenbelt meadows, "Shell" Carson and Dave Lockyer have been holding down first base with "Moose" Bush covering around second, and Ron McGregor at shortstop. Pat Wilson will likely be in the outfield. Several other well-known local players are trying out and bring hard for positions. Next week with Wilson in harness the squad will settle down to hard work preparatory to the opening date. It is not expected that they will play any exhibition games prior to the season's debut.

IT COULD HAPPEN!

A Canadian has not won the Canadian Open Golf championship since 1914, and with the competition from south of the border getting stiffer each year, the hope for a Canadian champion scarcely could be termed bright. The Open will be played on the beautiful Mississauga course, Toronto, this year, and it looks like the big attraction of the season.

Against the competition of men who make tournament golf their livelihood and who play competitively winter and summer, day in and day out, Canadians face two challenges at most or them can't play during the winter, and they can't play international golf generally during the summer. There just aren't enough Canadian tournaments to keep them going, and besides their primary responsibility is to the members of their home clubs.

But there is always the hope that some day a Canadian will overcome the long odds and keep the Seagram Gold Cup in Canada for a year — maybe even this year. The hope springs from the twin facts that Canadians have come close in the past and good golf in some of those games of good breaks might well spell the difference between first place and third or fourth.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver seemed headed that way a year ago when he was out in front and shooting beautiful golf until well on in the third day. Then he slipped, and wound up in a tie for fourth spot. Five years before, he finished just one stroke out of a first - place tie. Then there is Montreal's Bill Kerr who shot his way to a third - place tie two years ago and Toronto's Bob Gray, who was just two strokes behind winning Sam Snead in 1941.

There are plenty of other top-notch Canadian pros who could turn the trick too. Any one of them just might happen to get really hot for four days and become the first Canadian to keep the championship at home since 1914.

Gus Zernial on Record-Tying Home-Run Rampage, Hits Six Homers in Three Games

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Big Gus Zernial, the slumbering giant, is on a record-tying homerun rampage.

With six homers in three consecutive games, the Chicago White Sox did everything but stick pins into Zernial's hide. Then a three-way swap involving the A's, White Sox and Indians brought bench-riding Gus to Philadelphia April 30.

With the A's he's hitting at a .306 clip to bring his season mark around .333.

The home-run spurt started Sunday when the A's dumped the Yankees twice. Gus connected twice in the second game. He hit two more Monday night against St. Louis. Then came another pair last night off the Brownies. Still the A's lost the ball game, 10-9, and tumbled into the American league cellar.

Ferris-Fain continued his batting surge with three hits, boosting his average to .403, and Lou Klein, former Cleveland infielder, hit his first homer for the A's. The Brownies had bombers too. Don Lenhardt hit two home runs and a single, driving in four runs.

Sel Season's High

Vic Raschi set a season high with 10 strikouts in New York Yankees' 11-3 romp over Cleveland. When Raschi's right arm tightened up after eight innings, rookie Tom Morgan mopped up. It was the Yanks' ninth straight at the stadium, where they have yet to lose.

Mickey Mantle drove home four runs with his first Yankee Stadium homer and fourth of the year. The rookie also chipped in with a base-clearing triple. Beaten by Brown hit a three-run homer off Steve Gromek, who followed Bob Lemon to the hill in the six-run fifth inning.

The surging Chicago White Sox knocked off Boston Red Sox at Fenway Park for the second day in a row, 9-5. Jim Dobson went all the way against his old mates. Walt Dropo hit homers in the second and third to drive in four Boston runs.

Right hits, including triples by Nelson Fox and Jim Busby, in the first two innings ruined Chuck Stobbs and Fred Hutchin.

Tigers Keep Slug

Detroit kept step with Chicago, tied for second place 2 1-2 games out, by whipping Washington 7-1. Dizzy Trout allowed only four hits. The Tigers hit the jackpot for five in the fourth on three singles and four walks by Al Sima.

In the National League, it's only three games from the last-place Phillies to the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers after last night's action.

Brooklyn was knocked out by its own weapons, home runs, as Chicago Cubs belted Dodger pitchers for 13 hits in a 14-4 slaughter. Dee Fondy, Ransom Jackson, a pair of rookies, each rapped two homers and Frankie Baumholtz collected four hits.

The Dodgers lost the services of Jackie Robinson, who left the game in the third inning after suffering a recurrence of an old knee injury.

Sain Not Going Good

Second-place Boston also was knocked off by Cincinnati, 4-3, with the Reds scoring three off Johnny Sain in the eighth. It was Sain's fifth loss. He's won only one. Hunters by Bob Elliott and Willard Marshall gave Sain a cushion until the eighth when four hits and three runs did him.

Jim Hearn found his old Pittsburgh routine in their usual form and chipped out a 3-1 decision for the Giants. Whitey Lockman's single, scoring Al Dark in the fifth, provided the winning run off Jim Wilson. Leo Durocher was chased by Umpire Art Gore in the first inning.

Al Brazle came to the rescue of Gerry Staley in the ninth to preserve a 5-3 St. Louis win over Philadelphia. Staley touched home two runs to help himself to his fifth victory. Stan Musial homered in the third.

SEARCH FOR BODY

Fort Erie, May 17 (CP) —Police in this area are still searching for the body of Herbert Pitto, 42, one of two men drowned Tuesday when their boat overturned. The body of his companion, William Bigelow, 18, was recovered near the Fort Erie waterworks intake.

Quebec to Sell Hockey Tickets For Next Season

Quebec, May 16—(CP)—Next month Quebecers will line up again for hockey tickets.

That is when seats in the Colisseum go on sale. Quebec fans are expected to respond in the style with which they set a possible Canadian hockey attendance record last month.

The night of April 26, when Citadelles, Quebec's Memorial Cup semi-finalists, met Barrie Flyers, ultimate cup winners, the Colisseum bulged with 12,856 fans.

This was better than Montreal Forum's record of 15,780 Feb. 17, when Canadiens' fans put on "Maurice Richard night" for their National Hockey League idol.

Quebecers gave their junior amateur hockey association team a major-league following all season.

For the 23 home games in provincial junior play total attendance was 242,000, average of about 9,250 a game. Twelve playoff games pulled in 143,000 more.

This weren't up to Montreal's average N. H. L. attendance of 14,300 or the Maple Leafs' average following of 13,000 in Toronto. But it was about as good as Detroit Red Wings' 10,000 and better than New York Rangers' 7,150.

On the other hand, Quebec City's population is only 300,000.

Colisseum officials recall three broken ticket box doors as further proof of Quebecers' enthusiasm. Two good reasons for the record-breaking Quebec hockey turnouts are the comfort of the 10,000-seat pillarless concrete Colisseum and Canada's best stick-and-Jean Beliveau, easy-going Citadelles forward took on as a surefire N. H. L. star material.

Beliveau, a high-scoring stickhandler, is only 20 and has played hockey next year. If he's not with Montreal Canadiens he'll probably wear the uniform of Quebec Aces in the Quebec senior hockey league.

Beliveau in an Aces' sweater undoubtedly means more smashed woodwork in the Colisseum lobby.

Ray Robinson Kisses Wife French President

Paris, May 17—(AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson, the Negro middleweight champion, kissed the wife of the president of France four times Wednesday—twice on each cheek—during an enthusiastic approval of a salon-full of France's social uppercrust.

The 30-year-old American was playing the role of goodwill ambassador for the American Damon Runyon Cancer Fund.

He handed Madame Vincent Auriol a cheque for $10,000 from the Runyon Fund after making a speech in French.

The presentation was staged in a gilded salon near the Arc de Triomphe. As a social event, it probably will be recorded as one of the most successful, if unusual, of the season.

Southpaw Phil Did Double Duty In Victory

(By the Canadian Press)

Southpaw Marty Phil did double duty Wednesday night in helping make the home opener of Guelph Maple Leafs in the intercounty baseball league a successful affair.

Phil, besides pitching a neat five-hitter, slapped a single and double scoring two runs to play an important part in Guelph's 4-3 victory over St. Thomas Legionnaires.

It was the first win in two starts for Maple Leafs and the loss was the second in a row for St. Thomas.

Roly Challifoux, another southpaw, went the route for St. Thomas in the pitcher's game. He gave up only six hits but his control was shaky and gave up six free passes.

Two of the Guelph hits were by Herman Hagedorn, youthful third baseman who came through with a timely pair of singles to drive in three runs.

Johnny Stein, St. Thomas catcher, hammered a home run into the centre-field bleachers in the second inning with nobody on. John Horvath came home with the other St. Thomas run, an unearned one.

Challifoux was effective on the mound for Legionnaires for the first five innings during which he held Guelph hitless. He weakened in the fifth, however, when the winners bunched three hits for two runs.

London Majors were scheduled to get into action for the first time this season last night but their home game with Brantford was rained out.

Three games are scheduled for Friday night: Waterloo at St. Thomas; Galt at Brantford, and Guelph at Kitchener.

Will Run King's Plate Trial In Three Sections

(By The Canadian Press)

With a field of at least 45 entries, there'll be no King's Plate trial at the 1951 opening of the Ontario Jockey Club's Woodbine meeting at Toronto Saturday in three sections — the previous high was two sections.

Fifty-seven horses, still are eligible for the Plate.

Race followers expect that the three section trial will serve to sieve up the Plate, blue-ribbon Canadian racing event which is run a week later. Without use of a starting gate the track could accommodate 28 horses in the Plate. With a gate, it might be held to 18 — 12 in the regular stalls and six in a half gate if it is available. The number of entries probably will determine the size of the field in the Plate.

Sydney Millionaires need approximately $6,500 to wipe out deficits incurred in two years of seasons, it was reported by treasurer John Merchant Wednesday night. The club got $4,700 from receipts and to date from a recent financial drive and almost $2,000 more is expected. Funds totalling $1,200 were also due from advertising.

Baron Gottfried Von Cramm, 43-year-old German tennis star, has been refused a visa by the French government to play in the French International championships at Paris May 28-June 3.

No explanation was given for the refusal, which also extended to the entire German player named Kleinschroth. Fifty-nine foreign players from 30 countries will participate in the tournament.

A four-team round robin series for the Alexander Cup will be suggested at the Canadian amateur hockey association meeting in Halifax next week.

Dr. Sandy MacDonald, president of four-time Maritime champions, Dartmouth Millinites, said Wednesday night he would make the suggestion.

The winners of the four major leagues would set a sprighty gait for the fans, he said.

One of the biggest betting fights in many years appeared in the making Wednesday as Kid Gavilan of Cuba and Johnny Bratton of Chicago wound up their training for Friday night's welterweight championship bout at New York.

The odds today still favored Gavilan at 8 to 5½ to win the world title but prospects were they would shorten to 5-7 or even lighter by the time the two boys enter the ring at 9 p. m. EST.

At Sunningdale, Eng., Scotsman John Panton fired a sizzling 66 over the 6,818-yard Sunningdale golf course Wednesday to spread-eagle the international field in the first round of the "Dark" Tobole ($6,000) pro golf tournament.

Pinehurst, a "semifinalist for the British Ryder Cup team to play America this fall, was unaffected by the north wind which hampered Bobby Locke, the South African holder of the British open championship. Locke carded a 72, two shots better than the score of Art Credy, the Huntington, West Va., pro.

The Joe Louis-Lee Savold fight was made a 15-round affair Wednesday. When the fight originally was announced it was a 12-round bout.

The former world champion meets Savold, listed as the world heavyweight 3, Thursday at the New York Polo Grounds on Wednesday night, June 13. The change was made at the request of Savold.

Page's Return to Minors Highlights Major-Loop Cuts

By JACK HAND

New York, May 17 (AP) — Joe Page's return to the minors was the most dramatic move in the baseball cuts which left the big one ball clubs to cut down to the 25-man limit.

Page, the fabulous "Truman Joe" of the 1947 and 1949 New York pennant-clinching relief ace, has a job and a salary in the $25,000 bracket. He goes to Toledo, Ohio to report and the Mudhens have a new drawing card

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
Bridge Editor

My fans gate red when you ask me about a defensive bid of one no-trump. Now is why I begin to learn the basic needs. But in this play I like to use it as a convention signal.

Basic advice for a defensive no-trump bid is: Two suits of approximately the same length and strength. With three values the defender also has the ball (opportunity) for a takeout double.

So I have here two different defensive bids for almost the same type hands. Of which the takeout double is more useful on most occasions. Because it orders partner to bid.

This makes a defensive no-trump a lazy (infrequently used) bid. A lazy bid is better employed as a convention. In expert play it can be very useful as a modified takeout double. See how.

To ask a bid from partner, the other doubles for takeout. This is good when the doubler has true values ready for it. But what if he lacks the full values? How can he ask partner to bid?

Here is where a defensive no-trump could be used as a signal for this purpose. It would say: "I lack something for a true double. But I want you to bid anyway." They are the same hands as this.

South, your with a heart when you hold this west hand:

♠ K 9 6 2
♦ K Q J 5
♣ K 10 5 3

You would like to know if partner has more in spades or diamonds or clubs. You are shy a sure trick for a true double. But if he knows the convention, one no-trump would order him to bid.

In this manner a takeout double can always be confined to sound values. Because the defensive no-trump could be the take-out signal with a hand that is too light to double.

You must first know the rule meaning of a defensive no-trump. But if you are capable of turning it into a convention, you see how.

Learn to crawl before you leap fences.

CAPTURED AT SEA

Wiscasset, Me., May 17 (AP)—Philip Newcomb, 24-year-old fisherman captured at sea in a stolen boat after a 5-mile, six-sea pursuit last month, yesterday was sentenced to prison for two to four years. He pleaded guilty to breaking, entering and larceny from a waterfront store.

FLASH PRODUCTION COSTS

New York, May 17 (AP) — Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation announced plans yesterday for slashing $7,300,000 from production costs of 36 pictures to be released next year. Other economies to be effected, including voluntary pay cuts of $2,100,000 annually for top management personnel, are expected to result in a total annual saving of $13,700,000. Declining earnings and box-office receipts have been cited as reasons for the economy program.

AT THE BELLE

Bonnie Prince Charlie

David Niven and Margaret Leighton head a superb cast in bringing to the screen the technicolor version of the story of "Bonnie Prince Charlie". The picture was filmed in the Highlands of Scotland in nature's own glowing colors. The pageantry of the Tartan, the Glens and Lochs of Bonnie Scotland, the assembly of the clans to the stirring sound of the bagpipes, the Ball of Holyrood, the attack at Prestonpans, are but a few of the scores of eye-exciting spectacles that go to make Bonnie Prince Charlie a memorable event in entertainment. It is a story from the more romantic pages of history — the story of a fiery young prince who gambled all to win a throne, and even in defeat his charm and dashing personality captured forever the hearts of people. The Belle Theatre presents Bonnie Prince Charlie today and Friday.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Friday, May 18

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Star aspects now generally advise extra care to avoid unnecessary errors, going down the wrong road. This in mind and with your natural cleverness and common sense you should do well.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Rather mild influences but approaching very beneficent starting after midnight. Day has helpful aspects if you stick at essential tasks and don't idle. You can accomplish much.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Instead of restlessly seeking new interests or plans, try to achieve in those already started. But no urgent tasks should be delayed. Up by 10 a.m. brings a lively and act accordingly.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Your Moon's aspect now advises a more careful attitude generally, to get the most and best from your work and methods. Good day to show natural talent, initiative, stability.

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—Combining some sturdiness of purpose and a right discretion are musts now. Don't start day by being irritable or impatient. Most profitable attitude is one promoting compatability, good cheer.

August 24 to September 23—(Virgo) — Mercury's none-too-helpful aspect stresses need for intelligent caution in all important matters and especially where money, foreign and mental alertness are requirements. Faith!

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—More favorable aspects for finishing items hanging fire rather than starting new undertakings unless the latter are imperative. Things will run smoother under calm, reasonable management.

October 24 to November 23—(Scorpio)—Mars says to curb unruly emotions and don't be led into pointless controversies. Rather use plans, the energy and natural capableness for constructive thought, action. You will gain.

November 24 to December 22—(Sagittarius) — Rays encourage building up present work and job, checking for errors, failure to avoid mistakes and getting desk or bench ready for a fresh start Monday, July 23, not on weekend.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)— Your Saturn only planet in really favorable configuration today. This gives you an edge on most of us, so make the most of it. Judge carefully how and what first to handle, then do.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius)—Neither over-generous nor too forgetting day. Quickly review important tasks, take care of Firsts first. Then slow down sensibly for lesser ins. Relax.

February 21 to March 20— (Pisces) — Your rays similar to Aquarius. You will be happier, achieve more if you urge yourself forward, but without panic or worry. Much good can be done with proper application and effort.

YOU BORN TODAY: You are always getting good ideas. Put the good, usable ones into workable practical, capable Taurean. It is important that you not be overanxious or be hampered in initiative and ambition by persons or situations not conducive to your good or future welfare. Stability, persistency, loyalty, honor are the ace up and working on all cylinders for the great achievement that can be yours. Settle unpleasant differences quickly, look hopefully ahead, and pray daily.

Birthdate: John Wilson, Scottish poet and critic.

RHEUMATIC PAIN
Can Be Costly!
"This winter I had to quit work because of rheumatic pain," writes Mr. T. Gallant, Quebec. "For weeks I was so ill of being laid up on a previous job. Then I started using Minard's and became incredibly grown and normal again. I rub it on my aching joints and soak in hot water, as I always have used it for 30 years. I'll say it's great. I'm glad I did. In a short while I was back on the job and have been working ever since."
Don't suffer from Rheumatic or Arthritic pains. Minard's Liniment is recommended by hundreds of thousands of users. Minard's Liniment is penetrating and soothing. Get a bottle today.

"Everything I Ate Disagreed With Me," Says This Man

MR. JIM GACHWAND

Suffered with Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn, "Felt Sick All Over," Got Headaches, Heavy Spells, Rheumatic Pains. Tells How Syntona Helped Him.

At some time of life, when they were not feeling well, many thousands of men and women have used Syntona Herbal Compound. One person tells another and now hundreds more are using it every day. Yes, medicine come and go, but still the people prefer Syntona.

Well known people like Mr. Jim Gachwand, 121 Maple St., London, Ontario, unhesitatingly say Syntona is the best medicine they ever used—

"For about a year I suffered with gassy stomach and got so bad that even the lightest foods disagreed with me," said Mr. Gachwand. "I suffered with awful indigestion, gas and heartburn. Sour liquids would rise in my throat and I felt sick all over. I would get bad headaches and dizzy spells. I was troubled with nasty feelings, sore mouth and muscle aching from stiff, sore and painful.

"A few weeks ago a friend advised me to try Syntona and recommended it so highly that I got some right away. For the first few days my food began to digest better, so I kept on taking it and now I am rid of all the distress in my stomach, can eat just about anything I want and have no trouble after. Since then I've been free of headaches and dizziness, and the pain and soreness has also gone out of my joints and muscles.

"I can really recommend Syntona to other people and am very thankful in the way it helped me."

If you are not feeling well take a medicine that is preferred by people everywhere. Ask for Syntona Herbal Compound.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

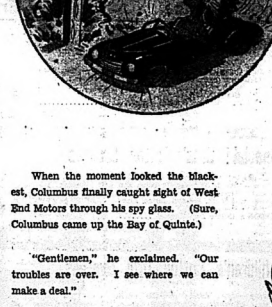
COLUMBUS WAS RIGHT



HISTORY BOOKS ARE WRONG. Columbus was NOT trying to discover a new route to India. He WASN'T trying to prove that the earth was round.

This may come as a bitter disappointment to many, but the truth of the matter was that Columbus had been sailing the seas for years trying to deal off a broken-down tub called the Santa Maria. He had bought this relic years before at a used car lot called "Mad Man Manuel's", who guaranteed everything except that the boat would float.

And so Columbus set forth to look for a reliable car dealer (who had been in business for at least a couple of hundred years) that he might be able to deal in this refugee from a termite luncheon.

When the moment looked the blackest, Columbus finally caught sight of West End Motors through his spy glass. (Sure, Columbus came up the Bay of Quinte.)

"Gentlemen," he exclaimed. "Our troubles are over. I see where we can make a deal."

And sure enough, he found that the Santa Maria made a good down payment on a 1474 Durant, and the balance was spread over 12 months at $35.21 per month.

Incidentally, now you know why we call it WEST End Motors — Columbus called it "WEST End Motors."

You can discover West End Motors for yourself. They're easy to find, easy to talk to, and easy to deal with. It means SO much to them to have satisfied customers.

20-MILE ADVANCE MADE BY ENEMY FORCES

Eleven Killed, 60 Injured In Train Wreck

Crack Passenger Trains on P.R.R. In Rear-End Crash

One Express Stops to Check Equipment at Bryn Mawr

Bryn Mawr, Pa., May 18 — (AP) — Police Superintendent Maj. G. A. McLaughlin said 11 persons are known to have been killed in the crash of two famed Pennsylvania Railroad trains here today.

Authoritative reports said at least 60 others were injured, eight of them seriously.

The Philadelphia Express was coming from Pittsburgh, the Red Arrow from Detroit to New York.

Bryn Mawr Hospital reported it had received at least 50 injured. The extent of their injuries had not been determined.

A spokesman for P.R.R. said the crash occurred at 7:38 a.m. EDT at a peak period of travel on one of the most heavily-travelled rail lines in the east.

The spokesman said train No. 65, the Red Arrow, eastbound from Detroit to New York, smashed into the rear of train No. 36, the Philadelphia Express, flight Express bound from Pittsburgh.

The Philadelphia Express had stopped, possibly for a checkup on equipment.

Telescoped One Car

The accident happened about five miles west of the P.R.R. station in Bryn Mawr, a residential suburb.

Eyewitnesses said the engine of the Red Arrow telescoped the rear car of the Philadelphia Express and overturned the car ahead. The locomotive itself thrust straight into the air, then collapsed on its side.

Among the passengers on the battered train were several priests, who hastened to help the injured and to administer last rites of the church to the dead.

More than 1,000 people gathered at the scene on a section of Philadelphia's "main line"—and some were pressed into service to aid police and firemen.

Eyewitnesses said they saw an electric flash, then flames rising from the telescoped coach. The railroad uses electric engines, powered from overhead wires in this area. The fire was quenched soon after railroad men tuned off the current.

During the early morning hours the P.R.R. carries tens of thousands of suburban residents to their jobs in Philadelphia.

Thus a major snarl in this operation resulting from the wreck.

$3,500,000 Army Ordnance Depot For Cobourg

Ottawa, May 18—(CP)—Defence Minister Claxton announced today an extensive $3,500,000 army ordnance depot will be built at Cobourg and indicated it might be used as an eventual supply point "when the St. Lawrence Seaway is completed."

Cobourg is a Lake Ontario port about 30 miles east of Toronto.

Construction of the three-building project will start within the next two or three months on the 105-acre tract of land of which 72 acres were turned over by the town of Cobourg for the nominal sum of $1.

Mr. Claxton said the decision to build at Cobourg was made after an extensive study of a number of places. The decision was finally based on its proximity to both transcontinental rail lines, and existing dock facilities, which would up "the possibility of trans-oceanic shipping when the St. Lawrence Seaway is completed."

This was taken as an indication that when ocean-going ships could dock at Cobourg, the depot would be used to send supplies to Europe.

Halifax was the major supply port in the last war.

Meanwhile, the depot will be used to provide necessary warehousing for general stores and equipment and will house 18,000 different items used in the day-to-day activities of the army, ranging from toothbrushes to uniforms and tents.

The buildings will be of the most modern type. Contracts will be awarded by tender.

Only Moosonee's 52 degrees moved Tuesday's from being the coldest temperature in the forecast region.

Today and Saturday will see temperatures in the mid-60s to mid-70s.

Sunny weather will persist over most of Ontario Saturday with only the extreme western area to catch up with the times.

MISSING TORONTO BOY IS FOUND IN MONTREAL

Salesman Sought By Police Not Found

Toronto, May 18. (CP)—City police said today they hold a warrant for the arrest of Frank Maxwell, 29-year-old Toronto household appliance salesman, charging him with abducting Martin Frenette, 5, Wednesday.

The Toronto boy was found unharmed in Montreal's west-end St. Henri district last night.

Montreal police immediately launched a search for the salesman after Toronto authorities asked them to take him into custody.

Montreal, May 18. (CP)—A five-year-old Toronto boy, missing from his home Wednesday night, is in police hands today but the whys and wherefores still have to be sieved out of fantasy.

The child, Martin Frenette, was found last night wandering in west-end Montreal, apparently well and unharmed.

Police said they are looking for a 29-year-old salesman in whose automobile the child is believed to have ridden to Montreal. Police said they wanted the man for questioning.

Earlier, they had been asked by Toronto police to be on the lookout for the man and the boy.

Although police said they had no further information, it is believed the child may have got mixed up in excitement in Toronto, unknown to the driver, and remained hidden throughout the trip.

A passer-by said he saw the boy crying along the St. Henri district street and realized he was lost. The passer-by thought the boy was identified as Frenette following several long-distance telephone calls to his parents in Toronto.

When found here, the boy gave his name, but couldn't say where he came from.

"He was very good spirits," a police sergeant said. "He was a bit hungry but the boys soon fixed that."

The boy was placed in the custody of a motor-cycle officer who took him to her north-end home for the night. His parents are expected to arrive by coach.

Never Mind Neighbor, Love Thyself Says Nobel Prize Winner on Birthday

London, May 18. (AP)—Never mind thy neighbor—love thyself.

So says Nobel prize-winning philosopher Earl Russell, better known as Bertrand Russell, who turned 79 today.

This rule may not exemplify itself well toward men, but, says Russell, one must follow it if there is to be peace on earth.

If man is to resolve the international conflict that rages within himself, Russell says he must follow a path of sheer self-interest. His solution:

"Not, love your neighbor like yourself, but to love yourself.

"A man who is not at peace with himself cannot be at peace with his fellows."

Widely at work in his Victorian home the philosopher leads much the same daily routine as in the days of horse cabs—"but I don't find it difficult to adjust my mind to the changing world".

In fact the tall nobleman has just finished writing his advice to the youngsters of 2000, how to catch up with the times.

minds of out-of-date ideas inherited from the Old Testament and the Middle Ages.

It is not the mass destruction devices of the scientists which have made the world a terrible place to live in, Russell says, but the obsolete furniture of man's mind.

"The black death was much worse than the atom bomb. All that is needed now is for man to learn the lesson of living in the comfortable modern world scientific civilization has created."

Russell said mankind has been waging three major conflicts since his first footsteps on earth. He listed them as man's conflict with nature—the battle for food, shelter and protection; man's conflicts with other men, and finally man's internal conflict with himself.

Science and politics respectively can look after the first two, Russell understands, if the third can be resolved. But traditional religion and morality have failed to do this, he said, so he is giving his own answer in a book to be published shortly.

Critics Jump at Chance to Widen Political Fuss Truman Says Was Kicked Up By Dismissal

Washington, May 18 (AP) — President Truman's statement that he had considered dismissing Gen. MacArthur off and on for a year "astonished" the deposed Far Eastern commander and today stirred critics of the administration to new wrath.

Senator Bourke Hickenlooper (Rep., Ia.), a Republican dissenter on official Far Eastern policy, charged Truman had "betrayed the people" with previous declarations of support for MacArthur.

MacArthur, in a statement issued in New York, said his astonishment at Truman's remarks bordered on incredulity. He added: "It is difficult to reconcile this with my appointment as him as commander-in-chief of the United Nations command in Korea. That was last June."

Truman also told his press conference yesterday that the Republicans are trying to overthrow the foreign policy of the United States.

This brought a retort from Senator Owen Brewster (Rep., Me.), a foreign relations committee member, who told a reporter: "We can't overthrow it when we don't know what it is."

The President said he decided he needed a new general in the Far East when MacArthur called on the Chinese communists in Korea March 24 to negotiate a truce, in advance of a proposed presidential peace proposal.

MacArthur replied to this, too, saying he had twice previously man agreed.

Arms Embargo Against China Voted by U.N. Assembly

New York, May 18 — (AP) — The United Nations Assembly today voted an arms embargo against communist China in an effort to stop strategic materials reaching the reds from the free world.

The vote was 47 to 0. Canada backed the embargo.

The Soviet bloc had asked to be recorded as not participating. Nations abstaining were Afganistan, Burma, Egypt, India, Indonesia, Pakistan, Sweden and Syria.

Trygve Lie (Norway) M. Ren pressed fear the embargo would create another "psychological battle" in the path of a peaceful settlement of the Korean question. He urged Peiping to make a new peace gesture toward the Peiping regime by issuing a formal declaration that U. N. troops would not again advance north of the 38th Parallel.

Other countries outside the communist sphere already have halted shipments to the Peiping regime but sponsors of the embargo measure hoped it would plug loopholes and start off discussions effectively. It was also intended as another moral judgment against the Chinese reds.

The decision is significant for two reasons: It represents the first time the U. N. has attempted to employ economic sanctions as a weapon to stop aggression; it may open the way at a later stage for more drastic measures such as a naval blockade.

The Soviet objections indicated they will not comply with the embargo.

50 French Troops Killed in Blast On Landing Ship

Saigon, Indo-China, May 18 — (AP) — Five French troops were killed yesterday and 130 injured — 30 of them badly — when an explosion ripped the French Navy tank landing ship Ardour. The vessel was loading troops and ammunition off the capital town of Nhatrang, some 200 miles northeast of Saigon.

French Army sources said there was no indication of sabotage.

The Adour had just taken aboard 300 troops for operations against the communist — led Viet Minh when the vessel was torn by a terrific blast that rocked Nhatrang. The ship was tied up to a small jetty on the shore of the resort town.

The blast was believed to have been touched off by an accidental fire in the ship's hold which set off some of the 500 tons of the ammunition stored in the hold.

JUDGE BECOMES VICTIM

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 18 — (AP)—Judge L. D. Miller, who has heard more than 20,000 divorce cases in 20 years on the bench here, became a defendant yesterday—in a divorce case.

His wife, Mrs. Edith McAllister Miller, filed a suit charging cruel and inhuman treatment.

Aircraft Models Sent Into Air At 3,000 M.P.H.

Wallops Island, Va., May 18 — (AP)—On this isolated Atlantic coast island, aeronautical scientists are sending weird-looking aircraft models 30 miles into the air at speeds of more than 3,000 miles an hour.

What these technicians of the National Advisory Committee for aeronautics learn from these studies in the realm of the science of ultra-fast aerial flight can determine whether the United States or Russia holds mastery of the air in future years, and it can decide the winner in the cruise race for true long-range guided missiles.

From these models probably within the next five years will come new family of planes which will make today's fleet jet fighters and bombers seem old and cumbersome.

The actual piloted tactical planes to come five years hence may not fly at 3,000 miles an hour, although they may roam the high altitudes at 30 miles up. These are scale models—only five or six feet long—from which the experts create a reservoir of basic information needed by the men who actually design and build aircraft.

ABBOTT SEEKING ADVICE ON AID TO SOLDIERS

Former Fighting Men In Commons Sought

Ottawa, May 18—(CP) — Finance Minister Abbott seeks advice from former fighting men in the Commons on financial measures to take to aid Canada's fighting men in Korea or elsewhere.

In the Commons last night, Abbott laid out any over-all exemption from income tax. When opposition launched a flurry of protests, he suggested there probably were "other ways" to do what they had in mind.

He said he hopes to get the benefit of the experience of members who served in the Second World War. He mentioned a suggestion made previously by Capt. George Hees (PC — Toronto Broadview) that possibly Canadian troops in Korea might get combat pay or some similar remuneration.

The minister made the statement during committee consideration of budget taxation resolutions which followed a sharp debate on corporation taxes.

Higher Than Second War

He argued in brief that that higher corporation taxes would lead to more inflation and said that creating the 20-per-cent surcharge proposed in the budget along with provincial taxes, profit taxes are now more than 50 per cent. This was higher than Canadian corporations paid during the Second World War, when the average was about 40 per cent.

H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) moved an amendment to substitute a graduated tax on excess profits for the 20-per-cent surcharge. His amendment was ruled out of order.

When the house opening, Fisheries Minister Mayhew said the government is considering a general program for supporting the price of salt codfish this year. Conditions in Canada's salt-fish industry did not justify such a move.

In the Senate, a bill to place the Canadian Indians on a basis of equality with the white man.

Mother-Child Relationship Blamed For Some Cases of Eczema in Children

Chicago May 18. (AP)—A hostile mother-child relationship was blamed today by a Vancouver dermatologist as a cause of some eczema in young children.

Dr. Donald Rattray told an aid such cases cleared up after the mothers were advised how they could express love and affection for their children.

In an effort to find the cause of such eczema he divided 53 children into two groups. The children ranging from 13 months to 12 years in age had eczema involving mainly the arms, legs and face. In most instances the rash became evident the first year following birth.

In one group of 33, emphasis was placed on improvement of the mother-child relationship. Forty-five per cent of this group became free of symptoms within 24 months.

In the second group of 20, principal emphasis was placed on treating the rash with medication. Only 10 per cent of these showed improvement.

Speaking to the American Medical Association Archives of Dermatology and Syphilology he said:

"Withdrawal of tender, protective and maternal affection from the atopic (hypersensitive) child is frequently associated with eczema which exhibits itself in the form of the classical infantile type of eczema and as resistive, willful hostility toward the mother."

The atopic children do not appear to possess the ability to express affection spontaneously,

Allied Pullback Extends 50 Miles From East Coast

Offensive Shaping Up As Reds' Greatest Effort

Tokyo, May 18 — (AP) — Communist troop masses attacking with utter disregard of lives today pushed back Allied lines across most of the Korean warfront.

The reds had gained as much as 20 miles in three days and forced United Nations troops out of their last foothold in North Korea.

The Allied pullback extended from the east coast for more than 50 miles across the central front.

In the west, red spearheads thrust within 10 miles of Seoul. They were fighting on both the eastern and northern approaches to the old South Korean capital.

Later, Correspondent William C. Barnard on the east-central front reported that the American elements which had been "in great trouble" had reached through infiltrating Chinese to their rear.

Barrage Frees Unit

A spectacular artillery barrage helped one unit escape through Chinese lines. The big guns ringed the Americans as they moved south and held the Chinese at bay.

Other elements of the American division were holding firm. It was not clear from closely-censored field reports whether the hole through which the Chinese were pouring had been plugged.

This was the Chinese reds' fifth offensive since they entered the war in late November. And it appeared to be shaping up as their mightiest drive—one aimed, red prisoners said, to throw the Allies out of Korea by June 25, first anniversary of the communist invasion.

Chinese pouring through a break in two South Korean divisions were believed to be on three sides of the U.S. division. The South Korean break, south of Inje on the east-central front, exposed both flanks of the American force.

Waves of Chinese infantrymen overran one U.S. unit on the central front and penetrated its rear. Attacking reds scrambled over their own dead to reach the U.S. lines.

Communist infantrymen were cut down by artillery.

But the sheer weight of their numbers forced general U.S. withdrawals along the entire eastern sector and some withdrawals in the central front. Only in the west, the allied line north of Seoul held firm.

Doomed to Failure

Heedless of losses, the reds attacked in a great offensive which Lt.-Gen. James A. Van Fleet, U. N. ground commander said was doomed to failure.

Van Fleet made his confidence statement after he had visited his command announced the reds had 1,141,000 troops in Korea or quickly available in Manchuria.

Their heaviest weight was thrown against the east-central sector. Up to midnight Thursday they had lost 9,000 men there, AP correspondent William C. Barnard reported.

Through the night allied bombers and fighters bombed and strafed by the light of flares. Massed artillery fired steadily into swarming reds.

Dept. of Highways Studying Toll Roads for Ont.

Toronto, May 18 — (CP) — The Globe and Mail says in a news-page story today that the Ontario Department of Highways is studying super-toll highways, such as the Pennsylvania turnpike in the United States.

The paper reports that engineers are looking into probable costs, engineering problems and possible benefits from such a road in Ontario. It suggests that the projected new Toronto-Windsor highway would be most suitable for use in Ontario as an express toll highway.

On the Pennsylvania Turnpike motorists pay either less than a cent a mile for a 260-mile trip free of sleep hills, sharp curves, stoplights, intersecting traffic and level railway crossings.

It announced yesterday that a 16-man crew will start Monday questioning motorists for information aimed at determining the best route for the Toronto-Windsor road.

THREE OVERCOME WITH HEAT AT CADET DAY

The list of "casualties" at the BCI Cadet Corps inspection parade this year dropped to three, in years school officials said.

Usually hot weather, added and abetted by excitement and excitement cause some of the marching cadets to faint, or become sick.

Today, with a cool breeze tempering brilliant sunshine—only 3 succumbed to the weather and other exigencies.

HURRICANE DIES OUT

Miami, Fla., May 18 (AP)—A baby hurricane, born weeks before the season, died in the open Atlantic today, 150 miles off the Florida coast.

The hurricane was earliest. In weather bureau history for this part of the world—sent slivers up and down the Florida "gold coast" before it swung eastward and lost its power.

The weather bureau said it probably would continue to move slowly eastward, away from the Florida coast. Islands in the northern Bahamas may get strong winds.

Train Hits Car, Mother, Child Not Injured

Only minor cuts and bruises were suffered Thursday afternoon by Mrs. Margaret Hospord of Roslin and her one-year-old daughter, Sharon, when the car in which they were riding stalled on the C.N.R. tracks at Corbyville and was struck by a northbound freight.

The two were pulled from their over-turned car and taken to hospital where after having cuts attended to were allowed to go home.

Mrs. Huggins, who had been driving only two weeks, was proceeding from the Corbyville Belleville when as she neared the Corbyville crossing she saw the train approaching. She applied the brakes but the car rolled onto the tracks and stopped.

The locomotive struck the front end of the car and rolled it, the vehicle coming to rest on its top at the side of the track.

Rated Best Display in Years BCI Cadet Corps Inspection Earns Official High Praise

Smartly-accoutred cadets in the largest inspection parade held in the history of Bellevilla Collegiate Institute swung by a reviewing stand at Exhibition Park this morning before the discerning eyes of inspection officers, high-ranking military officials, educationists and an admiring crowd of civilian spectators.

Some 420 cadets under the command of Cadet Lieut. Col. Jack McBride, their smart berets and flash-pointed uniforms indicative of the modern trend in cadet training, turned their heads smartly to the right as they marched past the flag-pointed stand before Brigadier Frank Fulton, OBE, who took the salute.

With Brigadier Fulton were Lieut.-Col. Wm. Revell, C.O. commanding officer, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment; Lieut.-Col. Ian Hyslop, Eastern Area cadet officer; Principal George Shiels; Board of Education members, Enos David, George Wilson, Fred Symons, A. E. Bell of the Vocational School staff and Jack Wellberg representing Canada Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans in Canada. The Canadian Legion was represented by Roy Madden.

Colorful Cadettes

In colorful contrast to the more or less sombre khaki of the cadets, were the gay blue and white uniforms of the Cadettes." Over 370 girl students, nattily garbed in blue sweaters, white skirts, blue shirts, their officers carrying swagger sticks, swung by the reviewing stand in faultless evolutions. Their marching left nothing to be desired and they received as much good as their male student counterparts.

The cadets, to the martial rhythms of the school band, some fifty pieces strong, under Bandmaster Ron Sharp, showed the results of excellent training in their ceremonial parade. Marching past in close line in the general salute, and later in close column of platoons, gave a creditable demonstration as they marched past the saluting base.

Brilliant Sunshine

Brilliant sunshine streamed down on the colorful scene against the green of the lush grass, and the color of the cadets' uniforms glimmer note in the drab of the military vehicles and training armament. Interesting to many continent. Bren and three-inch mortars provided a realistic touch of modern warfare.

These, too, evidenced the new modernistic trend in cadet training. Perhaps for the first time in the history of BCI cadet training has such a large array of war implements and vehicles been a part of the parade. The conventional rifle was there, too, but exhibits, armament, and other practical evidences of present-day military instruction, also had their place.

Nor were they there for show purposes only. Cadet squads, after weeks of cadet training and instruction, demonstrated in smart drills their ability to handle modern weapons, and modern vehicles and on the less grimmer personal conditions through the medium of organized physical training. They showed a fine knowledge of first aid, signals and other phases of cadet training.

Splendid R.C.I. Band

And another outstanding feature of the inspection was the BCI Band under Drum Major Ron Elmy. This fine musical organization not only dispensed martial rhythms for the ceremonial and march past parades, but gave their own marching demonstrations that bespoke fine training.

Following the ceremonial and march-past the cadets were inspected by Brigadier Fulton, Captain Hyslop, and others accompanied by Cadet Lieut.-Col. McBride, Lt.-Col. Revell and members of the inspection party.

The cadets did not march to the Fair Grounds. Buses had been ordered for the park and not the campus as was first anticipated.

Cancels Appointment

Major General Howard Graham, DSO, commanding officer Central Command, Oakville, was unable to be present. He cancelled his appointments here owing to last-minute developments.

Credit for the fine showing of both cadet corps was given the various training staffs. Affiliated with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment for the past year or so, the corps came under the direct training of the regimental officers and the school cadet staff. Chief instructor was Captain Angus Duffy, administration and training officer of the Hasty Pees. With him were Captain Bill Powers, Lieut. Bob Fisher and Sergeants Clouter and Kirkpatrick of the regimental A. and T. Staff, school cadet officers, Captain Jack Field and seven members of the teaching staff.

Following demonstrations that [illegible] the inspection included the operation of six-pounder anti-tank guns, three-inch mortars, Bren guns, Other vehicles used in transport such as trucks and Bren carriers, physical training and first aid.

Senior officers of the cadet corps included Cadet Lieut.-Colonel McBride, commanding; Major Bruce Milligan, officer commanding "A" Company; Major John Hinchey, "B" Company; Major Bill Campbell, "C" Company; "D" Company, Major Doug. Soukes. The second-in-command is Major Ken Moore and the regimental sergeant major, Lloyd Faulkner.

Commanding the girls' cadette corps was Lieut. Col. Marilyn Byers. Other officers were, Major Barbara Greatrix, second-in-command; adjutant, captain, Shirley Robinson; quarter master, Sabbolt, "A" Company; Major Ann James, "B" Company; Major Dorothy Neale, "C" Company and Regimental Sergeant Major Marion Andrews.

Trophies Presented

Following the demonstrations and inspection, the efficiency were presented. The Strathcona Trophy, emblematic of the best all-round cadet, was won by "B" Company commanded by Major John Hinchey, and the Argyll Challenge Shield, presented to the best cadette company was won by "C" Company commanded by Major Ann James.

The beautiful bronze Strathcona Trophy challenge shield for proficiency of physical training supremacy in all cadet corps of the district, for three years now BCI was presented to P.T. Instructor Major Doug Soukes, representing the corps. It was noted that if physical training is deleted from cadet corps training next year, there is a possibility the Strathcona Trust Trophy will become the permanent possession of the BCI Corps.

Corps Praised

Brigadier Fulton in a brief address to the corps paid fine tribute to the team marching, movement and steadiness on parade.

"We are not a nation of gladiators," he said, "but in times of stress like these we must think in terms of defence. We never know when we shall have to call on such people as you, both boys and girls."

At a post-inspection luncheon tendered officers of the corps at Bolton Lodge, Brigadier Fulton and Captain Hyslop addressed the gathering. Captain Hyslop pointed out that there are 4,000 cadets in corps than ceremonial parades. He gy the officers an informative talk regarding mainly with cadet topics.

Following the inspection and demonstration, the corps moved off from the Fair Grounds to Bridge Street for dismissal on the campus.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 18 (CP)—Prices turned lower as the session progressed on the stock market today.

Industrial declines ranged from fractions to more than a point. Papers headed the section lower and banks, constructions, textiles and food followed. Steels managed a moderate advance and the rest of the board was mixed.

Base metals showed a wide list of losses that ranged from fractions to the $1 drops of Consolidated Smelters and Noranda. Key issues lower included Waite Amulet, Uniled Keno Hill, Quebec Manitou, Hudson Bay, International Nickel, Base Bullivan and Falconbridge.

Golds, which showed signs of breaking their three-month trading slump Thursday returned to their mixed, quiet trend. Senior producers were about balanced with little change while a few secondary golds slipped pennies. Western oils eased slowly.

Importance of Game Conservation In Canada Stressed inTalk to Club

By films and lecture F. K. Ketcheson of the Carling Conservation Club presented to Y's Men at their regular weekly meeting in the Y.M.C.A. last night a story of the resources of Canadian waters and forests and indicated the need for protecting that rather than destructive misuse of these gifts of nature if they are long to be preserved for Canadians and an attraction for visitors from abroad.

A native of Belleville, though a wide traveller in all parts of the country in the interests of conservation, Mr. Ketcheson is well acquainted with the abundance of game and fisheries in this vicinity. He stated that there was no better fishing, in terms of variety and quantity, to be found anywhere than abounds in the counties of Hastings, Lennox, Addington, Prince Edward, Lanark and Renfrew. Indicating that by careful survey it had been found that there were 85 per cent more people interested in hunting and fishing than all other recreation combined, he emphasized the importance of preserving the areas where such recreation can be found.

Reminiscence of Early Days

The speaker was reminiscent of early days in the Quinte area where fishing and boat racing were daytime recreation on the bay and bend concerts in the park on Wednesday evenings concluded a Wednesday half holiday. Gradually the fishing frontiers were moved back to the north country but figures showed that today there were actually more fish and deer in the woods than years ago. The fact that there are more hunters as compared with 50 years ago meant a wider division of the game and less opportunity for each hunter or fisherman.

Continuing his emphasis on conservation for the benefit of everyone he used as illustration what could happen with the small mouthed black bass. Because of its popularity 15 fishermen were fishing for this type to every one fisherman for any other type. No artificial method of propagation of the small mouthed black bass was possible. Reproduction did not begin until the fish was six years when the potential of the average female was 2,500 to 3,500 eggs. One fish male or female taken out of season meant the loss of this fry.

Likewise the speaker pointed out the tragedy of hunting where the duck population had been reduced from 100 million to 10 million. Only with great care had the increase to 130 million been regained. Retrieving maimed ducks alone he estimated would save 15 million ducks which otherwise are replaced by the hunter for the limited bag.

Care Needed

The speaker showed that much care should be taken to ensure the life of a fish which was being turned back into the water after being hooked. Something paramount to the conservation of wildlife individual when brought to land was required when the fish was put back in the water. A hook, deeply imbedded in the stomach he explained, should not be removed for of a certainty this meant a dead fish whereas nature had a way of assisting in the disintegration of the hook in the stomach.

Three films were shown by Mr. Ketcheson. One showed the high degree of perfection attained in careful training of the hunting dog. The second depicted speckled trout fishing in Canada and the third illustrated the disastrous result of forest fire.

The speaker was introduced by William Holway and thanked by Ron Carr. At the previous meeting a pre-view of the forthcoming Variety Show of the Boys' Choir was presented, directed by Walter Beni.

A church parade will be held on Sunday morning May 27th to St. Thomas Church.

W.A. Holds District Rally at Consecon

At the United Church Consecon a district rally was held of the Woman's Associations on the Consecon, Redeserville and Ameliasburg charges. Burr's and Bowerman's also sent delegates. Mrs. Earnest Hall, president of the Consecon W.A., united with the warm atmosphere. Its large and flowers, Hillier W.A. choir singing of the hymn of welcome. Mrs. Fred Wey read the scripture lesson and Mrs. J. Taylor read a suitable poem. Mrs. F. MacGregor was the speaker. Mrs. MacGregor and Miss V. Istead rendered a duet. Mrs. W. Kiser, president of Consecon W.A., extended greetings to the associations and Miss Marie Lont, president of Ameliasburg W.A., replied.

The first guest speaker was Mrs. Gerard Dobbs, of Belleville, who is a member of Holloway Street Church, and president of the Belleville Presbytery Woman's Association. The title of her address was "What is Our Task as Christian Women of this Church?" beginning with the fact that never was the work of the church more important than at the present time. Never was the need greater, and never did one's attitude toward this work and one another matter so much.

Spiritual Task

Women have always been the makers of the home and happiness and the world needs her skill and experience in these things. Many are assured of the fact that women have had an experience which fits them in special places in spiritual affairs and the task of the times is a spiritual one in which women in their several environments must work.

"It is a great thing to be really true Christians," the speaker said. "How many of us are? If we are Christians why don't we talk about it? Why can't we speak simply and naturally of our love for Jesus and our joy in serving Him. There are first times for every task and with each attempt we strengthen our spirits. People who excel in any line have developed the skill through practice.

"Fortunately the women of Christendom realize that this is the time to hold fast to the principles of Christ and are to continue to spread the Gospel of Peace and Love. To be good is not fashionable. But the time has come when our individual attitude must be one of making our belief plain of observing always due caution if we are to contribute to the change and for our part to assure we must find a way to release our tongues and experiences to our fellow Mrs. by reading the Bible where God wants us individually. Second, by Prayer—the exercise through which we open our minds to receive the Holy Spirit. The world realize the essential. God is not willing to do everything for us and thus take away our free-will. Ask and thou shall receive, knock and it shall be opened, seek and ye shall find. Always the doors before the fulfillment until we come to the promise. If ye shall ask anything in My Name, I will give it to thee.

No Need for Fear

"But we must ask with faith and then we can really be sure that the response will come very quickly. There is no need for fear or reluctance, above all we need spiritual enrichment for a foundation on which to build a life secure in the present and secure for the future.

"We are still clearing away rubble and repairing their homes after World War 2, the workmen began to put together the fragments of a statue of Christ that had tumbled from a high altar, when they lifted it back to its pedestal it was almost like new except they had not found the marble hands. So at the foot of the handless Saviour they wrote this line . . . "I have no other hands than yours."

"God has no other hands than yours and mine, It matters not whether they be as long as our hands are ready to do His bidding. This is our task to be ready and willing to do God's Will."

With this story and exhortation, Mrs. Dobbs closed her address.

A solo was then rendered by Mrs. Wm. Vaughan, "The Lord's Prayer". The reports of associations followed.

Mrs. J. Henderson introduced the guest speaker of the session, Mrs. J. Woods, of Belleville, who is a member of Bridge Street United Church, and past president of the Presbytery Woman's Association. The title of her address was "Listening Woman". She said, "we all long to make some contribution to humanity to have our lives count for something to help someone in this stricken world. To achieve is to listen and find God's plan of how and where we can help, then we will be making history that will change the course of the world.

"There is love and freedom and joy, when we listen together in God's guidance. He teaches us not to live for ourselves alone but as a family for His glory, for the world is meant for one big family. And so we find the answer to all things wherever out of life is the same. To listen and obey, let us all become "Listening Women" in our churches; listening to God's voice and make our churches the real Church of Jesus Christ. The church needs listening women. We must not fail Him. Unless there is harmony and understanding in our homes we can never produce a nation with a united purpose.

Christians Needed

"The individuals make a nation. We all want our Canada to become great, the kind of country God wants her to be. Our greatest need today is for people who listen and act on what God says. He is creating a united force in the world, let us all be part of it. The world needs security from fear so many lives are warped by fear. We know Jesus, to live daily as He guides, that is our security. We find our contentment and peace when our security lies in God.

"We find our deepest experience as we live daily with God. I know the difference between good works and God's will but I did not always although I had always been a part of the church's life. Would that all our church people throughout the world knew the personal Jesus as I now know Him and followed His plan for their lives and for the building of His Kingdom."

Mrs. Woods closed her address with timely and encouraging remarks that touched the hearts of all present.

Mrs. A. Rattray, Consecon, gave a reading, "The Country Church". Hymn and benediction closed the morning session. At 12:30 dinner was served in the Masonic Hall.

Afternoon Session

The afternoon session was opened by devotional by Consecon W.A. Mrs. Lisle Clute read the scripture lesson and Mrs. Chas. Jinks, the exposition on fellowship. Mrs. Fred Wey, Mrs. Ross Rue, Mrs. S. Chase and Mrs. Kingsley sang "More Love to Thee, O Christ". Mrs. Muriel Howe presided at the organ. A reading by Mrs. W. Kiser and Mrs. C. Blakely closed the devotional with prayer, Mrs. G. Dobbs presided at the presentation to the teen-age member of Consecon W.A., of a life membership pin and certificate. It was Miss Margery Harris who was honored. Mrs. Georgie Hazlit, her grandmother took part in the ceremony by pinning the pin on her granddaughter. Mrs. W. Kiser presented the certificate and a two-minute silence was observed to honor the members who have passed on to their eternal destiny. Rev. E. Hills led in prayer.

Inspirational Address

Mrs. W. Kingerley introduced Mrs. J. A. Lott Frankford who was the first president of Presbytery Woman's Association, when it was organized some nineteen years ago by Mrs. Mc. Dixon and others. Mrs. Lott is now honorary president and district organizer. The title of her inspirational address was, "The road that Jesus walked and the road we must walk if we would be true followers of Him".

Mrs. Lott said there were four outstanding themes in the message, "First, "Consecration". The act of dedicating ourselves to sacred uses; second, "Service", personal service and fellowship in the Master's vineyard; third, "Faith", sincere trust and faith in God; fourth, "Hope", the hope of Eternal Life, especially urging her listeners that now is the time to prepare ourselves for our Eternal Home. The warmth and zeal of Christianity must be in our lives as individuals and also in our churches if others are to see Jesus in us. We must walk the road He walked; we must take up our cross and follow Him."

Mrs. Lott has been in the work of the church for many years and still speaks with great conviction and assurance. Her address was a fine expression of the character of the speaker, and will prove a help to all who heard her.

Mrs. W. Blakely and Mrs. Lottie Chase were then presented with life membership pins and certificates.

An address by Mrs. M. Davidson was next on the program. She began her message by reminding the assistance that this week is Christian Family Week. She challenged her listeners with the question, "What are we contributing to maintaining a true wholesome Christian family?" In order that we can do it well we must look first to the individual. Are we giving God our best? In Christ reality and truly your Risen Saviour. Jesus said 'Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest. Peace I leave with you. My Peace I give unto you. Let not your heart be troubled. Neither let it be afraid.'

"It is very important for us as a group to master the art of prayer. Pray with the family. Pray With Faith.

"Pray over problems. Pray with faith believing God will help. Put all problems in His hands Peace I give unto you. If we would take our theme song: "Let the beauty of Jesus be seen in me all His wondrous love and purity, Oh Thou Spirit Divine all my nature, refine till the beauty of Jesus be seen in me and make it really live in our hearts". What a wonderful family of women we would be. Having read that the revival of Christianity is the only answer to world problems and being assured of this herself said it is time for us to dust off the Family Bible and begin anew to read it with purpose. The home is the child's first school. How many of our children see or hear us read from the Bible? Never was greater responsibility placed upon our shoulders than when God gave us home and family. Are the things our children see us doing above reproach?

In the regular reading of the Bible our own lives will be enriched and will be bound to inspire our children. This will have a telling effect upon the home and community life. The church will be affected for it will be our church and spiritual training centre for all our children. Have we given our teen-agers the guidance so necessary to cope with the temptation of this age so that they may have courage to say "No", when the gang says, "Oh come on be a sport, be they have the assurance that God is a loving Father watching over them and protecting them. As mothers this is the responsibility God has given us only by consecrating our lives completely can this be done.

Points Out Duties of W.A.

Mrs. Davidson then pointed out some of the duties of the members of the Woman's Association exhorting them to lend a helping hand in all departments of the church when necessary.

Mrs. La Rue was in charge of the question box. Mrs. J. Woods and Mrs. Lott were assigned to answer the questions. A discussion on the possibility of the Rally being an annual affair was conducted by Mrs. Kingerley. The suggestion was approved. Redeserville W.A. inviting all to attend the Rally next year at it will be held on the appointment in the spring which is the most suitable time for this community.

Rev. W. Kingerley pronounced the benediction.

The day proved to all who attended a profitable and most enjoyable one the ladies returning home highly pleased with the splendid programme.

Much credit is due the catering local members for the splendid way they served dinner, few women could have done as good a job as Mrs. George La Rue, Mrs. Robin Adair, Mrs. Lew Zwick, Mrs. A. Sandier, Mrs. V. Klebsteuber and Mrs. J. Shemberg

School Assoc. Given Reports Of Activities

The [illegible] monthly meeting of the [illegible] Home and School Association was held on Tuesday in the auditorium of the School on Moira Street.

Following the opening exercises, Mrs. Howard Hall, the Association's delegate to the Home and School Association convention held recently in Toronto, gave a detailed report of the convention. Many prominent speakers were present and Mrs. Hall's report of their addresses and the province-wide work of the association proved most interesting.

This being the final meeting of the year, reports were given by the convenors of the various committees. A social evening is to be held on June 11, in honor of the Grade 8 pupils. This is to take the place of the annual graduation banquet.

Officers Elected

A slate of officers for the ensuing year was brought in by the nominating committee and the following officers were installed by the immediate past president, Mrs. Cyril Gordon:

President, Mr. Howard Hall; vice-president, Mrs. Keith Laughton; secretary, Mrs. Harold A. Fritz; corresponding secretary, Mrs. H. Hall; auditors, Mrs. Ivan Mumby; elected members of executive—Mrs. Ivor Butler, Mrs. P. Graham, Mrs. Ed. Hall and Mrs. G. Stanton.

Mr. M. Hackett, principal, spoke briefly concerning the new officers and commending the efforts of the past year for their efforts.

Four members of the association were appointed to the central committee namely—Mr. H. Hall, president, Mrs. Cyril Gordon, Mrs. C. Brown, Mrs. John Mather and Mrs. Wyatt.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. Butler and her committee, in the recreation room.

Evening Branch W.A. Sponsors Lilac Tea

Yesterday afternoon a pleasing "Lilac Tea" was held by the Evening Branch W.A., of Christ Church in the rectory, Everett Street, with a fine attendance of members, guests and friends.

The door was opened by Mrs. F. O'Connor, who smilingly passed the visitors on to the receptionists, Mrs. J. B. Creeggan and Mrs. Everett Bonter, assisting for Mrs. H. Ingram, the president.

Mrs. Greig, O'Brien was tea-room hostess, where the tea table, daintily appointed with its lace cloth, centred with a lovely crystal bowl of lilacs, tulips and yellow narcissus was the object of further note of welcome. Upon the buffet was a three-branched candelabra with tapers of green, yellow and pink, flanked by vases of spring flowers. A green cloth covered the many other floral arrangements, made the scene a fitting one.

Those who presided at the silver services were, Mrs. W. Perry, Mrs. R. Harris, Mrs. F. Beeby and Mrs. G. H. Diment; Mrs. Bongard, Mrs. W. Edwards and Mrs. D. Ellis had charge of the home-cooking table with the delicacies of pies, cakes and tarts.

Mrs. J. Cooke was treasurer for the afternoon, and presided at the tiny table centred with a little silver basket of forget-me-nots, and yellow tulips.

Much credit is extended to the co-convenors of this dainty function, Mrs. A. Simpson and Mrs. J. Hibbard.

Lady Fletcher Vividly Describes 'Two Faces of East African Life'

Yesterday afternoon, at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, the Women's Canadian Club was privileged to have as guest speaker at their final meeting of the season, the noted lady traveller and author of the British Ministry of Information, Lady Fletcher, of Lindsay, Ont., and like the exquisite charm, told of life in East Africa as she had seen it from the point of black and white.

Lady Fletcher, who was introduced by the past president of the club, Mrs. W. J. Doyle, spoke of her great admiration for Canada as a whole; of the smaller communities through which she had passed during her extensive travels across the Dominion, and which she had learned to love for their wholesomeness of life.

Three Territories

"East Africa, is about one-third the size of the province of Ontario, and is divided into three territories, Kenya, Uganda, and Tanganyika, all of which are under British rule, administered by British government, but ruled indirectly. They have little voice or influence any measure on the black people, only suggest the adoption of these measures pointing out wherein they would benefit the black people as a whole.

The population consists of 43,000 whites and 18,000,000 blacks, the whites being divided into two groups, the civil servants and the farmers. The civil servants have the care and welfare of the blackman at heart, and the difficulties encountered with a father of the black people; to do so, he must have a deep and sympathetic knowledge of the various dialects and languages. The farmer is usually unsympathetic towards his East Africa, and eager to build it up. But the white farmers produce, in the tin building-up process is the shortage of labor, with consequent high prices and good things the while man has brought into the country, the one thing the black man has had to do is admiration for, is work. His philosophy of life is to do as little unavoidable in order to live.

White Farmer's problem

Another problem of the white farmer is the education of his children. So far the schools in East Africa are not yet built up quite up to the standard of the schools in England, as it is too expensive a matter for children to England to be educated, he settles down in the less attractive, and more food production.

In Kenya there are 10,000 white people, but no high school for children to start a school. However there is a correspondence school with two women as teachers, but no method. All schools are built by taxpayers' money in England.

"To fully realize the problems of the white farmer, one must also know about the black man, who all seem to look alike, though he is a handsome race, tall, dark, slender, taller, lighter than the Indian, wear skins for clothing, others blankets, and some nothing. Most all are fond of personal decoration in the ears some even wear broken pecks of old beer bottles and other gadgets.

There are 70 different tribes of blacks in East Africa, each having worked out a different manner of life, of language and of religion. In Kenya the Masai people, the warrior tribe, exceedingly proud hunters of lions; tall, sheer and slender with attractive features, who will not associate with the white man. Another tribe, the Swahile learns quickly and forgets quickly, though the most educated. The Kikuyu of the tribe are civilized, but later in life, if a age of 30, become stooped from the continual burden bearing. They carry as much as 300 pounds on their backs, by means of straps passing across the forehead.

The Chugga tribe is the most intelligent and are all Christian. Their main production is the growing of coffee, and like the white men have formed co-operatives. Another tribe is that of the "tree men," who build their huts inside a bramble bushes, which are known as the "Boma Swahile" bushes from the holding manner of their thorns. These tree-men are pygmies about three feet tall. They wear no clothes, and swing from tree to tree, and speak a bird-like language.

Speaking of the customs among the black race, Lady Fletcher mentioned that of the "Bride Price." When a young man decides on a wife, he goes for a walk in the fields, notices which woman is working hardest, returns and interviews the father of the girl, and asks the price, which is invariably "18 cows." The lady's price, curiously, for the blacks do not consider the condition of their cows as to how the number they have; hence the herds are miserable looking creatures, taking the life of a cow only to make one gallon. The fields are barren of grass, and would-be calves, bringing in want of food.

Further Problems

Another problem among the blacks is that of divorcing sterile women. Twins are considered a stigma on the family's honor, as the white child-mother is a big uneducated reasoning—of necessity proclaim two fathers. Another difficulty, is that when the young men earn scholarships, which permits them to go to foreign colleges, they return home to their bush wives, and the contact is often lost with each other, what they have seen at college, so they either leave to become civil servants, or fall back to the level of their bush wives.

The men, as a class, are indolent, while the women do all the work. The more wives, the better they live. So plurality of wives means no Christianity. They live in mud huts, with earth floors; there is no furniture and only one kitchen utensil, usually a discarded gasoline can in which everything is cooked, which is mostly maize, or ground corn, which is often used as a cure for disease.

Lady Fletcher told of the well-known diamond miner, Mr. Williamson, a graduate of McGill University, who, by prospecting had been found starving in the forest, had been cared for by the native tribes and restored to health. His great wealth has been utilized for the betterment of the country in military housing schemes for his miners.

Medical Aspects

In the medical aspects in place of going for his witch doctor, who had been done 15 years ago, the native will walk from two to four days to go to the white man's hospital for treatment. Referring to the leper colony, Lady Fletcher mentioned that these communities were nicely run by the Roman Catholic Sisters, who, after entering a colony never return home, but devote their whole lives to the lepers. The community is orderly; the lepers marry, rear children, who seldom have leprosy, and are a happy, kindly people.

In conclusion, Lady Fletcher mentioned the gay aspect of the native life, the likeable trait of quickly and forgets quickly, though the most educated. The "road" in the tribe are likewise formed, but later in life, if a the elephants of which a thousand

C.W.L. Elects New Officers

The regular monthly meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in St. Michael's high school on Tuesday last. Following the opening meeting Mrs. J. E. Boyd addressed the general assembly for the first time as president and said: "In electing the president of our sub-division of the Catholic Women's League of Canada you have manifested your confidence in my ability to fulfil the duties of an office which is formed in every respect by my predecessor, Mrs. D. W. Doyle. For this mark of trust and friendship I thank you from my heart. I confess that I should have been tempted to refuse an office which is indeed, an honor, but a burden nonetheless, had I not felt that its weight would be lightened by the zealous co-operation of a devoted fellow-workers. Indeed, your self sacrifice and devotedness at all times as members of the League have long been a tribution in the history of the Belleville sub-division of C.W.L.

"It is consoling is it not to realize that, amongst all humility, that we are a very real unit in the work of the church in Catholic Action. Our organization has a history of which all its members have a right to be proud. And it may not be out of place to draw parallel between the devoted workers of the past and those all-sacrificing helpers of the Apostles and Disciples in the early days of struggle and Christianity. In this light we can consider it a privilege to give our energies and talents or as much of these as our time will allow, to this very vast apostolate we are carrying on. This we are doing by prayer, good works and devotedness in God's service not looking for the praise and thanks of those for whose good we labor, but rather looking for the encouragement of Well done" the Good Master who considers as done to Himself the least act performed for His Name.

"I might quote from a message to the Catholic League from the Most Reverend B. I. Webster, D.D. Auxiliary Bishop of Toronto:

"By the seed arises the Catholic Women's League will be one of the groups upon which our government will rely and we must not be found wanting. Prepared for this word, we must still hope for the best. Hope and something more. Our, hope is set in human means, our hope is in God and His Blessed Mother, and the greatest service we can render our country and the world is to marshal our forces into battalions of prayer and penance."

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

A girl who's headed for heartache

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 20 years old and in love with a married man of 36. I have been out with him lots of times and he has often kissed me, but he never tries to go further than that.

We work at the same place and he is very jealous when I talk to the other boys. He still lives with his wife, and I wish you would give me some advice.

D. S. V.

Dear D.S.V.:

It hardly seems to me that a married woman of 33 should need any advice about a matter like this. By the time she has reached that age she should have enough sense to know that to have anything to do with a married man is a very foolish and dangerous thing indeed.

How should she have to be told that the reason he has never spoken of loving her or of leaving his wife is because he doesn't intend to do any such thing. If you don't wake up and put a stop to these business, you are very likely to find yourself in trouble one of these days. And if you don't put this man in his place and make him understand that he has not to leave you alone, than you'd better get another job where you won't see him any more.

Your boy friend is simply making excuses

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A few weeks ago I met a fellow and have been out with him practically every night since. We have had wonderful times together and everything seemed to be perfect. He has told me he loved me and wanted me more than anything in this world, and I have fallen in love with him.

Tonight he called me up and told me he wasn't going to see me six more because he is in debt and also because he has no transportation. He asked me not to think badly of him and said that everything he had told me in the past about loving me was the truth.

Isn't there some way I can get him to see me again, as I know I love him?

N. B. J.

Dear N.B.J.:

Don't you think it's a little silly to go into a tailspin about a boy you have known such a short time? And don't you think you ought to be smart enough to see wise in the fact that if he really wanted to keep on seeing you, he wouldn't be making excuses about why he can't do it?

If he has been taking you out practically every night since you met him, he must have had some way of getting to see you. And if he thinks he can't afford to take you out, a movie a week doesn't cost much, and there's no reason why he should take you somewhere every night anyhow. People who are very fond of each other are happy in just being together, either they go out all the time or not.

In other words, he could see you if he really wanted to, so if I were you, I'd say good-bye cheerfully and have your good times with others.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Today's Manners Meme.

Almost always, when you are polite to someone, that someone will be polite to you. Try it!

The bride should be at groom's right in receiving-line

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please settle this argument (and I do mean "argument!") we are having. Is the receiving-line should the bride be at the groom's right or left? Recently in our group there have been quite a few formal weddings and receptions, and sometimes at the reception the bride is at the right of the groom, and sometimes at his left. I should think that, for such an important and formal and traditional occasion, there would be an absolutely definite rule—sense, of, as has heard that there is a definite rule. Is there a rule about this?

Elaine T.

Yes—in the receiving line the bride should always stand at the bridegroom's right! As you say, this is an important detail, and it is amazing to me how often the ones who plan a wedding, even professional wedding-planners, obviously do not know this important rule. There are, it is true, several correct ways to form a receiving line at a wedding reception, but, no matter which one is chosen, it is essential that the bride stand at the right of the bridegroom. And also abiding by this, the bride sits at the right of the bridegroom at the bridal table at the reception. On no occasion more than at a wedding is the traditional rule of courtesy and honor more important: "The lady at the right of the gentleman."

The groom should provide the bouquet for his bride!

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister insists that it is our best man's responsibility to buy my wedding bouquet, and my fiance seems to more or less agree with her. But I had always understood that the groom buys the bride's wedding bouquet—and I am quite positive that I have read this in your column. Who is right about this?

M. W.

You are! Customarily the bridegroom buys the flowers his bride is to carry (or wear) at their wedding. This is the time-honored custom. . . and rightly it is the romantic prerogative that belongs to the groom. Certainly there is no more appropriate occasion than their wedding day for a man to send flowers to the woman he has asked to be his wife!

And it should be said again and again, . . . that the best man is not expected to provide any of the wedding flowers, or any other detail of wedding or reception.

The best man has no "financial responsibilities" concerning the wedding except (1) to provide for himself the attire the groom requests he wear at the wedding, and (2) to send a wedding present to the bride-to-be.

How to sign guest book at wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When one signs a Guest Book at a wedding reception, should the formal or informal name be written? That is, should I sign "Mrs. John Smith" or "Mary Smith"? I'm always perplexed about this, and now that I've been invited to several June weddings, I'd like to be positive about the form.

Mary L.

You should sign your informal name. . . Mary Lathrop, for example. It would, if you figure it out, be inconsistent and inappropriate for a wedding guest to sign her formal name in such a personal record-of-guests. If you sign for your husband too, write John and Mary Lathrop; or if you prefer, John Lathrop on one line, and Mary Lathrop on the line below.

Fashion Flashes

EVEN FURS play a role in the popular ensemble act. A vivid green taffeta evening dress has its own topper of white broadtail lined with the vivid green fabric of the dress.

HOLDING ITS OWN, despite the emphasis on co-ordinates and mixmatch items, is the separate skirt, now seen in its summer version. Navy, red, black or green chambray, all-over embroidered in white braid, is used for a full skirt with a slim velvet belt.

MORE THAN ONE smart store in various parts of the country reports a call for velvet-trimmed or part-velvet hats. One important speciality shop has been showing a handsome hat—rounded and deep in the crown and with deep mushroom brim—that is all velvet save for the brim lining, which is in white or natural straw. And it's selling, too, for wear with sheers.

NEWS OF HUES from the top furriers includes words of new fox shades. Dyed blue fox with a distinct overcast of violet in its purplish blue coloring is one, while the other cited color is silver fox dyed in a tawny burgundy red with silver hairs frosting the top of the skin.

FRANKLY FEMININE petticoats make, lingerie news just now. Navy silk with embroidered pink roses—padded to give a raised effect—and matching pink piping at the slit hemline, is the formula for one number, while another petticoat is of navy sylon tricot with a tiny woven design in light blue, red or green. The hemline is marked by a square scalloped edge.

SCOTT'S W.M.S.

The May meeting held at the home of Mrs. C. Copeland with eleven members and two visitors present. As the president had a cold, Mrs. R. Dafoe, group leader, conducted the meeting.

Mrs. Weslands led in prayer, all but in particular for the Hazel Heffron in her work in China.

Mrs. Dafoe read an article on "How We Can Work for Peace Through Helping to Feed the Hungry". Hungry people are always ready for violence and the Christian responsibility is to help feed the hungry.

Dedication Litany

The members repeated a litany of dedication in which they promised to consistently demonstrate in their lives the spirit of tolerance, unselfish love and creative good will; also to do all they can to discover causes of international hatred and help remove such and to help devastated areas to recover spiritually and materially. This was followed by a prayer asking for God's wisdom and guidance.

In a reading about "Home" it was stated "it is a place where we retire and shut out the world."

Mrs. Frost gave a temperance reading showing facts are essential in an intelligent discussion of liquor problems. She suggested a scrapbook be kept and reference made to it often.

Mrs. Dafoe gave the origin of the hymn "There Were Ninety and Nine". A young man settled near Fergus, sent out by his people in the Old Country, who sent him a remittance from home. After he died his sister wrote this hymn.

In a story from Korea, it showed that when the crowd was lined up for evacuation, they yet made way for the children to pass out first.

Mrs. Watson read about the African delegates. "They share with their brothers the giving and taking that makes real friendship and finally World Brotherhood".

Next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Carman Frost.

BETHANY W.M.S.

The ladies of the Bethany W.M.S. and W.A., met at the home of Mrs. V. Hamilton for the May meeting.

Mrs. Martin introduced the guest speaker, Rev. Boyd Beckett, who spoke on "Mothers' Mothers's Day", who said "With the mothers lay the wonderful opportunity of creating friendliness. Each church should send at least one Bible a year for full-time service for Jesus Christ. He used the story of Hannah, whose prayer was answered in the gift of a son, called 'Samuel', whom she gave to God for use in His work.

After the meeting closed refreshments were served by the committee and a social half hour enjoyed by all.

SHANNONVILLE W.A.

Shannonville — The monthly meeting of Shannonville United Church W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Doxtator on the 20 in attendance. The president, Mrs. K. R. Vivian, presided, and welcomed the members and visitors.

Mrs. Elmer Vivian read the devotional leaflet, the subject being "The Sower", as well as an article telling of the origin of Mother's Day.

In the year 1901, Miss Anne Jarvis, of Philadelphia, paid tribute to her mother's memory by wearing a white flower, and this lovely custom has spread till it is nation-wide. Those whose mothers are living honored by the wearing of a colored flower, and with gifts on the second Sunday in May.

Wescott, also one from Mr. Scott for a card of sympathy that he received at the time of his uncle's death, as well as one from Mrs. Sam Elliott when she was a patient in Belleville hospital. Mrs. Raymond Clarke expressed appreciation for the card sent to Lyle when he was ill.

Affiliation Service

The affiliation service of the C.G.I.T. girls will be held on May 17 at church and all members are urged to be present.

Family Week from May 13-19 was mentioned and Mrs. Williams gave a reading on this.

Mrs. A. Boyd had charge of the program, using the theme "Christ's Legacy of Peace". A solo by Mrs. Furmidge, "Peace, Perfect Peace", was greatly appreciated.

Mrs. Boyd used the theme "Peace Through Food-aid", and in part said:

"When the farmers grow more food than they can sell, either because of trade restrictions or simply because people cannot afford to buy it, food prices drop, the farms run down and the farmers naturally decide to cut production. It looks as if there is something wrong with our system of distribution and it is up to us to see that countries which have plenty of food, see that it is distributed into the right mouths.

Spiritual-Ethical Witness

"Our missionaries in Japan say that the most effective Christian witness in Asia today is the spiritual and material help from the churches in North America. People in Europe are asking for proof of this knowledge of Christ's way of life. The church has something to give, which the people need, the hope of the church rests upon us in feeding and clothing the needy."

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her helpers.

Meals for Two Can be Planned For Nutrition

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Live if you must in a two-room flat but that doesn't mean you have to get all your meals in restaurants.

It's possible to cook some mighty tasty dishes on a two-burner grill and the National Health Department has put out a booklet to show you how to do it — nutritiously.

In "Meals for One or Two," the department has listed the equipment necessary for the makeshift kitchenette. It also trots out some hints on how to cut down on the housekeeping bill.

Covered jars are best for staple goods — these could be old tobacco or candy tins painted over.

A pressure - cooker saves time and heat.

A double - boiler also is suggested to save cooking space.

In the long run meals are cheap and easy to arrange. The department suggests: grated carrot and cabbage; salad, lettuce and green pepper; spinach leaves, apple and raisin slices; celery, cabbage and raisins; orange and grapefruit sections, chopped apples and sliced bananas.

Suggestions for desserts: puddings such as rice and tapioca served plain or with fruit flavors; gelatine desserts such as plain jellies; old jellies (when almost set fold in fruit).

Buying for Two

When shopping for two you can count on two servings from half a pound of boneless meat, filleted fish, fruits and vegetables.

Three servings from half a lb. of cold cooked meat; three to four servings from half a pound of cottage cheese; four to five servings from a 20-ounce can of fruit, vegetables or juice.

You can also count on six to 7 servings from a 32-ounce can of tomatoes; 24 to 28 slices from a 24-ounce loaf of bread.

This is asparagus time and home economists of the consumer section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, recommend buying only asparagus that's a good green color. It also should be crisp and moist.

Asparagus may be served hot with a cheese sauce, a cream sauce or just with a little lemon-butter. If any of the stalks are left over they are excellent cut up in salads. Asparagus sandwiches, either rolled or plain, also are tasty.

Quickbreads — tea biscuits, muffins and so on — can be tasty or they can be otherwise. It all depends on the way you make them. Home economists of the agriculture department's consumer section have come up with a four-point suggestion for assuring that they turn out the way you want them to.

1. Use a reliable recipe and follow it carefully.

2. Use good quality ingredients and unless the recipe says to have them hot or cold, use them at room temperature.

3. Follow the mixing directions carefully.

4. Bake in a well regulated oven.

And, finally, serve quickbreads dripping with butter, honey, maple syrup or jam. Makes your mouth water thinking about it, eh?

SUN-SUITS, OVERCOATS ARE ONTARIO STYLES

Bathing suits and summer shorts have made their appearance on Southern Ontario streets as temperatures soared to all-time highs for May. But in Northern Ontario snow was falling and winter coats were still worn. — Central Press Canadian.

HEPATICAS

I know a wood, a winsome wood and easy 'tis to find it,
Just down a fresh green country lane that climbs the old home hill.

Then winds beneath the trailing trees, beyond a field you'll find it—
The old, old wood of childhood that beckons to me still.

Though April winds are wailing, and April rains are falling,
Tho' frost lay icy fingers upon the leafy mould,
Hepaticas are waking, for now the Spring is calling,
And they face the April tempest all unmindful of the cold.

How fair they look and airy in their sunny summer dresses,
Lifting faces, bright and happy, to the sunshine to be kissed,
And, they wait, the sweetest, fragrance in response to wind's Caresses,
As we catch the subtle perfume floating through the April mist.

So when April comes to greet us with its sunshine and its shadow,
Then I know that Spring is calling to my heart that longs to roam,
And in spirit I shall wander far across the misty meadow,
To gather bright hepaticas in the old, old wood at home.

—Helen B. Anderson.

Bodies of Two Crew Members Taken From Wreck

Winnipeg, May 17 (CP) —The bodies of two crew members have been recovered from the wreckage of a collision yesterday between two CNR freight trains at Postans, Ont., railway officials here said. Postans is 80 miles west of Port Arthur.

The bodies were identified as those of fireman George Miller, 29, and brakeman John Chockla, 28, both of Fort William. They were found in the cab of an eastbound engine which collided with a westbound train at 2:32 a.m.

Engineer Charles Beal, 50, of Port Arthur suffered scalds to the legs. His condition is not serious.

Ten cars and the engine of the eastbound train overturned. The freight heading west remained on the track and no one was injured. Railways officials said the line would be cleared in about 24 hours.

India Reverses Stand on Trade With Red China

Jakarta, Indonesia, May 17 (AP) — Indonesia's foreign minister today reversed his stand on trade with communist China, and said his rubber - producing country will obey any embargo voted against the reds by the majority of United Nations members.

But Foreign Minister Achmad Soebardjo, in an interview, simultaneously urged that the United States pay more attention to Indonesia's needs and give her economic aid.

Soebardjo's oral statement to an Indonesian correspondent May 7 that Indonesia would "sell to the devil" if it helped his country provoked widespread protests in the western world.

It was reliably learned today that the foreign minister told U.S. Ambassador H. Merle Cochran yesterday that Indonesia would submit to the embargo on shipments of arms and strategic materials for the Chinese communists which the U. N. General Assembly is expected to vote at least by next week.

Tourist Resorts At Wellington Filled with Anglers

Wellington — (Staff) — Anglers from Buffalo, Toronto and Ontario points invaded this lakeside village last weekend when the pickerel season officially opened.

Tourist resorts of the village were filled while boat liveries had all their craft in use.

Cottages were in demand by anglers who decided to remain for several days, and a number, especially those from Buffalo, are staying here.

The fishing was good. Several nice bauls or pickerel and pike were noticed and the consensus was, "the best opening days in years".

Three and four-pounders were taken from West Lake, while a number of good size pike were also hooked.

Salary Dispute With Teachers Is Settled

Whitby, May 18 — (CP)—The salary dispute between high school teachers and the district high school board in this town 5 miles west of Oshawa was settled Wednesday night with agreement on a $300 annual salary increase to all members of the present staff, effective Sept. 1. The increase will be added to the $200 annual increment normally given.

The dispute, which began early this year, resulted in a blacklisting by the board by the Ontario Teachers' Federation which charged at the time that the board refused to discuss salaries.

The federation has agreed to investigate the teaching record of one member of the present staff, to determine whether to back the board in its requests that the teacher resign. Five teachers have already resigned this year.

War Pensioners Seek Increase From Government

Ottawa, May 18 (CP)—Canadian Legion said Thurs., ing costs have ripped an "appalling" gap in the living standards of war pensioners. The Legion also sharply criticized a government proposal to help out certain pensioners who can't work.

Group Capt. Alfred Watts of Vancouver, Dominion President, told the Veterans Committee of the Commons that only an increase in the basic pension rates for all pensioners as well as in war veterans' allowance rates will solve the problem.

He attacked the government's proposal to pay an "unemployability supplement" to unemployable pensioners as a retrograde and alarming step that would run counter to the entire tradition of Canadian policy because it would introduce a means test.

(The committee was told last week about $1000 of the 187,000 pensioners would benefit from the new supplement of $20 a month for single men, $40 for married men. The top pension for a single man is $80, for a married man without children, $123.)

Group Captain Watts told the committee:

1. He terms of reference from the Commons are too broad enough to deal adequately with conditions facing veterans, particularly those on pension or war veterans' allowance. The committee should report back to the House and ask for more power.

2. Pension rates should be boosted at least considered to restore the pensioner to a status better than that of "an individual living on relief with sub-marginal standards."

3. The war veterans allowance, paid on a means test to aged or needy "burnt-out" veterans, should be boosted too from the present $40 and $70 a month combination to $50 and $100.

4. The proposal to pay a special supplement to certain pensioners who are unable to work is "an attempt to ignore a debt of honor." It was a "means test on a pension and will be so understood and so administered."

Since pensions were awarded as of right for war service, it was an alarming and "basic deviation from established Canadian practice and theory."

Group Capt. Watts called for award of Second World War rehabilitation grants and benefits to men enlisting now "as comparable to war conditions.

Molson's AROUND THE HOME again

Tom Gard's Note Book

The clean-up campaign is over and I can relax again and can say you certainly, I thoroughly enjoyed being one of the judges of the beautification competition as it took me into many gardens I had enjoyed from the street. We found the winner of the contest cleaning up his yard seems for planting while we were not the judging. Remember to treat your cuttings for bugs before you plant them if they were not dusted with DDT last fall.

Rustic Fences
The prize for the most attractive fence went to one made from small cedar poles. You may be interested in copying the pattern used.

Another novel idea noticed during my rounds was a method of making a flower pot fit a jardiniere. The rim of the pot was too big to fit into the container. So, instead of trying to shave it down it was quickly and easily removed allowing the pot to be completely hidden by the jardiniere.

Shadow Boxes
One of my regular spots of call is a small dairy in the Cornwall area. I am always on hand on pick-ing up several butter boxes in good condition for my stock pile beside my workshop. These seems to be no end to the things that can be made from butter boxes, orange crates and nail kegs. I have promised to make a small shadow box for our friend Tom next time I am in Saturday. The pattern to be used is shown, by carefully puttying the holes before it is painted a serviceable box can be made quite inexpensively.

Anchors Aweigh
Now that the outdoor living room will be in use shortly, why not start at making this large serving tray with a nautical theme. You will find it light, attractive and sturdy.

Athabaskan Home After Long Stretch In Korean Waters

Victoria, B. C., May 18 — (CP) — The destroyer Athabaskan came home Thursday. It was the last of three Canadian warships which left here in July for Korean waters.

It was a tumultuous welcome for the little fighting ship as she slid into the naval harbor at Esquimalt in the accompaniment of ship's whistles, navy bands and cheers from families of crew members and visitors.

From Defence Minister Claxton came this message:

"Welcome home," he wired. "We in Canada are proud of the fine record you and your men have established while representing Canada and the United Nations forces. I wish all officers and men a well-earned leave."

Flood Waters Threaten Section Of Kansas City

Kansas City, May 18 (AP)—Flood waters, fed by rampaging rivers and creeks, today threatened a 30-block section of Kansas' largest city and harassed new areas in Oklahoma and Texas.

The high waters have caused at least four deaths, isolated many rural homes, and cut transportation and communications.

At Wichita, Kas., a city of 300,000 Volunteer Guardsmen and hundreds of volunteers sought to control the little Arkansas river.

The slowly-rising waters threatened to flood a 30-block area of the city.

In southwestern Oklahoma, Canton reservoir engineers warned residents to prepare for high flood waters—perhaps the greatest in history—from the Washita River.

The latest-hit city in Texas is Plainview in the northwest part of the state. Approximately 40 persons have evacuated there.

Flood waters two feet deep spread through the town of 10,000.

Junior Phalanx Enrolls 22 Boys

The members of the newly formed Phalanx Club witnessed a solemn and sacred ceremony on Tuesday night at the YMCA when the senior Phalanx Club inducted and initiated a group of 22 boys into only Junior Phalanx Club in Canada.

Through the effort of Mr. Walter Beal, the "Y" physical director and initiative of a group of boys ranging in years from 15 to 18, the club was formed and agreed upon to be called the Junior Phalanx Club with the Senior Phalanx Club as its directors and advisers. All the members decided to have their own club and boys wishing to join the club have to be voted in on their merits of good fellowship and desire to join.

Induction Service

The evening started off with a short business meeting and the election of dues was taken care of by the treasurer of the club, Mr. Walter Beal, after which all proceeded upstairs to the banquet room where, in an atmosphere of solemnity and sincerity, the boys heard their pledges and prayers which form part of the induction ceremony. The president, Mr. Don Dudley welcomed all the boys into the club and said he wished them the best of success.

The next item on the agenda was the initiation. All the boys were taken into a small room and relieved of their shirts and then blindfolded whence they were taken into another room and placed in front of the fire of their elders with the fear of cold ice water for the consequences if the initiation was not accepted and as it was, each got his share of it.

Immediately after the singing and shouting, they were taken to another member of the senior club who rolled them into a blanket and spun them out of it which, of course, had the effect when blindfolded.

Next, they were sent to the Barber who cut a lock out of the front of each boys hair so to give them something to remember the initiation by. The second to last item was a maze of obstacles which the members had to stumble through before being allowed to remove the blindfold. Such items as the brulsed shins and little falls, the blindfolds were removed.

Lastly, on the agenda, came the ride through Front Street with their shirts off and after parading in this up the main street they were taken to Coleman Street, across from the footbridge and made to run home to the "Y" to collect their shirts and then allowed to go for a swim.

The Senior Phalanx Club is sure that the youth in the city will hear from the Junior Phalanx Club in the near future as they will be planning many projects and other ideas of interest which will help serve them to make their treasury up. All wish to take this opportunity to thank Mr. Walter Beal, the Senior Phalanx Club and Mr. Sid Spelgal for the kind and helping way they have worked to start the young men on their way to club success.

Trenton Aircraft Aid in Search For Lost Plane

Three aircraft from the Air Armament School at the Trenton Air Station and an air search rescue Dakota from the Centralia station are among the 30 aircraft searching for the twin-engined Dakota and four of the crew down in the wild region of Canada from Ontario to Fort and Summerside, P.E.I. The lost plane disappeared earlier this week on a routine flight and has not been heard from since. The searchers have covered thousands of square miles in their hunt for the missing transport and four crew members.

In the last two days, the search has been intensified and each day hope was beginning to wane for the safety of air crew. It is feared that the big ship plunged into one of the numerous lakes which dot the rough part of the country.

"Had the plane gone down in the bush," one official said yesterday, "more than likely one of the crew would have escaped and by now smoke or some other signal would have been spotted." Bad weather, however, has interfered spotters yesterday.

A four engined Lancaster bomber and two twin engined bombers were dispatched to the Trenton from here earlier to aid the search opened. The rescue ship from Centralia left at noon today to pick up three parachutists of the air search branch on the way to search area.

Among the air crews from the Trenton Station are Sqdn. Ldr. D. J. Thomas, F/L. F. E. MacLaren, F/O. L. J. Corbell, F/O. S. T. Tugwell, F/O. R. A. Swartz (Belleville), F/O R. de Percian, F/O. MacAllister, F/O. C. C. McMillan, F/L. Aitken, F/O. Danielson, F/O. L. Harvey, F/O. A. L. Wetzel.

The parachute team from Trenton includes Cpl. Robinson, LAC. Cockerton and LAC. Image.

Helicopter Returns

The air search rescue branch at the Trenton Air Station reported yesterday that the helicopter piloted by F/O. T. Causey had returned from the Sudbury district after 27 hours of co-operation with the ground firefighters, battling serious forest fires in the northern timberlands for the last 10 days.

The R.C.A.F. helicopter proved invaluable in transporting firefighters from one outbreak to another hovering overhead watching the firefighters were not cut off by the spreading flames. In addition, Flying Officer Causey carried out patrols over the burning area.

Trenton Vicious Dog Charge Laid In Trenton Court

Trenton — (Special) — Collins Bird, of 18 Delaney Street, will face a charge of harboring a vicious dog when he appears before Magistrate T. Y. Willis in Police Court here May 22. He was arrested yesterday and was remanded for one week.

Police took action following a complaint that a dog had pulled nine - year - old Marlene Price, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Price, 135 Wood Street, from her bicycle and bitten her on the right leg. Five stitches were needed to close the rip in the little girl's leg and she was kept in Trenton School for 10 days until the swelling had gone down sufficiently to allow her to walk without pain.

Dr. J. W. Farley attended the Price girl and administered the necessary drugs as an antidote for lockjaw and rabies. She was put on a diet and allowed to spend the house two days later.

Bird's dog, a cross between a husky and a collie, was ordered shot, but Dr. Farley requested that the animal be allowed to live for 10 days until the patient had passed the danger stage of developing the usual reactions from dog bites.

Three Charged Advised to Change Plea of Guilty

Montreal, May 18—(CP)—Three young men, accused of stealing a tanlac, in an armed holdup of a suburban Ste. Anne de Bellevue taxi driver a month ago, were advised by Judge Irenee Legarde Thursday to change their plea of guilty to innocent and to apply for a preliminary hearing.

Destroyer Intercepts British Freighter With Vital Rubber Cargo Destined for Red China

Hong Kong, May 18 (Reuters) —The British destroyer Cossack intercepted the British freighter Nancy Moller on the high seas tonight and started escorting her back to Singapore with her vital cargo of rubber destined for communist China, it was reported.

Usually-reliable sources said the transport ministry in London requisitioned the Nancy Moller and her cargo of 3,700 tons of rubber.

They expressed belief this action had been taken under a wartime regulation still in force and transmitted to the master by radio before the Cossack arrived on the spot.

The Nancy Moller was near Hainan Island when intercepted, it was reported here.

Meanwhile in Singapore, another ship which had sought to deliver a cargo of rubber to China arrived back in port unburned back by British authorities at the Malayan call port of Penang.

The ship, the Panamanian freighter Nor Bay, carried 740 tons of Malayan rubber worth $1,125,000.

Penang authorities refused to clear her for China under the terms of the embargo on trade with the communist mainland requested last week by the British government.

Eighteen Victims Of Leprosy Arrive in U.S.

Baton Rouge, La., May 18 — (AP)—A prayer came in yesterday on the wings of a giant plane —a prayer for relief from a disease as old as the Bible.

It shone from the faces of 13 men and six women, flown here from the Virgin Islands in the Caribbean Sea. All are victims of leprosy.

Said one woman, who has had the dread malady for 26 of her 70 years;

"My life is nearly over, but it is wonderful to know that we are where we can have hope again."

Said a girl of scarcely more than 21 years:

"At last, at last."

All but five of the patients walked from the plane to automobiles. The others were borne in stretchers to ambulances.

They left immediately for Carville, La., 25 miles to the south, and the U.S. Marine Hospital—The United States' only leprosarium. There, about 400 others like them are waging a fight against the infection which corrodes the victim's limbs.

Fifteen of the patients are U.S. citizens. Two others are from the British West Indies and the other from the French West Indies.

The flight was arranged through the department of interior.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON OF THE WEEK

Guerilla Nests

By ROY L. SMITH

One of the most serious problems in the American forces in Korea is, in contrast with, after their first sweep across the land, was the nests of guerillas that concealed themselves in the mountain passes, and rose to fight again after the invaders had gone on. Under the impact of the Chinese mass attack, when the Americans were being driven back, these guerillas became formidable foes.

Need Completed Reforms

Every godly king of Judah came to the discovery sooner or later that he had to contend with nests of paganism which appeared in the life of the nation after every reform.

The "high places" (pagan shrines) constituted a menace to the peace and safety of the realm as long as they were tolerated. It is so also in modern political life.

Every city that tolerates vice in any form soon discovers that the vicious interests are determined to rule the town. All efforts to license prostitution, gambling, or other forms of evil have proven disastrous. The tentacles of paganism reach out and up to the highest governments of the state to corrupt it for evil's own purposes.

Personal Problem, Too

Any person undertaking to clean up his own life makes the discovery that the principle worker at the individual level as well. The man who decides to have done with all forms of sin except "one little sin," soon discovers that little sin, like misery, desires company and we soon producing a troublesome brood.

The only way the man can bring about a reform inside his own life is by setting out to make that reform complete. Small infidelities, moderate drunkenness, white lies, slight immoral practices in business—all these things constitute guerilla nests which will some day prove our undoing.

Prophet in Politics

It is not uncommon to hear someone demanding that the preacher shall keep out of politics and preach the pure gospel. Engaging in the affairs of government and undertaking to help with a fine and honorable tradition. All the Old Testament prophets did that.

Isaiah never preached a sermon on the subject of personal salvation. All his preaching was in terms of national life. If he had kept out of politics he would never have been heard of in the Old Testament. As a matter of fact, one of his bitterest enemies was the professionally prophetic party which insisted that he leave the government alone and stick to the ritual of the Temple and the traditions of the fathers.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for May 20: "The Southern Kingdom," II Kings 18-20; II Chronicles 29-30; Isaiah 36-39.

Of course Isaiah did not take to the hustings to try to elect his party's candidate to office, but he did take to the rural towns and crossroads in a mighty effort to rouse the people to resist one of the first great acts of the genius. He was no ward heeler, but a statesman with a fixed political philosophy for his nation.

Relied on Principles

The pulpits of America, and the editorial columns as well, might very profitably raise again the cry of Isaiah, "Woe to them" that go down to Egypt for help. The great prophet knew that an appeal to Egypt was only another appeal to dependence he was in Egypt there was no high moral principle.

Isaiah had a firm confidence that there was a power in the right which was superior to any power residing in the wrong, and that the alliance of a God righteousness and truth could be jeopardized by an alliance with an evil thing such as Egypt was.

75th Preakness Run Saturday Is Open Contest

Baltimore, May 18 (AP) — The 75th Preakness tomorrow at Pimlico has settled down to another elimination contest in the race to decide the best three-year-old colt of 1951.

The names of eight horses of seven owners are expected to be in the entry box when it closes today.

The best of them are expected sooner or later to have it out with the cream of the Kentucky Derby finishers for the year's laurels. None of the first five Derby colts was eligible for this Diamond Jubilee Preakness.

Five of the eight probable starters went in the Derby, Greentree Stables' Hall of Fame faced best—sixth.

However, indicating how two weeks can make a possible difference, jockey Ted Atkinson has taken himself off Hall of Fame. He will ride the other Greentree entry, Big Stretch, 18th finisher in the Derby. Vancouver's Heads-Up Woodhouse will take over Hall of Fame's reins.

The anticipated crowd of 35,000 is expected to bet heavily on Big Stretch and three other colts, two of which skipped the Derby.

The newcomers are Brookmeade Stable's Bold and Hampton Stable's Alerted. This pair impressed Pimlico fans Monday with a heads-apart finish in the Preakness prep.

Mrs. Nora Mikell's Repetoire established himself as a Maryland favorite by winning two stakes at Laurel. They are finding excuses for his 12th in the Derby.

Fans looking for a "price" will go to the other three entries. These are Mrs. Wallace Gilroy's Timely Reward, C. V. Whitney's Counterpoint and Mrs. George D. Widener's Knowitall.

Timely Reward and Counterpoint came in 10th and 11th in the Derby, ahead of Repetoire. Knowitall has raced only once this year, winning a race against other non-winners.

The winner will take away the fourth biggest prize in the history of the race. It will be worth $60,550 to Alerted, Timely Reward or Repetoire and $22,925 to any of the other five. The difference is that the three latter were supplementary entries at $2,750 each, while it cost only $135 to nominate the others.

Canadian Mother To Take Try At the Channel

(By The Canadian Press)

Eddie Roach, said Thursday that he'll sell his house, if necessary, to raise the money to send his daughter, Mrs. Winnie Roach Leander, to Europe for an attempt to swim the English Channel.

The 35-year-old Toronto housewife, mother of three children, hopes to become the first Canadian woman to try to swim from France to England. If she succeeds, she will be the first Canadian, male or female, to complete the channel swim.

Friends have raised $251 to help with her expenses but she estimates she will need $5,000.

Winnie placed second in the 1947 Canadian National Exhibition two-mile swim, two months after the birth of her first child. She placed third in 1948 in the same event and second in 1949.

Los Angeles boxing promoter Joe Lynch Thursday won a $40,000 breach of contract judgment against lightweight champion Ike Williams.

Lynch contended that Williams reneged on an agreement to fight John Thomas here in May, 1947.

Williams injured a broken hand, but Lynch's lawyer, Ronald Walker, showed that the champ fought five times between February, when he turned down the Thomas bout, and May of that year.

At New York, The Pimpernel, two-year-old chestnut colt, established a world record for 4½ furlongs Thursday by travelling down the Widener chute at Belmont in 49 4/5 seconds. The former world mark was 50 2/5 seconds, set on the same course on May 27 last year by Black Douglas, another two-year-old.

The Pimpernel set the record in winning Thursday's fourth race at Belmont, a $4,000 event for maidens.

A French Foreign Office spokesman said Thursday the refusal of a French visa to the veteran German tennis star, Baron Gottfried von Cramm was founded "on Cramm's attitude during the war." Von Cramm was blacklisted by the French between 1937 and 1941.

Cramm had been invited by the French tennis federation to enter the international championships.

East and West German sports officials failed to agree Thursday on how to form an all-German Olympics committee, precondition for enrolling German athletes to the 1952 Olympic games.

A brief communique issued after a three-hour conference said the question was discussed in the "spirit of good sports comradeship," but the conversations had not resulted in any agreement.

Formation of an all-German group was directed by the International Olympic Committee at its recent Vienna conference.

McMaster University Maurader, the new entry in the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union, will be coached by Al Smith whose appointment to the Hamilton University's physical education department was announced Thursday.

Smith, 33, leaves Weston Collegiate, near Toronto, to come to McMaster. Before going to Weston last year he was with Ottawa Tech, where he became known as one of Ontario's outstanding high school football and basket ball coaches.

He produced three champion football and two title-winning basketball teams in his four years at Ottawa Tech.

Lacrosse Going Well in West, Big Crowds Attend

Vancouver, May 18—(CP) — West coast lacrosse has pulled away to its hottest financial start in more than a decade.

Crowds around the five-team inter-city lacrosse league circuit have been away over pre-season expectations.

Victoria is the hottest spot, where the shamrocks pulled in 4,500 fans Wednesday night, the biggest early-season crowd in years.

Things are so rosy, in fact, that the league commission decided it didn't need its publicity man any more and fired him this week.

Last year's six-team circuit was cut to five clubs this year by combining the two New Westminster teams and the two Vancouver teams and giving a franchise to Nanaimo native sons.

New Westminster's Adanacs, last year's Dominion finalists, and Salmonbellies became the commandos, Vancouver Burrards and Richmond - Kerrisdale became Vancouver Combines. North shore Indians, Victoria and Nanaimo make up the five.

Victoria, in its sophomore season, has snatched an early lead with its pre-season favorite commandos are fumbling around near the bottom.

The Shamrocks lured Archie Browning and Whitey Severson from Brampton Excelsiors and Norm Baker, Canada's greatest basketball player, from a one-year lacrosse retirement to form a "blonde bombshell" line.

Baker is leading league scorers and Browning and Severson rank third and fourth.

Commandos brought Law Landers from Brampton and he has been going well, He's scored four goals and two assits on two occasions.

Jim Kinns, 200-pound defenceman who turned senior last year with Peterborough Petes, is bouncing opposing forwards like tennis balls for Vancouver.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, May 18 — (AP) — Remember Bill Bevens, the big Yankee pitcher who had a no-hit game for 8 2-3 innings of the 1947 world series against Brooklyn, only to see it ruined by Cookie Lavegetto's pinch-hitt . . . Bill didn't do another thing of importance in the major leagues. He came up with a sore arm in the spring of '48 and was shuffled off to Newark, then Houston and Sacramento and still couldn't win . . . This spring he turned up with the Salem Senators of the western international league and the other night he pitched a five-hit game against the Spokane Indians, only to lose it 5-0. . . It was Bill's first defeat of the season. . . Another former major-leaguer, Spokane's Steve Mesner, reported afterward: "that Bevens hasn't lost a bit of his old stuff. When I got up at bat against him, it took me back to the old days in the majors."

Sportspourri

When only 353 customers turned out for a Texas league game in Beaumont this spring Houston manager Al Hollingsworth told a reporter: "They'd better not let out a peep tonight or we'll go up there in the stands and whip 'em". . .

One of the oddest sports accidents of 1950 occurred in Yankee Stadium. Pitchers Jack Bruner and Randy Gumpert of Chicago White Sox were seated at opposite ends of the bullpen bench. Gumpert jumped up to watch a play, the bench tilted and Bruner landed on his pitching elbow. It was bruised so badly he couldn't pitch for days.

DON'T BELIEVE IT

The Belleville Baseball Association at an executive meeting last night adopted almost unchanged rules along the rounds that admission to the COBL games here would be one dollar. Now that street-trips got started nobody seems to know but the fact of the matter is the association passed the bill adopted by the Central Ontario Baseball League are Minor League. They have to be, since the COBL executive set the prices. Admissions are adults 50 cents, children 25 cents. Add that's final double pool-room, barber-shop or drawing room pass to the contrary.

If present plans of Reg Redmon materialize, fans here should be treated to a visit from the Redmon person on the diamond for their first home game. Playing Coach Pat Wilson, anyhow is down tomorrow and will immediately take over the reins and start to whip the squad into shape in real earnest. Pat thinks himself when about the pill around and is a possibility as is another pitcher and an outfielder. Last night, Benny McGregor did a Lou Boudreau around the clubhouse and Jack Wilson, Jack Wallace, Bill Cassidy, Jack Cairns, Benny Whitehead, Dick Fitzpatrick and the rest of the crew are rounding into shape and should be in fair condition by opening game time here Thursday when they meet Trenton in the opening of the latter's diamond. The Reds open their home stand on May 20th against the Picton Athletics.

BRIGHT NEAR ENDLING, WOE!

The annual Sudbury way they're boiling 25-year-old Noah Bartland as the King of the Keglers. For Bartland, bowling at a sanctioned U. B. A. tournament turned in a semi triple of 1,180, thirty eight, 1,180, with singles of 388, 397, and 344.

The semi-triple is the highest ever rolled in the third Highland ever recorded in the Dominion. The present Canadian Bowling Association record is held by Percy West, Toronto, who rolled 1,128 in a CBA tournament in 1946. The next highest score of 1,114 was rolled by Jim Morris of Hamilton in 1941.

Bartland missed a perfect game in his second effort when he left a four-pin standing in the eighth frame, and missed a Canadian record when he picked a head-pin on the 10th frame of his final game.

A REMINDER TO SOFTBALL MANAGERS

Managers of some entries in the Commercial Softball League, have been in the habit of handing in players' certificates any concerned, so President Don Lee informs us. He reminds the delinquent ones that, according to OASA regulations, players' certificates must be in the hands of the league secretary before the game. And with games dated a scant week away, somebody had better start getting on their horses. Likewise some enbody does have yet to be handed in and Secretary Ernie Cowan is anxious to have league matters straightened out before "first ball" steps around the city playing fields.

A RUGGED GOI

The speed, science and deadly Indian deathlock of Chief Sunt War Cloud will be pitted against the strength, resourcefulness and ring generalship of Fred Atkins in a main event wrestling bout in the ring at the Memorial Arena tonight. Atkins is one of the most ruthless, rough and, at the same time, most experienced and solid wrestlers in the sport. Chief Suni is high in skill, speed and experience departments himself. In addition, both men have sure-fire, knock - out specialty winning holds.

In the semi-final, Earl McCready, the Regina wrestling ace who starred in the Olympic games, will oppose Natie Brown, former heavyweight boxer from New York, who went 10 rounds with Joe Louis.

The first bout will see Lee Henning, the lads lowan, wrestle Bill Stack, the Oshawa star.

MINOR NOTES

That "pair of Jacks", Johnnies Dean and Mowat, batsmy mates of the Belleville Redmen baseball club, have "signed on" to take charge of minor baseball teams in Walter Senf's snopped loop. The 'Johnnies' said they were tickled to death to help out with the youngsters and that means substantial relief to the Minor division of the Belleville Baseball Association which, it appears was experiencing difficulty in obtaining coaches for the kids teams. Recently Dean and Mowat and a group of the kids and addressed the newspapers. The boys, which will form the Fewwee Baseball League were divided into six teams, four of which have sponsors. Two more are temporarily sponsored by the association and that the Belleville Kiwanis Club has donated $186 towards the purchase of equipment for the league.

We stated in error yesterday that the Fewwee baseballers would get out in the Metro Street Frommers' Park on Saturday starting at 1 p. m. This should have read "peewee softball teams". President Don Lee of the parent body said today that Fire Chief Gerald Vance and his "boys in blue" have done a grand job in readying the field for the youngsters.

Yanks Have Not Lost at Home Since September 26 of Last Year And End Still Not in Sight

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

What did New York Yankees last lose a ball game at Yankee Stadium?

The answer is Sept. 26, 1950.

A world series and 19 straight 1951 victories have passed and the end is not in sight. It must be discouraging for the tourists.

Paul Richards takes his upstart Chicago White Sox to New York prepared to feed southpaw pitching to Cuban Slugger Minnie Minoso. Maybe that will work; it hasn't so far.

You won't see many better-pitched games than Early Wynn threw at the Yanks yesterday. Still he lost 1-0 as his Cleveland Tribe fell to the Bronx, 7-2.

Joe DiMaggio applied the Clincher with an innocent first-inning single from Dr. Ferris Fain. Brown, Wynn gave up only one more hit in his seven-inning stay, a triple by Coleman in the eighth.

All day the Indians labored, combing Allie Reynolds for nine hits. But it did no good.

They lost their big chance in the eighth when Hank Bauer's slingshot peg from left nipped Sam Chapman, trying to score from third on a fly ball. Chapman had made the inning worth a double.

Big Gus Zernial continued his home-run streak with his seventh in four consecutive games for Philadelphia as the A's tied the American League record set by Tony Lazzeri of the Yanks. He's short of Ralph Kiner's Major League high, hung up in 1947.

A's Out of Cellar

With the help of Zernial's two-run-homer in the ninth, the A's crept out of the cellar, on a 7-6 victory over St. Louis Browns as Eddie Joost's ninth-inning single scoring Ray Murray was the payoff blow. Walker Cooper, ex-Shantz. Al Widmar was loser.

Cleveland Manager Lou Boudreau got out of a four-game losing streak by beating Detroit 11-5. Although slipping badly for 16 hits, Marrero went all the way for his fifth straight win. Sam Mele led the attack on Freddie Hutchinson.

Ike Hall only three games from top to bottom in the National, with Brooklyn on top and the 1950 champion Phillies in the cellar.

The vaunted Dodger power was missing at Chicago, where Frank Hiller spun a 7-0 seven-hitter while Rhubarb Jackson and Hank Sauer ripped into Erv Palica for home runs.

Keeping pace with the Cubs, Pittsburgh Pirates moved within one game of first place by knocking off New York, 12-7. Ralph Kiner had a big day, with his 42th homer and a double to drive in five runs.

Nine Hurlers in Action

Nine pitchers saw action—five Giants and four Pirates—with the win going to Murry Dickson and the loss to Monte Kennedy.

Cincinnati crept even with the .500 mark on a 6-5 edge over Boston's Warren Spahn. Ted Kazanski weakened in the eighth when the Braves scored four, and Harry Perkowski nailed him out. Frank Smith rushed to the rescue of Perkowski when the Braves threatened in the ninth.

Rookie Joe Presko pitched his first complete game in the majors to whip the Phillies 2-1. The St. Louis Cardinals couldn't get the shutout bid when Andy Seminick homered in the ninth.

The Cards scored both runs in the first off Robin Roberts on four hits and a run.

Cold postponed the scheduled Chicago White Sox-at-Boston game in the American League.

One Set of Golf Rules for Whole World Set Up

London, May 18 (AP)—One set of golf rules for the whole world has been agreed upon it was announced today by representatives of the United States Golf Association and the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, whose rules are followed almost everywhere except in the U.S.

The recommendations which still need to be approved by the executive committee of the U.S.G.A. and by the membership of the R. and A. include:

1. Abolition of the stymie.
2. Allowing the small British ball to be used in the United States.
3. Allowing the goose neck and other legal American putters to be used in the rest of the world.
4. A standard penalty of stroke and distance for a ball lost, unplayable or out of bounds.

If they are approved, the new rules probably will go into effect Jan. 1, 1952.

Kid Gavilan Strong Favorite To Whip Bratton

New York, May 18—(AP)—Kid Gavilan, the sleek Cuban hawk, is a solid 2-to-1 choice to whip Chicago's Johnny Bratton tonight in a 15-round bout for the welterweight championship vacated by Sugar Ray Robinson.

Bratton already holds a piece of the title, winning the National Boxing Association recognition by grabbing a split decision over Charlie Fusari at Chicago in March. But New York State awards the result of this Madison Square Garden battle before giving its blessing.

Advance sales indicate a crowd of some 10,000 and a $50,000 gate, despite the network's radio (ABC) and television (NBC) coverage. The bout goes on at 10 p. m. EDT.

The winner must next throw New York's Billy Graham within 60 days to get universal recognition as the champion of the world. He will have to fight Britain's claimant, Kids Thomas.

This shapes up as an interesting scrap between two "flurry" fighters in the eyes of veteran judges with spurts of concerted action. Bratton is a stiff puncher but he does not take a wallop like the iron-jawed Kood.

The winner must meet New York's Billy Graham within 60 days to get universal recognition as the champion of the world. He will have to fight Britain's claimant, Kids Thomas.

This shapes up as an interesting scrap between two "flurry" fighters in the eyes of veteran judges with spurts of concerted action. Bratton is a stiff puncher but he does not take a wallop like the iron-jawed Kood.

Against the back-peddling Bratton, who twice had his jaw broken, he figures to land and make the fight.

They call Bratton a "spot fighter," meaning that he backs off, counters and looks for the chance to end it all with one solid right. He can punch with authority but will find Gavilan a rugged shock absorber. He's hits "The Keed" with his soundsy punch and nothing happens. Bratton may get discouraged. He has gone 15 rounds only once.

Trotting Race Meets Will Be Under Government

Ottawa, May 18—(CP)—Betting at pacing and trotting race meets in Canada is being brought under government supervision.

A bill amending the horse-racing section of the criminal code to make pari-mutuel regulations apply at all race meets in connection horse races Thursday was introduced in the senate and given first reading. Senator Wilbert J. Robertson, government leader, indicated it will be debated early next week.

A spokesman for the agriculture department, indicated growth in popularity of trotting and pacing meets, particularly in Ontario, engendered the move. He said it had been sought by trotting associations anxious to get betting on the same supervised basis as that applying to ordinary horse racing.

The bill lays down the same regulations as set out for running races—no more than 14 days of racing and eight races daily. It sets out the payment of the total amount staked which may be retained by the association.

The association take ranges from nine per cent on the first $20,000 on a sliding scale down to five percent on takes of more than $50,000.

The total portion of the pari-mutuel betting pool goes back to the bettors, in addition to the percentage taken by the racing association, there is a provincial tax which varies from province to province. Provincial taxes totalled almost $6,000,000 last year.

The great horse died in 1947 at age of 30,—after earning $2,000,000 in stakes, stud fees and sale of foals.

Brantford Wins London's Opener In Tenth Frame

(By The Canadian Press)

It took 10 innings to do it, but Brantford Red Sox managed to spoil the Intercounty Baseball season for London Majors Thursday night.

A triple and a long fly in the 10th gave the Sox the winning run in their 3-2 victory over London before a crowd of about 1,800 in London.

The triple was off the bat of Jerry Wilson, Brantford centre fielder, who cut short a London rally in the bottom half of the ninth with a spectacular catch.

The long run-scoring fly was by Latcher Clifford. He was responsible for driving in all three Brantford runs, sending men across the plate in the first and eighth with timely singles.

Johnny Mooers, a southpaw, went the route for the winners, giving up 10 hits. Tommy White hurled for Londps and was charged with six. He allowed Brantford five walks to one by Moore.

Three games are scheduled for tonight: Waterloo at St. Thomas Galt at Brantford, and Guelph at Kitchener.

Cobb Does Not Consider Williams 'A Great [illegible]'

Atlanta, Calif., May 12—(AP)—Ty Cobb, one of the world's finest lifetime batters in baseball history, says Ted Williams cannot be classed as "a great hitter."

The old Georgia Peach, whose dashing performances as a Detroit Tiger wrote vivid chapters in the record books, pulled no punches while discussing the Boston Red Sox slugger.

"Williams has fine ability but he cannot be classed as a great hitter," Cobb said. "No player can be called a truly great hitter unless he can hit to all fields."

Conceding the Red Sox star has the power to lose ball fields outside nobility, Cobb contended that that alone does not make top batsman. He said the Ted names belle so consistently to right field that opposing teams shift their outfielders and second-baseman far over with impunity.

"In my book you have to be able to hit them to all fields," he said.

Of Babe Ruth, Cobb said simply: "Ruth could choke up his bat and hit to left field any time he wanted. He had everything necessary to earn his place among the baseball immortals."

Ruth was Cobb's keenest rival, particularly when Ruth was sold to the Yankees in 1918 and started clouting his way into the headlines. Cobb already was an established hitting, base-stealing and outfielding star with the Tigers when the Babe reported as a rookie to the Red Sox in 1914.

Others Cobb thinks belong in the category of "great hitters" include Rogers Hornsby, George Sisler and Joe DiMaggio.

Ty was the second player named to baseball's Hall of Fame. The late Christy Mathewson of the New York Giants was the first. Ruth was the fourth.

Cobb, 64, but still robust and a fine physical specimen, lives the life of a country squire on his secluded estate here. The old lathander plays golf, hunts and fishes for recreation but baseball is still his favorite topic. And the Tigers are still his favorite team.

Kreiger Putting Up Strong Case For Early Recall

(By The Associated Press)

Kurt Kriegar, Rochester Red Wing shutout ace, is putting up a strong case for an early recall by St. Louis Cardinals.

The Cards shipped the 25-year-old right-hander to their International League farm for more work. He's responding. Last week he threw a one-hitter at Syracuse. Last night he blanked Springfield 6-0 with five hits.

Hal Rice, another Cardinal in spring training days, led the 10-hit attack with a home run and triple off loser Frank Marino. Don Richmond, the 1959 batting champ just sent back from St. Louis rejoined the Wings and came through with two hits.

Nino Escalera, 20-year-old Puerto Rican rookie who has been struggling in the .150 class broke loose with five hits in Syracuse's 6-4 win over Baltimore. Carden Gillenwater had three hits, including a homer in the Chiefs' 13-hit blast off Baltimore pitching. Art Hartley pitched a four-hitter but one was Al Cheek's three-run homer in the ninth.

Montreal maintained its three-game lead with a three run rally in the ninth to nip Ottawa 6-4. Tom Lasorda, third of four Montreal pitchers, was the winner over Red Hardy.

The Buffalo-Toronto game was postponed because of wet grounds.

Scouts Wreck Palatial Home, Suit is Filed

Chicago, May 18—(AP)—About 150 Boy Scouts wrecked a palatial $7,000,000 north shore mansion to the extent of $40,000, a damage suit filed yesterday in federal court said.

Five insurance companies were sued by lawyer John R. Whitman.

The suburban Lake Forest property formerly was owned by the late Harold McCormick and Edith Rockefeller McCormick, once known as the world's richest woman.

Police said about half of the Scouts got into the building in May last year and pretended to defend it from the others.

Huge urns and heavy statues were hurled at the invaders, hundreds of panes of glass were broken, and the boys used their little hatchets to smash ornamental doors, floors and walls.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Saturday, May 19

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Carefully analyze each problem separately; don't take needless chances with unfriendly situations. P.M. could present irritating conditions if you don't control temper, thoughts.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Apropos for most business and financial undertakings. Your intent ability is suited to new ideas, investments (wait suited). Heart interests can bring much satisfaction this period.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Really little to hinder, and may be little to encourage, but for you keen, fast thinkers that should be just right now. Start early, be consistent and sensible and you will achieve.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—But everything you know behind days with and you can gain surprising advantages. Every little gain counts at the end. So take full use of each good opportunity. And be cheerful.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Hold your action, opinions till you are sure. But don't allow tension or obstinacy to block. Present your cause in proper manner and be rewarded in grand measure.

August 23 to September 22—(Virgo)—No time to depend upon others or allow your business matters to be run by others. But heed sound advice. Be direct, avoid misleading generalities, have care with money, document signing.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)— Fine aspects on whole for personal and other activities. Work on tasks thoughtfully, realizing possible pitfalls, then go at them with will to win—you will. Heed health needs.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)— You'll probably feel the stimulus of surrounding vibrations and be rarin' to go—after anything. Keep your head, act within your scope of ability and you won't step too far.

November 23 to December 23—(Sagittarius)—Some really friendly influences, but you will have to go after things smartly nonetheless. Successful period if you avoid hasty decisions, needless changes. Mind's guidance.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Similar to Sagittarius today. Hit a calm, sensible pace; don't assume more than you can handle. Keep informed about others' successes, it's good go-by material.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)— Hold yourself in sensible check, especially in business and financial matters. Give yourself spiritual and mental as well as physical buildups. Duties always less burdensome with cheer.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Interesting period for all well planned business, contracting, professional undertakings. Unexpected news, but in essence good, should help you dispel erroneous ideas. Be happy.

YOU BORN TODAY: Can be a top executive. Are a good co-worker. Keep mind free for business and financial matters. Can be secretive diplomatic. Often slow, but are naturally thorough. Often

5 PETERBOROUGH FIREMEN REPORTED TRAPPED

Britain Proposes New Oil Agreement In Note to Iran

Says Failure to Negotiate Will Have Serious Effects

London, May 19—(AP)—Britain warned Iran today that failure to negotiate a new oil agreement would have "the most serious consequences."

In a firm note delivered to the Iranian Foreign Minister in Tehran today, she said that one-sided action by Iran to take over Britain's giant oil concessions "could not fail to gravely impair" friendly relations between the two countries.

She offered to send a mission immediately to Iran to negotiate a new agreement.

The foreign office released the text of the note soon after Ambassador Sir Francis Shepherd delivered it.

The note said the British government still hopes the oil problem "can be settled by negotiation" and it added: "the interests of his majesty's government and the Anglo-Iranian company (which holds the Iranian concessions) in this matter are identical."

Iran has passed legislation through parliament which in effect already has nationalized all foreign-owned oil-development projects in the country.

Britain already has strongly protested against Iran's parliamentary action.

She Right to Protest

The British note argued that, "the British government has a majority of the shares in the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, British subjects other than British directors its interests" in every way she properly can.

Then it added that Britain would have an unanswerable right under international law to take up the case and, if she deem it expedient, to bring their complaint against the Iranian government before the International court of justice at The Hague, in that connection they would hope that the Iranian government would collaborate in enabling the court to give a decision as quickly as possible.

Wants to Talk Issue Over

But, the note said, Britain would prefer to talk the whole thing over.

Iran already has made clear to Britain that she rejects the principle of negotiating on the principle of 50 nationalization.

The British note-drafted after talks with the United States—asserted that the government has "fully disputed Iran's right to nationalize commercial enterprises. It added, however, that "no such dispute is that has arisen between the Persian (Iranian) government, in fact, undertook to exercise this right before it had taken any steps to secure the wrong done if a sovereign state breaks a contract which it deliberately made."

The note recalled that Iran agreed in 1933 never to change the position of the oil company without the company's consent.

The Anglo-Iranian company, Britain's biggest single foreign asset, supplies most of the fuel for the British Navy. If its supply is dried up, Britain would have to get fuel for her Navy and civilian fuel requirements from American sources.

Windsor, May 19 (CP) — Interest was sparked in today's big international hydroplane race by two announcements Friday — a third Canadian ship will sail in the race and all television fees will go to the families of 13 crew members of the tug "Sachem" which went down in Lake Erie December 18, last.

The third Canadian skipper, Hector Church, sailed in the tug race last year, piloting the C. F. Beckner. Television rights for this year's race were purchased by a Detroit automobile sales company.

Work Stoppages In Western Union Appear Ended

New York, May 19—Work stoppages which have tied up Western Union's Telegraph operations in six key areas appeared ended today.

Most workers were back at their jobs in Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Detroit and Buffalo. Members of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union (AFL), at Detroit and the San Francisco-Oakland area had voted to return.

The men have pulled work stoppages of varying lengths to protest against a management program of training non-union supervisory employees in operating jobs.

The company has agreed to postpone the program, which it called a routine system of making executive and supervisory personnel familiar with new mechanical techniques.

The union said it was an attempt to train the non-union men as strike-breakers.

The union has called a strike for July 1 to back demands for a 25-cent-an-hour wage boost.

Political War Causing Jitters, Forces Residents to Leave Area

Benton, Tenn., May 19—(AP)— safety.

A haggard, life-long resident says he is planning to sell his business and leave Benton as soon as possible.

"I'm getting tired of dodging every time a gun pounds," he told a reporter. "When I leave Polk county, I'm going to wash my hair, my clothes, my car and my shoes. And I never want to see this place again."

He is another victim of jitters resulting from a political war which has destroyed governments as an operating agency in Polk. And in this mountainous southeast Tennessee section, politics has come to involve not only governments but personal and immediate

FIGHTING MEN MAY GET SOME TAX EXEMPTIONS

Finance Minister Abbott Cocks Sympathetic Ear

Ottawa, May 19 (CP) —Tax exemptions for Canada's fighting men in Korea—or comparable financial compensation—appeared in the Commons again yesterday. Finance Minister Abbott cocked a sympathetic ear.

The Finance Minister said he still is against over-all tax exemptions unfair and inequitable. But he promised to discuss with Cabinet colleagues proposals ranging from foreign-service pay to an additional $1,000 income-tax exemption. He indicated a government decision will be made shortly.

The debate came as the House studied Mr. Abbott's budgetary tax resolutions. The resolutions were passed and the budget bill, themselves—on which Mr. Abbott said any changes decided on could be made—were introduced and given first reading.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said the public service pensions and tax exemptions for the men in Korea. Because a private would benefit to the extent of $6.84 a month compared to $142 by a brigadier who got a valid argument.

John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) said the government already had a precedent for giving allowances to members of the external affairs department when they are posted. Tax exemptions for the troops now in Korea would not cost more than $1,000,000 a year.

Clare Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South) said $25 a month is a lot of money to a private "and a lot of beer."

He joked others in suggesting the men in Korea be given another $1,000 a year exemption from income tax in addition to existing $1,000 basic exemption for single men and $2,000 for married men.

Matter of Morale

Tom Goode (L — Burnaby Richmond) said it was a matter of morale and that what the government did it should not take a penny a month from the private fighting in Korea.

Others who joined in the plea for tax exemptions included Victor Quelch (SC — Acadia), Percy Noseworthy (CCF — Muskoka) and H. W. Herridge (CCF — Kootenay West). J. L. MacDougall (L — Cumberland) said he did not think Korean - bound troops objected to paying taxes. They didn't "mean suppence" to them.

Mr. Abbott said he thought "the suggestion I have been hinting at, of some form of combat pay or service pay, would probably be considerably more welcome than the point of view of the treasure."

"But I suggest that they be satisfied in giving them this haphazard impact of a general exemption of service pay and allowances after for overseas service or otherwise."

The Commons spent the first evening hour discussing divorce bills and again failed to reached Credit members, staged a minisatire filibuster, insisting on clause-by-clause study of each of the 12 divorce bills on the order paper.

President Makes New Unity Appeal as Republicans Weigh 'Whitewash' Charges in Probe

Washington, May 19 — (AP)— President Truman's new appeal for national unity in the face of the MacArthur controversy was ranged today alongside a Republican Senator's "whitewash" charge against Democrats.

Truman declared last night that "we are in the midst of one of the greatest crises this country has ever faced." He added that unless the free countries can successfully meet the challenge, "the casualties in Korea will be one small drop in the bucket compared to the terrible loss" from one of those horrible bombs we talk so much about.

That was an obvious allusion to what the President feels would happen if an atomic attack was loosed against the United States and its allies.

Truman bid for unity in a brief informal speech at a national armed forces day dinner here.

At the same time, Defense Secretary Marshall said the allied forces in Korea "have dissipated the defeatism of a year ago" and have given new life to the U.N., the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the free world generally.

Neither the President nor Marshall made any mention of Truman's dismissal of Gen. MacArthur from his Pacific Commands.

A few hours before the President spoke, Senator Alexander Wiley, Rep. Wis. had charged that a majority of the Senate Committees investigating dismissal of MacArthur has "a frantic desire to cover-up and whitewash."

Wiley set forth the contention in a letter to Senator Richard B. Russell (Dem., Ga.) chairman of the Combined Senate Armed Forces and Foreign Relations Committees conducting the inquiry.

Wiley, a member of the group, said the investigation may wind up as "not only a whitewash but a washout."

The Wisconsin Senator wrote Russell after being defeated 18 to 8 in the committees Thursday in an effort to force Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Chiefs of Staff, to state what was said at a conference he and other top advisers had with Truman April 5 or five days before MacArthur was fired.

Bradley volunteered, however, to tell about the conference's conclusions reached at the conference which led to the ouster of MacArthur. He say do that when he returns to the witness stand Monday.

Seventh Suspect In Rape Case Is Questioned

Toronto, May 19 (CP)—A seventh suspect was arrested late Friday and questioned in the attack on a 16-year-old salesgirl Thursday night in west-end Willowdale Park.

Robert Blair, 21, was charged with rape as detectives pressed a search for several youths sought in the case.

Five others, aged from 14 to 16, are held without bail on a charge of rape. Another, aged 18, has been charged as a material witness and released on bail.

The police said the girl said she was stripped and raped by 11 youths while her 12-year-old sister was kept from making an outcry.

Troops Search Murderer Of Seven Persons

Rabat, Morocco, May 19—(Reuters)—Twelve thousand troops and North African police with beaters and dogs today searched the Atlas countryside for Mohamed Bouali, the "Mad Moor" who has murdered seven persons.

The bearded, blue-eyed former soldier shot his mistress' husband in a small Atlas village 12 days ago. He took to the hill with the dead man's rifle and 14 cartridges. Today, he had up a car and shot two of the occupants dead, wounding two others. Late that day he killed a motorcyclist and his passenger.

Monday he shot two more people.

Vicious Tornado Kills Two Persons And Injures 100

Olney, Texas, May 18. (AP)—A vicious tornado ripped through this north Texas town of 5,000 yesterday killing two persons and injuring 100 others.

Home and businesses destroyed or damaged totaled about $3,000,000. W. R. C. Hallman, S. Richardson, city utility supervisor, made a tentative estimate of $1,000,000 damage, but said he had made no estimate up to $3,000,000.

A late count showed 18 persons still in the hospital with fractured bones and lacerations. Three were seriously hurt.

Early today weary rescue workers continued searching the wreckage.

Only a few sections had electricity. Gas lines were shut off to prevent fires from leaking mains.

ADMIT SETTING FIRES

Cranston, R.I., May 19 (AP)— Three volunteer firemen were charged with setting fires in a vocational building after police said they admitted setting fires in an unoccupied house and garage Thursday night for "excitement." After the fires, the trio had joined other firemen in a two-alarm fight against the blazes which caused damage estimated at $2,000.

ADMIT MOVEMENTS

Rangoon, Burma, May 19 (AP)— The Burmese government said today that the communist Chinese have admitted the movement of Chinese troop movements along Burma's border. The paper published an interview with Punsalmaa, first secretary of the Chinese embassy, quoting him as saying there have been such troop movements, but that he had no knowledge of Chinese fighting planes and tanks.

HEAVY ATTACKS PUSH BACK U.S. DIVISION

Killed 10,000 Reds Fighting Out of Trap

Tokyo, May 19—(AP)—A regiment, of the embattled United States 24th Division withdrew today under heavy communist attacks on the flaming central Korean front.

The division had fought out of a communist trap Friday and killed 10,000 reds.

There was no fresh word from the critical eastern front where reds surged southward through a big gap in the Eighth Army's lines.

The red chain-reaction offensive spread Saturday to the western front, a battalion of communist attacked South Korean troops northwest of Seoul. It was the strongest communist attack in weeks in that area.

However, a U.S. Eighth Army briefing officer said the Red Communistic note since the second red spring offensive broke four days ago.

"The situation is shaping up," he said.

Red troops Friday night entered the abandoned road hub of Uijongbu, 15 miles north of Seoul, the Korean capital.

A Chinese patrol of 10 or 15 men also barbed wire Saturday morning on Seoul's outer defence perimeter. The patrol was fired on immediately.

An Eighth Army briefer said the Red Division Regiment fell back Saturday after being injured Friday. Chinese who slipped through a gap left by South Korean withdrawal on the Second's right.

Crumpled By Reds

Nothing was heard from the South Korean division, crumpled by the Reds on the first day of their drive.

An officer said this could be explained by the fact that radio communications have been disrupted in the allied withdrawal forced by the fierce battles along the front.

The red penetration was aimed down the Hongchon road to Inje southwestward toward Hangye and Yongchon.

CRITICALLY INJURED

Lindsay, May 19 — (CP) — Sheriff Alex Whitmore, proprietor of a summer resort near Fenelon Falls, was critically injured Friday when his automobile was struck by a truck which swerved to the centre of the road.

Mr. Worthan suffered injuries to his left arm, his right leg and fractures. His wife, Rose, suffered shock and lacerations, while their four-year-old son, Tommy, was uninjured.

Driver of the truck, George Bryant of Norland, suffered bruised knee.

Wet Weather Takes Toll Of Fall Wheat

Toronto, May 19 (CP)—Wet weather in the early spring has taken its toll of fall wheat in Ontario, says the monthly crop report of the agriculture department.

In South Simcoe County, where winter wheat is usually the winter fairly well, wet spring weather killed out as much as 75 per cent in some fields. Over-all average for the county was a loss of about 25 percent, in the counties of Lambton, Middlesex, Elgin, Welland, Peel, Wellington, Huron, Northumberland, Dundas, Glengarry, Frontenac, Grenville and Leeds loss has been estimated at 15 per cent.

Agricultural officials figure the province as a whole will harvest about 85 percent of the seeded acreage.

General Motors Displays New Type Engine

Oshawa, May 19 — (CP) — General Motors research laboratories Friday night displayed the engine which it believes will power cars in the future, with about a one-third saving in gasoline consumption.

It uses fuel of a higher octane rating than is available today economically, and promises greater efficiency, types of fuels which petroleum refiners consider feasible in the future.

The engine was displayed to the Canadian section of the Society of Automotive Engineers, in session here.

Roof of Business Block Collapses In Morning Fire

Seventh Fire in City Since Last Saturday

Peterborough, Ont., May 19 — (CP) — Five men today were reported trapped in a blazing downtown business block after the roof collapsed. Four were regular firemen and one a volunteer fire-fighter.

The firemen were listed as George Reynolds, Orville Rome, Grover Deck and Pete Nicholson. The volunteer's name was given as Earl Spencely.

The men had been fighting the fire for several hours. The blaze started on the top floor of the four-storey block, which contained stores and offices, and spread to another four-storey building which adjoined it.

FOUR-STOREY BUILDING

The building to which it had spread has four storeys.

Three fire pumpers answered the alarm and firemen by 8 a.m. had 14 lines of hose fighting the blaze.

It was the seventh fire in Peterborough and district since last Saturday.

Cause of today's fire is unknown. There was no loss of damage is yet available, though some merchants placed their individual losses as high as $70,000.

Started Before 5:30 a.m.

The fire started some time before 5:30 a.m. in the building housing Ye Tea Shoppe, Lovell's Ladies Wear, Ed Riley's Men's Wear and the Agnew Surpass store at the southeast corner of Hunter and George Streets.

One hour after the building began to burn, flames leaped the firewall into the adjoining four-storey building.

Two firemen, assistant chief Virgil Carey and Robert Rose, were injured fighting the fire Carey was hurt when a hose got out of control, and Kennedy suffered a leg injury when he slipped climbing a ladder.

The back of the first building to start burning was only a shell by 7:30 a.m., and yellow smoke was swirling out from the basement and ground floor. At 8 a.m. flames in the other building were confined to the fourth floor.

Noticed by Constable

The blaze was first noticed by Constable Douglas Farthing who was on his way to work on an alley way when the rear window of the Agnew-Surpass store blew out. "The flames shot right to the wall," he said.

After turning in the alarm, the officer went to the front of the building and woke up two couples in the apartments on the fronts of the building.

"One old lady thought I was kidding," said the constable, "and she went right back to sleep. I shut what smoke I could off by waking her the second time."

DIED IN SLEEP

Newburgh, N.Y., May 19 (AP) —Frank Mcglynn, 84, lawyer and Civil War veteran, a success Abraham Lincoln in Drinkwater's 1860 campaign, died in 1919-33, died in his sleep Friday.

Govt. Curbs on Credit Curtail Sales of Cars Across Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

The federal government's hopes of cutting inflationary spending by tightening the screws on retail purchasing are having a marked effect on automobile sales.

Canadian Press survey shows that two months after the minimum down payment requirement was increased from 20 per cent to one-third and the borrowing period cut from 30 to 24 months, sales of new cars have dropped as much as 40 per cent below last year's level, and as much as 75 per cent in the case of used cars.

Car dealers aren't happy, of course, and a cross-country check is being made to get information on trade conditions that is expected to lead to demands that buyers be allowed longer-term credit.

"Business took a nosedive in the last three weeks," said one Toronto dealer, who claimed that prospective customers are staying away in crowds because of "staggering" payments required by new regulations and complained that a

Russia Warned To Steer Clear Of Oil Dispute

Washington, May 19. (AP)— clash-dumping warning to Russia to steer clear of the British-Iranian oil dispute, as an excuse for moving into Iran was seen today by diplomatic authorities in an American statement urging a friendly settlement of the controversy.

The statement was issued by the state department last night and supported "in sincere desire" on the part of the British to negotiate with the Iranians on all outstanding issues."

At the same time it called on both countries to "avoid intimidation and threats of unilateral action" as means of trying to force the settlement.

Further, the United States told Iran that American oil companies here told the government they would not be willing to operate the Iranian fields in the event the Iranians forced the British operating company out.

The statement concluded:

"The United States has repeatedly expressed its great interest in the continued independence and territorial integrity of Iran and considers that such firmness to give concrete evidence of this great interest."

Diplomatic authorities said Iran's independence and territorial integrity are not involved in the dispute between Iran and Britain but conceivably could be threatened by Russia if the situation developed to an extreme degree.

Has Treaty With Iran

The Soviet Union has a treaty with Iran under which they are supposed to have the right to send troops into the country in the event a third country does or sends troops to use Iran as a base against Russia.

The present situation which Washington now hopes will ease arise might develop if Iranian nationalization issue led to stoppage in the British oil industry there. In that event British economically would use force to protect their rights. Russia then might put their own forces into Iran on the basis that such action was warranted by the treaty arrangements.

I.O.D.E. to Sell Rights To Design of Royal Carpet

Toronto, May 19 (CP)—The um and elsewhere. They have never before been used in their present form.

The price the I. O. D. E. hopes to get for the copyright was not mentioned but it will be as high possible. At present the original carpet fund is some $13,000 below the $100,000 minimum which the I.O.D.E. was pledged to raise within a year of the carpet's purchase.

Donations Solicited

"We have solicited donations from prominent Canadians and we expect that I. O. D. E. chapters will send in contributions," said Mrs. Walton. She hoped the minimum would be met by the time the I. O. D. E. national annual meeting gets under way at Saskatoon May 28.

The carpet, which has travelled some 15,000 miles, has been seen in 42 centres by more than 300,000 Canadians.

"We've received hundreds of poems and songs about Queen Mary and the carpet," said Mrs. Walton. "It has helped tremendously the way people have queued, outside fire-halls, high school auditoriums—in all weather—to see this royal treasure."

It also will be shown outside Canada—to the Bahamas in February and Bermuda in April.

The famed piece of needlepoint is destined eventually to be displayed in the National Gallery in Ottawa. But before it goes there, the I. O. D. E. would like to see travel a few more miles.

"We would hope that it could be loaned to Britain to give the British people a chance to see it," said Mrs Walton. "And perhaps it could be taken for another visit to other parts of the commonwealth."

Made Slight Advance

South Korean forces counterattacked Saturday, against reds who had crossed the Pukhan River in the Chanjgong area and made a slight advance.

U.S. fifty air force planes flattened almost 550 casualties on the reds Saturday despite low-hanging clouds over the front.

The sky forces reported it killed or wounded 7,000 reds in the week ended Friday—largest toll for any one week since the outbreak of the war.

About 5,750 of the casualties were Chinese, Fifth air force officers said, "pooling their efforts, wherever they are, in behalf of China."

Rusk spoke at the 25th annual dinner of the China institute. Another speaker, ambassador John Foster Dulles, backed Rusk's statement that the American aid being used by the Chinese nationalists on Formosa and the guerrillas on the mainland.

New York, May 19—(AP)—Dean Rusk, assistant secretary of State hinted last night that the United States would aid the Chinese people in any revolt against their "colonial-Russian government."

The State Department's far eastern chief also pledged continued aid to the Chinese nationalists, but he warned that such American assistance in itself would not decide the future of China.

"The decision and effort are for the Chinese people," Rusk said, "pooling their efforts, wherever they are, in behalf of China."

Stories of Famous Hymns

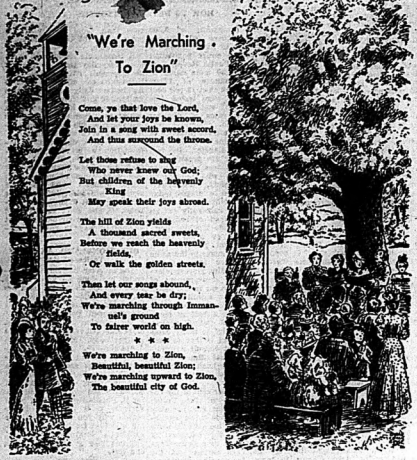
by HORACE B. POWELL



At the beginning of the eighteenth century, English Christians were still using metrical versions of the Psalms in their worship services. Hymns, as we know them today, had not been introduced in the churches.

But in 1707, Isaac Watts started his fellow-countrymen with the announcement of a new system of hymns for English Protestants. He wanted some evangelical hymns that would win men and women to Christ, so he decided to write some of his own. He introduced his "Hymns and Spiritual Songs" as a substitute for the Psalms then in common use. The song, "We're Marching to Zion," was one of the best in the new collection.

Pious church people of the day, shocked by Watts' attempt to introduce what they termed "uninspired hymns," refused to sing the new songs. For more than a quarter century many congregations would not permit their use in worship services. Some critics called them "Watts' Whims."

George Stephenson is credited with the following anecdote dealing with the use of "We're Marching to Zion," in his Methodist Hymn Book:

"In 1831, James Martin of Liverpool, a Wesleyan class leader of deep piety, was a passenger on the Rothesay Castle when she was wrecked between Liverpool and Beaumaris, when 33 persons perished and only 21 were saved. When he was floating on a plank from which several had been washed by the tempestuous waves, he was heard singing above the roar of the sea:

'The God that rules on high,
That all the earth surveys,
That rides upon the stormy sky,
And calms the roaring seas.'

"He was among those saved, and after his rescue he dedicated his life afresh to God."

The stanza mentioned in the anecdote was set off in brackets by Watts and was later revised slightly by John Wesley, famous Methodist preacher. It is one of several which, in addition to those cited above, were in the author's original manuscript.

Some Official Labels for Birds Have Touch of Poetry and Romance

Written for The Canadian Press
By PERCY GHENT

Don't let the scientific names used by high-brow ornithologists discourage you. There's a touch of romance and poetry in some official labels for our Canadian birds when you ponder them.

Take the nighthawk, for instance, whose "peent" call is familiar each spring and summer evenings. He has been tagged Chordeiles Minor, which freely translated means "little harp of evening." This because the "peent" call suggested all the strings of a harp sounded in one sweep of a finger — or the beak of a bird.

Evening grosbeaks, the birds with striking plumage of gold, jet and white who are spring visitors from northland forests, often in great flocks, have the scientific label Hesperiphona Vespertina.

When, more than a century ago they appeared in Eastern Canada from north and west, a man of science remembered his mythology and gave them the name of those legendary "daughters of the night" who dwelt at the western rim of the world and but rarely visited the haunts of men.

And the shy whip-poor-will—that's exactly what he says — in a call modulated in melodious tones has been burdened with the tag.

Antrostomus Vociferus, meaning "strong-voiced cave-mouth."

That bird's call seems loud and clear because it is usually heard in the stillness of the evening. Big, the mouth certainly is, but hardly cavernous. Besides, the whip-poor-will needs a large mouth to accommodate the large meals. There is no more efficient animated insect trap than poor Will, a true friend of farmer and fruit-grower.

St. Lawrence Ganets

Bonaventure Island, Anticosti Island, and several islets off the coast of Newfoundland, thanks to Canadian conservation measures, have become the sanctuary and stronghold of that snow-white bird, the gannet.

Islands and bird rocks in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, the greatest nest and breed and the granite heights there in spring and early summer look as if they were covered with feathery snow. True birds of the ocean they dive from great heights, at times, for their finny prey. Even their nests are made of seaweed.

Snake-Skin Trimming

When wandering in Canadian woods in summer from Southern Manitoba to the Maritimes, the crested flycatcher, easily identified by its aerial insect catching and its harsh but jaunty crest, is worth looking for.

This olive and brown bird, its call a loud "wheo-ee-ep," has a singular habit which has long intrigued ornithologists. Rarely is this flycatcher's nest found without the adornment of a cast snake skin. It is thought to be placed there to warn off predators, not by the sight of the skin, but because the snake odor is said to cling to the skin and radiates warning!

ITALY'S MANY PEOPLE

St. Gallen, Switzerland — (Special to Ontario Intelligencer) — If some day you turn to the classified ads and find an ad offering 45 million people for export, it will probably only be the Italian government trying to dispose of its surplus population. In bygone years, the excessive Italians were able to spill over into the New World, especially into Argentina and America. Those who stayed on, went south, and tried to make a living in Italian East Africa or Libya. This was a good thing in the eyes of the Italian government since it solved a major problem for them.

However, all good things must come to an end, and this one was no exception. Immigration regulations in North America became quite strict and the stream was reduced to a trickle. Came the war and they could not even go to Africa. Unfortunately they forgot to reckon on the British rule so that now De Gasperi has a real problem on his hands. Since they cannot emigrate, work must be found for them. The government has done a fairly good job of creating employment, but the number of unemployed still is in the millions.

Reconstruction work has helped out in quite a few cases, but there is a limit to this. In addition Italy cannot produce enough food to support the population so that large quantities must be imported. Marshall Plan aid is due to come to an end next year, which means that the government must be ready to take on the task of finding a replacement.

Communist Following

With unemployment comes unrest, and it is that the communists here have been able to find quite a following, especially among the poorly educated people, so that today the party has several million followers. Togliatti, the communist leader, never tires of telling these people how much better things are in Russia, and that Italy could be the same if they would only let him take over.

Some Italians, when discussing the problem of unemployment and emigration say, "Russia is supposed to be the largest country in the world. We would not be so crowded here if only there were several million communists would go there to live. There is land in plenty in Siberia."

Strange as it may seem, nobody appears to want to go there.

While they are talking about countries with acres of room for space, they add: "Canada has only a third as many people as we have, and is many times larger. Don't you want any more people?" I brought this question on myself, since I had been explaining to them how most Canadians rent or own their own home, have a front lawn, and a garden. To the average Italian city dweller such a life would be almost like paradise. The only grass he ever sees is in a park or in the city square. As for a garden, he just doesn't have one; there isn't any room.

Shipbuilding Important

Several industries are trying to employ as many workers as possible with the amount of work they have to do, and to keep them on, when work slackens a bit. One such industry is shipbuilding. Because Italy is attempting to build up her merchant fleet, there is a fair amount of building to be done. Partly because of the employment of many extra workers, building costs are much higher than in many countries.

A liner that the Italians are contemplating building would cost six million dollars less in British shipyards, but rather than put anyone out of work the government is willing to subsidize the shipyard to that amount.

They justify this action partly by pointing out the unemployment in Italy, and that the United States has done the very same thing for years. As far as Italy is concerned it is perhaps the best way out of the dilemma, but the question is, how long can it go on without too serious repercussions.

There are several results of unemployment that are not hard to discover here. Every one people begging in the city of Florence than I had in my travels up to that time. They were all over! One stood outside the American Express office, waiting for those rich Americans who change their travellers' cheques there. One step removed from begging are those who sell picture postcards or souvenirs before the famous churches or public buildings.

They have been unable to find work and have taken up this trade as a last resort. One wonders how they manage to live. They charge exorbitant prices for these things, but still tourists are usually willing to pay. Finally, there is the black market, whose operators are mostly boys and young men. They wait around railway stations or city squares, and are most anxious to sell a variety of things or exchange lire for foreign currency. All of which is strictly against the law.

In the meantime, does anybody know where we can send ten million Italians?

LET THEM DREAM

The goldfish era of the universities has passed. It was only a short while ago that the crass among college students persisted of gulping down as many goldfish as possible in a short time. No one ever proved that the finny little fellows were detrimental to indigestion, but neither were they proved of any value.

There were the usual objections from societies that discouraged cruelty to animals or fish. They claimed that it was no vacation trip for a goldfish to take a long ride down a dark gullet, never to swim in free water again. Their sponsors likened their end to a rush to the chain stores for more of the species. Business was good for the sellers of the tiny fish, even though they were not selling many bowls with the little golden swimmers.

Now, however, all is changed, happily. After the goldfish era came the veteran era, when such shenanigans were looked on as being childlike, and when studies came first in any student's mind. Things are beginning to loosen up again, because the latest mark of fame in United States colleges is the record on a teeter-totter, of all things. It is quite likely that part of the desire to ride the teeter-totter is due to a complete lack of experience with the equipment.

The students who are now engaging in these pranks probably never had a ride on a teeter-totter before. When they were children, the toys were all guns and planes, warships and other mock instruments of war. They are usually fighting men now, and if they deviate from the paths of sense in their attempts at amusement, they must be excused.

The latest record recognized by press and habitues of the teeter-totter is something more than 52 hours. That is a creditable amount of time spent on a hard board, although we understand that the contestants were allowed to dismount five minutes in every hour to straighten themselves around.

So far, the most of the fad seems to be confined to one state, but if it has any of the power of goldfish, students from coast to coast will soon be teetering and tottering. There will be three-mile processions of them as being worthy only of very small children, and will snort in disgust at grown men and women bouncing on the boards. Let them snort. If nothing else, the new craze is an indication that the cares of the younger generation are lightening lightly, and that they are happy in this unhappy world. Let them be in their pink fog, for soon they will wake to reality.

A DISTINCT HONOR

"Help Make Canada Strong" is a phrase that it is becoming more familiar to Canadians each day. And nowhere should its familiarity be felt more than in Belleville, where enlistment into the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment is being actively sought. This fact, we feel, should be brought home to both with the local totals being exceeded only by enlistments in metropolitan areas.

Behind the spirit that was always present and will always be a part of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment is a drive to fulfill Canada's part in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. With the two combined, a new force of Hasty Pees should go out from Belleville and district that will live up to the traditions of old.

These traditions were built up through years of hard fighting and gallant work in the field. They have been enumerated many times. The Hasty Pees are famous not only throughout the province and the nation, but their names is a byword in foreign lands. Their deeds will live in the hearts of countless people overrun by totalitarian regimes who were later freed by the regiment.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment is a proud force. It will pass its pride on to any who chooses to enlist in it. So great have been its ties with its men in the periods between hot wars, that when the call came again, many sacrificed their plans and hopes for a peaceful home life to re-enlist.

A distinct honor has been conferred on the Hasty Pees by the government of Canada. It has been picked as one of the regiments of the reserve force to go active. It will thus have a direct representation in the forces of the world that have banded together to curb aggression.

FLIGHTS OF FANCY

What next? Add to the long list of Soviet Russia's "firsts" the machine they have invented that will change medical procedure. The new equipment is called a "sewing machine," because of its powers to sew on amputated legs and arms, re-uniting blood vessels without interrupting the flow of blood.

Also, the machine will make possible the replacement of vital human organs. This time, it appears, the Russians have outdone themselves. They are not merely contented with claiming the progress of the western world as their own, but have resorted to flights of fancy to keep ahead of the times.

AMERICAN

The word "American" implies
Devotion to a trust;
Courage when dangers rise
In every action, just.

Belief in God and brotherhood
Is told in just a word.
All that it means is understood
Wherever it is heard.

Though some may utter it with jibes,
Men's noblest aims of all the years
"American" describes.

It means a love for liberty
That crush no tyrant can.
It is a glorious thing to be Truly American.

Letter to the Editor

Mayor and Council Commended for Work

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,

We, as a group of taxpayers, wish to commend on the recent protest of a few automobile dealers to the city council regarding the choice of a truck purchased for the city.

It was interesting to note the concern expressed by these gentlemen, for the unnecessary expenditure of the taxpayers' money which is most commendable, provided it is not a selfish concern for the majority of taxpayers.

Having followed the activities of the city council for years, we are under the impression that much thought and action has been exercised in an effort to curtail all needless expenditure.

Regarding the question of money saved in the purchase of a truck or any other piece of equipment, does it not follow that in saving to buy the least expensive? Often, the ultimate cost is increased by involved by the purchase of cheaper equipment.

Since the automobile dealers show such concern for the saving of taxpayers' money by voiving the small sum of $276.00, it would be interesting to know if these same concerned gentlemen made any criticism of the council three years ago who in a misguided moment purchased the County Home for the city, at a cost to the ratepayers of a few hundred thousand dollars.

Ah, no.

Spearing 'Lunge Costly for Two Toronto Men

Bradford, May 19 — (CP) Two Toronto men will pay $25 each, spearing fish out of season have paid more than $400 in fines, may lose their cars and won't, when they're allowed to keep their three fish, following the largest ever caught in Lake Simcoe.

Sid Doriand, county conservation officer, said the fish, a lake trout weighing 21,000 grams, was caught by Ross Benton. One of the three maskinonge caught weighed 42 pounds while the others weighed 38 and 35 pounds.

Bradford is 80 miles north of Toronto.

We can't quote a Chinese parable, but an appropriate proverb seems to suit in regard to the complaint of the automobile dealers, "It takes a different color whose ox is gored."

Incidentally, it is interesting to note that a few of the dealers protesting to council, three had sold a car to a city dignitary during year. The Department of Health purchased a car from Gourley Motors Limited. Motor protection purchased a car to the police department, and Rogers and Son sold a truck to the Utilities Department.

No council can remedy overnight conditions which have apparently existed in successive councils over a period of years, but we think Mayor Potter and the present council should be given credit for the excellent effort they are making.

England--Then and Now

By Fred Hart

(Article 1)

In the following articles I shall endeavor to convey my impressions of the British Isles -- as I see them. I am writing this article while my Mr. Chas. Trevertion, whose opinions will be valuable seeing that this is his first visit to these lands. My idea of things in general may take on a rather narrow vista. It is a stranger in a strange land who usually can view places and things in an interested manner which to the native Englishman is commonplace.

Our initial experience of bomb damage was at LeHavre at which port our ship docked for a few hours before our final and destination, Southampton. At this French port the docks had been blasted and although now partially rebuilt, the gaunt and blackened walls are mute evidence of the last war. At Southampton the bomb damage is terrific. Whole streets are still in ruins. At below and above Star, High Streets, the High Street, the main street, one-storey shops and their dark, dismal interiors were once the homes of imposing shops. Our taxi driver told us that on the night of one afternoon, when the city was crowded with folk from the surrounding districts, in for their weekly shopping, the German planes came over and bombed. He recalled the dead still lie deep down in the ruins. It was the worst bombraid in the war history and to this day the dead have not been enumerated.

Green and Pleasant Land

After leaving Southampton we decided to travel by car to Reading, the home of your cousin. It is about 80 miles north and the drive through the countryside was delightful. The weather was pleasant, indeed. Charlie marvelled at the lovely farms, the green fields, the hedges, the quaint thatched cottages, the flowers and shrubs. He said to Winchester, one of the oldest towns in Britain, is the Monastery of William Rufus. Abbot Hall lands the revenue from which feed the hungry and thirsty traveller to this day. Originally this monastery was a calling place for pilgrims going from Winchester to Canterbury. We did not stop at Hall, as our driver informed us that the age old question is still asked of the traveller who knocks on the door, "Is the inn in the main archway — "Brother dost thou thirst for ale?" Charlie said. A horn of beer and a crust of bread and cheese is handed the weary traveller with these words: "Drink and assuage your thirst and eat this bread." If the alms box is there, and if no recompense is made, all is well.

At Winchester, we did not intend to see the interior of an inn. We had lunch and then did curiosity. I agree. This particular hostelry dates back to the 16th century. Charlie said, "Never mind from the wood" ie. directly from the baked barrel. The old dame lady let us see the rituel of drawing a glass of ale. On top of the barrel is a small glass to overflowing, which did' not remind me of the usual Canadian practice. Before filling a glass for my friend, the lady tapped the spigot, rinsed it out for the second draught, and then bunged it in tightly, to the delight of the customer. It was a slow but sure process, typical of the spirit of the land.

Visit Basingstoke

At Basingstoke, which many Canadian soldiers of the first world war will remember because of the large military hospital there, we motored through narrow streets and on through Hartley Grey, the country seat of the Duke of Wellington which is another country gave the Iron Duke after the battle of Waterloo. I am thinking as the main entrance to the park is an imposing statue of Wellington, which originally stood in Hyde Park. Legend has it that it took all the horses in Wellington's army to drag it to the Utilities Department.

No council can remedy overnight conditions which have apparently existed in successive councils over a period of years, but we think Mayor Potter and the present council should be given credit for the excellent effort they are making.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

SIN IS SOCIAL

The great Wilberforce stands as one of the heroes in British history. He persuaded his nation to abolish slavery in the colonies. The British Emancipation Proclamation" was passed through parliament a few days before Wilberforce died.

Wilberforce took from the shoulders of England its guilty conscience. He did upon the men who wished to keep this position was that while sin is an individual matter, it is also a social matter. The evil our nation does is not the wickedness of this man or that—it is a sin that rests upon every citizen therein.

This appears to be the reason why Jesus, the sinless One, went to the hands of men in Britain was baptized. He never committed sin, yet the sin of the world rested upon Him just as it did upon the most flagrant sinner.

Today we are facing fearful atom bombs. Our country is crime ridden. Intemperance is the curse of the land. Our national policies are being advocated which threaten the vitality and prosperity of our people.

Don't go pointing your finger at anybody. Your own sins and mine just as much as they are anybody else's. We will suffer for them and be held to account for them just as surely as will the men who committed them.

Pleasant Hill. And then to Reading, my boyhood home.

There are quite a few folk in Belleville, and in Peterborough particularly, who I still from childhood days. They will be interested to know that if one were blindfolded and dropped into the neighborhood of Spencers Wood, about 2 miles from the town, none would smaller. The same old ground which to us kids looked so large, seems so small now. The old pointed brick wall surrounding the school is worn quite flat by the feet of countless little feet, for we were so fond of marbles that we wore a hole right around this wall, without failing. And the little old "buck shop" is still there, kept by the same people. I went in, a little old lady was behind the counter, and serving lollypops. With the remark, "I used to buy licorice sticks here when I was a kid," she said, "I'll bet you don't know who I am!"

Sees Birthplace

She looked closely at me through her glasses and said, "Yes, I do, you're Fred Hart." And I was the last person she knew all those many years ago. I went along the road and saw the house where I was born. I asked the lady's permission to go through part of the small, but pretty garden. The same old pear tree is still there, now in full blossom. I have the title deeds as the Yankees do) are carriers of the history of the house and property which have been inherited and may pass to offspring.

HOW TO DEVELOP DIABETES

In one community of 3,500 population where 40 persons were known to have diabetes a survey of the entire population by the U. S. Public Health Service revealed 30 more cases. In other community of 11,000 population more than 18 per cent of the people were found (from sugar in urine) and 50 hitherto unrecognized cases of diabetes were discovered.

Of course the mere presence of sugar in the urine does not necessarily mean diabetes. In fact traces of sugar are present in a good many instances, especially in young persons who indulge in considerable candy, cake, sweetened carbonated beverages, ice cream sundaes and other sweets, and in adults who habitually eat pies, instead of refined carbohydrate (breadstuffs made of white flour) potatoes, rice, dried beans, green corn and potatoes. But even a trace of sugar in the urine should be investigated by the physician, including glucose tolerance test and determination of the amount of sugar in the blood.

There are now a million cases of diabetes in America and probably a third or a half as many more cases not yet diagnosed. Many people who so many cases are undiscovered is that (a) the patients do not consult the physician, or if casual illness drives them to the physician the physical check-up is not a part of the routine.

Twenty-five per cent of the entire population of the United States of America and probably 10 per cent of the entire population of Canada too (the Canucks don't go in for exercises either) have the genes (as the Yankees do) are carriers of the hereditary factor in diabetes, which have been inherited and may pass to offspring.

In those who never been a case of diabetes in the family that I know of, and I am sure that still possible to develop diabetes through wrong living habits.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FINISHERS

The elect of this world are the finishers. The eyes of all are upon them. They are the interesting ones. No matter what the effort or contest, it is the finisher who furnish the news.

It is always interesting to attend the graduation of a class in our great institutions of learning. We look upon a group of young people who finished their course of study and await the larger test of practical life. Many a student fails by the wayside because of lack of courage to stay and to continue, so that it is inspiring to look upon a group that went ahead and finished what they set out to accomplish.

Too many people start a job and then grow cold in enthusiasm before it—leaving it for someone else to finish. I have been working on one when I was tempted to leave college before the end of the four years. But I stayed with it, went through and became discouraged. I called upon a friend of my father's for advice. He listened to me and then in statistics known to himself, told me to stick it out. Don't give up. There are too many who fail to complete what is, and with ragged edges to their characters. No. don't quit. Battle on until the world wants and needs what you have to offer, or until the "impossible." At any rate, be a finisher if it gives health to the soul.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Just about now, you will see the crows, jays and cowbirds doing their best skulking. Crows have young to feed, and about eight weeks of the year, the rowdiest and noisiest of birds. But in May, all of a sudden they grow furtive. They become sneaky and incredibly shy. Without a sound they will appear at that arrogant flight from tree-top to tree-top but cautious as it were, low down amid and among the trees and bushes, the crows and jays and cowbirds are going about looking for birds' nests to rob, for young birds to kill and eat. Now is the time to watch for them. Now is the time to be on the conspicuous perch in a dense tree. There he will sit, peering, peering, peering, with his head on one side, and his beak open. Then he will move cautiously through the trees, and perhaps in the daylight as an owl at midnight.

What he can't see, he can hear. For nestling birds almost invariably betray their presence by some small raucous or hissing utterance which the parent bird never will food for them. That buzzing the crow listens for. You will see him, with outstanding neck, move toward the vireo's or the robin's nest, and the little chickings for his own rabid and gaspe-mouthed young.

The jay plays the same game. That raspy, shouting fellow right now is mute with parental solicitude.

The cowbird is the champion sneak of them all. Long as any nest is still shielding, Mr. Cowbird will not show. But the big bird is on the make. He will walk and waddle about in the grass and shrubbery searching for a nest, and when he finds one, he will unload an egg. She is a dead-eye, that cowbird, disturbing, unlovely, the fallen woman's bastard.

FRANKFORD

Lions' Club Sponsors Fine Banquet

Frankford—They say that variety is the spice of life and Wednesday night's banquet at the Frankford Lions Club bore this out. The club sponsored something new, namely, a father and daughter banquet and to say the least it was most successful.

Lions and their daughters, or invited lassies sat down to a bountiful repast, prepared and served by the staff of the Trent Lock Dairy Bar.

A number of songs were enjoyed, with the girls taking part in several of these. A contest was conducted, being won by Miss Kathleen Bonnel. It was a great occasion for Kathleen, as Wednesday was her birthday. The prize, a giant piggy bank, was passed from table to table, and each Lion dropped in a coin. It was also the occasion of Lions Hugh Miller's and Cecil Allison's birthday. The girls sang "Happy Birthday" for the occasion. Miss Phyllis Sine thanked the Lions for their splendid evening, and the ladies sang "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

Lion Clifford Sine, Frankford's oldest member, and one of the oldest members in Canada, was presented with a certificate from the club, in tribute to the many fine services he has rendered both to his community and to his province. It was Lion Clifford Sine who proposed the acceptance of the trillium as the provincial flower of Ontario.

Glasses Provided

Lions were informed that final arrangements had been made, whereby a young girl in the Frankford School would be provided with badly needed glasses. Her family were not in a financial position to provide the girl with this necessity, so the Lions Club and the school board looked after the case.

Work is going ahead on the proposed dental clinic in the school. The Lions and the school board are awaiting hand in hand in this matter also.

President Arthur Duncan presented Reeve Spencer with a set of dishes for the community hall kitchen. Reeve Spencer thanked the club for their kindness, and stated that the town would be building suitable cupboards.

The nomination committee was called upon for their report. Their suggested slate of officers was presented by the club, and election of officers will take place at the next meeting on June 6th. The following officers were elected on acclamation: president, Bill Bezeski; secretary, Arnold Stickle; treasurer, Reg. Simmons.

For 1st vice president, the following Lions will stand election: Preston Chase, Bert Carter, Hugh Miller and Ed Loucks. Lion Jack Farley was nominated, but withdrew because of heavy duties in his lodge work.

For 2nd vice president, the following were nominated: Lions Russ Horg, Raymond Rowe and Ray Moran.

3rd vice president nominations are as follows: Marvin Dafoe, Harry Pearce and Jim Johns.

The Lion Tamer nominations were Bert Carter, Ernest Wallace and Clare Wallace. Lion Bert Carter withdrew in favor of his nomination for vice president.

For the all important duty of Tail Twister, nominations were for Oscar Lucy, Bob Bates, Ralph Bell and Sid Martin.

With Lion Arnold Stickle, the new secretary, this left a vacancy for a one year director of the club nominations for this position included Claude Moran, Jim Johns, Leonard Reid, Delbert Badgley, Ray Scott, Winston Cosgrove and Bob Cade. The nominations for one year director (two to be elected) were Art Southworth, Jack Adams, Adrian Babcock and Joe Adams.

Guest Speaker

With the closing of this portion of the meeting, Lion Preston Chase introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Ed Way, proprietor of Tweed Motor Sales. Mr. Way then proceeded to show a number of color slides taken on his recent trip along the Alaska highway. Assisted by Mrs. Way in showing the pictures, he gave a very interesting running commentary. At the conclusion of the pictures, Mr. Way answered questions in connection with the trip. He was heartily applauded by Lions and daughters. Lion Arnold Stickle thanked Mr. Way for his interesting and educational presentation, and presented him with a souvenir of the Frankford Club.

Lions then stood and sang "Good Night Ladies", following which the meeting adjourned.

Women's Activities

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The May meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. Stirling, was held at the home of Mrs. Earl Fox, with a good attendance. Mrs. L. Rodgers, president, presided over the first part of the meeting and welcomed the members and visitors. Mrs. Ken Ray read the scripture lesson from Luke 10. This lesson plainly tells that any one black or white, who is in need is a neighbor. Love asks no question as to class or color.

Mrs. W. L. Munro read two letters of correspondence, one from the head office of the Bible Society, telling of the urgent needs of this great work the other from the presbyterial rally which is to be held in Foxboro, on June 13. All members were urged to be present.

Mrs. Rodgers gave a warm welcome on behalf of the members, to Mrs. Thomas Spry. The presence of the older members gives new life to a meeting.

Mrs. W. E. V. Walker gave a splendid review of the Presbytery at Orangeville, in April. Miss Freida Matthews was one of the speakers at this meeting.

A special offering was taken for the month of May.

Mrs. W. L. Munro conducted the second part of the meeting and read an account of an experience of Miss Margaret Kennedy. The true meaning of the word 'thankoffering' and its results was clearly set forth by this account. A piano solo by Mrs. R. Williams was much enjoyed.

Mrs. Blanche Reid had the topic. The Presbyterian church in Canada has the responsibility of two fields in India—the Bihia Field and the Jhansi Field. In these fields the message is proclaimed through the educational, medical and evangelistic work. In the Jhansi Field the Helen Macdonald Memorial school with its membership of 200 girls is a great challenge for the support of its cause.

Life Membership Certificate

At this point Mrs. R. A. Hemmiston tactfully performed a pleasant duty the presentation of a life membership certificate to Mrs. Clayton Tummon. This was the generous gift of Mrs. Johnson.

In making the presentation, Mrs. Hermiston spoke of Mrs. Johnson's (Mrs. A. Hammond), foresight, generosity and extreme loyalty to the Society and its work. Mrs. Tummon too had played the part of the good neighbor and good friend in the past and so had earned this great reward. This indeed should always late the interest in Missions, so that members may learn to give happily and well.

Mrs. Tummon, although taken by surprise, expressed her gratitude to Mrs. Johansen, not only for what she done done now, but for what she had done all through the years. A true friend can be a precious gem.

Mrs. Fox, Mrs. Munro and Mrs. C. Devolin served refreshments and a real feeling of fellowship followed.

Mrs. C. Tummon expressed the thanks of the members to Mrs. Fox and her committee, for this fine effort.

LADIES AID SOCIETY

The regular May meeting of the St. Andrew's Ladies Aid Society, Campbellford, was held on Thursday afternoon in the church parlors with Mrs. Cowel, the president, in charge.

The meeting opened in the usual manner with a good attendance of members. The scripture, Matt. 9: 1-26 was read by Mrs. Clara MacNaughton. Each ward convener reported the activities of her group during the past month.

A vocal duet by Mrs. Jack McCredie and Mrs. Reg. Hay was well rendered and a reading by Mrs. Frank Little was much enjoyed by all.

The business consisted of making plans and arrangements for an anniversary garden party to be held on the Manse lawn on June 18th.

The next regular meeting will be held on June 6th, when the ladies of Ward 1 will have charge of the program.

The ladies of Ward 4, under the convenership of Mrs. Edwin Wynn, prepared the program and served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

ISLAND DOWRY

The island of Bombay was part of the dowry of the Infanta of Portugal (1662) and was made over to the East India Company

Gifts Commemorate 25 Years of Service

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Progressive Conservative Club was held in the Engineers' Hall, Pine Street Monday evening.

After the business part of the meeting conducted by Mrs. Tuggnette, president, Miss Helen Sulman took charge of the program. As it was so near Mother's Day she paid tribute to mothers. Mrs. Lee also gave a reading on "Mother".

At this time Miss Sulman introduced Miss Shirley Herman who gave a travelogue of her recent trip to the United Nations and New York. Miss Herman was one of the students from the Collegiate to make the trip during the Easter holidays.

Miss Sulman gave a paper on the life of the Hon. George Challis and Mrs. Rollins a paper on "the life of the Hon. G. H. Doucette."

Miss Warham and Mrs. Adams were called forward and each presented with a small gift in appreciation of untiring efforts and service in the club during the past 25 years. Each made suitable replies and said it had always been a pleasure on their part.

A social time was enjoyed and refreshments served by the ladies of Ketchason ward.

SOME FOOD TRICKS

Where two or more women are gathered together, those housekeeping shortcuts are bound to come to light. Latest time-saver we've picked up over the tea cups is a new way to shorten the time of preparing scalloped potatoes. Instead of heating yourself into a lather making a white cream sauce, all you have to do is to pour a can of celery soup through the potatoes, then add enough milk to fill the pan about two-thirds and bingo, your potatoes are ready to slip into the oven . . . The celery soup gives the potatoes a good flavor which can also be bolstered with a small quantity of chopped fresh celery if you have some odd tops kicking around the crisper.

Cream of chicken soup is good too in the potatoes and saves making a sauce. Speaking of cream sauces, they say there is a new prepared cream sauce back in the stores which takes only a jiffy to mix. Many women will certainly be glad of any way out of stirring cream sauces for it is one of those tedious cooking nuisances everyone deplores.

If somebody should walk up to your doorstep one of these days and leave you a chicken with its feathers on, don't stamp your feet and say because you have to pluck the feathers out in a sfiff of boiling water. All you have to do is to turn up your electric iron and pass the iron over the feathers. They will right off in this way as easily as running your hand over a downy pillow. No harm is done to the flesh or either, so that you can whisk them together and make a pillow for yourself.

Pineapples are in the stores again. Some women refuse to buy a pineapple because of the difficulty in peeling it. And it is an ordeal to cut up a pineapple. If you men don't think so, try a whole one sometime, and don't waste any of the luscious golden fruit.

Now it seems there is a way to serve fresh pineapple without all that drudgery of cutting and peeling. What you do is to pry a fork around each of the individual sections in the pineapple, pulling each piece right out from the centre. Then you take the fragment of pineapple in your hand dip it in a little sugar and eat it out of hand off the skin. Children love to eat pineapple this way, and it makes a bigger mealtime thrill than the plunking of a whole pineapple on the table and mother prying out the first piece ceremoniously with everybody forking in as the fruit moves round the table.

How to Extinguish Fire

Most summer cottages and houses too for that matter, have small fire extinguishers hanging within reach in case of an emergency. Only thing is, very few people have ever had any practice using the extinguishers. Should a sudden fire blaze up the curtains in a house, there isn't much time to read instructions printed on the outside of the extinguisher. Besides, if you are able to wrench the top off the extinguisher, there is still the problem of knowing how to scatter the powder or squirt the liquid.

Best way is to shoot the contents of the extinguisher under the fire if you can, because it is the rising fumes which smother the flames. Sprinkling powder or liquid directly into the blaze is apt to spread the flames.

It would be a good idea if the local fire department in the municipalities either put on demonstrations of home fire-fighting equipment, or sent a person from door to door showing people how best to use their home extinguisher.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Marry an American

The letter was very brief. It came from a lonely girl who had been wounded in the fighting in Korea. Now in an army hospital somewhere in Michigan, he has plenty of time to think.

What is most on his mind is, not the tragic nature of the wounds he has sustained, wounds that will change his life, but the necessity of making a bitterly difficult adjustment to life—to learning, in fact, how to live all over again. The trouble is that, beside the pain of those wounds, is keeping him awake through the long, lonely nights, is this:

"Will my girl stop loving me because I'm going to be like this all the rest of my life?"

There is no beating about the bush in his letter. No self-pity or play for sympathy. All his aching anxiety is compressed into a few tense and poignant sentences:

"I am a soldier who was wounded in Korea.

"I am deeply in love with a very charming girl and she is in love with me. Before I was wounded in a way that can never be fully cured, I am no longer.

"My girl still wants to get married but I am afraid. I am afraid that if I marry her, she will soon get tired of caring for a cripple and want a divorce. That is something I couldn't stand. She keeps telling me that she would always stick with me but I am afraid to take the chance. Do you think I should?"

Well, it seems to me that there are three things for this young man to consider before he tries to decide whether or not "to take the chance."

Tell Problem to Doctor

First and definitely foremost, he should take the problem up with his doctor. He should go into every angle of his condition with him and get clear and specific answers on what he can expect of himself in the future—and what others, particularly the girl he might marry, can expect of him.

Just how helpless will his handicap make him? How much will he be able to do for himself? To what extent will he have to depend on those close to him? Can he expect to earn a living, either in whole or in part, and work regularly? All such questions, and many others, should be, so far as humanly possible, be thoroughly explored in advance, so that this young man will be in a position to discuss them intelligently with his fiancee.

Naturally, each case is different and the capabilities of each individual who has been wounded in any such way must vary according to the extent and exact nature of his injuries. But only the young man should remember is that tremendous progress has been made in recent years along the line of enabling amputees, paraplegics and other handicapped people to live reasonably normal lives, including the ability to support themselves and their families. Special devices and appliances have been invented for their use by which most of them can take care of practically all their own personal needs, as well as share in family or group chores and activities. A few weeks ago, an article in the newspapers told of a group of amputees, permanently confined to wheel chairs, who banded together to start their own industrial plant for making supplies needed by the group and for the current war effort. Useless cripples? Helpless and dependent on others? Not they!

Liberal Allowances

From the money standpoint alone, of course, men in the condition of this young soldier receive allowances from the government so liberal that they are hardly to be much, if any, economic strain. But the feeling of being able to lead a life of his own, and one who goes out to work for his family, and with a normal unit of self-respectability, is fully as important as the purely economic consideration. And this is one thing increasingly met by modern scientific research and achievement.

Consult Doctors

Either before or after their discussion the girl herself should have a talk with the doctor, for the purpose of asking any other questions that might be in her mind.

This business of getting the actual facts of the case lined up is a big one, as I said, the first thing to be done. The second is something that I am reluctant to think about, and has to do with the matter of "taking a chance" on marriage.

What he should remind himself on this point is that the girl who married is taking a chance on the future. For no matter how sane, physically, mentally, or economically a man or woman may be, marriage is essentially a gamble, and the well person is no more guaranteed against marital disaster than the disabled one. The success of a marriage depends on the mutual emotional and spiritual attitude with which it is approached than on any physical handicap. If the young man has carefully analyzed both his own and his fiancee's emotional and spiritual equipment and is reasonably certain that they will prove adequate let him take heart.

And finally he should not try to "do" for the girl's mind for her. In the last analysis, she must be the one to decide whether or not she wants to marry him. That is her right and her privilege, and he should not take it away from her by any announcement that he, himself, is making a self-sacrificing and heroic his motives, that he will not permit her to become his wife.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHAM

A wonderful "little family" plans double wedding for two sisters

Dear Mrs. Beecham:

Ever since our mother and father died, my brother Robert (forty-one, and a wonderful brother), my two younger sisters (now in their early twenties), and I have lived in an apartment together. We are devoted to one another, and are happily proud of our "little family." Now the two younger sisters are going to be married, and their prospective grooms expect to be called into the service rather soon.

Since we are all active workers in our church, we would like to have a church wedding, a double wedding, with the sisters dressed "real brides". We figure that they can have a lovely and dignified church wedding with a minimum of expense—a dear friend of the family is offering to sing; we'll have the church organist; and a few white flowers on the altar. That one thing our sisters have set their hearts on is engraved invitations. Would these be too formal? If so, who would sponsor them? And how should they be worded?

Beatrice L.

2. Although we are featuring the church wedding, inviting the family, and high relatives and friends, we are having a very small reception in our apartment, inviting only the members of the immediate families and the attendants. Is this proper? If so, would I be hostess, receiving the guests with the brides and grooms?

Beatrice L.

1. Blessings on your "little family"! Indeed, and indeed, I envy you all for having so beautifully and gallantly kept your family and a close and devoted unit! I'm heartily enthusiastic about every plan you've made.

Since your sisters are to be dressed as "real brides" engraved invitations are very appropriate. Your brother would sponsor them, and they would, read:

Mr. John Paul Allen
requests honor of your presence at the marriage of his sisters
Florence Maria
to
Mr. Robert Baker Smith and Helena Grace
to
Mr. Richard Wells Browne on Tuesday, the ninth of June at four o'clock
Faith Church
Hometown, New Jersey

2. Your small reception in your apartment is a perfect plan, too. You would be the hostess, either standing with the brides and grooms, and the brides' attendants, or at the door of the living-room, to greet the arriving guests. Perhaps the best plan would be for you, as hostess, to stand in the entrance to the living-room, and invite the mothers of the bride and groom to stand with you. then have the receiving-line opposite your hostess—the brides, grooms, brides' attendants.

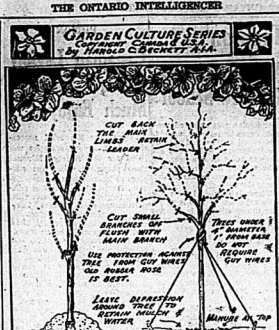
LARGE SUN SPOT

Washington, May 19 (AP)— A large sunspot in the sun's corona a severe atmospheric disturbance affecting United States communications during the next three days, the National Bureau of Standards warned Thursday. The civil aeronautics administration, the army and navy, commercial radio stations and other agencies were notified by the bureau of the expected magnetic storm.



PLANTING AND PRUNING OF FRUIT AND SHADE TREES

Proper planting, pruning and watering are essential to the success of nursery stock. The ground should be ploughed or spaded deeply. Holes should be large enough so the roots can be spread out without crowding. Soil should be packed firmly around roots so that there are no air spaces and so roots will be in tight contact with the soil.

Pruning: Part of the top of the bush or tree must be pruned at time of planting so as to reduce the amount of top the roots have to supply with water while they are getting established. See illustrations.

Watering: Surface sprinkling does very little good. Take nozzle off hose and let water run around plant until ground is thoroughly soaked for a depth of 12 to 18 inches. Never let ground dry out.

Mulch: A mulch of hay, leaves, grass clippings, etc., around the base of the plant is very beneficial and helps to conserve moisture.

Fertiliser: Should be placed on top of the ground and worked in with a hoe. Never put fertilizer in hole, for if it comes in contact with the roots, it will burn and kill them.

German kuchen is a coffee cake made from slightly sweetened yeast dough. Kuchen is the mainstays unsaten, if properly made. Dough is of the soft type which cannot be kneaded or rolled, but must be patted out with the fingertips. A little shortening should be spread on the fingers to keep the dough from sticking.

To save time during the rising period, the dough may be placed over a deep pot containing a few inches of hot or steaming water. The pan containing the dough should not touch the water, or the dough will begin to cook.

Frosted Coffee Cake

1 pkg. dry granular yeast
1-4 cup warm water
1 cup milk
1-4 cup butter or vegetable fat
1 teaspoon salt
1-4 cup sugar
1 egg yolk beaten slightly
2 1-2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1-4 teaspoon ground mace
1-2 cup dried currants or raisins
1 egg white
1 cup confectioners' sugar
1-2 teaspoon vanilla

Soak yeast in 1-4 cup warm water following directions on envelope.

Heat milk until bubbles appear around edge of saucepan. Remove from heat. Pour into mixing bowl.

Add the butter, salt and sugar. Stir until butter melts. Add the egg yolk. Mix well.

Gradually add 1 1-4 cups flour, beating well. Add mace. Cover the bowl. Place the mixture in a warm place, 80 degrees (for over a pan containing hot water) until mixture doubles in bulk.

Punch down. Gradually add the balance of the flour (1 1-4 cups) beating well. Add currants.

Turn mixture into 2 eight-inch cake pans using fingertips to spread evenly.

Cover pans, and again place in warm place until dough is doubled in bulk.

Bake in a moderate oven 375 degrees until brown, 25 to 30 minutes.

Beat egg white until stiff. Gradually stir in powdered sugar. Add 1 tablespoon water to this frosting for spreading. Add vanilla.

Spread frosting over cake when cool.

Movie starlets in training

In Hollywood you see beautiful girls all over the place. Were they born lovely? Nature gave them pleasing features and nice figures, but many of their graces had to be cultivated. In training for the movies, they were obliged to go through the Pulchritude hopper. They had to work, and no fooling. They had to learn how to walk, stand and sit, also what to do with their hands and their feet.

Charm schools are bobbing up all over the country, not for the purpose of training fledglings for professional life, but to help along any girl who feels that she is not making the grade. Teachers in these schools say that they are not only obliged to get down to

Greece, Turkey May be Included In Atlantic Pact

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

There has been considerable opposition by Britain, Norway and Denmark to American proposals to include Greece and Turkey in the North Atlantic Treaty organization—but this opposition seems to be subsiding.

Whether it will subside to the point of full agreement—actual inclusion of the two countries in the final pact—is quite another question. That something will be done to bring them into the partnership of western defence arrangements seem most likely.

The President States itself originally was opposed to inclusion of those states, but changed her mind. Indications published suggest that this would give the Atlantic Pact countries a strong fighting force.

No Reciprocal Defense

Turkey and Greece had desired to be included—but some members of the pact objected. Britain's desire to consolidate the Commonwealth by stretching it that far. While they would, of course, help Turkey and Greece and Turkey, they didn't want to pledge reciprocal defense of the Near East peninsula. And naturally the Greeks and Turks wanted protection.

Washington's main consideration in changing its mind, as I understand it, involves about two points:

1. The psychological aspect that making Turkey and Greece members of the pact would give them a special status which would consequently would threaten the bonds of unity with the western powers.

2. The more-practical consideration that the United States would be obliged to supply involved lease in that part of the world, if two-way treaty under which Greece and Turkey would receive reciprocal protection.

The way it looks from here. It will be a good bargain if the western powers bring Greece and Turkey into the Atlantic Pact. Of all that talk, to make some other arrangement which will bring their nations into the United States more like those of actual pact members. Both these famous fields of warfare have been famous through the centuries for their fighting men.

Town Annexes Five Acres for Houses, Plans Buying More for New School

Trenton (Special) — A special meeting of council last night decided to annex five acres of the Fred Hendrick farm on the eastern limits of the town south of highway No. 2. The property has been designated as a low cost project embodying a 25-house project of higher priced homes.

Council was unanimous in stipulating that title land would be turned as farm property while no buildings were erected on the site.

At the present time the property is known as lot four, concession "A" of the township of Murray.

Earlier this week, a delegation including councillor Don Sutherland, town clerk O. W. Larry and Fred Hendrick appeared before the Municipal Board in Toronto with the plan. They were advised that the project would be better accepted providing seven homes were completed and ready for occupancy.

The delegation returned with the feeling that the Municipal Board would approve of the new annexation by 50 per cent if the proposed project was underway. It was understood they anticipated approval of the by-law dealing with the services to the development at their meeting in connection of the sub-division had ebbled by the rulings of the Municipal Board.

Under the annexation, the town of Trenton will pay the township of Murray $1,000 per year for 10 years.

No Price Announced

No price has been announced on the selling price of the lots, but a figure of $1,000 for each parcel was mentioned. Homes to be built would range above the $15,000 class.

A committee of council and the Board of Education including Councillor Fred Byers, O. W. Larry, Mike Andison, Grant Rathbun and town solicitor R. H. Piper appointed to study the building site. Mr. Little was agreeable to sell for a reasonable figure and while the committee was on the site, a location adjoining was reviewed and found to be even more suitable. The better location would be on the corner of Trenton Road and King Street and involve some eight to 10 acres. Considerable sewage disposal problems were assessed and a suggestion was made to bring in the disposal plant to the site. Advantages of both pieces of land under consideration will be studied and council engaging an engineer to estimate costs of preparing each site.

Plan for 1953

The Little property, now farm land in the township of Murray, would automatically have to be annexed in the future before the proposed $1,000,000 educational centre could be started. Education officials plan to begin building of the vocational school in 1953.

Councillor Ross Burtt, chairman of street and sidewalks, is considering the purchase of a roller to add to the town's present road building equipment.

Council was advised that no complaints had been received since Ross Willman took over the job of garbage collection, and it was announced that many complaints had been forthcoming with the respect to the hiring of school guards now stationed at dangerous crossings on both the east and west sides of the town.

The Belleville Ontario Intelligencer was especially commended for its coverage given the council meetings.

Under the land sales by-law, the following business was transacted. Bid of $35, for a lot on the west side of Leonard Street by Walter Saries, was accepted providing regulations were upheld. Saries asked if he could live in house trailer on the lot until his home was build in one year. He will be advised that he can, providing he adheres to the trailer camp by-law.

Wilfred Jeffery will be notified that the sum of $200 is needed for the location he is seeking on the north side of Wilkins Street.

Three to Utilities

Three lots at $50 each were sold to the Trenton Public Utilities Commission. They annex the commission's transformer site on the corner of Marmora and Victoria Streets.

A lot on the south side of Sutcliffe Boulevard was disposed of to John Sves and John Gerald Svec for $200. George Davis will pay $25 for a lot on the west side of Leopold Street.

Council decided against selling Ernest McDonald two lots for $25 each because he proposed part payment and the town's policy is cash.

Separate School Lay Teachers Want Increase

Elmer Duggan, school board chairman, said the board thought $2,500 a year wasn't a bad salary. He said separate—school supporters would switch support to public schools if the separate-school tax rate was raised any higher.

Keeper's Death May be Attributed To Telegram

Victoria, May 19 — (CP) — A misunderstood telegram may have been the cause of death of a lighthouse keeper on lonely Egg Island in Queen Charlotte Sound about 300 miles northwest of here.

A Department of Transport vessel left for the island yesterday with R.C.M.P. officers to investigate the death of Lawrence Dupuis, found shot at his isolated station. Police believe Dupuis committed suicide.

The death was reported to the Department of Transport by a woman, the only other adult on the island.

At Victoria, Stanley Rife said his wife, Elizabeth, returned a few days ago to the lighthouse, where, he said, they lived with Dupuis for about two years. She had taken their 15-year-old son with her.

Rife said divorce proceedings were started recently.

He said he received a telegram yesterday from his wife, saying she found Dupuis dead on her return.

Mrs. Rife said in her telegram Dupuis had shot himself after apparently misinterpreting a few days ago to the lighthouse, a telegram, the husband said.

Rife said he had sent a telegram by his son saying: "I must have a picture of you. Received your letter. Letter. Good luck."

He added that apparently Dupuis got the impression that Rife was saying he had received a letter from his wife, instead of his son, and had concluded that his wife and son were returning to her husband.

Mr. Scott introduced Mr. Macklam, who in turn introduced Mr. Doherty and Miss Arkles. After the adjudication, Miss Arkles, she sang delightfully "Just One Kiss".

Mrs. Phillips, president of the Teachers' Association, introduced the teachers, Mrs. Weese and Mrs. Reilly.

Little Barbara Welsh, of S.S. 9, presented Mrs. Reilly with a table reflector and a bowl of flowers.

The front of the hall was tastefully decorated with ferns and pots of hydrangeas.

Wellington on the Lake

Wellington—This lakeside town is gradually assuming the appearance of spring. Gardens are being cultivated, daffodils are in bloom and foliage is developing on the trees. Young robins in their nest on the verandah are opening mouths wide for food. Flickers and purple martins have returned to their accustomed haunts. Women are employed transplanting in the greenhouses, preparing for a busy canning season. A general cleaning-up is noticed in both homes and gardens.

Mother's Day

Mother's Day was observed in the United Church with a large congregation. A baptismal service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. A. Poulter, followed by an impressive sermon stressing the sanctities of the mother and the home. A choir of many women's voices added to the inspiring service, which concluded with a vocal solo by Mrs. Poulter.

Mrs. Effie Phillips and Mrs. Fleming were delegates to the W.C.T.U. convention at Newburgh, and Mrs. Phillips represented Wellington at the Women's Institute Convention at Guelph, where the year's report book compiled by her received honorable mention.

Several Wellington friends attended the funeral of the late Mr. Hillier, on Sunday afternoon. Rev. Hazal Dean Heaven conducted the service. The bereaved family have the sympathy of a host of friends.

Wellington was visited at the weekend, by a large number of holiday people from the U.S. and from many Ontario cities. They enjoyed fishing. A large number of tourists is expected.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jackson, Bloomfield, and Mrs. L. Vanderwater, Mrs. Sunday, Misses Mr. and Mrs. Craig Platt, Maple Ave.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Palmer and children, were Sunday guests of Mrs. C. Vanderwater.

A number of Wellington residents attended the banquet of the Bowling players at Rickarton Hall, Bloomfield, Monday evening. A program followed the supper both being much enjoyed. Among those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carley, Mrs. Lilian Anderson, Miss M. Blakely, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dick.

Wellington W.I. held a pot-luck supper in the town hall on Monday night.

Mrs. Alberta Smith will spend some days this week with friends in Bloomfield.

Unwashed Male Adults Favorite Skeeter Fodder

London, May 19 (Reuters)—Mosquitoes prefer to bite adult males, and they like them best unwashed, asleep and wearing rough clothes.

These are deductions from experiments made in mosquito habits and reviewed today in the British Medical Journal.

Doctors experimenting in Ontario and Labrador to find a repellent, discovered that an artificially-warmed robot dressed in rough human garments drew most mosquitoes.

When they arranged the robot to "breathe" carbon dioxide from its mouth, the mosquitoes attacked with zest.

COOPERS SEPARATE

Hollywood, May 18.—(AP)—Mrs. Gary Cooper's lawyer said Wednesday night that she and the actor have been separated. He said he did not know whether Mrs. Cooper plans to seek a divorce, but negotiations for a property settlement are under way. The Coopers have been married 17 years.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"YOU'RE SO RIGHT, DAISY!

Alderman Don Thomas [illegible] has been around baseball since Papa Eddie gave him a [illegible] shillaiagh to chew on when his baby teeth were [illegible]ed, in this corner's opinion, a very pertinent question about baseball teams in general and a Belleville squad in particular at the Redmen Baseball Club meeting the other glooming.

Quoth the part-time alderman; part-time chairman of public works; part-time umpire; part-time dispenser of worms and frogs and much-sought-after-bloke on various pay-days "Give this town a winning team and you'll get the support. In other words, to have a winning team, you have to have players, and the right kind of players."

Went on the alderman, who also rates the title of chairman of the Arena Commission, speaking to a discussion on the question of imports: "Bring in all the players you can get. If they don't fill the bill, ship 'em home and get others. You don't have to retain 'em because you bring 'em here. Imports, if you hit the right spots are a dime a dozen, and good ones at that — players, not dimes."

Methinks the man of many positions had a point there, Belleville, like any other city, likes a winner whether it's a horse, a chosen, a baseball team, a hockey squad or trained fleas. That's why the Redmen drew the size of a dandy last year, for when the Redmen hockey squad neared to some sort of heights to reach its group semi-finals.

It's no secret that the Belleville Baseball Association is dangling for the services of imports for its Redmen COBL squad. That is not news even to Picton, Batawa, Kingston, Smith's Falls or Brockville. In fact if you step more close to the ground in any of these centres you would probably discover more about What's going on along the banks of the Moira, than if you peep-holed the prexy's boudoir while a sub - rosa confab was in session.

And who cares! All squads in this select bevy of baseball centres are or have been ivory hunting. And they've reached to the half-dozen mark of baseballers in a few of the prize tanks, so to speak. So why beat around the bush.

That's all right for the powerful Viadust League which includes Oshawa and Peterborough. Marco Perdue, the Kawartha scrivener said in his column the other day that Eddie Whitehill, or whoever is the manager of the Petes senior squad this year, was loath to give out information as to the identity of the address boys for fear the opposition might get "hep" to what's going on, or words to that effect. Who is kidding who? Oshawa is making no bones about their Eastern baseball boarders.

And so the estimable Alderman Thomas also pointed out, "apart think that Kingston and the rest of the crew won't plug-up what they can to their squads with new talent. So why should we be ashamed about the matter."

So, let 'em, ask. And from what we have learned since, if the Redmen have any ideas of winning the COBL title this year, they'll have to have a team just a mite better than the rest, and if they are to do that they had better forget any qualms about hiring the right imports. There's no room for sentiment in baseball especially if you're gunning for a title, or at least a team that is equal to the rest of the squads.

So go get 'em, boys. Give the fans a fighting squad, one that votes for there's a little more than a fair share of games, and they will back you up. And if they don't, you've had it.

SOFTBALL MEETING, IMPORTANT!

Monday night at the city council chambers, the Belleville Commercial Softball League is holding an important meeting starting at 7:30. President Don Lee requests that all members of the executive, team managers and coaches to present as much important business has to be transacted before the schedule opens.

AFTER ALL, IT'S BASEBALL!

Jackie Robinson is off to a great start in the batter's box with the Dodgers and like all hitters with inflated averages, he is having to hit the dirt occasionally to escape being nicked by the inside pitch.

In a recent game between the Dodgers and Giants, Sal Maglie "knocked" Robinson down and Jackie employed the traditional comeback of the annoyed hitter. He bunted down the first base line, making Maglie cover the bag, then ran into him.

Immediately in such brushes, fans and critics begin thinking of the negro versus white. But Robinson's race has nothing whatever to do with it and should not be emphasized. Jackie simply is one of the game's better hitters, an enemy of all National League pitchers who are called upon to work against the Brooklyn club.

Remember the trouble Lou Boudreau had with rival pitchers in 1948, when he was having his greatest year? They were always knocking him down and it was hard for Lou to take. But he took it. So can Robinson.

The better hitters should expect to be brushed back from the plate and most of them do.

Meanwhile, Robinson will continue to spark the Dodgers' attack, getting up out of the batter's box to challenge Stan Musial and anybody else aiming at the 1951 batting crown.

Preacher Roe, Dodgers' Meal Ticket Pulls Brooklyn Out Of Losing Streak in National

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Preacher Roe, the lean Brooklyn lefty, is no Carl Hubble, but, like the immortal New York pitcher, he's "mud" in Roe, who seems to improve with age, is Brooklyn's stopper. The hilly-billy from Arkansas usually puts the skids on a Dodger losing streak.

The Dodgers entered St. Louis last night dragging their tails. They had absorbed two bad beatings from the Cubs in Chicago and another loss would have knocked them out of the undisputed lead in the National League.

Old Preach hailed them out. Using all of his cunning, Roe pitched the Dodgers to a 6-3 victory over the Cards before 9,014 fans, largest home attendance of the season for the Redbirds.

Roe surrendered seven hits including a two run homer by Pesnut Lavagetto. The run was the ninth yielded by Roe this season but as the "cold bag of bones" said recently, "I don't care how many home run balls I throw just as long as I win." The victory was Roe's fifth without a loss.

The triumph kept the Dodgers one game in front of the tightly-bunched National League. Chicago Cubs replaced Pittsburgh in the runner-up slot by trouncing Philadelphia Phils 19-9 while the Pirates dropped a 12-5 decision to Boston Braves. The Pirates dropped to fourth and the Braves took over third.

Found Four Homers

Chicago pounded four Philadelphia pitchers for 17 hits and scored all but one of its runs in the first four innings. Ransom Jackson, Hank Sauer and Jack Cusick slammed home runs. Jackson has banged out eight hits, including four homers, in his last 14 trips. Cusick legged out an inside-the-park homer with the bases loaded.

The Braves scored seven runs in the second inning under the lights at Pittsburgh as Max Surkont breezed to his fifth victory. Surkont let up in the eighth and threw home-run balls to Ralph Kiner and Wally Westlake. Walker Cooper, with a home run, triple and three singles was the big man for the Braves. Mel Queen making his second start in as many days, was the loser.

Cincinnati's Ken Raffensberger held the Giants for five innings but lost his stuff in the sixth as the New Yorkers shoved four runs across the plate and went on to post a 4-3 triumph. The squeaker ended a five-game winning streak. Sal Maglie was the winner.

Yankees Beaten

Chicago White Sox handed the New York Yankees their first loss of the American League season in Yankee Stadium, 7-4. Ed Stewart socked a grand-slam homer in the eighth inning off Spec Shea to break a 3-3 tie and win the game.

Nelson Fox also homered for the Sox who hold second place, two games back of the Bombers. Bill Pierce went all the way for the surprising White Sox and scattered 11 hits.

The third-place Detroit Tigers scored six runs in the ninth-inning to beat the Athletics 9-8 in a night game at Philadelphia. Steve Souchock started the rally with his third home run of the season. Five singles and an error by pitcher Bob Hooper did the rest. Dave Philley of the A's hit a grand-slam homer. Bob Cain gained credit for the victory.

Letty Bob Kuzava pitched Washington Senators to a 5-2 decision over St. Louis Browns in a night tilt at Washington.

Boston Red Sox edged the slipping Cleveland Indians 2-1 in a day affair at Fenway Park. Vern Stephens drove in both runs with a pinch-hit single in the eighth off reliefer Lou Brissie. Mickey McDermott making his first start of the year after successfull relief work, went all the way for Boston.

PETES WIN OPENER

Peterborough, May 19 (CP) — Goalie Moon Wootton played a standout game Friday night as Peterborough Petes defeated Hamilton Tigers 11-6 to open the Ontario Senior Lacrosse Association season.

Hamilton outshot Petes but could seldom beat the Owen Sound star in the nets. Petes took a 4-2 lead in the first inning, the second quarter was tied at 2-2, and the third 3-1 for the homesters.

Another Peterborough import, Harry Wipper of St. Catharines, was strong on the attack to earn four goals; while Arn Dugan counted a pair. Barney Welch scored two goals for the Tigers.

Hurler May Earn Another Shot With Parent Club

(By The Associated Press)

Bud Podbielan's brilliant pitching may earn the Montreal right-hander another shot with the parent Brooklyn Dodgers before the season ends.

Podbielan, who divided the 1950 season with Brooklyn and Fort Worth of the Texas league, has been one of the prime reasons for the Royals' first-place berth in the International League.

The Dodger Chattel turned in his best game of the season last night as he pitched the Royals to a 3-2 13-inning victory over Buffalo Bisons.

Podbielan scored 12 hits while the Royals collected only nine off Rudy Minarcin, who went the distance for Buffalo. Bob Morgan broke up their game with a bases-loaded single in the fourth extra-time. The victory was Podbielan's fifth against a single setback.

The victory enabled the Royals to hold their three-game lead over the runner-up Syracuse Chiefs. The Chiefs cooled off Rochester Red Wings 3-2. Bob Habenicht wild-pitched one Chief run home and Bob Tiefenauer wild-pitched the winning run across in the seventh.

Ottawa edged Toronto Maple Leafs 6-5 in 12 innings to move into third place. Jerry Kindall, who single Neal Watlington home from second base with the run to win the game. Stu Miller Jok homered in the ninth to send the game into overtime.

2 Teams Remain Undefeated In Intercounty Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Two teams remain undefeated and two others are hunting for their first victory as the end of the first week of the Intercounty Baseball League schedule approaches.

Unbeaten are Brantford Red Sox who won their third in a row by walloping Galt Terriers 18-5 Friday night and Waterloo Tigers who picked up their second straight with a close 4-3 win over St. Thomas Legionnaires.

The loss was the third straight for St. Thomas who with London Majors have yet to win a game in the young season.

In Thursday night's other game Kitchener Legionnaires took over third place by beating Guelph Maple Leafs 6-4. London, which has played only one game to date wasn't in action.

The perfect records of either Brantford or Waterloo is likely to be broken when the two teams meet at Waterloo. St. Thomas visits London and Guelph is at Galt in the other Saturday games.

Brantford got both hitting and pitching in the one-sided win over Galt. Alf Gavey pitched a four hitter and his mates used 11 hits and six Galt errors for their big margin. Bill Leader who hurled one-third of an inning and gave up the run was the loser. Gavey let up in the ninth and Galt got four runs on three hits and four walks.

At Kitchener, southpaw Norm Shoemaker scattered a dozen Guelph hits in the 6-3-win. Legionnaires got only six hits off 19-year-old Jackie Bowes who pitched the last 6 2-3 innings but they managed an equal number of runs with the help of two costly Guelph errors. George Bonilface the Leafs with four hits in four trips and a walk. Burrichter had three for four for Kitchener.

At St. Thomas, the home club took a three-run lead in the first inning on a walk and two doubles. But Tigers got one back in the fourth and added three more in the fifth for the necessary runs to win 4-3.

Walter (Doc) Doherty went the route for St. Thomas in the team's home opener before 1,700 fans. Red Talley buried the first three innings for Waterloo. He was lifted for a pinchhitter and Bill Russ who finished got credit for the victory.

Illegal Fishing Trip Ends In Tragedy

Kingston, May 19 — (CP)—An illegal fishing expedition — ended in tragedy Thursday night when Charles Emmons, 23, of Westbrooke, seven miles west of Kingston, was drowned in a mill pond near Westbrooke.

His Companion, William B. Thompson, 40, managed to swim to shore, when their frail craft began to fill with water.

Emmons' body was recovered at 11:30 p. m. by Bruce Saunderscock, Collins Bay game warden.

Ross Emmons, father of the victim, said Friday that his son and Mr. Thompson were using dynamite to get fish. He said it was their second such expedition this week.

Details of the drowning are obscure but Warden Saunderscock described the craft as a flat-bottomed boat generally used for trapping and hardly safe enough for one man.

'Fake' Shriek the Faithful As Indian Bows to Atkins

By GEO. H. GARV[illegible]
Sports Editor

Maybe those Jose or [illegible]ling game had better [illegible]ight from the start. [illegible]

For instance, last night in [illegible]ercial Arena, Chief Big Cloud a right smart [illegible]ce as Sitting Bull would have [illegible]ne after he had [illegible]ken's scalp, not this [illegible]ead Fred Atkins, who hastened [illegible]ward Indian Australia, that is.

Both came here heralded by their feats, as to what was going to happen in the opposition. And it's only one that came through with anything resembling [illegible]s anywhere was the Chief. And [illegible]n he lost.

Eight Horses Will Go To Post In Preakness

Baltimore, May 18—(AP)—You could get a bet on which will be the favorite in the Preakness, in today's 76th Preakness at ven[illegible] Pimlico.

That's how hard it is to separate in advance the eight thoroughbreds entered in the 1½ mile test at 5:30 p. m. EDT.

Post positions, anticipates 33,000 to [illegible] the 51-year-old track. Another 30,000-odd persons are expected to watch the Jubilee Preakness on television.

The Preakness situation of no standout is the same which prevailed before the Kentucky Derby—and [illegible]. In the case of the first five Derbyites are eligible for the Preakness, so it's [illegible]ame old story.

The best the experts could come up with was a tossup between Stahler's Alerted, Greentree's Big Stretch and Brookmeade's Bay Mill vie for first choice. But as matter which the particular handicapper liked, the odds of about 3 to 1 weren't enough to make much difference.

Bold, which will be ridden by Eddie Arcaro, has run only twice this year and was beaten the second time by Alerted in Monday's Preakness prep.

Alerted, a respectable background, wanting three other times in 12 races but beaten 3 times by Mrs. Mary Hecht Reynolds. Still Repotsore, winner of four straight races before his 11th in the derby, is be better than fourth choice in the Preakness.

Big Stretch is drawing the favorites because of belief he's got to be better than shown so far. The best he's done in four 1951 races is a second and in the derby he was 10th.

Jockey Ted Atkinson seems to think so, too. He's switched to Big Stretch from Stahler's stable mate Hall of Fame in the Derby. Handy Bloodstone of Vanadover will have the mount of Hall of Fame in the Preakness.

The others, particularly C. V. Whitney's Counterpoint and Mrs. Wallace Gilroy's Tingly Reward, aren't counted out. Calumet Farm's D. Wilson's Knobbill is considered the real outsider because he's started only once—and won that year to be an unknown quantity.

Trainers Sylvester Veitch of Counterpoint and John Gaver of Big Stretch are keeping the mostalert weather eye. Counterpoint improves in the mud while Big Stretch suffers. The forecast is for rain.

Victory will be worth $80,220 to Alerted, Repotsire or Tingly Reward and $61,320 of the five other five. There's a net difference because the three were 2,150 supplementary eligibles on April 18 while it cost only $125 to nominate the others.

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

A crowd of 15,000 turned out for the first Sunday baseball game at Washington, D.C. 33 years ago today and saw a 13-inning duel in which Walter Johnson finally outlasted a 1-0 victory over the Cleveland Indians. The game was noticable in that each team committed six errors in the tense struggle.

The Bonefish--Speed King

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Science Tables)

Last March I journeyed once more to the Florida Keys. After months of snow-covered ground, frozen streams and too much work indoors, the call of the blue-green waters, the sand flats and the mangrove keys was loud in my ears.

At the same time, my grandson, Jay, 5½, as I say, I packed my gear, ignored a sleet storm that made travel hazardous, and pointed the nose of my car toward the south. For the second annual trip to the Keys, I thought I knew what to take along. All of my cotton fishing shirts and lightweight fishing pants went into the duffle bag. Wool pants were carefully left at home. In Key West, you know, are sub-tropical; you don't need warm clothing.

At the last minute, more because there was plenty of room than because I thought I would need them, I tossed in a lightweight wool shirt and a sleeveless sweater.

I was in the Keys for nearly two weeks and I wore those woolen things all or part of every day. I was there in passing time along as a tip in case you decide to go to Florida next winter.

If you read the outdoor magazines, you know that the bonefish is the current great deal of publicity during the past two years. He has been written up in the newspapers and, once in a while, in the weekly "slicks."

This publicity is making itself felt down in the Keys. You can see the change from one month to the next. The fishing cabins are full and the good guides are booked as much as a year ahead.

In the restaurants and the filling stations you hear tourists, obviously fishermen, excitedly explaining casually to chance acquaintances that they had decided to come down and catch a bonefish. Just like that.

Much to Learn

All right, let's take a look at bonefishing. The great majority of the anglers of the country know little or nothing about it except that it is done in the Florida Keys. There is a great deal to learn about bonefishing.

First off, you must remember that a bonefish is an ocean fish. He lives in deep water off shore and comes in to feed on the shallow sand flats only when he is hungry. When he is in shallow water, exposed to his natural enemies, he is wary in the extreme, even more so than a brook trout.

You can depend upon it — if a bonefish sees you, or even that you are close by vicinity, you won't get him. Oh, now and then you will find a stupid one, but ten percent of them are as shy as a red fox.

For this reason, excess movement and noise must be avoided. The long arc of the backcast of the gunwale of a boat or the splash of a tackle box across the deck will frighten every bonefish within several hundred yards. Even loud conversation is damaging, although some bonefish-crmen deny this.

The accepted bait for bonefish is live shrimp. An experienced guide can skip casting shots at a fish in time to permit the angler to cast his bait across their path and retrieve it. Then it is a case of sit tight, without movement, and trust that one of the school will find the bait and pick it up.

Tail Shots

The ideal situation is to locate some bonefish which are "tailing" or "mudding." To explain, a bonefish finds his food among the weed growth on the sand flats. When he burrows among the weeds his tail often will show itself momentarily above the surface.

At the same time, this grubbing about on the bottom will disturb the eyeglass of fine silt and this drifts away with the tidal flow in a distinctive cloud or smoke. When fish are feeding in this way their progress is slow and the guide can place the angler in position to cast his bait directly in their path.

Sometimes a whole school will be tailing, twenty or thirty fish. Mostly, however, tailers will come along in groups of two or three. The larger fish usually feed along in pairs. Rarely do you see more than two at a time of the fish that are around the ten-pound mark.

The pleasanter and more difficult way to fish for bonefish is with the fly rod and a bonefish fly. These flies must be carefully tied and standardized by the Key guides and tackle dealers and are expensive.

With fly-rod tackle, the game is to have the guide pole the boat slowly across the shallow flats while both of you watch for bonefish. Once you have located a shot them long before you do. Deciding how far is a thing that must be learned through experience.

Once a fish has been spotted, the guide will manoeuvre the boat so that you are in casting position. Then it is up to you to cast the fly so that the bonefish can see it. If the fly splats on the water too far away the fish won't see it. If it falls too close he will take alarm and leave the flat with the speed of an express train.

Casts Vary

Casts vary in length from 30 to 60 feet and placing the accurately at those distances in the wind that is almost always blowing takes a bit of doing. However, the sense of achievement that comes with hooking a bonefish with a fly more than makes up for the number of fish you will finish while trying to do so.

Guides Are Specialists

The good guides on the Florida Keys are expensive luxuries. They are specialists in their field and, as such, they command specialists' rates. However, they are worth every cent you pay them. To attempt to fish for bonefish without a guide, at least until you have learned the tricks of the sport, is simply a waste of time.

When you locate a bonefish on a shallow sand flat, his only thought is to reach the safety of deep water at the earliest possible moment. Once you have experienced the first determined run of a hooked bonefish, the memory will stay with you the rest of your life.

Remember, however, that the Keys are becoming more popular each year. It is not wise to travel all that distance without first making arrangements with guides and a good place to stay. If you don't take these to do this you are almost sure to be disappointed.

You can find out about these things by writing to the Metropolitan Miami Fishing Tournament, Fleetwood Hotel, Miami Beach, Florida, or to the Miami Chamber of Commerce. Or you can write to Allan Coram, chief of the door Editor of the Miami Herald.

Again, if you wish to write to me in care of your newspaper, I will be glad to give you the names of comfortable camps and dependable guides.

Kid Gavilan Defeats Bratton For Welterweight Crown

New York, May 18—(AP)—Kid Gavilan shocked both in the early rounds with left hooks to the body and right crosses to the head. They whopped it up for Kid Gavilan in Havana and New York today. The sleek Cuban had a rougher time with his jubilant countrymen than he had with Johnny Bratton in Madison Square Garden last night.

The flashy Hawk of Cuba won the world's welterweight championship (not counting Ireland and parts of Europe) by outclassing Chicago Johnny from here to Havana in their 15-round title scrap. The decision was unanimous and decisive.

For the Kid there'll be plenty of time for the rhumba and gay fiestas and everything else his compatriots are cooking up to celebrate Cuba's first boxing champion since the glory days of Kid Chocolate back in the early 30's.

For Bratton, it was a dream turned into a nightmare. Not only did he lose his National Boxing Association crown in his first defence, but once again he finished with a broken jaw and nowhere a busted hand. In addition there was a report that the government had tapped him on the his estimated $14,311 purse for back income taxes.

"Maybe I ought to quit," said the disgusted Bratton. "When the breaks go against you, maybe it's time to get out before you get banged up all over."

Gavilan Feted

Gavilan was feted into the wee hours of the morning by his cheering followers. Several thousand Cubans were among the 11,747 paying customers in the garden and about 15, including ambassador Carlos Manuel Pedroso in getting into the ring to embrace the grinning champion.

Gavilan will be back for his first defence against New York's Billy Graham in the Garden in July. The last two bouts before, each winning once.

After the scrap Eddie Thomas (the English and European champion) or Rocky Graziano," said ex-managers Angel Lopez and Fernando Bolido.

Will Fight Anybody

There were no maybes from Gavilan. "I fight anybody," he said.

Besides whining Bratton's N. Y. A. crown, Gavilan added New York's recognition as world champion. The only dispute to his claim comes from England where they believe Thomas, a Welshman, should get a chance to horn in on the proceedings.

Almost knocked out in the first round when a left hook 36 seconds punches from Gavilan while pinned to the ropes, Bratton rallied to give the fast-punching Kuez a whale of a fight for seven rounds. The 23-year-old Negro was sharp on his counters and at the end of almost every one of the early rounds they battled away at each other in torrid exchanges. But from the eighth on it appeared that Bratton had shot his bolt.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

Facetious Freddie could make or perforate with ease. When asked to play a friendly game, he slowly shakes his head, and then we hear the goof exclaim: "Let's all play bridge instead."

What sounds like quarreling at the bridge table, may be only the defensive bidding. Because as soon as somebody opens with a bid of some kind everybody wants to get into the act.

South opened with a bid of one heart and, next came in with a bid of two hearts. Bidding the same suit as your foe is called an overcall in an opponent suit.

Such a bid shows nine tricks in the hand and a promise of losing no tricks in the suit bid by opponents. It is a signal that orders partner not to let the bidding stop short of game.

Therefore, if north does not intervene with a bid, east dare not pass. He has been requested by his partner to bid something. Even if he has absolutely nothing, east must do something other than pass.

When west says he has no losers in hearts he may not have any hearts of any kind. Or he may have a lone ace of hearts. Or an ace and king of hearts with no other hearts in his hand.

Consequently, east must know his bid must not be an assist in hearts. The bid from him must be sense, other than hearts. The idea is for him to show his longest suit in anything but hearts.

Suppose north passes and east has this hand:

♠ 7 2 3
♥ 8 4 3
♦ 10 6 2
♣ 9 8 5 4

He dare not pass. He must definitely not bid hearts. He must bid something. So, he should bid his longest suit. In this case it is clubs. He should bid three clubs.

You know how terrible it must feel to make a bid with this hand. Especially a bid of three. But you must remember that west says he can take nine tricks. So, don't be scared, kiddies.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Sunday, May 20

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Today's vibrations truly mixed to restful pastimes, religious services, pleasant social affairs and worthy charities. Essential work well done is also favored. Rest, have wholesome fun.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Very practical and useful matters, works of mercy, visiting our veterans among day's first sponsored activities. Don't do unessential things or work, and don't neglect your soul.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Matters that have lasting value, that bring us nearer to God and right living are essential to true contentment, real success, and Sundays should be devoted primarily to them. Smile.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)—Good day for good thoughts, deeds, for religious services, happy family and social affairs, outdoor recreation. Necessary duties can be done uncomplainingly but don't get into needless work.

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—If true to the real, sound Leo type, you are of sunny disposition, know how to make fun and to enjoy it. Spreading laughter and cheer is God's work so do your best now. Pray for all.

August 24 to September 23—(Virgo)—As we strive for worldly recognition and gains do we not often forget our real purpose on this earth? The goal for which we were created. Give more thought, service and love to Him now.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Just the day to bring forth all your likeable qualities: gentleness, thoughtfulness of the lonely, the less fortunate of old-folks, children. Be happy and don't forget your church.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—If desires are to be achieved and to boot you have extra duties, don't let it spoil your pleasant disposition or deter you from carrying through plans. Pray for guidance and smile.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—All activities and restful pastimes suitable for Sunday are really most favored now. Church services, social and family gatherings, healthy hobbies should bring happiness.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Very favorable Saturn rays should encourage you to fresh initiative, to vie for honors with sports competitors or in the entertainment field, to have a happy, useful day. Pray.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Day should not be too demanding in the way of strenuous work — take time for rest, pleasant recreation, music, good reading. And do go to your church.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Some restrictions indicated, especially in hazardous ventures, in sea travel and strictly confidential matters. Day is fine for philosophical interests, rest, healthy fun.

YOU HORN TODAY: A Taurus-Gemini Cuspal, born while the Sun was leaving Taurus, entering Gemini. You have the quick adaptability, versatility of Gemini, also some of its changeableness, perhaps extravagance. Taurus' influence is good here, causing the return to a project or idea tossed aside through restlessness. Can bring matters to profitable conclusion through Taurus' persistency. You may make too many plans, however, and in trying to carry them through will strain. Practise self-control and concentration in your specific line. Pray daily for guidance.

ELDORADO Little Builders Entertain Mothers

Eldorado—Mrs. Cecil Robinson was hostess to the Little Builders of Hope Mission Band, when they recently entertained their mothers to a "Mother's Day" program. Eighteen members and 6 mothers were present. The president presided.

The short business period was followed by the devotional with Lt. Scripture being read by Raeburn Robinson, and a primary action exercise, entitled, "Gifts for Mother" was given by Garnet Chambers, Bonnie Peate, Patsy Blakely and Carol Blackburn. A story "The Great Stone Face" was read by Mrs. Cecil Blackburn.

In honor of Mother's Day, a poem was read by Marlene Blackburn, Beverly Hurley, Floyd Blackburn and Wayne Robinson. A chorus "The Home on the Highway of Happiness" was given by a few older children.

Mrs. Earl Blakely read the 3rd chapter of the study book, which was followed by a poem, "The Boys' Festival" By Carol Bailey.

Following the meeting, the children enjoyed a few games, after which the hostess and her assistants served refreshments. The next meeting will be held the first Saturday in June at the home of Floyd and Marlene Blackburn.

Women's Missionary Society

The W.M.S. held their May meeting at the home of Mrs. R. Bateman with 19 members, four visitors and five children present. Mrs. C. Chambers presided.

Various reports were given from the different departments. A layette is ready for shipment overseas.

Mrs. Hagerman had charge of the worship portion as supplied by the Missionary Monthly, with Mrs. Beryl Carman presiding over the program, which took the form of a table conference on food versus famine. Mrs. Carman was assisted by Mrs. Clayton Blackburn, Mrs. R. Peate, Mrs. Roy Blackburn and Mrs. Cecil Robinson, closing with a dialogue by Mrs. A. Robinson and Mrs. E. Blakley, and a "Temperance Poem" by Mrs. Carman.

A social half hour was enjoyed.

FRANKFORD

Six Teams Comprise Sidney Softball League

Frankford — The Sidney Softball League will open its current season on Tuesday night, May 22, with all six teams entered in the loop. Johnstown, an expected new entry in the league, had to withdraw at the last minute, as they were not able to field a team. Glen Miller has however, entered the league, thus keeping the full number of teams.

President Lawrence Slingerland of Centenary announced that the schedule has now been completed, and opening night will see Johnstown at Wallbridge, Centenary at Frankford Legion, and Frankford at Glen Miller. All games will start at 7:30, except for the Centenary-Legion game which will be under the lights at 8:30 in Trenton.

Johnstown, last year's champions appear to be the club to beat again this season. Manager Centenary's aggregation looks about the strongest at present.

Manager Bart Hinchliffe, on last report, didn't seem too optimistic about his team, but if condition holds true, Wallbridge can be counted on to furnish some good softball any time they field a team.

Bob Bates' Frankford team looks much the same as last year, comprised chiefly of juniors and Juveniles, with a few standby veterans. The Frankford Legion team is a decidedly improved team over last year, and should furnish the other clubs some real competition this season.

Glen Miller is the dark horse of the league, with no one just certain what to expect from the league's latest entry. In years past, they have fielded some hustling teams, and it is almost a certainty that they will be a worthy addition to the Sidney League. All in all, it promises to be a great season when the first ball is thrown in next Tuesday night.

Knitting Mill, Farm Implement Factory Burns

Port Perry, May 21 (CP) — Fire swept through a two-storey building Sunday, causing an estimated $75,000 damage to the Lakeshore Knitting Mills on the top floor of the building.

Gordon Morrow, owner of the implement firm in this community 35 miles northeast of Toronto, said the fire could have been started by firecrackers thrown from automobiles by youths. Police Chief George Holmes said, however, he thought the blaze started inside the building which is brick with a frame front.

Russia Rumored Anxious to End War in Korea

United Nations, N.Y., May 21 — (CP) — Informed western sources said Sunday Russia has indicated privately in western diplomatic circles that she is anxious now to end the Korean war.

And the United States now would back peace terms which left North Korea and South Korea as they were constituted before the North Korean attack on June 25, these sources added.

Informants seeking possibilities of a negotiated end to the conflict viewed these present attitudes as the first real Russian against the background of these developments:

1. The Indian delegation here was sounding out other missions on the possibility of getting both sides to agree not to cross the 38th Parallel again. The Parallel was the dividing line between North and South Korea, until the Communists attacked.

2. Russian newspapers gave great prominence at the weekend to Senator Edwin Johnson's proposal resolution in the U.S. Senate asking the U.N. to call upon both sides to declare an effective armistice along the 38th Parallel Moscow wondered if this indicated Russia might support such a proposal.

3. The U.N. unified command — in effect the U.S. government — released Saturday the first regular report to the U.N. of Gen. Matthew B. Ridway, U.N. commander in Korea. In the report he said his command is emphasizing constantly to soldiers and civilians in Korea the U.N.'s desire to arrange a peaceful settlement of the war.

Cloudburst Causes Flooding in Detroit

Detroit, May 21 — (AP) — A cloudburst left Detroit last night flooded underpasses and heightened traffic problems caused by the city's street-car and bus strike.

The storm interrupted electric service to parts of the city and started numerous fires.

Hardest hit was the downpour was the depressed portion of Davidson Expressway running east and west through Highland Park. Water mounted about car top within minutes and blew lower caps.

The Michigan National Guard sent a tank retriever, amphibious jeeps and ducks to rescue sunken vehicles that included seven transit trucks laden with new automobiles.

East Detroit and Grosse Pointe Farms reported heavy wind and water damage. At Belle Isle, police estimated 200,000 persons were caught in a traffic jam as they started to leave the island ahead of the rain.

Ottawa, May 21 (CP) — Production Minister Howe today announced that rationing of aluminum, copper and brass will come under compulsory government control beginning June 1.

Previously these items were rationed informally and on a voluntary basis by the producing companies to manufacturers.

Under the compulsory control scheme, rationing from mills to manufacturers will be on the basis of 100 percent of 1950 purchases. That will mean that if a manufacturer used 100,000 tons of copper in 1950, he will continue to get monthly allotments on that amount.

However, officials said the Canadian defence effort will be getting first call on these items and within a matter of months it appeared likely that certain non-essential—manufacturing using these items will be cut.

The order covers primary and wrought aluminum, primary copper, brass mill products, copper wire rod and copper wire.

Two other metals, nickel and steel, already are under compulsory rationing control.

Rationing will be under the direction of Frank Hewett, government non-ferrous metals administrator. Steel administrator Kenneth Harris directs steel control.

Must Get Approval

Mr. Howe in a statement, said that under compulsory control, no user of aluminum, brass or copper will be allowed to receive extra supplies if his stockpile is considered sufficient to meet him current needs.

After June 1, buyers will have to get approval certificates approved by the metals administrator before shipments can be made by producing mills.

The order applies to the raw forms of these metals, before they are fabricated into such saleable goods.

Initially it is directed at government control over shipments from mills. Once approval is given to allow metals to leave the mill, government control ends.

Primary Aluminum

In the case of aluminum, the order applies to primary aluminum, which is aluminum in raw or ingot form and to wrought aluminum, meaning aluminum in the form of wire, rods, bars plates, sheets, tubes and forgings.

Where aluminum is used in mill both produces the raw aluminum and turns it into marketable products the control is extended so that government approval must be obtained before the raw aluminum can be used for the finished goods.

Secret of Mink's Temperature Comfort Lies in Own Heat Regulating System

Madison, Wis., May 21 (AP) — It takes more than a mink coat to keep a mink warm.

Sure it helps, but University of Wisconsin zoologists are convinced the real secret of a mink's temperature comfort lies in a physiological balance — its own heat regulating system.

Headed by Prof. Peter H. Morrison, the scientists are trying to learn the metabolic secrets involved. The knowledge could be put to use in helping persons who live, work and fight in frigid climates.

Findings to date include formation that the blue fox and Labrador dog are specialized in adaptation to cold they are limited in range in the Arctic.

One lemming ran a fever right to 10 degrees above normal and died of heat prostation at an air temperature of 100 degrees.

The smaller animals run the most danger of freezing, the experts found. They have less heat producing tissue in relation to surface area exposed to low temperatures and heat conservation problems are greater.

That is why most species found in cold climates weigh more and have shorter legs than relatives in warmer zones. They also have body shapes more nearly spherical to expose less surface areas.

The lemming is a good example of a species of this body type, Morrison said. Short, stout legs from the cold this animal has. Its body is a "ley-o-mutton" sleeves extending to the hocks.

To determine how well fur skins protect animals from frigid blasts, the zoologists devised metal casts over which the hides are fitted. Using electric heaters, the scientists are able to learn how efficiently fur types insulate from outside cold.

U.S. AND RUSSIA AT PARTING OF WAYS ON TREATY

U.S. Charges Moscow Conniving at Aggression

Washington, May 21. (AP)—The United States and Russia have reached a parting of the ways over preparation of a peace treaty for Japan.

The spread of their differences was spotlighted by an American charge that Moscow is "conniving at aggression" by proposing to deny Japan any collective self-defence arrangements.

An American note published last night made it clear the U.S. is determined to go ahead with its plan of using American forces to help protect Japan against any threat of communist aggression from Asia.

The note was handed to Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. H. Aznyukhin Saturday. It replied to a May 7 Russian set of proposals on preparation of a Japanese peace treaty.

Moscow asked for a meeting of the foreign ministers of the United States, China, Britain and Russia to start work on a treaty and bring it to a "speedy conclusion."

The U.S. rejected this proposition outright on the ground that nations of the U.N. opposed to Russia in such a four-country meeting actually would work against early conclusion of a treaty and also would give Russia a veto power over countries "which bore a greater burden of the Pacific war than the Soviet Union". The note explained that Russia was at war with Japan for only six days.

Not Seeking Guidance

The note also declared that as far as Red China is concerned, the U.S. "does not seek guidance from the unrecognized agencies" — a reference to communist China. The American note left no doubt that it has no intention of doing so.

The text of the American reply, however, was not so much concerned with the Russian proposal to call in China as the U.S., Britain and a dozen other countries have already done on a Japanese treaty and start over. It was concerned with the future role of Japan after Japanese independence is restored.

Russia had proposed that Japan's armed forces should be limited to those "necessary needed for "self-defence". It had also proposed that all occupation troops should be withdrawn from Japan within a year after the treaty became effective.

Will Station Troops

That was a key point for two reasons. First, the U.S. has made no secret it intends to sign simultaneously with the peace treaty a defence agreement with Japan to station its forces in and around Japanese territory. Second, the U.S. also believes that Russia will withdraw the Far East to gain control over Japan.

Prisoners Riot, Seize Guards As Hostages in State Prison After Three Convicts Punished

Point- of - the -Mountain, Utah, May 21 — (AP) — Two hundred prisoners took eight guards as hostages as Utah's new "escape-proof" penitentiary last night and rioted through the building and corridors for 4½ hours.

The only persons hurt were several prisoners beaten up by their fellows.

None of the prisoners escaped, but two of the guards held as hostages succeeded during the height of the excitement in breaking out through barred windows. They shinnied down from the second storey on ropes made of torn sheets.

The other six hostages were released after a delegation of convicts met with Warden Alvin O. Severson. The warden promised to consider the prisoners' complaints if the prisoners would release their hostages, return to their cells and clean up the mess they had made.

The mess included a broken safe which had contained narcotics.

Prisoners told officials the riot developed spontaneously when word spread that several were disciplined Sunday for a minor disturbance which occurred Friday. Warden Severson said that this disciplining was for a disturbance at church a few hours earlier.

The riot started with seizure of the eight guards. The prisoners released six men in death row and others. They later agreed to the terms and the hostages were released. More than 200 of the 532 inmates of the prison took part.

Under Rules

Then the prisoners were fed and order was restored.

One prison official estimated damage at "from $50,000 to $100,000."

A number of prisoners were expected to be "pretty sick" before morning, said Dr. W. H. Horton, prison physician. He said the men had imbibed paregoric, denatured alcohol, and other concoctions from the prison hospital. Some also were reported "high" on the stolen narcotics. Most potent, the doctor said, was morphine tablets.

The prisoners were reported to have manufactured knives and knives from the kitchen.

They also had their cells stocked with goods confiscated from the commissary.

One of the guards who escaped — Franklyn Holliday — said the rioters told him that the death row men were not responsible but if any of the rioters were hurt. He said Warden Severson had warned his disciplining was for a disturbance at church a few hours later.

Benefit Fund For 4 Firemen Who Died in $300,000 Blaze Opened by Mayor Swanston

Peterborough, Ont., May 21 — (CP) —Peterborough citizens today organized a fund-raising campaign on behalf of the four firefighters who died Saturday in a $300,000 fire which destroyed a downtown business block and damaged adjoining building.

At a civic meeting called by Mayor Max Swanston, representatives of business, professional and religious groups joined an overflow crowd meeting in city council chambers in planning projects to raise money for the fund: No objective was set.

Within a few hours of the launching of the campaign more than $4,000 had been subscribed.

Last of the four bodies buried under tons of wreckage was found early Sunday morning after firemen had worked a search-light probing the ruins.

Location of the body of Earl Spenceley, a florist who had volunteered to fight the fire, at 3:15 a.m., ended the search. The four others who lost their lives in the blaze which began about 5:30 a.m. Saturday were regular firefighters: Grover Deck, Orville Rome and George Reynolds.

Censor Bd. Protects to Hollywood Against Objectionable Scenes

Toronto, May 21. (CP)—Canadian Censor Boards have protected Hollywood producers in an attempt to correct objectionable scenes in films, the Ontario Film Censorship Board said in its annual report presented to Premier Frost today.

"There has been much recent discussion arising from the incidence of undue violence and treatment of many films and its relationship to crime," the report said.

Many censor boards, including the one in Ontario, have protested during the past year. Directly and indirectly to film producers in Hollywood in an attempt to correct the condition."

The Board said films not meeting the low standards established by Censor Boards in Canada would be dealt with in a "uniformly severe manner."

The report said 479 feature films from Hollywood, 56 from England, and 28 from other countries had been submitted for censorship in Ontario last year, a total of 303 eliminations were made for such reasons as coarse dialogue, torture of women, brutality, gruesomeness, suggestive dancing, kissing, nudity, hanging and lashing.

Advertising was also carefully examined for misleading suggestions, and finally the advertising associated with a film was found to be entirely false.

The following items were marked as "adult-entertainment" in Ontario last year. "Only way it was possible for adults to see films which might have been banned or censored, was to exposed the children the Board said.

Twenty-seven theatres, 15 of them drive-ins, were erected in the province last year, the report said. This year 17 more drive-in theatres built in five years to 125. The building program represented an investment of $2,000,000 last year. "Ontario's theatres now total 535."

THE WEATHER

Toronto, May 21 (CP) Synopsis: A narrow band of cloudiness and showers is advancing eastward across Ontario followed by slightly cooler air. A few thunderstorms occurred in this band of weather Sunday evening but by this morning there was very little activity. Only an occasional very light shower marked the arrival of the cooler air. In the fresh air mass skies will be mostly clear today and Tuesday and there will be little change in temperatures.

THREE ARE HELD AS MAN BEATEN TO PULP, LEFT

Left in Muddy Swamp With Feet Tied to Rock

North Bay, May 21, (CP)—A 31-year-old Chalk River man was beaten and battered beyond recognition Saturday night and then thrown down in a swamp, a rock lashed to his feet by shoelaces.

Victim of what police said was the most vicious beating they had ever seen was William Lellava who was reported near death in hospital. His condition was slightly improved Sunday but he was still unable to talk and a miracle if he recovered.

Albert Rants, 23, and Jakko Ranta, 24, both of Chalk River, have been charged with assault in the case, and Lellava's wife Stella, 32, is being held as a material witness, police said.

Provincial Constable Almond, 12 David Brooks 12, and Alvin Telford, 12, who said they witnessed the brutal beating were responsible for saving Lellava from a horrible death.

They told police they were returning from fishing in Mud Lake, two miles from Chalk River, when they saw Lellava get into an argument with a woman over $3. They said he struck her and then he was knocked down and kicked about 15 to 20 minutes by two other men.

Edward Almond said the woman joined in the attack. "She kicked him and scratched him until his face was a mass of blood."

Dragged Off Road

David Brooks said the trio dragged Lellava off the road and into a swamp and then tried to drown him. "They kept shoving his head into the water and they had his feet tied together and weighed down with a rock."

Young Almond hurried by bicycle to his father, Lawrence Almond. The elder Almond came to the scene with George Levesque, who found Lellava, stripped of most of his clothing, his face smeared beyond recognition.

"If we had been second later," said Levesque, "He'd have drowned."

Almond went for help and while he was gone the woman returned and again attacked the helpless Lellava. She was stopped by Levesque.

"Two men also came along," Levesque said, "but they pretended to help me. Now I suspected they were in on it, however, when I saw the one had an iron in under his jacket. It had been ripped off."

FIREPROOF BONDS, BILLS

Rochester, N. Y., May 21 (AP) — Chemist John L. Schaefer declared yesterday he has devised a chemical to make fireproof United States bonds and bills. He said the government would make the formula a secret of the method. He did not give details.

5-Day Offensive Has Cost Enemy Nearly 60,000 Men

Tremendous Fire Power of Allied Weapons Takes Effect

Tokyo, May 21 — (CP) — Communists began withdrawing from half of the Korean central front today after losing nearly 60,000 men, by Allied estimates, in their five-day offensive.

LL-Gen. Edward M. Almond announced Monday night 10th Corps killed or wounded 48,341 reds on the east - central front. Sunday's total alone was 24,700, he said, the biggest one-day total of the war.

Allied officers estimated 10,220 other casualties were inflicted on the west-central front, AP correspondent George A. MacArthur reported.

In this sector, reds retreated through a driving rain. Front-line dispatches Monday night told of communist withdrawals before advancing Allies across more than 20 miles of the front.

Abandon Bridgeheads

Reds were reported abandoning their bridgeheads below the Pukhan and Hongchon rivers, and pulling back toward Chuncon in the centre.

Most of the red casualties were inflicted by the U.S. 2nd Division which the communists set out to destroy. The Eighth Army said the 2nd Division killed or wounded 37,720 reds in five days.

"We've taken the starch out of the offensive," Almond said. "And I feel certain that if they come at us in even greater numbers we can handle them again."

The reds threw 125,000 men at the sector in their second spring offensive, Almond said. The first red all-out smash began April 22 and was shut down at the end of 10 days.

In their new drive, the reds felt before the tremendous fire power of U.N. artillery, planes and automatic weapons. They were piled on barbed wire entanglements . . . blown up by mines.

The enemy "may be getting ready to strike again" Almond said, "but I'm sure we are prepared to meet him.

Caught Enemy Off-Guard

"We have a line across the peninsula and we are holding it. We have a line of fire that operates day and night, rain or shine. . . .

Much of Sunday's record casualty toll, he said, was caught in the artillery fire as the Chinese trying to carry off their dead all along the front.

Eighth army reports and field dispatches had given no hint of the U. N. forces' plans.

U. N. Forces suffered "comparatively light" casualties when the reds' human sea wave attacks, Almond reported. And the 2nd division was in good shape.

A spokesman at Tokyo headquarters said the Indian 1st division apparently inflicted more than 30 casualties for every one it suffered.

U. N. bombers concentrated on the second division's sector in the drive's closing days to attack its front lines. B-29 Superforts and B-26 Invaders cut up the reds with 1,000 fragmentation bombs Sunday night. The air force said 250 tons of bombs were pinpointed in the attack by a new radar technique.

Whistle Is Red Ace

A big jet battle flared over northwestern Korea today and produced the world's first jet ace. Three Russian-type MIG-15 jets were destroyed in the flames, one probably shot down and five damaged. Some of the American F-28 Sabrie jets which engaged 50 MIGs was reported missing.

The jet ace is Capt. James Fisher of Natchez, Miss. The 26-year-old airman sent two MIGs down in flames to run his total to six, five kills make an ace.

Iran Premier Rejects Proposal For Arbitration

Tehran, Iran, May 21—(AP)—Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh has rejected a proposal by Britain to arbitrate the explosive dispute over nationalization of the wealthy Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

A government spokesman also told parliament yesterday that Britain and the United States are pushing Iran closer to Russia and a communist revolution by opposing oil nationalization.

The speaker, National Front Deputy Hossein Makki, raised the threat of a holy war if Britain uses force to resist the loss of her big investment in the Abadan refinery and the nearby oil wells 150 southern Iran.

The government's letter to the oil company while refusing to arbitrate, called on the company to send representatives to plan the smoothest way to "liquidate" the southern Iranian installations. It was the first time since Mossadegh's sudden rise to power three weeks ago that he has offered, even indirectly, to end the nationalization situation.

The company, declaring expropriation is illegal, had asked the government to appoint its arbitrator under terms of the 1933 concession agreement which provided all disputes be settled by an arbitration board.

Real Skunks Play Dirty Trick On Little Gayle

Pasadena, Calif., May 21 (AP) — Five-year-old Gayle Shaffer once met a television fan.

Her favorite show was one that featured a pet skunk.

Yesterday she saw a mama skunk and baby skunk in her backyard.

She like the skunk on the TV show. Oh goody, gumdrops!

But those dirty skunks acted just like dirty skunks.

Every One in Britain Except Moths Jubilant Over Cloth From Peanuts

London, May 21 (AP)—Practically every one in Britain except the moths is jubilant about the new synthetic wool made from peanuts.

Even the peanut fibre has just gone into commercial production at a new plant in Dunstable, England. Round-the-clock working was adopted, and output is slated for 2,000 tons this year, 10,000 in 1952.

Harold Wilson, former president of Britain's Board of Trade, gave the new fibre its first boost when he spoke at international conferences in Paris, and later in the House of Commons, wearing one of the new "monkey nut" suits—made of a mixture of wool and the "Ardil" fibre.

The theory behind peanut suits is simple. Cellulose, the structural material of all plants, is obtained from wood to manufacture fibre stimulating cotton, silk and wool.

But wool is a protein—and to make an artificial wool fibre, a protein must be used. Now Imperial Chemical Industries claim they have found an artificial wool which will stand up to almost any mechanical treatment given to the real thing.

Although synthetic has all the warmth of real wool, it is not quite the same. Usually it is mixed with another fibre—such as wool, cotton, rayon or nylon. Sometimes a special blend is made finer than any wool. British textile manufacturers hope to produce entirely new types of fabrics.

Then the mixture is used to imitate traditional cloths—such as the famous Harris tweed. The manufacturers claim that not even an expert can tell the difference when he sees special blends. They're going on to establish the effect of brushing.

So far the new fibre has been made into carpets, knitting wools, hosiery, felts, flannels, worsteds, tweeds, furnishing fabrics and blankets. Perhaps its biggest advantage in these days of rising prices: it sells at around $1.50 a pound, far below the cost of wool.

The process of raw material seems assured. The peanuts go first to a plant where the oil, used for margarine, is extracted. Ground nutmeal produces the solid threads of the synthetic fibre.

Thrown from his motorcycle when he was forced to swerve to avoid missing a car making a left-hand turn, Victor Hains, 25, Green Street, suffered a broken collar bone Sunday afternoon and was admitted to Belleville General Hospital.

Haire, who was trying out his motorcycle after doing some work on the machine, was riding east on the four-lane highway west of the city. He was about to overtake and pass a motor car when the driver was said to have attempted to make a left-hand turn. Haire swung his machine into the boulevard and the machine struck some rough sod throwing him off balance.

Splendid Talent Shown In Painting Contest

Talent galore from public school students greeted a painting contest sponsored by Belleville Kinsmen which ran from May 10 until last Tuesday. Contestants painted an illustration printed in the Ontario Intelligencer which advertised a movie, "Bonnie Prince Charlie," and some of the results were amazing.

Winners of the contest were Diane Theresa Lee, 15, of 8 North Ali other, and Jennifer Mundie-ville, 13, of Shannonville, who tied for first place. In second slot was Peggy Ellis, 11, of 93 Baldwin Street.

The two top winners each get books of guest tickets from the theatre management, and the second place winner gets one book. All other contestants received guest tickets.

Variety of colors used in the painting submitted and quality of work was very pleasing to the judges, George Graham, Belle Theatre manager, said. All the paintings showed definite signs of talent, and hours of hard work.

Placid Boat Ride Rudely Interrupted By Thoughtless Fish

"This," said Joe Lusk, of Philadelphia, "is just the ideal spot for fishing."

Joe was angling for pickerel and pike in West Lake off Wellington.

Joe with Mrs. Lusk and daughter, was out for a boat ride on the placid waters of the lake when Joe suddenly remembered he had brought along his fishing gear.

He tossed a line overboard. He felt only the gentle motion of serene, Joe was enjoying a holiday from the environs of the city of Brotherly Love. Heck, there are no pickerel or pike in Chestnut Street.

So thought Joe.

Then it happened. Came a savage tug on the line. Joe's pipe flew out of his mouth. He grabbed the line that was being put at an alarming rate of speed.

But why prolong the story.

A few minutes later, 15 to be exact, and a five-pound four ounce muskellunge was flopping in the boat.

That was it.

Joe and his first fish started for shore. Tomorrow Joe, fish and family will be in Philly.

The fish will be mounted.

Fire Causes Delay in Delivery Players' Sweaters

The disastrous fire that destroyed the Lakeshore Knitting Mills at Port Perry over the week end had far-reaching effects.

Losing fifty - four dozen sweaters among other things was Jack McNab, proprietor of the Sportsmen's Centre here.

Practically all teams in minor baseball and softball here as well as a number of the senior brackets, and some from out of town must suffer a lengthy delay before receiving their equipment.

The Belleville Redmen senior baseball team were more fortunate. Their uniforms will be here in time for opening day on Saturday.

Mr. McNab is making all efforts possible to secure the equipment through other manufacturers, however he asks patience on the part of the teams, their sponsors and managers.

Trenton Craft Spots Wreckage

Trenton (Special) —The crew of an RCAF Dakota aircraft, one of the 40 planes searching for several days for a missing Dakota out of Goose Bay on the way to Summerside P.E.I. has been credited with sighting Saturday afternoon what they believed to be the wreckage of the lost machine. They spotted the wreckage 80 miles south East of Mecatina Rapids, near Lake Boheir, 60 miles north of Musquaro, Quebec, located on the northern shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence directly across the east tip of Anticosti Island.

The lost craft, which carried four air force personnel, had been the object of an intensive search over some of Canada's wildest regions since Monday, May 14. A Lancaster, two Mitchell bombers from Trenton, along with a Dakota with para-rescue jumpers on board made up the complement of aircraft dispatched from this area to Maritime headquarters at Summerside, P.E.I.

Para-Rescuers Jump

Trenton was not jumped into the scene because of the availability of nearby Canso searching aircraft which could land on either Lake Boheir or Lake Grosnin and put ground parties ashore to investigate.

The missing plane was last heard from over Goose Bay flying a routine trip to Summerside.

Receives Certificate

Jack Dean, recreational director for the town of Trenton for the last three years, received his certificate on Saturday and is now the youngest fully qualified recreational director in Ontario. Mr. Dean who served with the Canadian Navy during the last war, has had 14 years experience in sporting activities.

Fire Loss $800

Believed to have started from defective wiring, a fire at noon Saturday caused $800 damage to the home of Ken Craddock on Grange Street.

Most of the loss amounted to ruined clothing in a closet where firemen figure the flames broke out.

Water was used but the majority of the furniture suffered no damage.

Swimming Classes Ended

The swimming classes held every Saturday throughout the winter months terminated Saturday as scores of public and separate school children turned to outdoor water activities for the summer months. All the new swimmers were presented with certificates by recreational director Jack Dean, who conducted the school.

And speaking of swimming the new pool being built by the I.O. Sgts' Mess is being readied for filling with water this week.

One of the more enthusiastic swimmers from Trenton, Allan Squier took a dip in the river off the dock yesterday. He reported the water as being warm.

Choosing Pickerel

Choosing the waters north of No. 1 dam instead of the favorite pickerel fishing grounds in front of the dam, Cpl. Jack Hanlon of No. 8 R.D., RCAF Station had better than the average stroke of luck. He not only hauled in a four pound beauty but landed six weighing around two pounds apiece. Cpl. Hanlon is the bait expert of Middleton Park and has made a business of raising fish worms in his cellar for fishing purposes. Since commencing his enterprise, the corporal has had calls from sportsmen far and near.

Trenton Police Catch Two Picton Army Men

Four Fire Fighters Perish

Black and Gutted Building Mute Evidence of Disastrous Fire at Peterborough

(By JACK BROWN)

Peterborough sits stunned today, shocked by the gutted building on the main street its only testimony to four men who died fighting a $300,000 fire.

And while more than 10,000 people stood watching in silence, fire marshals were poking around in the rubble for signs of arson. It was the seventh fire in the city in seven days, and climaxed a hectic week for fire fighters.

The full story of the disaster will never be told, for the names of men who worked like dogs all day and night will never be known. There were men who heard the first broadcast on the radio at 6.30 a.m. Saturday and came downtown to lend a hand as fire department men had called all its available men to the scene. Many of the volunteers were on the streets 20 hours next morning, when the last body was taken from the ruins.

Top Floors Crash Down

They came in their good suits, and their work clothes to get into bucket lines. Fire trucks from city and area and from at least one adjacent township roared into the city. By 10:30 Saturday morning officials thought the fire was beaten. Then three storeys crashed down through into the first floor. Ed. Riley's clothing store, and four men were trapped. Two were rescued after being caught by the tons of rubble that cascaded down on them.

The fire had somehow worked into the basement of Riley's, and little hope was held for them from the start. Two volunteers really went into action then. They corralled buckets, shovels, anything handy thing that would serve to 'cat' out the debris. Inside the clothing store was dust thick as was almost impossible to see at times.

Bucket Lines Formed

At the back of the block, stores backed into hillside, was a continuous stream of rubble being dumped. Boxes of Wrigley's arrived with trucks and bulldozers Neon signs on the front of the building disappeared this time, and latter crashed to the ground as the debris rolled down.

Saturday night the store windows still sat, and in the clothing store of racks and suits were untouched by fire. The whole corner of the block was damaged by water and smoke. Not a pane of glass were reduced to watery shambles.

The Salvation Army was out bright and early with coffee and sandwiches, and kept the supply coming all day and night. Men staggered from the ruins for a cigarette, dirty, grimy, and out. They rested a moment and went back into the fight. A few had to be removed from the scene by force.

Floodlights Set Up

Utilities men rigged floodlight for night work. The street was dirty through the whole block, both sides. Windows were broken in a drug store on the opposite side of the street, and a prudent jeweller took all his stock out of his windows.

There were ambulances on hand all night, and clergymen of all denominations stood in a tight knot in the harsh glare of the floodlights. All day, newspaper planes flew over the city taking photos, and newsstands could not get enough papers to satisfy the demand.

On Sunday, the demolition work went on. Workers on an aerial ladder slung cables around huge blocks of brick and beam. Winches tightened, and the blocks and debris fell to the ground with a roar that sent dust clouds, and still the people stayed.

Police had a hard job controlling the crowds, even though most of the people were quiet. The more morbid type wanted to get as close as they could at all times.

Store Stocks Ruined

In the bright Sunday afternoon sunshine, the store managers stood looking at what were, obviously, the only salvage available was the plate glass of the windows. Everything else was lost, and the stores themselves were open to the air. There was a huge pit in Riley's where the men were dug out.

A collection was taken up by policemen on the job, and citizens dug deep to make a flood of nickels and bills.

It was the city's worst fire since 1918 when the Quaker Oats went up in flames. In 1948, three men were lost in a woollen plant fire. Four men were lost this time, and 14 children fatherless. The fire was a true disaster. It shocked and saddened all the city, and members of the building will be a reminder for a long time of the lives that were lost.

New Fire-Hall Playground Reality Through Tri-Organization Effort

Through the co-operation of the fire department, the Recreation Commission and the Parks Board, a new playground and ball diamond is established at the rear of No. 2 Firehall on Bridge Street. Surmounting an engineering problem that at one time seemed to be a big one, the ground and area smoothing the grounds out with the assistance of the others. Steam rollers are now busily at the field and loam is being laid on the softball infield for the official opening of new park. Swings, Swings, teeter-totters, slides sand boxes and other recreational essentials are expected to arrive this week.

78 Boys Enrol

Already 78 boys under 13 years of age have enrolled for the softball program, that is being planned and more are applying daily. A league has been formed under the director ship of Ernie Cowan and Reg. Wardle. Kinsmen, Rotary, Scouts'n Mors, Boyce Motors and Booth Radio have agreed to sponsor the possibility of sponsoring a team in this pee-wee loop. The winner of the league will meet the winner of the wee zone finals of the OASA.

Equipment Donated

Much of the equipment has been donated by interested citizens who prefer to remain anonymous. The Rotary Club of Hallorans to be presented to the league champions and the coal Trophy is one of the many have offered a trophy for the league-leading batsman.

Bayshore park, although still in its infancy, is progressing favorably. The Kinsmen Swings, Swings teeter-totters, and slides have been installed and the chairman of the Recreation committee stated that other improvements and additions will be forthcoming shortly.

Nine Parks, Playgrounds

A total of nine parks and playgrounds are now being supervised and maintained by the Parks Board and Recreation commission.

Fire Chief Vance and the men of No. 2 Station deserve special mention for the time and work which they have very generously donated to help the boys. Watching Chief Vance, with the boys, operating the hose and handling the most enjoyment out of it.

Wives of the ministers were guests on this occasion. During the social hour, Mrs. Drury served refreshments.

AN EASY WAY

Toronto, May 21 — (CP)— Les Annis has found a quick and painless way to eliminate skunks. When he found one under the planks in his garage he put a pipe from the exhaust of his car to the entrance of the skunk's quarters and started the motor. In 10 minutes the unwanted guest had asphyxiated the uninvited guest.

S. Hastings E.A. Presents Fine Musical Festival

The annual music festival, sponsored by the South Hastings Educational Association, was held during the week in the auditorium of Queen Alexandra School, Belleville.

The hall was more than filled to capacity and the children, teachers and music supervisors are to be complimented on the calibre of the performances presented.

Representative Numbers

The S.H.E.A. had organized formerly 13 music festivals held in different centres in Mr. R. H. Mackinnon's Inspectorate of South Hastings, Trenton and Frankford before this date, Representative numbers were selected from these festivals to make a delightful evening for both to participants and audience.

Major B. McCool, assistant director of education for the department of education was the adjudicator for the evening. The S.H.E.A. was a non-competitive festival, Major McCool stressed the good points of each number and as well as giving helpful constructive criticism to pupils and teachers alike.

Some of the excellent qualities he mentioned were the diction, well done in the case of the children. He also said, as has been taught by the music supervisors repeatedly, enjoy your singing, watch your conductor, watch all the words in a phrase together.

Artistic Costume

Some children were dressed in costume adding artistic value to the festival. Among the schools went to Avondale with the boys dressed in white shirts and dark trousers and the girls in white blouses and dark skirts.

Mr. Glen Daugharty, president of the S.H.E.A. acted as chairman. The program, under his direction carried through smoothly without any tiresomeness or waiting between numbers.

Visiting Hunters Outsmarted By Tweed Farmer

Beef prices in beardom must be as high as those for humans.

Over in Horton township the other day, a bear with a yen for fresh beefsteak attacked a two-year-old steer in a pasture field. officials, the farmer blazed away at brute with apparently no effect.

The next morning the bear returned and dragged the carcass some hundred yards.

Again a bear Tweed district, three youthful American hunters being informer that no bears were in that vicinity, decided to try Grimsthorpe township.

No luck there, either.

But during their absence a Tweed farmer, Stafford Meraw, set a trap and captured a 250-pound brute which had been raiding bee hives in the district.

THEY ASK NO THANKS

There is a group in the city receiving little credit for the work it does from the people of both Belleville and the county. Last year, their efforts were recognized in some measure on an unofficial plane. The group is the Belleville and District Fish and Game Association, and their work has been conservation and aid in enforcing game laws.

Those who are not interested in the life of fish and game take little note, if any, of such associations. Indeed, it appears that even the members of the local association do not credit themselves with being valuable to such a great work. Last week, they were told just what they had done, and what clubs like theirs had accomplished. And the man who told them knew his business. He was a Department of Lands and Forests official.

Members of the executive of the club that mostly through their efforts there have been built up rearing ponds and hatcheries which will guarantee the fish population. Because they and others "pounded on the table" and "raised the roof" when the idea of filling in Lake Ontario was first broached, that was certain to prove disastrous to fishing within the next two decades, and a definite plan was laid out for reproduction of game fish.

In addition the local club aided Department men when pickerel were spawning. There are always unscrupulous operators who insist on slaughtering defenceless game fish at spawning time. The Department can only hope to curb these activities. The aid given by sportsmen's groups is interested in perpetuating the supply and in giving game fish a fair break. This year, the local club contributed more than ever to the campaign, and if the effort is a sustained one, there will forever be any question of a lack of support from sportsmen of Quinte.

The actions of such a club are motivated by a sense of fair play. They receive little publicity for their actions, and the thanks they get come very seldom. The public receives their work little thought, but it goes on irregardless. For their efforts, they rate a salute.

SLANTING OF NEWS

Three radio stations in the United States have been under surgey now for the reason because they are alleged to have served in the public interests. For three years, the hearings on their cases have been dragging on, and it appears that their guilt in disseminating partisan news is almost proven.

If the accusation is true an important principle of news dissemination has been violated. In a democratic country no source of news can afford to set itself up as a censor, or as a strict interpreter. That is not the function of radio press, or television. And the sooner the principle is made first by an aroused public, the better the dissemination will be.

Fortunately, in Canada there is little "slanting" of news. Only at election time, and in a few commentators, editors and writers have their normal sanity behind them in an effort to promote this or that to the hilt. In the general run, very little effort is made to twist news.

There is a difference between presenting a point of view and presenting news. Each person is entitled to his viewpoint but he should be protected from having someone else's rammed down his throat. The editorial page of a newspaper serves as a forum for the viewpoints of many. It may be used as an instrument of education, placing issues in a clear light. It may issue advice. The practice of trying to influence by power, however, is foreign to a free and fair press. So must it be with all instruments of communication.

NO BACKWARD STEPS

For the first time, the United Nations Assembly has voted to impose an economic blockade in the hope of stopping aggression. Its action follows a decision taken by Great Britain, and while the Assembly showed an unanimous vote, it does not mean that the whole world has lined up against communist China.

Following its usual line, the Soviet bloc in the United Nations refused to vote on the question. Their reasons are obvious. In addition, eight nations abstained from voting. They were Afghanistan, Burma, Egypt, India, Indonesia, Pakistan, Sweden and Syria. Thus the vote was 47-0 in favor of the economic blockade, and the United Nations probe another chapter in its history.

As well as writing history, the blockade may be the first of other steps in the active control of aggression. It is conceivable that the U.N. may follow up the economic shield with more powerful sanctions. If the trade agreement does not work, then all traffic may have to be stopped by naval or air forces. The United Nations and its members are deeply involved in Korea now; there can be no backing away from the issue, if the organization is to survive. The latest actions of the Assembly indicate that there will be no backward steps.

THE NOISEMAKERS

When they're shrieking, they are well.
When they're keeping very still
There's no sure sign to tell
They are feverish and ill.
When they're loud we don't say
And they wrestle and they brawl,
Right's no easier way to bear
When to have no noise at all.

When they pierce you with a shout
And your warnings they won't heed,
It's then, beyond a doubt,
That they're at their greatest need.

There are many times you'll
That their wildness must be
But it's better far that way
Than be never so disturbed.

"Tone it down!" you'll often call.
"Cut it out!" you'll often say,
And, you'll pack them, one and all,
Out of doors at times to play,
But although you plead for peace
And you scold them and complain,
If the noise should ever cease
You would want it back again.

OUR TOWN

A BRAVE FAMILY

Imagine for the moment that there's a certain family in your neighborhood who have passed through terrific times.

In the last dozen years they've gone from prosperity to the very brink of bankruptcy. One of their sons—the most promising—has died a violent death. The family has lives from day to day on the barest essentials, struggling to keep up a front of respectability.

Imagine further that this family, living like this, announces an open house for all the neighborhood and that this affair turns out to be one of the most exhilarating parties in anyone's memory . . .

This is the way, it seems to me, to think of the Old Country and the survival of Britain.

In the last week I've had letters from three friends, who tell in Fleet Street—men with sensitive fingers on the pulse of England. Each reports the glad stirrings of a new spirit abroad in the old land.

One puts it this way: "We needed a party like this as a sort of rendezvous. Now we feel we can be an England. The festival may have only a small effect economically, but it will, simply by the creation of it being a shot in the arm for morale. People are already talking of this show as the real beginning of a return to brighter times."

Another (and no lover of the Labor government) had this to say: "We'll be able to be dressed fully out of practice when it comes to standing, very, but I believe we are re-learning. The summer weather is here, there's music in the air, and the old loaks as if the old island isn't going to sink beneath the waves after all."

The third puts it very simply: "Come on party, old cock, and have some fun with us."

Not Socialism

I find all this evidence of vitality particularly exciting because so many Britishers' interests seem eager to bend over the broken body of Great Britain, to help to discredit his every beat —the body just refuses to lie down, or, indeed, to be discredited. Since Attlee's Labor government came to power the great bulk of the public interest even on this continent has been something less than fair to Britain. There's been a definite desire to discredit the Socialist experiment they've had to discredit the people of Great Britain as well.

Recently I interviewed a world-famous industrialist who is a British steel industry, a man with great sense of what is good and bad in Attlee and Company.

"You people are being completely misled about Britain," I was opening in England," he told me. "Our trouble is not Socialism, but the effects of the war. We're having these times simply because the war nearly brought us to our knees and before we must be ready for the next one. No one in England really believes that a Conservative government under Churchill or anybody else would have made any appreciable difference."

It is my own belief, that when the next election comes around—probably certainly in the next year—the Attlee government will be defeated.

This is not because Attlee brought Socialism to Britain. He did not. It will be because the experiment never had a fighting chance from the beginning and because the necessity for re-armament now gives it less chance than ever.

I believe, further, that England will return to Socialism, when it has the vigor to carry it through. Time Magazine, which always has a sharp harpoon ready for socialism, recently described the British brand as "a dry and appalling doctrine."

This is debatable as a prejudiced opinion, but it is pretty certainly true that "dry and appalling doctrine" is a thing that millions of Britons look to as sanity and as a way of life. It is at once a promise and a hope and a safeguard. Socialism is a code that it has never had the opportunity to succeed, thus cannot be called a failure.

Real Purpose

This Festival of Britain was born, of course, as most pageants are, for economic reasons. It will bring millions of pounds yearly from all parts of the world particularly from the United States—to bolster Britain's trade potential.

But there's every indication that it will have a good effect on the people at home, as well. They're getting a chance to lift their hour of trial and sound the trumpets for a time that promises a long way from being beaten.

I've been reading the words of the Archbishop of Canterbury, spoken at the opening ceremonies of the festival and in these words it seems to me is the real spirit of Great Britain today:

"The chief and governing purpose of the festival," he said, "is to declare our faith in the future of the British way of life, not with any boastful self-confidence, nor with any aggressive self-advertisement, but with sober and humble thoughtfulness for the creative forces of our traditions by those who have gone before us, for their inspiration and example, and for the blessings which have been brought to us and which we receive with a sober and humble trust that by holding fast to that which is good and rejecting from our midst that which is evil, we may continue to be a nation with a word of service to the world.

"It is good at a time like the present to strengthen, and, in part, to recover our hold on the abiding convictions, and that is best in our national life.

Those are noble words for a noble man. I wish I was as confident of Britain's future as I am willing to be around to join in the fun.

Britain's Govt. Certainly Is Political Enigma

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Britain's socialist government certainly is a political enigma, as witness the announcement that it is prepared to give monetary aid to gentry who live in stately mansions and are unable financially to maintain these "national heirlooms."

Of course the desire to preserve fine old historic mansions is quite commendable. But the idea of "gentry" fit into the picture? Do they also rank as "national heirlooms"?

The answer to this in effect is "yes." Under the law, the payments originally are granted as recognition of ability and worth. Thereafter they are the government looks on titles as monuments.

Moreover, there is the highly important fact that a part of the government rests in the peerage. The Labor leaders like to flatter themselves are determined to maintain the peerage, and the King has created numerous lords at the request of the present government.

Both the conservative and the labor (socialist) parties are agreed that inheritance taxes reforms are needed in the House of Lords, it is said, to make sure that the peers shall remain hereditary. Therefore, it would be automatic to all peers as at present. The idea is to eliminate the upper house by making it unimportant. There would be a considerable amount of "deadwood" and inactive members. Many of Britain's nobility and landed gentry have fallen on evil days because of terrific taxation. Great estates have had to be broken up to meet death duties.

The country is filled with ancient and historic castles and old mansions which many cases the present owners "live in a couple of rooms or let the rest lie idle or by acting as guides to tourists.

Many years ago Britain created a national trust to preserve its historic monuments, including mansions and castles, for the benefit of the nation. So the labor government, feeling that these places are included in the trust, has now announced that destitute gentry who can't afford to maintain the ivory towers of their ancestors can apply for cash loans from the treasury.

Now I'm not a socialist (or I did) whether he sees any inconsistency in his party taking such an extraordinary step. I'm curious and he will shake his head, with a quip:

That's a good answer to communism, old chap."

400 ITEMS NOW STANDARD

Washington, May 21 (AP) — The United States, Canada and Britain have reached some degree of standardization on about 400 items of military equipment, including sparkplugs, fuel and lubricants and wireless systems, it was reported Saturday.

It is not the purpose of the program to have identical weapons of manufacture, but rather that this is frequently not feasible due to differences in availability of materials, engineering conditions and other factors.

POPE ATTENDS

Vatican City, May 21 (AP) — The Pope Sunday attended Beatification Ceremonies for Rev. Julies Pilsset, at St. Peter's Basilica.

Father Maunoir was born at St. Georges De Reintembault Oct. 1, 1606. He entered the Jesuit order at Rennes in 1625 and spent 42 years working in Brittany.

The boy gave me a distasteful look.

"Sorry to have troubled you," he said politely, and added humbly, "But you get kind of used to people coming on the run, at gas stations."

CALLING ALL PHYSICAL INSTRUCTORS

It wouldn't matter so much if he were just a football coach, for it appears that high school football coaches are in too many instances not the qualified physical education teachers, if any, but half trained intruders who allow the physical education instructor aside and proceed to exploit the schoolboys for the pleasure of the community's sporting fraternity.

But when a physical education teacher solemnly tells the boys in his gymnasium class that getting wet through in a cold rain or breaking through the ice on pond, stream or lake is always dangerous because it may lower resistance, so that pneumonia will develop, it matters a great deal.

In the first place it is absurd to imagine that "resistance" may be lowered appreciably in a few moments—if you will lay back your head ears and inalist on calling it manly "resistance." No one has shown scientifically, by proof-party controlled experiment or otherwise that any degree of immunity a person has can be "aired" by a momentary ducking in cold water or by minutes or hours of exposure to damp or cold air or by wearing wet clothing for any length of time.

On the other hand, thousands upon thousands of hunters, trappers, soldiers, lumberjacks, woodsmen, fishermen, forest rangers, Arctic explorers and others who have experienced exposure to cold and wet have actually suffered no ill effects other than discomfort or in some cases frostbite.

Nearly everyone interested in amateur or professional sport has observed the "warming up" process which is the prelude to "getting off" precautions—for instance the pampering of a baseball pitcher and particularly his arm between innings. Is this really necessary? Indeed it is—but plain nonsense is your repetition of the half-baked reason why it is the correct practice. It may do readers more good to hear what old Doctor Fresh Air Fiend had to say about it. This is it:

"If anyone immediately after violent exercise proceeds to do other violent movements before he has softened the whole body by a bath and the secretions and opened the pores" (excuse it please — remember I never turned up his tose 1500 years before Harvey discovered that blood circulates) "he increases the danger of breaking or spraining some of the solid parts, but if beforehand you gradually warm and soften the solids and thin the fluids and expand the pores, the person exercising will run no risk of breaking any part."

PLENTY OF ROOTS

It is a constant source of wonder to the people of the United States as they see the stately palm trees which have withstood the storms with many times. These trees have an astonishingly small root system. But the reason they can take the heavy winds even better than the oaks and elms of the northern states is because the palm has so many little roots, and every one holds on for dear life and the hurricane cuts loose.

There is much to be said for the type of life which, like the oak, has great roots penetrating deep into the earth and supporting a towering head. But most of us are like the palm tree. Our roots do not go very deep, and that is why we are going to pass through life unscathed, we have to have a lot of roots going down into the subsoil. That is why people drink so much whiskey is because they have got so few roots that they can't forget—particularly to forget themselves.

The really happy people are the millions of undistinguished men and women who have a lot of their roots down into the soil of life—love of home and children, wholesome work, simple pleasures, interest in their neighbors, and a quiet ambition to get ahead a little.

Put plenty of roots down into the ground and hold on for dear life when the winds start to blow.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

About five p. m. on a fine afternoon ,we pulled into a prosperous-looking service station on the highway. We waited a minute or two, in the traditional spirit of service, but nobody came bouncing out to wait on us. We honked on the horn, and leaned out to look the place over. There was one apparently open door, and a boy of fourteen, very drowsy-looking and with an air of unconcern in relation to boys of that age, came reluctantly forth. He seized the gasoline hose and twirled off our gas tank cap.

"Did we wake you up?" I enquired kindly.

"No," said the boy briefly.

"Sorry to have troubled you," I said politely, and added humbly, "But you get kind of used to people coming on the run, at gas stations."

The boy gave me a distasteful look.

23 Persons Die Violently in East During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Twenty-three persons died violently in eastern Canada during the weekend.

A Canadian Press survey shows all the deaths were in Ontario and Quebec. Automobile accidents were responsible for nine fatalities, closely by drownings which claimed eight. Four persons died in a fire and the remaining two in other accidents.

Heading the toll in Ontario was the death of four firefighters who lost their lives Saturday in a $300,000 fire which destroyed a business block in Peterborough. The four men—Grover Deck, Orville Rose, George Reynolds and Earl Spenceley—were crushed by an avalanche of smouldering rubble when floors and ceilings of the burning building caved in.

Two persons were killed and seven others injured Sunday in a head-on collision between a car and a truck near Haileybury.

Killed were Teodore Ayotte, 19, and Donald Willars, 23, both of New Liskeard.

Peter Nadorosney, 59, died Saturday in London, Ont., of injuries received Friday when he was caught in the rising hopper of a giant cement mixer.

Winnipeg Mother in Big Business of Baby-Sitting

Winnipeg (CP) — Five years ago a young mother came from Calgary to find a problem that confronts all parents. She solved it not only for herself, but for thousands of others, by organizing the first baby-sitting agency in Winnipeg.

There seemed to be some organization to look after everything but mothers' desire to get away from each other," said Mrs. Michael Lachter.

"No matter how much a mother loves her babies, being with them constantly is too much after she has been used to an active life before marriage.

"I felt so strongly for all the mothers who moved into the city as strangers, or those who didn't want to depend on friends and relatives to relieve them of their children as often as they wanted."

When Mrs. Lachter moved here from Calgary with her two small babies, that was her position. She got in touch with a few teen-agers at first, but when she came home one night and found her sitter had thrown a party that was "the final straw."

She set up an office in the kitchen of her home, advertised through much red tape—no such business category was listed officially—she obtained an operating permit and before long "mothers' and sitters' files were running and the appointment book was never blank.

Reasonable Rates

She set rates everyone could afford.

"I only wanted this to be my service to the community, not a money-making venture," she said.

She rented office space in the Y.W.C.A. where she interviewed sitters. Nearly all chosen were responsible middle-aged women. This was no reflection on teen-agers, she said, but she knew that a woman who has raised a family can cope with any emergency.

She now has 150 sitters in every city district. They are dispatched by telephone.

Mrs. Lachter said the main problem was never the sitter or the children, but assuring parents that their children would be well cared for.

"I'm always hearing from the sitters how wonderful so-and-so's baby is. My sitters think this generation of children is just fine. Modern mothers give them such good care, and they are such an intelligent, healthy group."

Pretty Mouth Is an Asset

Haphazard lipstick application is a common beauty fault. To do a neat make-up job, lovely Denise Darcel chooses a long lipstick.

By HELEN FOLLETT

FACIAL beauty includes soft, strong, well-kept and perfectly molded lips. While the technique with the crimson pencil should be perfect, that is not the whole story. Operators in beauty shops have special treatments for putting mouth portals in form, giving a light massage that strengthens the surrounding fibres. When tissues soften, the first evidence of this condition may show up in tiny creases in these areas.

Interlacing Muscles

If the forty-age girls suspect that all is not well with their portraits, that the interlacing muscles have lost firmness, they would do well to follow the routine given by professional pulchritude helpers.

A muscle oil or fine tissue cream should be applied to the lips and surrounding flesh. Begin by rotating the thumb under the lower lip and over the upper one from left to right. Place the first finger on the upper lip, thumb at one terminal, second finger at the other. Keep the thumb stationary, draw up the lip ends to form a Cupid's bow. Do that a dozen times, letting the finger and thumb press down upon the teeth.

The next is known as a fluting movement, the flesh being picked up lightly and quickly as finger and thumb make the circle.

Make-up Details

Sloppy methods with the lipstick are common among our rush-about women who seem never to have time to attend perfectly to the details of make-up. Start in the centre of the upper lip, sweeping outward to one side, then to the other, keeping a clear, distinct line along the border of the lip. Changing the pattern by passing the coloring medium over the white flesh can seldom be done satisfactorily; it is best not to attempt it.

You will find some new shades of lipstick right now that are intriguing. Be sure to see that they are on a friendly color footing with the rouge you use.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop before supper, and I said, G, pop, look at Admiral Tricker, he's cutting the grass on his lawn. I never saw him do that before, I said.

By gollies it's the first time anybody ever saw him do it, pop said. His lawn is a diskrace to the nayborhood. Any time I've ever seen it being cut, one of his women folks has done it. I always had the idea that the Admiral was so busy spouting about what was wrong with the world, he didn't even know what was wrong with his own lawn. I think it's my duty to apologize to him. Or perhaps I'll compromise and just congradulate him, pop said.

Which he did, stopping and saying, That's a fine job you're doing there, Admiral.

Thank you, there's nuthing like a nice well trimmed lawn, that's a fact, Admiral Tricker said. It sets off the whole house, don't you think so? he said, and pop said, it sets off the whole nayborhood, so you have the satisfaction of knowing that you're really doing the nayboro a favor.

Oh, I dont give a hoot about the nayboro, Admiral Tricker said, and pop said, Then you're doing your own conscience a favor, and that's even more wurth while.

I cant say I'm doing that, either, Admiral Tricker said. I'm aiming to please somebody I haven't even seen yet. I've decided to sell the house, and when people come to look at it I dont want them to get discourraged by the looks of the frunt lawn. I'm doing a little painting inside that's been needed for years, he said, and pop said, I was write, I'm wrong, Admiral.

Proving lazy people need lazy reasons.

Festival Colors Worn By Royalty on Opening Day

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London (CP) — In London's most glittering season since 1939, feminine eyes turn with interest to the wardrobes of the Royal Family.

Women still discuss the exact shades of blue and pink worn by feminine members of the Royal Family at the official opening ceremony of the Festival of Britain, held in St. Paul's cathedral.

Some say it was true delphinium, others hydrangea, lilac or hyacinth. All, however, agree that the Royal choice for the opening ceremony stressed the colors of the festival emblem—pink and blue and the delicate cross shades pertaining to these colors.

Clothing shops of all kinds, from hat shops to large departmental stores, are already playing up the festival colors, including gold.

Seated in the cathedral the Royal party gave the impression of a blended floral display. The most outstanding difference in color, which only added to the floral theme, was in the dress of Princess Elizabeth. She wore a beautiful shade of cypress green in a tailored coat of silk faille. The deep green sheen of the silk was likened to the leaf of a young rose.

Millinery Note

Elizabeth did not, however, completely desert the pink and blue. Her close-fitting tudor-shaped hat was piped in moss rose which toned with the ribbon backing the glittering diamond star of the Order of the Garter.

The Queen's dress and caped jacket were a deep shade of delphinium blue with fox fur, dyed to tone, dipping down the back. Her matching hat of cobweb straw was trimmed in feathers, and diamonds sparkled at her ears, wrists and in the great diamond star flashing under her cape.

Seated next to Her Majesty, Queen mother Mary wore a paler shade of blue with pink flowers in her traditional toque bonnet. Her soft grey fox collar matched the grey of her diamond-studded parasol.

A full-skirted, tightly-waisted ribbed satin coat of pale blue shot with grey was the choice of Princess Margaret. Worn over a hyacinth-pink dress it gave a Dresden-China look that was accentuated by the bolt-upright hyacinth decorating her crochet straw hat.

Another truant from the blue and pink was the Duchess of Kent. Under a coat of snuff-brown faille she wore a champagne-colored apron-fronted silk dress and her close-fitting hat had pale fawn feathers flecked with yellow. Her daughter, the young Princess Alexandra, wore a schoolgirl's coat of Kingfisher blue over a straw-colored dress.

Fine Wool British Textiles Attract Royal Attention

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP)—At the International Trade Fair in Toronto, starting May-28, Canadian women will be able to view some of the materials that drew royal attention at the British Industries Fair and the Festival of Britain.

For instance, they may see a 60-foot-high stand of wool textiles that drew praise from the Queen at the Fair. She told manufacturers it "is a splendid idea to group exhibits on one massive stand, since viewing was made so much easier."

The Queen was interested in the fineness of the light-weight wools, some of which weighed only four ounces. Before leaving she congratulated the trade on its achievements in the export markets.

Queen Mother Mary, dressed in a grey fur-collared coat and characteristic toque, examined a textile pattern book and requested that a copy be sent to Marlborough House, her London residence.

With his love of tweeds, the King was interested in a display of Scottish Glenurquharts and the Duke of Edinburgh, as always, showed especial interest in the tartans.

Seek Best Fabrics

Manufacturers find that despite the rise in prices, overseas buyers still seek the best wool fabrics.

Overseas interest is especially directed towards the "country" tweeds of Scottish origin and the Scottish "finespuns" in which the Queen delights. The finespuns are made at Auchenbrae, with its half-hour run from Glasgow, and the 13 looms are worked by a staff of disabled war veterans. Among others, there are bespoke tweeds, facecloths, rugs and featherweight Saxonies.

The Edinburgh visitors can tour a store (Forsythe's) in Princess Street where a "confined" line of Orkney homespun dress is receiving attention. Edinburgh buys the entire yearly output of the Orkney crofters, all 150 pieces.

Other fabrics that drew overseas comment at the B.I.F. and the Festival of Britain are the fine cotton weaves, so light in weight and finish they can be classed as luxury materials. Many are produced for cream printing and the floral patterns are bright and colorful.

HIGH CROPS

Afghanistan, mountainous country in Asia, produces cereals, fruits and vegetables with aid of irrigation.

PRIMITIVE COOKS

Broiling is probably the earliest known process of cooking meat, done by burying it in hot ashes in olden times.

MODEL FOR INDUSTRY

A model factory has been built at Belfast as part of Northern Ireland's share in the 1951 Festival of Britain.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

by WINIFRED E. WILSON

WICKER BASKETS

If you want a neatly made, semi-circular, wicker basket, encouraging chimney birds to build in your chimney. Provide them with a dead tree from which they may cut scrap off little twigs as they fly past, and have no fire in your fire-place until some time in August when you are sure all the birds have left. Then put a stick-up the chimney and neatly knock down the swifts' beautifully varnished wicker-work nest.

The spring arrival of these birds in settled Canada is about the third week of May. Since Columbus came to America, they have shown a preference for our chimneys, although they occasionally still use hollow trees as was their old habit. Now they are on the look-out for a vacant house. Our summer cottages are in great demand, so that when we are ready to move in we may find a family already in residence. All swifts ask is to be left undisturbed in your chimney—but that means no fire for you. Unused, jumbled-down dwellings are very suitable, and frequently attract them.

Week End

Chimney swifts' week feet are no good for walking or even perching; however, they are just the things for clinging to bricks in a perpendicular position. Their rounded tails and fine spines, and are used to jab into the bricks for support. Dozens of tiny twigs are carried down the chimney, glued to an upright, inner wall and to each other. Generally a fiber of the chimney's dead leaves are set in near the join.

Four or five pure white eggs, unusually long and narrow, rest directly on the twigs, which have now only been stuck together, but glazed over with bird saliva. The glazing of chimney swift's nest is extraordinarily developed. It is the cement-like secretion which the male bird at the palatal edge, wrapping them to eat the insects.

Just about three weeks are required for incubation, the parents taking turns on the nest. The time of day spends the entire period of the old city. They can be differentiated from swallows by the contour of their bodies (no tail showing at flight), and the rapid beating of their bow-shaped wings alternately with long, sweeping sails. On returning home with dinner of flying insects trapped in their mouths, they lift up their wings, butterfly fashion, and drop into their chimney.

When swifts gather for fall migration, it is common for several families to use one chimney as a dormitory.

Diesel Engines, Mosquitoes Hold Key to Destiny of Town

Revelstoke, B.C., May 21 (CP) — Diesel locomotives and mosquitoes apparently hold the key to the destiny of this Rockies resort town.

The monster coal - burners which ply the tumbling freight ears over the continental divide are on the way out as the Canadian Pacific Railway replaces them with diesels.

The new locomotives threaten to eliminate Revelstoke as a mountain stop by screaming right through, whistling derisively at the coal pilot.

So Revelstoke is thinking about making the resort business its future. It would seem a good gamble, from the lookout on Mt. Revelstoke you can see 5,000 mountaintops on a clear day. In fact Revelstoke is attracting more skiers every year (it had a record 231 inches of snow last winter).

But in summer the mosquitoes are enough to drive a person to drink. They were so bad last year that even the golf course was shut down.

A full-fledged campaign against mosquitoes is under way this year. Sackfulls of sawdust soaked in oil are being dropped in the sloughs and surplus army equipment for spraying has been brought up.

Revelstoke started as a tough rail construction camp known as Second Crossing. It was named for Lord Revelstoke, who sank the famous last spike in the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Leave Your Mark

The gold rush days, when stern-wheelers used to ply the swift Columbia River, also left their mark on Revelstoke. Indeed, the Minto, a stern-wheeler boat which was brought from Ontario more than 50 years ago in 1,000 pieces, still lies in dry-dock, carrying passengers at a leisurely pace down the Arrow Lakes.

But diesels or not, the favorite story in this town of 3,300 is still a railroad story.

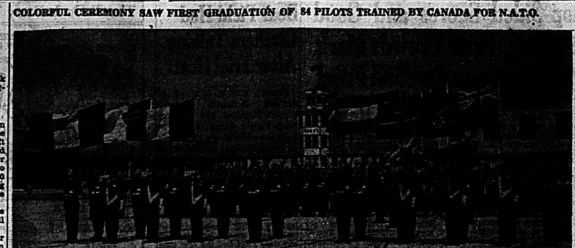
A retired railway conductor was permitted to set up house in an obsolete coach parked on an obsolete siding.

When the divisional superintendent first passed the coach he saw the old conductor sitting outside, in the driving rain smoking his pipe.

"I can't do this inside," the old man explained, "this is a no-smoking coach."

When the superintendent returned with a "smoking parlor" sign, the old conductor was pushing the coach back and forth on his bit of track.

He explained to the superintendent's wife that in the bathroom washing her hands and the sign says flush only when the train's in motion."



COLORFUL CEREMONY SAW FIRST GRADUATION OF 84 PILOTS TRAINED BY CANADA FOR N.A.T.O.

Flags representing six nations are seen flying at Centralia, Ont., as 84 men from Canada, Norway, Holland, Italy, France and Belgium received their wings in colorful ceremony. In address, Hon. Brooke Claxton, minister of national defence, declared that the wings presentation, first of its kind to be given trained by Canada for North Atlantic Treaty Organization, represented a great expansion in air power and training for the people of this country. Air Marshall W. A. Curtis pinned the wings on the graduates, while thousands of spectators looked on. Beaming envoys from the treaty nations took the salutes during the march past of the new pilots while Dakota transports, Harvard trainers and Vampire jets roared overhead. — Central Press Canadian.

Balkan Peninsula Could Be Second Korea Says Red Press

Vienna, May 21. (Reuters) — Will the Balkan peninsula become a second Korea?

The communist press in Austria says the Yugoslav army is indicated to attack their cominform neighbors, and that the United States and other United Nations countries will intervene on their side.

The similarities between the situation in the Balkans and in pre-war Korea are:

1. Both are peninsulas, one on the extreme east and the other to the extreme west of the communist block of countries.

2. Each has territory controlled by communists, territory not controlled by them. Like Korea, the Russians control, arm and train the troops of the territory on their side of the Balkan dividing line.

3. Just as there was always trouble between the populations of north and south Korea, so there has been trouble between the peoples of Yugoslavia and Greece on the one side and those of Bulgaria, Hungary and Albania on the other, since Premier Tito broke with the cominform.

Seems More Threatening

Recently this trouble seems more threatening. Words fly back and forth, each accusing the other of maintaining "a state of continual petty warfare", and protesting against "constant violation of territory through frontier incidents."

While such diplomatic tension isn't rare in post-war Europe, it is closely watched by diplomatic observers in Vienna, one of the few remaining windows where one can look both east and west.

There are certain signs suggesting the Russians will do nothing likely to precipitate a general war at present. These include reports saying satellite forces in Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Bulgaria are not trained and equipped for war.

And the political and economic situation in several satellite states is not yet sufficiently stable to risk war.

There are many reports of increasing Russian activity in the satellite countries.

It is difficult to verify these reports, especially now that the Russians work largely through officials who wear no uniform and who are bilingual. But reports of the strengthening of Russian forces are discontinued somewhat by the fact that these recur almost every year and are usually the result of normal Russian spring manoeuvres.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

READY FOR THE OPENER

This is it. This is the week-end the curtain opens on a far - flung front and in all phases of battle. Locally baseball and softball will be the king pins with the Belleville Redmen paying the lid off the Central Ontario Baseball League on May 24th at Bairds and being hosts to Peterboro at their home opener in Exhibition Park here next Saturday.

On the softball front the Glenroy Creameries and Howe and Hagerman softball squads open seasonal festivities at the Alemite Field stadium at 6.45 on Thursday, the holiday. On Friday Avon Jewellers clash with the Alemite team, who are replacing Northern Electric in the "A" loop.

The Redmen squad had a strenuous weekend at practice with some twenty to twenty-five players turning out. Coach Pat Wilson had the boys hopping yesterday and hopes to have the squad in shape for the Thursday opener.

Manager Bill Easton of the Bataws squad has high hopes for the Shoemen team this year. The other day he told this corner he has five hurlers composing the mound staff. These include Art Wrinkle, Don Semark and the veteran Gordie Mattii, and also a lefthander from Detroit. In addition, Easton said, he has acquired the services of pitcher Billy Greer, resident of Wellington, and a brother of the late Bob Greer.

Tommy-boy Dick Fowler won his first game in almost a year, extending Cleveland's winning streak to six with a 2-1 triumph for Philadelphia. The Indians, however, won the second game of a doubleheader 5-3. The day's smallest crowd, 10,158, saw the twin bill.

Won-Two Victories

Forty - one - year-old Emil (Dutch) Leonard was credited with both victories as the Cubs came from behind to whip Boston's Braves twice 4-3 and 5-4 to the delight of 42,663 Chicagoans.

Undefeated Ed Lopat pitched his seventh consecutive victory for the Yankees with a 7-3 triumph over St. Louis Browns before a crowd of 14,427. He also hammered his third home run of the season. Rain forced the postponement of the scheduled second game.

Hal Newhouser became the third visiting southpaw to go the route and win in Fenway Park this season as Detroit defeated the Red Sox 8-4 before 30,320.

Chicago's surprising White Sox made it four in a row on their traditional tough eastern swing, shading Washington Senators 5-4 before a turnout of 11,773.

Dodgers Strengthen Hold

When the smoke cleared, Brooklyn had strengthened its first place hold in the National League to one game. Chicago moved into second and Boston dropped from second to fourth. The Phillies climbed out of the cellar into fifth place and Cincinnati slipped into the basement.

No change took place in the American League race as the Yankees retained their two-game lead over the White Sox.

The Phils slugged seven Pittsburgh pitchers for 35 hits, 20 in the first game. Russ Meyer hurled the shutout. Their 17-0 victory ranked seventh among the Major League mark against the Indians 21-0 Sept. 15, 1901.

Homes by Jackie Robinson and Cal Abrams helped the Dodgers end Ewell Blackwell's five-game winning streak in the first game. Clyde King had a one-hit shutout until the seventh of the second game when Ted Kluszewski and Ned Garver homered for the Reds.

Both of Leonard's victories came in relief. The Cubs pulled the opener out of the fire with two runs in the eighth. Chicago repeated the stunt in the finale, scoring twice in the ninth on a double by Dee Fondy, a walk and singles by Bob Borkowski and Ransom Jackson.

Lopat yielded eight hits in going the route for the seventh time. His earned run average now is 1.29. Joe DiMaggio also homered, off losser Dick Starr.

Ed Robinson's double with two out in the ninth scored Orestes Minoso with Chicago's winning run over Washington. Robinson also hit a two-run homer in the fifth.

Fowler spun a neat three-hitter over the Indians for his first victory. The A's snapped a 1-1 tie in the opener as Gus Zernial, who had doubled, crossed when Larry Doby fumbled Wally Moser single and presented Bob Lemon with his fourth loss. Eight-inning singles by Harry Simpson and Bob Kennedy featured in Cleveland's two-run rally in the eighth that snapped a 2-2 tie in the second game.

Lop-Sided Scores and Good Pitching, Huge Crowds Mark Major League Baseball Front

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

When! What a Sunday spree Major League Baseball staged yesterday before a total of 211,- 816 persons.

Double-figure scores, overflowing crowds, a pitcher who won a doubleheader . . . all in a nutshell here's what happened:

Philadelphia Phillies sank the Pirates in a doubleheader 17-0 and 21-4 before the season's largest crowd at home—36,166. The Phils' Richie Ashburn collected eight hits for the day.

Brooklyn routed the reds in both ends of a doubleheader 10-3 and 14-4 before 29,427 Cincinnati fans.

St. Louis Cardinals rallied for five runs after the first two batters were retired in the seventh inning to come from behind and nip New York Giants 8-7 before 22,666 paid. Red Schoendienst batted in four Cardinal runs.

Tomahawk-belt Dick Fowler won his first game in almost a year, extending Cleveland's winning streak to six with a 2-1 triumph for Philadelphia. The Indians, however, won the second game of a doubleheader 5-3. The day's smallest crowd, 10,158, saw the twin bill.

Bear Field Had Clockers Talking After Trial Heats

Toronto, May 21—(CP)—E. P. Taylor's Brittania, Medway Stable's Libertine and Whittier Stock Farm's Scapa Blow won their respective King's Plate trials at spirited clashes before 20,000 sun-kissed racing fans Saturday, but a stretch-running colt named Bear Field—which finished third—had the clockers talking today.

Most of the entries for next Saturday's racing classic continued on to work out the mile distance and Bear Field had the best time of any — 1.43. Saturday's trials were at ⅝ mile compared to the 1⅛ mile for the plate itself—and it's the last ⅜ of a mile down that long, long stretch where champions are made.

The winners raced fairly well to form Saturday. Brittania, Winterbrook favorite and winner of $16,355 - third highest of any Canadian horse—last year, managed to withstand the stretch challenge of Mount Brance from the Double Mike stable. Brittania is owned by E. P. Taylor, Toronto and ridden by Gil Robillard, had the fastest time Saturday, 1.12 2-5.

Libertine, from London, Ont.'s Medway Stable, with Johnny Dennett aboard, won easily by two lengths in 1.13 to defeat Carsilla, daughter of two plate winners, Acers out of Puzilla.

The Winnipeg-owned Scapa Blow, ridden by Calgary apprentice Darrel Hartley,, raced the slowest, 1.13 3-5, but impressed with a mighty powerful finish down the straight-of-way to come from almost last place.

However, clockers who held stop-watches on the racers, were most impressed by Bear Field, owned by Jim Fair, Calnaville, Ont., owner-breeder-trainer, Bear Field often starts running fastest when the rest of the field are looking for a place to lie down. The trials for a purse of $2,500 each, did little to settle the question in what is undoubtedly the most open plate in 82 years of existence, the oldest continuously-run classic on the continent still has 44 three-year-olds, owned by British subjects resident in Canada, eligible for the purse of about $15,000 and 90 guineas present of King George VI.

With 39 entered Saturday the Ontario Jockey Club was forced to run the trials in three divisions for the first time.

Canadians Grab Prize Spots As British Hockey All-Stars

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 18 (CP) — The honor of all-star ranking has been conferred on 14 Canadian and Canadian-British fans during the 1950-51 British National Hockey League campaign.

Their reward of achievement was announced by the league's governing body, sponsors of the all-star poll, as the teams raced down the stretch with the championship in doubt until the final games of the regular schedule.

Selected by a panel of coaches, captains, referees and sports writers, here are boys ranked as the two dream teams. Canadian hometowns of the players are shown in brackets:

Three of the players, Zemlick, Richardson and Richardson, had comparatively easy going in the battle of ballots, the experts, however, fought hard before distributing the laurel wreaths among the contenders.

Fernholz Turns In Fifth Win Without Loss

(By The Associated Press)

One of the big reasons in Rochester Red Wings' drive to a contending spot in the International League pennant race has been the pitching of Jack Fernholz, 24-year-old righthander of St. Louis.

Fernholz turned in his fifth victory without a loss yesterday as he pitched the Wings to a four-hit 9-0 victory over Syracuse Chiefs.

The triumph moved the Wings from fourth to second place and left the Chiefs from second to third spot, a half-game ahead of the seventh-place Orioles.

Rochester supported Fernholz's classy hurling with a 12-hit barrage that Jay Van Noy, Clarence Kress and Don Richmond spaced between with home runs.

The Giants dropped a 6-0 10-inning decision to Toronto Maple Leafs in the first half of a double-header. Lew Morton broke up the game with a two-run homer. The night cap was called in the last of the fourth with Toronto leading 5-0 because of the Toronto Sunday curfew law. It will be resumed at a later date.

Montreal split a twin bill with Buffalo Bisons. The Bison's won the opener 6-3 behind the seven-hit pitching of Ernie Sillaman. Hank Biasatti paced the drive with a two-run circuit blast. The Royals bounced back to take the nightcap 4-3. Al Glonfriddo drove in a pair of runs with a triple.

Springfield Cubs defeated Baltimore Orioles 4-3 in a single game. Will Duffell stopped the Orioles on eight hits.

Grand Circuit Opens at Toledo For Long Season

(By The Canadian Press)

Harness racing's grand circuit will open its season tonight, starting a three-week stand at Fort Miami track at Toledo, O. Some two score trotters and pacers, eligible for the Hambletonian and Kentucky Derby, will try for early laurels here.

The three-year-old pace, one of the three-year-old trot, both to be run Thursday night, will serve as initial tests for the jug and the Hambletonian, respectively.

Joe O'Brien of Glasgow, N. S., an eastern campaigner, will be making his first appearance here.

There's a deal cooking to give football fans in Buffalo, N. Y., a look at something different—two Canadian teams in action.

An effort is being made to line up Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts of the big four league in a pre-season game in St.

Manager Jim McCaffrey of the Riders said Sunday night that Ottawa's new coach, Clem Crowe —who farms outside of Buffalo in the off-season—is working on the deal.

Delegates to the 38th annual convention of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association were arriving at Halifax and by tonight registration should be complete, the five-day sessions officially open Tuesday morning.

Officials are expected from the National Hockey League, American Hockey League, Amateur Hockey Association of the United States, the International Ice Hockey Federation and the British Ice Hockey Association.

St. Francis Xavier University of Antigonish, N. S., will apply to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to have its varsity team represent Canada at the next Olympic games, it was learned on Sunday night.

The application will be made at the C. A. H. A.'s annual meeting in Halifax Tuesday.

The Collegians won the Maritime senior title and lost to Dolbeau Cadiens in Allan Cup competition this year.

Fiery-tempered Leo Durocher and umpire Lou Warneke engaged in a heated argument at Wrigley man's Park, St. Louis Sunday shortly after Durocher's National League New York Giants were beaten 3-7 by St. Louis Cardinals. Both Durocher and Warneke denied reports that Durocher took a punch at the umpire. "Utterly ridiculous," Durocher said of the report.

Warneke said the New York Manager used abusive language after approaching him in the Cardinal dugout after the game ended.

Warneke said he is making a full report on the incident to Ford Frick, president of the National League.

At New York with captain John McPhail scoring a hat trick to spur Colics of the Scottish Football League opened their American tour by subduing the New York All-Stars of the American Soccer League 5-1 Sunday. The Colics led 3-1 at half-time.

Mildred (Babe) Zaharias was the Indianapolis leg of the weight-or-vane cross-country open golf tournament Saturday and took a two-stroke lead at the three-quarter mark of the 144-hole derby.

The tall slugger from Peoria View, Ill., added a 79 to her 72 Friday for a 36-hole score of 149. That gave her a two-stroke margin over Patty Berg of Minneapolis and Louise Suggs of Carrollton, Ga.

DONATING FULL PURSES

Paris, May 21 (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson, who has been promised nothing but exercise and maybe a few bruises as competition, opens his second European boxing tour tonight with a ten-round bout against Kid Marcel, the French middleweight champion.

The world 160-pound champion is donating his purse, all except a symbolic one franc, to the French Cancer Fund. Marcel is given little chance to go the route.

Waterloo Tigers In First Place Of Intercounty

(By The Canadian Press)

Unbeaten Waterloo Tigers took over undisputed possession of first place in the Intercounty Senior Baseball League during the weekend.

The Tigers, last year's champions, handed Brantford Red Sox their first setback, a 5-4 beating, before 2,500 fans at Waterloo.

In other intercounty games London Majors scored their first victory by blanking the still winless St. Thomas Legion 8-0; and at Galt, the Terriers served their second win, a 6-4 victory over Guelph Maple Leafs.

In Northern Ontario the Nickel Belt Baseball League got underway with a crowd of 5,000 on hand watching Copper Cliff Redmen edge Creighton Indians 7-6.

The Niagara District League opening was marked by victories for Welland Blokes 5-4 at Niagara Falls Forde; and St. Catharines Stags beating Townsends Dodgers 7-4 at Beamsville.

PLAYER'S LIFE THREATENED

Cincinnati, May 21—(AP)—The life of Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn Dodger second-baseman, has been threatened in at least two letters received in Cincinnati, Dodger captain Pee-wee Reese revealed Sunday.

It was known definitely that one such letter was sent to the Cincinnati Enquirer. The Cincinnati Police Department was reported to have received a similar letter.

Robinson's roomate, pitcher Don Bankhead, said their room was visited by two Federal Bureau of Investigation agents Sunday.

The Dodgers are here for a series with Cincinnati Reds.

Brampton, West Yorks Victorious In Lacrosse

Brampton, May 21 — (CP) — Brampton Excelsiors came from behind in the second period to defeat St. Catharines Athletics 12-5 Saturday night in the opening game here of the senior Ontario Lacrosse Association. Athletics led 2-0 at the end of the first period.

Bob Hilson fired four goals to pace the Brampton scorers. The top marksman for St. Catharines was Jim McMahon with two counters.

A WARHEAD SHELLS NEAR

Seattle, May 18, (AP) — The United States army's chief of staff, Gen. J. L. Collins, said Friday it is "just a question of time until we have shells with atom warheads." He told a press conference atomic weapons for ground-force use have not yet developed to the point where the world want to use them close to our troops."

Belleville Nips 6 Repair Depot In Soccer Tilt

The Belleville entry in the Eastern Ontario Football League defeated 6 R.D. Saturday at the latter's stadium 5-1, in a rather one-sided game.

Scott opened the scoring for Belleville with Leech getting the second goal shortly afterwards. The score was 2-1 at the change-over.

In the second half Leech scored his second goal followed by Scott with his second tally to give Belleville a 4-1 lead. Leech bucked in his third goal just before the whistle.

Belleville: Bisker, Jones, Findlay, Salter, Murphy, Barclay, Scott, Carter, Gemmel, Leech, Coe; sub, Grange.

Stews Shoemen defeated Brockville 1-0 in a tightly played game at Belaven Saturday afternoon in a regular Eastern Ontario Football League game.

Peterborough United defeated O'Sullivans at Peterborough 3-2 in a good game. A. Smith scored the first goal. The second tally came when Foster deflected a shot into his own goal. Smith ended the scoring in the second half with his second goal of the game to give Peterborough a 3-1 win.

The Bay of Quinte League game between Army and Navy Vet and Picton scheduled for Monday evening has been postponed.

The Kettle family is now starring in Universal-International's new laugh film, "Ma and Pa Kettle Back on the Farm," opening today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre, starring, of course, the popular Marjorie Main and Percy Kilbride, shown above with their adorable children. The new comedy hit was produced by Leonard Goldstein and directed by Edward Sedgwick.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, May 21.—(AP)—The public seems to like off-beat casting, so here is my offering for today: Franklin Pangborn as Perry Mason.

You might think that the glamor queen of the movies wouldn't know the first thing about TV, but she would about diesel engines. That's where she fools you. One of the smartest movie minds, she has been watching the new medium with the same cool calculation.

Miss Colbert, was one of the film stars of top calibre to make a video venture. She appeared on Jack Benny's show last month.

"I did it for two reasons," she told me. "1, because Jack is such a good friend of mine. 2. I wanted to see if television is like the movies. I found out it is.

"I think one of the reasons most of the actresses in Hollywood are scared of television is that they're afraid how they'll look in it.

I've seen some very beautiful women look like hags on TV. And I've seen some wonderful clothes look like rags.

Looks the Same

"So I threw three or four dresses over my arm and went over to CBS to test how I looked on a TV screen. I found out I looked just the same as I do on the movie screen."

The actress predicted a healthy future for Hollywood in the new medium.

"You've got to give people what they expect. And the public is too accustomed to the scope and action of movies to go for dramas that are limited to one or two sets. That is the theatre technique, and TV is not theatre. When you throw an image on a screen, you must use movie methods."

For Tuesday, May 22

Born, 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Makers of history. Investors, really progressive ideas seldom have quick universal backing. You may find obstacles for your good ideas now. Don't give up, keep trying.

April 21 to May 20— (Taurus) — Possibly less incentive than you need. Don't be fooled into a false security, so often done. The opportunities are here but must be ferreted out patiently, with consistency.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)— Set aside personal desires for more comprehensive good. Build day's activities on good judgment, shrewd management. Bear down on essentials, things worth while and achieve top rewards.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)— Your planetary indications argue for care and calm action, without any spirit of vindictiveness. The mods or means for carrying on will likely be the factor for or against success.

July 24 to August 22 —(Leo)— In early hours attend strictly to business, necessary task; don't complain, many are in more difficult spots; P.M. offers prestige, especially if your effort is well conducted.

August 23 to September 23 — (Virgo)— Calculating, arranging, organizing deserve accuracy, more care to put emphasis in right

Mrs. W. Sine Gives Talk at Film Council

James Churchill opened the recent May meeting of the South Hastings Film Council in Foxboro Public School by pre-viewing the film on oil. This film showed how, through the ages, the earth's surface and the various layers which form the earth's crust have been changed and oil has been stored up in deposits. Finally men have drilled and an oil well results.

One item of business was to move the payment of membership fee to Fed. of Eastern Ontario Film Councils.

There was much discussion re the religious items. A committee of the following members, Rev. W. Neelands, Rev. M. G. Clarke, Rev. A. E. Baker, Rev. Secker, Rev. McEachern and M. B. Sine, are to interest the various church groups and ask for their support. The council decided to subscribe $100 to the film purchase fund and reinsure the projector for another year.

The next meeting is to be held in Plainfield school with Rev. M. G. Clarke to arrange for discussion leader.

A nominating committee of M. B. Sine and Jim Churchill to bring in slate of officers at next meeting.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. Wanda Sine, of Belleville, was guest speaker, and spoke on "The Utilization of Films in the Public Schools." Following are some of the thoughts she expressed:

"The South Hastings teachers are veterans in teaching with films. Books stress that a child should be moved emotionally as well as intellectually. A good movie sound film can do this e.g. —the children of Holland, but the teacher must enter into it. It is an experience for the child.

Learning depends 75 per cent on sense of sight and the remaining 25 per cent on hearing. A picture is worth 10,000 words. There is an average gain of from 30 per cent to 34 per cent. Average children will learn as much as bright pupils. They learn faster, have an increase in interest, remember more, and have morals and class spirit improved.

Do not combine classes as efficiency drops due to social atmosphere created.

Before the show tell the pupils what to look for. Let the picture is much better than the object as all the pupils can see it.

Review Pictures

A teacher must preview the picture to be taught. She must know, what she intends to teach; have notes to cover gaps in film; warn pupils of weak parts of film, and check the mechanical part of film showing.

The film is most effective when there is student participation. Only show one film but show it two or three times."

A film "film tactics", emphasized what Mrs. Sine had been saying.

Refreshments were served.

Queen's Holds Graduation For 295 Students

Kingston, May 21 (CP) —Two hundred and ninety-five applied science and commerce students of Queen's were graduated at the annual university convocation of the faculties of applied science and the school of mining and administration Among them were 240 war veterans.

Hon. Charles A. Dunning of Montreal, Queen's Chancellor, capped the graduates and was assisted by Principal R. C. Wallace, who took part in his last official science convocation as principal.

Honorary degrees of doctor of laws were conferred on Sir James H. Dunn, Montreal industrialist; John B. Stirling, Montreal consulting civil engineer, and William P. Dobson, director of research for the Ontario Hydro Commission.

Sir James and Mr. Stirling received degrees of doctor of laws and Mr. Dobson a doctor of science degree.

Dr. Wallace, Queen's principal, presented the honorary degree recipients to the chancellor. He cited Mr. Dobson as one "who is responsible for significant and far reaching research in the development and transmission of electrical power.

Given Citation

Sir James, president of the Algoma Steel Company, was presented with a citation as one "who has made a very significant contribution to the progress of the mining and metallurgical industry of Canada and who has recognized, in a very practical way, the assistance Queen's University is giving to that industry."

The high standing of Mr. Stirling in the construction industry, and his history as a loyal and devoted son of Queen's were cited by the principal as he was presented to receive his degree.

In delivering the main address to the graduates, Mr. Dobson counselled them "not to think too much about security."

"No one is perfectly secure however elevated his position," he said.

End of a Chapter

By Edwin Rutt

Alice Pine stopped her car 50 [illegible] yards from the house. She wanted to gather first impressions of this place that might become her home for an indefinite period.

Of course, this was the home of Mrs. Halleck's letter had stated that it stood alone at the very end of Grosvenor Point. Well, this dwelling did. Beyond it Alice could see Long Island Sound. Its blue surface laced with white-caps by a strong May breeze.

That same breeze had made a partial confusion of Alice's amber hair. Now she tucked stray tendrils under her small hat and contemplated the home of Muriel Halleck, alias "Jo Palgrave."

The ground around it was generally flat, rescued from monotony by a series of interesting undulations. A sloping lawn on the Sound side ran down to a strip of beach. There were a number of shade trees and one magnificent weeping willow, its green old gold in the afternoon sun. A neatly clipped hedge surrounded the house.

The place looked nice. But Alice, personally, would never have put up a squarish, modern-ish building here. The setting called for something older, more weathered, more on a cottage style perhaps.

But doubtless the Hallecks had established practicality for the picturesque. And very sensible, if you lived in one place the year around. This house, with its glass blocks and generous picture windows, looked as if it would be

And the interior was decorator's dream. Alice started her motor and turned into a wide gravel drive. As she braked, the front door opened.

The woman who emerged and hurried toward her was small, trim, smart-looking, though dressed in casual beige cardigan and slacks. Her hair was pale blonde, upswept from a wide forehead. She had a vetreuna tone, a lightly freckled air to bridge and a good firm chin.

And so this was Muriel Halleck who wrote under the pen name of "Jo Palgrave." Alice had often seen her photographs in magazines.

"Miss Pine? It's so nice of you to come. I hope the drive wasn't tiresome."

"Not at all." Alice's slight hesitation was involuntary. She had been a little startled by Muriel Halleck's eyes.

They were enormous, and peculiar, so light a gray as to seem silvery. But tawny glints lurked in great black pupils like pin dots of fire. Alert, aware eyes, and the most arresting that Alice had ever seen.

She added: "I've been looking forward to coming. Your letter made it all sound so interesting."

Muriel Halleck smiled. "I hope you'll find it just that, if we can agree."

She's terribly alive, Alice thought. Bright and quick-moving, like her stories.

"Come along." Mrs. Halleck was saying. "I'm dying to explain everything."

Alice got out of the car and at once felt rather awkward. She stood five-seven in her stockings and had a tendency to stridge. Whereas the woman at her elbow moved with the easy grace of a cat.

Such of the house's interior as she saw on the way to Mrs. Halleck's study was, indeed, charming. Soft rugs, tasteful furnishings, good pictures.

The study itself was small and exquisite. It faced the Sound, overlooking the lawn. Alice had already seen. The walls were a cool-gray green. The north end was solid with bookshelves. There was a copper-faced fireplace at the south end. And the large picture window seemed to bring lawn and water right into the room.

"Sisters," Muriel Halleck pointed to a bleached pine table upon which stood an open typewriter, "is where the deadly work is done. Do sit down."

Alice sat in an overstuffed chair. Mrs. Halleck offered cigarets. "Do you smoke? I hope so, for you're going to be with me. I burn them in chains."

"Please."

Mrs. Halleck took the chair at the table. "Well, Miss Pine, I liked your answer to my advertisement better than any other. That's why I wrote practically begging you to come."

Alice hoped it was not mere politeness. The more she saw of this place, the more it seemed, literally, just what the doctor had ordered.

"First off," she said, "driving up was a pleasure. It can't be a hundred miles from New York."

"A hundred ten, Brent says. Brent's my husband. He's a painter, you know. And an illustrator."

Alice hadn't known it. But she nodded, said: "It's nice of you to have liked my letter. I do hope I can meet your requirements."

"Well, as I said in the ad, I need someone who can take short hand do exceptionally neat typing. I'd also like her to have some interest in writing. And there things that are being published. In other words"—Muriel's smile was frank—"I'm thinking of a person who'll be a little more than simply a—a stenographer."

"What I'm getting at," Muriel said reflectively, "is that a writer needs a certain sympathy. I don't mean praise, I wouldn't have a yes-woman. But I can't bear the idea of someone who just did the work and was left completely cold by it."

"You mean that you don't want an automaton?"

The silvery eyes regarded her appreciatively. "That says it perfectly."

"Well," Alice said, "I can take the shorthand and typing. I'm not a writer of course. But I love reading, and I've always—oh, lived with books. I think I have some appreciation, Mrs. Halleck. I'm sure of it."

"Mind going over your background again?"

"Not at all. There was school and college, as I explained. The war was on when I graduated from college. So I joined the WACs. And my—er, the man I was going to marry, well, he was killed in the Pacific."

She stopped, momentarily lost in bitter remembrance. Gil Parnum, black-browed, black-eyed, and an eternal laugh on his lips. Zeros, five of them, wheeling. It had taken five to, . .

Mrs. Halleck's voice, suddenly soft, brought her out of it. "I understand; my dear."

"Well, after the war I took a job in a New York advertising agency. Rather a hectic job. And this winter it got me. A doctor advised a complete change." Unconsciously, Alice sat forward. "I want to be very clear, Mrs. Halleck. There's nothing actually wrong with me. I had a sort of breakdown, which I'm about over. And that—that's all. Except that I can't remember whether I told you my age—28."

Muriel Halleck drummed her fingers on the table. "Would it surprise you, Miss Pine, if I engaged you? Right now?"

Alice Pine started. She hadn't expected to land the job so easily. But Muriel continued: "Why not? I think you'd be perfect. And your references are splendid. But do you have any questions of your own?"

"No," Alice said. "I ought to say, though, that the salary you mentioned is pretty—well, terrific."

Muriel waved, a quick decisive gesture. "Not for what I want. Listen! For years I've written stuff that editors and the public expected me to write. But now I'm blowing myself, to the luxury of a novel. Something I really want to do. I need the right kind of help. And I'm willing to pay for it."

"Well," Alice said slowly, "if you're sure you really want me, I'm ready to work for you."

"You mean now?"

Alice smiled. "Perhaps I was rather overconfident. But I packed a bag, on the chance that I might be staying. The other things I'll need can be sent up."

Muriel Halleck arose. She dropped a friendly arm around Alice's shoulders. "Why, that's splendid, I hadn't hoped. . . Oh my dear! I'm forgetting. You've had a long drive. What would you like? Tea? A drink?"

"Yes, please," Alice said. She felt a little stunned. A plush job had fallen into her lap. . . Or scarcely any selling effort on her part.

Tea was a pleasant interlude on a flagstone terrace beneath the study window. After it Muriel conducted Alice upstairs to a large airy bedroom.

"I hope you'll be comfortable here," she said. "In any case, it's private. You have your own bath, and my room and Brent's is miles away."

"Comfortable?" Alice looked at luxurious appointments and colorful drapes. "I should think so. It's lovely."

"Well, make yourself at home. Dinner's at seven-thirty. We have it late because of Brent. He's an unpredictable artist. He does a lot of his work outdoors and never comes home till the last whistle."

"I'm used to artists," Alice said. "We had plenty of them around the advertising agency."

"Then you know that they're no conception of time. Now I'll leave you for a while. I usually have a nap before dinner. Maybe you'd like one yourself?"

"If you don't mind, I'd rather walk around outside. And see the beach."

Tax Deductions At Source To Be Increased July 1

New Schedules Call For Deductions Up to 100 PC

Ottawa, May 22 (CP) —It's going to cost more for publishers to send newspapers and periodicals through the mails.

Part of the increase in general sales tax will be softened by elimination of a system under which papers carrying more than 50 per cent of any issue's advertising pay four cents a pound for that part taken up by ads as against 1-2 cents a pound for the weight made up by the rest of the

But postal officials said, the general effect on the changes will be to boost from 50 and 100 percent the cost to most publishers of sending papers through the mails.

There, however, are the new and old figures.

For newspapers and periodicals published daily and having a circulation of 10,000 or more—four cents for each pound weight or fraction thereof. Old weight 1-2 cents plus the advertising charge of 50 applied.

For ads with less than 10,000—2 1-2 cents instead of 1 1-2 plus the advertising charge.

For bi-weeklies with 10,000 or more—Three cents instead of 1 1-2 plus the advertising charge.

For bi-weeklies with 10,000 circulation—2 1-2 instead of 1 1-2 plus the ad charge.

For weeklies with less than 10,000—2 1-2 instead of one plus the ad charge.

For weeklies with 50,000 or more—Three cents instead of 1 1-2 plus the ad charge.

For monthlies with 10,000 or more—2 1-2 instead of 1-2 plus the ad charge.

For monthlies with less than 10,000—2 1-2 instead of one cent plus the ad charge.

The post office also plans to boost the rates for publications sent by mail to people within the postal zone where the publication comes out, or in other words for local delivery.

These rates were one cent for each four ounces. They will be two cents for four ounces and one cent for each additional four ounces.

State Coal Prices Will Be At '50 Levels

Toronto, May 22 (CP)—Coal prices in Canada next winter will be up to levels set in 1950, said delegates attending the annual conference of the Canadian Retail Coal Association Monday. D. E. Lockyer, vice-president of the association said he expected last year's prices of $16 a ton at the Toronto would hold steady throughout the winter.

Trenton, N. J., May 22 — (AP) Convict Walter Thompson slid head - first into second base yesterday in a State Prison League baseball game. Ten minutes later he was dead. The coroner said Thompson died of a broken neck.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, May 22 (CP) Synopsis: The sun has slipped southward as the snow lakes. Little change in temperature will be noticed in eastern regions where the sunshine will make it pleasantly warm. A minor disturbance in the State of Missouri is moving slowly eastward. Cloudiness associated with this storm has entered western sections of the province and by Wednesday will cover most of Southern Ontario. Rain is expected over southwestern Ontario Wednesday as the disturbance moves closer.

Ottawa, May 22—(CP)—Starting July 1, when new income-tax rates go into effect, employees will pay nearly all of their income tax through deductions at source.

Previously, the government collected about 95 or 96 per cent of the income tax by employer deductions. This percentage will move up to more than 97 per cent and in many cases, 100 per cent.

New schedules, covering 90,000,000 have gone out to the district income tax offices for distribution to employers. The tables incorporate the new 20-per-cent "defence surcharge," the tax increase announced by Finance Minister Abbott in his recent budget. They show the amount the employer must deduct from employees.

Employees making an even number of dollars a week, for example, will pay 100 per cent at source. However, an employee making $30.75 will pay 97 or 98 per cent, or his tax in thirtyes.

For many taxpayers, it will mean a clear conscience next April. Their tax will be paid up.

Pet Chow Dog Mangles Owner

Toronto, May 22—(CP)—A pet Chow mangled its owner at a Scarboro Beach home Monday, sending him to hospital with severe bites about the arms and abdomen.

Thomas Matthews, 50, took the Chow to the ball park for an evening run.

"I saw him going for another dog and I thought the dog was going into a fight," he told police. "I grabbed him and he turned on me."

The dog was pulled off by Ross Cromb, 17, and James Munro, 16. Both men will be held in pound for 14 days until a rabies test can be taken.

Moscow Greener, Lights Brighter To Writer After Eight Months

(This is how Moscow looks to the AP's Eddy Gilmore, back in Russia after eight months in the United States and France. Gilmore has been stationed in Moscow since 1941. This dispatch was subject to the usual Soviet censorship.)

By EDDIE GILMORE

Moscow, May 22 — (AP) — Eight months has made a difference in 800-year-old Moscow. The skyline has shot up closer to the heavens. The city is greener and the lights on some streets definitely brighter.

The day's burning topic seems to be soccer. The first question a Russian taxi driver asked me as I returned to the Soviet capital after nearly eight months in the United States and Paris was "Did you hear today's football score?"

The cold war also is a topic. The conference of foreign ministers deputies in Paris, American rearmament, the Atlantic Alliance, President Truman, State Secretary Dean Acheson, the U. S. congress and the Korean War come in for lively comment.

But certainly there seems to be no war scare here, or among the few Russians with whom I talked at the Leningrad airport.

At the Brest railroad station, making extensive plans for summer vacations. Children are looking forward to the end of the month, when school closes.

There is much interest in next year's Olympic games, in which the U. S. S. R. will be a big competitor. (It is the first time for the Soviet Union.)

Each time one returns to the Soviet Union, one cannot help but be impressed by the age-old kindness of the Russian people. Customs officials in Leningrad were considerate and quick. When they asked if I did not want a glass of tea in the airport restaurant, I replied that I had no Soviet money in my pockets, and was told: "Oh, that's all right, you can pay for that some other time."

BILL INTRODUCED TO OVERHAUL POST OFFICE ACT

Board Will be Formed To Hear All Protests

Ottawa, May 22. (CP)—A 1930 controversy over refusal of the use of the mails to certain Canadians has brought results in the Postmaster-General Rinfret introduced in the Commons yesterday a bill to overhaul for the first time in decades the Post Office Act, the law governing the handling of Canadian mails.

It contains a new section providing for establishment of boards of review to hear protests from Canadians the post office has refused use of the mails.

The background is a 1930 controversy that broke when the post office cracked down on certain men, notably in Toronto, who officials said, were thought to be using postal facilities to obtain money under false pretences by trying to sell bad stocks.

There were protests at the time that the men had no adequate recourse for a complaint. The government now has undertaken to give them a three-man board to be appointed by the Postmaster-General to recommend to him whether any such crackdowns should stand.

Refusal of the mails means that the post office employee collects mail from nor delivers it to such people.

Another major development in the bill is one which will boost postal rates for newspapers and periodicals in order to raise revenues for the post office in those fields by $2,000,000 or more than 50 per cent.

Officials estimate the new rates will boost postal costs for most newspapers between 50 and 100 per cent.

The post office bill was simply introduced. There was no debate. On Tuesday's big debate came on a motion to have the recent Torquay tariff agreements put before a committee for detailed study.

Want Trade Boosted

Led by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, opposition members hammered at the government to do something to boost trade with the British commonwealth. Members said Canada is putting too many eggs in one basket in trading more with and more trade with the U.S.

Mr. Drew urged people to initiate a Commonwealth conference on trade and mainly to do something about collaborative convertibility. He was backed by Social Credit leader, backed the conference idea, saying Commonwealth trade could be much balance world trade as a whole.

Naturalists Among Canadian Troops Find Many Similarities Between Korean, Home Plants

(By BILL BOSS)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadians in Korea, May 22 —(CP)— A conversationalist with life now that spring is here fascinates many Canadians in Korea.

Lieut. Murray Edwards of Kelowna, B.C., scanning the countryside as he goes about his duties with the 2nd Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, has found Kelwa's wild life abundantly similar to Canada's.

And for disbelievers who still find this an altogether "different" if increasingly beautiful country, Edwards has a collection of flowers he has come across since spring has brought the landscape to life.

The 31-year-old officer, who at one time worked in Toronto post office and was an army conscription selection officer before joining the Patricias in Vancouver, is from Orient a hobby begun as a boy back home.

Flowers have been his continuous study, and he has drawn, painted, photographed, collected and pressed them.

Of 18 varieties of wild flowers in Edwards' Korean collection, he says all but two or three are found in Canada.

Included among the specimens are white, blue and dog-tooth violets; trillium; buttercup and dandelion. He has found wild strawberry blossom identical with Canada's, and narrow blue flag-lillies.

Azalea abounds in the hills with a profusion that rivals the "Cornices" of the French Riviera.

Called 'True Flower'

The azalea has special signifi- cance for Koreans, who call it the "true flower". It symbolizes fidelity. Paper-mache mats as well as female—sweethearts and members of families present one another with great bouquets of it, swearing fidelity to the relationship they represent.

Edwards is so convinced that the similarities between Korean and Canadian wild flowers are even more extensive that he has sent home his flower book.

Also a tree-spotter, he has identified, among others, chestnut, birch, pine and cedar. Cultured fruit trees here include the apple, pear and cherry.

Not that Korea is extensively treed. Its bald hills and mountains, covering three-fifths of the growth, are eloquent of the need for reforestation. But where trees are left the similarities are there.

The little bird-watching isn't regimental pastime, Patricias have seen starlings, swallows and bluebirds, but no robins. The Korean crow is almost raven-sized, while the native magpie, equally decorative as in Canada, is smaller, blue and white plumage.

The brush-tailed pheasant is the Korean pheasant, plentiful in many of the areas through which the Patricias have moved.

Its rare snakes. Sgt. Frank Taylor of Montreal, Field Hygiene specialist, has been warning Canadians to be careful between sentry about two feet long found in the hills. Many Koreans, most of whom are afraid of snakes, however, die annually of snake-bite. Taylor's teaching is to stanch the wound with a knife to encourage bleeding and to suck it. The combination of drainage and suction on the spot should remove most of the danger, he says.

Scattered Showers Bring Some Relief to 2,000 Men Fighting Fires in Quebec

Quebec, May 22—(CP)—Bush fires burned today in many parts of Quebec and the fire hazard remained in Ontario and New Brunswick forests.

Scattered showers yesterday and last night brought some relief to Quebec where 2,000 men were engaged in fire-fighting. Today a number of fires were still reported out of control.

These fine spring days are the most critical time of the year in Canada's vast timberlands. Spring vegetation has not fully burst out to act as a fire-break.

Drenching rains are needed to see the forests safely through to the mid-summer months when they bring the next period of danger. Quebec's worst fires are in Chicoutimi district where 1,000 men are fighting a blaze at Ferland that swept into lumber yards yesterday and destroyed a stock of 110,000 logs.

A fire in neighboring Lake St. John district, where another big, thick forest was reported to have burned a mill and 250,000 feet of lumber.

The situation was improved generally in other areas, but experience though forest protection service officials studied the possibility of applying chemical bans to the most dangerous regions.

Ontario reported no serious outbreaks since a week-end shower. fires were brought under control.

A rash of fires broke out in northeastern New Brunswick but all the smaller ones were brought under control.

Henri Kieffer, chief of Quebec's fire protection service, warned today that fires in Temiskaming are under control everywhere except in two townships and the situation is improved over yesterday.

Ashibi and St. Maurice districts, where fires were reported yesterday, were relieved by showers.

The province's seventh outbreak at present is the fire at Ferland. Fires at Begin and Tremblay are not under control but are not serious.

New Brunswick fires were reported in the St. Arthur area of Restigouche county, and 400 men were on duty yesterday. Another outbreak at Dundee, about 25 miles away was brought under control by 50 men.

Yesterday afternoon a "fairly large" blaze was spotted at Elm Tree, in Petit Rocher area.

FAN RESENTMENT AGAINST BRITAIN AND U.S. IN IRAN

Mass Rallies Called By Religious Leaders

Tehran, Iran, May 22—(AP)— Iran's Moslem religious leaders and her communist underground —both sworn to drive foreign oil interests out of their land—called mass rallies today to fan growing resentment against Britain and the United States.

The Moslems, who threaten holy war if Britain resists nationalization of their giant Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, called a demonstration to "express hatred against interferences which violate our independence." The rally also is aimed against the United States taking any hand.

The underground Tudeh (communist) party, which opposes Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's electoral reforms and accuses him of dallying on oil nationalization, has summoned a meeting of trade unionists this morning. This also is intended to develop into a blast against Britain and the U.S.

Anti-British and anti-American sentiment flying in both press and parliament following last night's diplomatic protest in which Iran's nationalist government accused the U.S. of interference in its internal affairs by siding with the British in the critical oil dispute.

Foreign Minister Bagher Kazemi handed to American Ambassador Henry F. Grady a formal protest against the state department's declaration that it cannot accept which the Iranians view as a support of Britain.

The American statement had said the U.S. would "strongly oppose" any Iranian action to cancel the Anglo-Iranian concession by nationalizing Iran's oil resources.

Western diplomats are frankly alarmed by the rising storm of resentment whipped up by the national front.

Will Not Use Force

London—(AP)—An informed source said today British has "absolutely no intention" of using force under any circumstances in the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company dispute. He said that no military has been consultation first with the United States.

Another authoritative source said Britain would not use force in any case except to protect its citizens and then only if British subjects and British property in Iran were attacked from the outside. Employees in the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, Britain's chief nationalizing, is owned by the British government.

A week ago, Britain put at the alert her trouble-shooting 16th parachute brigade group at Aldershot, but gave no reason.

A foreign office spokesman insisted today that the alert certainly had nothing to do with the Iranian crisis, although is was interpreted in Tehran that Britain has a treaty with Iran under which she can send forces to fight off foreign intervention.

Enemy Attempts To Expand Wedge In S. Korean Lines

See-Saw Battle Rages In Eastern Mountains

Tokyo, May 22 (AP) —Allied troops advanced in western Korea today, probed an ominous Chinese build-up on the east-central front, and fought to stem a red sweep in the east.

Infantry troops waged a see-saw battle in the eastern mountains 25 miles south of parallel 38. Communist troops were trying to expand a wedge driven in South Korean lines near Sokas.

Adjust Lines

Front-line reports said South Koreans were forced to adjust their lines for 25 miles eastward to the Sea of Japan. All dispatches referring to this action were heavily censored.

This fighting was on the eastern flank of the heroic United States 2nd Division which backed four Chinese corps to pieces in a fierce offensive started last Wednesday.

Second Division patrols probed northward Tuesday into a new force of 130,000 Chinese reported massing north of their lines for a strike.

Showdown Battle Indicated

AP Correspondent William C. Barnard said the new Allied aggressiveness and the enemy buildup indicated a showdown battle.

However, AP Correspondent Tom Wolfe said reported scouts found no sizable Chinese concentrations immediately in front of the 2nd Division, Tuesday afternoon.

Planes and artillery backed air reds withdrawing on the west-central and western fronts.

The U.N. officer said he saw nothing "too significant" in this northward movement. He called it a slowdown. He said he placed an fensive "definitely petered out in the last three days."

"But," this officer cautioned, "the enemy is still capable of continuing his advance."

U.N. patrols reported entering valleys stacked with Chinese dead.

In the far west, a strong task force of Britons into enemy territory and South Koreans pushed within five miles of parallel 38.

BODY IN DEEP WATER

North Bay, May 22 —(CP)— Three days or dragging in Trout Lake failed to turn up the body of Stan Thomson, 29-year-old Trans-Canada Air Lines Traffic Agent missing since early Saturday.

Thomson left a Trout Lake tourist camp in the morning of business to return to North Bay in a skiff with an outboard motor. The boat was found floating right side up full of water.

Water depths in the search area range to 500 feet and draggers have no idea of the exact spot where Thomson may have drowned.

W. F. Morrissey, national president of the association, flew here today to arrange for disposition of the grant. The Toronto share is $1,000 and will be distributed by a two-per-cent additional take from money until the other $1,000 is obtained. Jackie Ormstrand of the Montreal track will assist Morrissey.

Latour Hanged For Knife-Slaying Of Cousin's Wife

Sudbury, May 22—(CP)—Adelard (Eddie) Latour paid with his life early today for the double-knife slaying of his cousin's wife, Mrs. Cecile Rainville, 23.

The thick-set, swarthy bushworker walked calmly to the gallows after receiving the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church.

Dr. P. E. LaFlamme, coroner, pronounced him dead a few minutes later. His body was taken to the Roman Catholic Cemetery here for burial under the supervision of Sheriff Arthur Manley.

Latour was convicted twice of the killing of the woman in her basement apartment here on Sept. 12, 1949. At his first trial he was sentenced to be hanged on May 15, 1950. An appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada won him a new trial.

On his second appearance in court he again was convicted and sentenced to be hanged May 15. On May 10 he was given a reprieve until May 22. Another appeal to the Supreme Court was denied by Mr. Justice Patrick Kerwin, a further appeal for executive clemency also was denied.

At both murder trials the Crown brought out that Latour stabbed Mrs. Rainville 34 times with a hunting knife. He claimed from her apartment with blood on his hands a few minutes after she was found bleeding from stab wounds.

The 50-year-old bushworker claimed in his defence that Mrs. Rainville made improper suggestions and struck him with the knife when he rebuked her.

A priest visited Latour every day during the time he waited in hope of a reprieve or commutation of his sentence. Jail officials said he became deeply religious during his last weeks.

11 NEW FIRES REPORTED

Toronto, May 22—(CP)—Eleven new forest fires were reported out of control in eastern Ontario today after a severe lightning storm.

Lands Department officials said most fires were small with the exception of a 400-acre outbreak in Colonsay township near North Bay. All the new fires are in the Chapleau, Gogama and North Bay pine belt mixed bush district where little rain fell during the storm.

Officials said 32 other fires in the province were under control or being patrolled.

$4,000 FOR RELIEF VOTED

Toronto, May 22 — (CP) Horsemen who ran 30 mounts last week in the Blue Bonnets race at Montreal will receive $4,000 in relief voted at a general meeting last night of the Ontario Division of the Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association.

Canadian Ground and Air Crews Seeing World Via Korean Airlift

McChord Field, Wash., May 22 —(CP)—Bumping into an air force buddy on a Tokyo or Honolulu streetcorner is becoming a routine for U.S. and Canadian crew here as waving to a chum in the ball park back home.

The ground crew as well as crew of Canada's 426 transport squadron are seeing the world, courtesy of the Korean airlift.

The men who normally have to sit on the home field and watch the air crews making off for far places are getting their chance, too.

They are buying souvenirs in Tokyo's Ginza—the chief shopping district—strolling on the beaches of Waikiki and coming home with stories of their travelling behind them.

It is part of the R. C. A. F. plan to give ground crews a taste of what their North Star aircraft are doing on the lift, in mile-long nags a bigger operation than the famed Berlin airlift.

Canada's single squadron has completed 14,000,000 passenger-miles across the Pacific and has yet done 5 per cent of the lifting of troops and war equipment.

The rotation scheme sends ground crew as well as air crew used by the R. C. A. F., Haneda to Tokyo, Elmendorf at Fairbanks, Alaska, or Honolulu. Besides this, when there is room on the plane, many of the ground crew hop 5,000 miles to Tokyo for a 48-hour leave.

In their starters here, the men who keep their planes flying have assembled multitudes of knick-knacks picked up in the Orient—yo-yos which light up when spun, China Geisha dolls, Japanese "flying saucers" and the like.

The squadron joined the airlift last July. The end is not in sight yet.

Achieves Ambition Thanks to Fishing

Joe Njakara landed in Montreal from Yugoslavia in 1950, owning a $5 bill, the clothes on his back and nothing else.

He worked his way to Vancouver and signed on a fishing boat as a deckhand. Nine years later he was skipper of his own vessel, the Snow Cloud, and was a naturalized Canadian. He had prospered by the salmon and herring that filled his nets.

Joe had enough money to try to bring his mother here but the German merchant fleet, Yugoslavia and he couldn't arrange it. A year ago, the Canadian government renewed its representations and finally the red tape was untangled.

An airliner that landed here a few days ago from the east brought an old lady with tattered sandals and a battered suitcase. Joe's mother had completed a long journey.

The big, strapping fisherman wept unashamedly as he took his 71-year-old mother in his arms. Fifteen years of separation had ended.

In her native tongue, eyes smiling at her son, the tiny old lady said: "I have never been happier in all my life."

"You can thank the fish," said Joe.

Members of Law Associations Hear Timely Address

On Saturday the Prince Edward County Law Associations held a special meeting at the Court House, Belleville, to hear an address by John D. Arnup, K.C., of Toronto, on the subject "Appeals to the Court of Appeal".

This address is one of a series being given by prominent members of the profession, to local county Law Associations, under the sponsorship of the Ontario Legal Education Committee, a committee of the Canadian Bar Association. The purpose of the lectures is to familiarize the members of the profession throughout the province with some of the more difficult aspects of the various branches of law and also to bring to their attention any new decisions or legislation affecting legal practice and procedure. The speakers on the various subjects are all men of exceptional ability in their chosen field, with the result that the members of the profession in the outlying counties throughout the province are able to obtain the best possible guidance in the various problems which confront them and are thus better able to serve the public.

The meeting was well attended by the members of the profession from Hastings and Prince Edward Counties and there were a number of lawyers present from other surrounding counties. Following the meeting, the members enjoyed an informal dinner at the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club.

The secretary of the Association reports that it is hoped to hold further meetings of this nature in the fall of the year.

Drug Treatment for Control Of Cancer Within Ten Years Dr. A. Smith Tells Kinsmen

The prediction that drug therapy treatment for the control of cancer would be available within ten years was made here Monday evening by Dr. Austin Smith, Chicago, editor of the American Medical Association Journal.

Dr. Smith, holding a responsible position with the American Medical Association, was speaking to members of the local Kinsmen club and to guests including members of the local medical association.

Referring to the so-called "miracle" drugs such as penicillin and sulpha drugs, which have been developed since the middle 1930's and the place they have filled in controlling infection, Dr. Smith noted that already drugs have been developed which will control certain types of cancer. In other cases drugs could reduce the pain of cancer victims and allow them to die a comfortable death.

Would Not Control All Types

But the speaker did not expect that one type of drug would be developed that would control all types of cancer, "No one type of drug will control cancer or prevent it," he said.

Just as tuberculosis had been beaten to the point where it is seventh on the list of killing diseases instead of second, and as smallpox had all but been stamped out, Dr. Smith held out hope for the sufferers of high blood pressure and the like disease. The elderly people would be conquered, he said, as polio would eventually be conquered.

Medical research had come a long way since the day of medical folklore and superstitions held by many people up until the turn of the past century. The middle of the 1930's was termed "the dawn of modern therapeutics" and since that time the progress had been almost unbelievable.

First Used in 1936

Sulpha drugs had first been used on this continent in 1935 with Queen's University research doctor being among the first to use them in Canada. It was found that these early sulphas would control bacteria and infection, but since then the progress has been so rapid that the first sulphas introduced are no longer in use because of the development of others more effective.

Today in case of pneumonia could be controlled with but 50 cents worth of drugs. This was a far cry from the day when one third of all people contracting pneumonia died. Today the death rate from this disease is less than one per cent and could practically be ignored. This had transpired in less than ten years.

Penicillin was described as the "war baby" of the last war, a joint effort on the part of allied nations having brought production to a point where literally tons of the drug was produced.

Penicillin had saved countless lives during the last war and was doing the same in Korea today. But its mass production had meant something else—greatly reduced

Opening of Radio Canada Building Of Special Interest to Belleville

By R. H. TANNER

Special to the Ontario Intelligencer—Last Friday's opening by Dr. J. J. McCann, minister of National Revenue, of the CBC's new headquarters and studio centre in Montreal is an event of especial interest to Belleville, since the mammoth master control system which forms the technical heart of the set-up was designed and manufactured here in the plant of the Northern Electric Company Limited.

This company, apart from its main function of feeding programs from the studios to the various networks, transmitting letters, includes facilities for the automatic switching of programs to the local recording studios as well as a dial system which allows executives throughout the building to check any program they wish. Altogether, it is the most comprehensive and modern set-up on the North American continent, perhaps in the world yet, because of its many novel features, it requires only one man to supervise its working.

Result of Long Planning

The opening of the building marks the completion of a long term plan for uniting all the Montreal studios, which were under one roof: previously they had been scattered around the city in five different locations, in quarters far too cramped for their rapidly expanding operations. Now the CBC operates the most extensive network system in the world under one French language networks as well as the international service, broadcasting to the world in fourteen different languages.

In its decision to take over and convert the 12-storey Ford Hotel, rather than build a new centre of its own, CBC was influenced by many considerations, one of the most important being the time factor, in spite of consideration scepticism at the outset, the final result would appear to justify completely the plan of action adopted.

In its new form, the building accommodates twenty-six studios serving the sound networks, with three more in an as yet unfinished extension for the new television station due to start operations some time next year. That so great a proportion of the facilities provided should be devoted to sound broadcasting rather than TV gives an indication of the CBC's conviction that in a country so widespread as Canada, it will be many years before the medium is entirely replaced by its younger and more glamorous sister.

Compact Arrangements

All the studios, together with the master control room and recording room, are located on the two lowest floors, forming a relatively compact and readily accessible technical area, the remaining 10 storeys are occupied by offices housing the national headquarters of the personnel and administration and engineering divisions, as well as the headquarters of the French network, the international service and CBC-owned stations.

The studios, all of which were designed by the CBC's own architectural department, are in accordance with the latest practice regarding acoustical treatment and sound insulation and have already received considerable praise from the artists using them. In addition, the striking, yet restful decorations in pastel shades play their part in setting the right mood for outstanding performances, although they vary considerably in size, from one capable of housing quite comfortably a full symphony orchestra, to those designed for use by a single announcer, care has been taken that even the smallest shall be large enough to avoid unpleasant "boomy" effects so often encountered in small studios.

Little Outside Assistance

The technical equipment installed is fully in keeping with the standard set by the studio design, in only two cases did the CBC need to call in assistance on design matters from outside sources, firstly in the master control system already mentioned and secondly for the clock set-up, which keeps "perfect" dials in all studios and control rooms correct to within one half a second at all times. The specially-designed clocks are designed to accommodate a total of 30 recording machines, either disc or tape, in order to provide a minute design throughout. Alongside each machine is a small control panel, gives the operator an instantaneous choice of 50 different programs, a function possessed by most previous installations had to be performed manually by the master control operator.

With adequate provision for the expansion which the coming of TV and the natural growth of the country will demand, the Radio Canada Building forms a worthy addition to the many fine radio centres throughout the nation, and Radio Canada, in conception, design and execution, it is something of which all Canadians may be proud.

Many Graduates Of O.B.C. Obtain Office Positions

The demand for OBC graduates for office positions continues to be urgent. Calls are being received almost daily for bookkeepers, clerks, secretaries, stenographers and typists.

Following are names of some who recently went directly from the college to business positions. Barbara Way, Mary Elliott, Bernice Sills, Shirley Davison, Betty Shaw, Margaret Taylor, Doreen Ray, Lorena Brummel, Ruby Bateman, Aldythe Arthur, Betty Reid, Joan Cranston, Lillian Robertson, Betty Burton, Ruth Batty, Betty Hendry, Dorothy Hogen, Robert Ward, Owen Lent, Murray Locke, Fay Hall, Richard Moran, Fernand Lord, George Stratton, Jacques Lepage, Max Fargey, Lucien Corriveau and Thomas Hanley.

Another French-Canadian student has arrived at O.B.C. this month—Paul Gratton of Montreal. Paul is bringing three French-speaking boys from Quebec have completed their courses and gone to business positions, namely, Fernand. Lord of Farnham, Jacques Lepage of Cap Chat, and Lucien Corriveau of Shawinigan Falls.

Richard Moran has completed his course and returned to his home in Detroit, Mich.

Well at Their Success

Former students frequently write or call to tell of their success. Most recent letters were from Percy Branch of Bathurst, N.B., Cecil Kingston of Houston Tex., and Harry Davison of Windsor. These men graduated from OBC 41, 43 and 36 years ago respectively.

Mr. Peter Mendles of Antigua, British West Indies, has written that he is planning to take a business course. O.B.C. was recommended to him by an Antigua man who attended here six years ago.

In view of the exceptional demand for thoroughly trained office workers, young people who have completed their high school course would do well to come for the thorough business training at O.B.C. A great amount of individual instruction is given by experienced teachers, enabling students to make rapid progress. There is no set time for enrolling; students may start any school day.

Address on Gas Turbine Engines Given Institute

"Some Modern Aircraft Gas Turbine Developments," was the subject of an address by Dr. D. C. MacPhail, assistant director of the division of mechanical engineering of the National Research Council, to the sixth meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, held Monday evening at Kiwanis Centre.

Dr. MacPhail outlined the principles of the simplest reciprocating engine and then went on to discuss the simple jet engine known as the Ram Jet. The speaker pointed out that the inefficiency of the Ram Jet at low speeds made its use in a practical way, impossible, until the development of the Whittle jet engine.

High Heat Problem

The main difficulty in the way of the successful development of jet engines has been to find suitable materials for the turbine blades and the exhaust pipes which must withstand heat to the

CAN WE HAVE A DISASTER UNIT?

The value of an organization, which can take hold during an emergency to any city was shown in an eastern Ontario city during the past weekend. Disaster, in the form of raging fire, hit the city of Peterborough, and before the blaze had run its course, four men were dead, and part of the main street was a shambles.

Through the day and night, however, there was little or no panic. Men with civil defence training flocked to the scene, and more than 500 civilians stood ready to take orders. The Red Cross, the Salvation Army and other auxiliary agencies pitched in to help. Board of Works men drove their trucks into the area and carted away rubble shovelled to them by bulldozers. Auxiliary police helped maintain traffic control.

Belleville has a civil defence unit which was organized this year. As yet, only the skeleton of the organization has been set up, and there has been apparently no provision to make the unit operable in a peacetime disaster. The peacetime disaster is the worthwhile thinking about, because it is quite possible that this city might be caught in the grip of a bad fire. With the downtown section so close to the dock area on the lakefront, it is quite conceivable that this city may somedays be subjected to a blaze that even the area and police prevention and protection could not control.

That is the point at which a civilian unit can be used to good effect. The marshalling of transportation, to move both the people and their effects from the area under strain, the provision of food and clothing for those driven from homes, the protection of the curious from disaster — all these can be lined up and provided for by a central unit.

The program would involve the training of volunteers in firefighting and police work. First aid, through the St. John Ambulance Corps, would be a necessity. The Red Cross and the Salvation Army, always ready in time of need, would form the backbone of a civilian army of protection.

If all the organization involved in such a program, could or would save the life of one person, it would be worth it. And with the destruction by fire or flood only one home in the city, the investment of time and effort would be qualified.

There is no question of the spirit needed to make such a program work. When a city like Belleville can turn out and be proud of a regiment like the Hastings and Prince Edward, there is no lack of spirit. When other people are in distress, there is a common ile, and everyone works for the good of all.

There are men in this city who have the experience needed to organize such a program. We submit that the project is worth their while.

THE CATS WERE LEFT OUT

Every once in a while, the world is indebted to the usually staid London Times for a touch of humor. A few months ago, the London Times undertook a campaign to determine whether or not its paper gave adequate heat in the fireplaces of fuel-short Britain. Loud and long were the comments from readers, some of whom claimed that a Times rolled into a cylinder made almost as good fuel as any log.

And there were the detractors, too, who objected that the Times was neither good for reading or burning. They were in the minority, of course.

This whimsical mood, the Times suggested that while other animals roam in droves or packs, and birds travel in flights, there was no noun to designate an assembly of cats. This, despite the fact that almost every householder has had a screaming battle or cats in the back fence at night. The objections were not long in coming, and by now, the Times has learned that a congregation of cats is called a "clowder," and that when kittens get together, the assembly is described as a "kendle."

There were others. Energetic subscribers wrote in to say that as early as the 1700's, a "clowder" was known. In addition, one man mailed in a sheet further defining the situation. In his list were a cowardice of curs, a pride of lions, a leap of leopards, a gaggle of geese, an exaltation of larks, a murmuration of starlings and a rush of dunbirds.

In Canada, the curs become a pack, as do the foxes. The geese become a flock, and starlings and dunbirds (whatever those birds may be) remain as admittedly, a "skulk" is a far more appropriate word for the foxes than is "pack." But we gag on a "gaggle" of geese.

Thus far, the "kendle" of kittens has been traced back to 1486, when one book mentioned it as a "kyndlit of yong pattis." That is far enough for us.

THE FESTIVAL OF BRITAIN

Britain has started her Festival with the blessing of the Royal Family, and if all reports are true, she has arranged an extravaganza deluxe. Ten years ago, Britain was fighting a tough battle. She was bombed and battered, and many of her finest cities and towns were almost beaten to the ground by the Nazi assault.

Now, she is alive again. Proof of that is her Festival, to which she has invited all the world, in a huge gamble that the money she is spending will be repaid in trade later.

SILENT

When I am in a public place
So many wise I hear and see
Who could set right the human race,
But silent I must be.
When life dividing wrong from right
Its chatterers seems plain.
Would I but march clearer sight,
So silent I remain.

They loudly tell what they would do
If but the chance occurred.
So much as they I wish I knew,
But never say a word.

I hold my tongue, content to live
Still free to come and go.
I have no good advice to give.
The answers I don't know.

WORKING MODEL

I suppose in some darker parts of the world the bitter debate now being heard before the Armed Services and External Affairs Committee in Washington may seem kind of comforting, sastly interpreted as evidence that the United States is divided hopelessly on the terrible question of Truth, as it is in the Soviet world. Truth is, there's been few more dramatic examples of what democracy is all about. Here is a man employes challenging the boss and both being judged by the people, the final say. Which is why North America goes the way of the hired hand or the way of the boss. Its real stamina for the road is in this kind of free exchange. There are times when American leadership seems downright appalling. Certainly American capitalism has done its best to bury its own kind or democracy, and has dulled the idea. But the idea is still there, and it is the most basic and worth standing up for. There is no substitute for freedom.

These are perilous days under which for democracy. The spirit of the robins. Around our place a great many young robins are every morning. Parents hatched into their first solo before their wings are ready, and they are bounced around to become earth-bound and prey to the neighborhood housecats. They are also inspected to catch, fluttering and hopping stiff-legged from any Good Samaritan who tries to help them. And in the nest. About all one can do is what the mother robin does; watch, and worry, and keep calling and hoping for the best. . . I never tire of studying the peculiarities of the various birds I see around. I may be forgiven if he seems somewhat befuddled when, for example, crows attack him in the military use of jellied gasoline, or Napoleon, drawn up somewhat like a sparrow, but in all the game of baseball produces a packet of angry hell. . . I watch baseball, but there anything more degrading than the sight of women engaged on this pursuit, with the added incessing a bevy of stringy muscle-girls flopping about a diamond in privileged last summer's thin slight left me sorely dejected for several days.

The best comment I have read on the MacArthur business appeared in the Talk of the Town department of the New Yorker magazine, written, I expect, by E. B. White: 'A soldier in Korea today is not unlike a man in a lifeboat—half of him fights the first police action ever stemped under a universal banner, and is subject to all the restrictions that go with a cop's duty. The other half (the more familiar half) fights a skirmish in the power struggle between nationals—as between the United States and Red China, between East and West, between communism and free democracy. . . MacArthur would like to release this soldier from the half that is a policeman's. He is not a happy one, and we are not going to have quick victory, we are going to have, for a long, gradual victory, requiring enormous staying powers. . . . Truman would be playing a rioter over the head, he is primarily engaged, not in winning a triumph for the police but in restoring order for the community. In the corporate sense, ladies and gentlemen, he is the substitute for patience."

Driving home from work the other night passed a convoy of military vehicles, including four Bofor anti-aircraft guns pointing to the slumbering early summer sky. From the radio at that moment came the strident voice of Senator McCarthy calling for Communists. I felt like stepping on the gas to pull away from the pack. . . . In fervent anti-Communism is the enormous futility of the tempestuous energies now being directed once against 'the liquor monster'. If these groups would devote their energy and resources to creating intelligent drinking they would be doing a service to mankind. Instead, they are like the proverbial chicken with its head cut off, running in the direction of the nearest hysterical testotaler. . . My recipe for Clam Chowder has already been published in this column from amateur chefs. Many call for the use of milk. I will have no truck with milk. Any cook who will make a chowder with milk is a man who will put ketchup on a spaghetti.

My thanks to the North Shore Cricket Club for making me an honorary member. Cricket, Bernard Shaw once remarked, "Our club has not yet risen to the heights of pop-corn and hot dogs." Indeed, the auxiliary serve a pleasant cup of tea and a bun each summer afternoon at 4 o'clock. If you think cricket is a sissy game, might tell you that the Indian fifth gymnast, Sri Solomons, has barred his gladiators from participating in the Olympic Games for fear they be wounded. . . A woman phoned me the other day and said "Guess what? Doesn't the New Yorker call the Mohicans. I thought all those people had been murdered." Well, I'm sure that was a strange streak in me somewhere, but I have the darndest urge to take off shoes and socks, roll up my pants and wade around in the tepid foam of spring. I've been in the habit of . . . Fascinating to gaze down from a high window in a skyscraper and watch the meshing of traffic on a busy corner below. I sometimes think the best thing I do is just standin' and watchin'.

DRAMATIZING TRUTH

When Karl Marx issued his manifesto, he used these words as a battle cry—"Workmen of the world, unite; you have nothing to lose but your chains."

This is a dramatic statement. A person who can coin expressions like that can move mountains. It is a tremendous influence on his followers. Many people who have felt the influence of Karl Marx was a thoroughly bad one. Marx started with a wrong premise of the world that was bad enough. But Lenin and Stalin took him up and have implemented the materialistic philosophy of Marx with a cruelty unparalleled in modern history.

Those us us who feel that we are on the right side of the fence need some rallying cries that will dramatize our love of liberty. Christian faith needs to be dramatized. Decency and sobriety, chastity and self-restraint, kindness and compassion for the welfare of others—these things all need to be dramatized.

Many of us are hoping that some great figure will arise here in our country or in some other country who will dramatize the beauty of freedom. We are longing for some statesman who will make us see vividly the thrilling nobility of the Christian faith.

All causes need to be dramatized—and especially all good causes.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Putterers are in their element right now. Around the garden, in the house or the garage, these happiest of mortals who have no hobby, no program, no large purpose or plan, can find a hundred little things to putter with.

A putterer is not to be mistaken for a gardening enthusiast. When you see him out there with a rake or spade, he has no particular design in mind. Very often he is entirely unaware of what he is doing. Maybe his wife said, 'Joe, for goodness sake, go out in the garden and rid it up. Don't let it round yourself all the time. So he got up quite cheerfully, all putterers being cheerful men at heart, and went into the garden in a beautiful absence of mind.

There are screen doors to put on, and window screens. Now you must not mistake the putterer for a man with a hobby. The hobbyist attacks screens as businesslike or almost Rotarian system. He appears first with a basketful of screening material. Then he reappears with all the screens, to be set ready in their respective locations. A putterer comes first with one screen. He fumbles around with it, from one place to another, figuring out where the heck it fits. When he makes up his mind in that matter, and has tried to set it in place, he goes away to find a tool. This is usually a hammer. After several tries, he lays everything down again while his gods away to find the screw driver, and comes back with a pair of pliers; which is all he could find.

And after a while, his wife appears at an upstairs window and informs him he is trying the wrong screen on. So he goes away and refor a man with a hobby. The hobbyist attacks screens as businesslike or almost Rotarian system. He appears first with a basketful of screening material. Then he reappears with all the screens, to be set ready in their respective locations. A putterer comes first with one screen. He fumbles around with it, from one place to another, figuring out where the heck it fits. When he makes up his mind in that matter, and has tried to set it in place, he goes away to find a tool. This is usually a hammer. After several tries, he lays everything down again while his gods away to find the screw driver, and comes back with a pair of pliers; which is all he could find.

And after a while, his wife appears at an upstairs window and informs him he is trying the wrong turns with another screen.

It is wonderful to have such a wide variety of interests in such trivial affairs. It must be awful to be a competent, workmanlike hobbyist who knows not only where everything goes, but why. Such a person would do more adopt a hobby than he would adopt a suit of harness. A hobby is for sissies.

LOCKJAW GERMS

Tetanus, commonly called "lockjaw" is caused by invasion of a wound by the tetanus bacillus (or clostridium)—here we just say lockjaw germs.

The natural or normal habitat of lockjaw germs is the intestinal tract of animals, particularly cows and horses but usually they are found in the intestinal tract of other domestic animals and most wild animals. They are commonly present in the intestinal tract of hostlers and dairymen who, like the animals they handle, are "carriers" of lockjaw germs.

In bacteriological examinations of 76 persons in Paling 24 were found to be lockjaw germ carriers. Of 200 persons bacteriologically examined in California 125 had lockjaw germs in the intestinal tract—"carriers" of lockjaw. Of 78 persons in the eastern part of the United States 40 were found to be "carriers."

Animal manure, then, and of course human manure, is a common excrement and soil of objects contaminated with it are the breeding of lockjaw. The germs form spores which may survive for indefinite periods in soil, animal or human body.

The presence of even the multiplication of lockjaw germs in a wound do not necessarily mean that the individual has lockjaw or will have it. Some individuals have enough lockjaw antitoxin in their blood to protect them from the poison or toxin. Even by inoculation, which is shortly after any suspicious wound, we can give sufficient lockjaw antitoxin to protect in first does at once, second dose 5 to 7 days later, to protect against the poison.

It is the poison, the toxin produced by germs that is deadly. It—it is estimated to be some 25,000 times more poisonous than strychnine—that causes the spasms. The poison travels through the body; the germs remain in the wound.

Fourth of July wounds are notoriously likely to cause lockjaw either because contaminated soil or street dust gets into the wound or because the explosive itself contains germs.

Iran's Rejection Has Increased Dangers of Crisis

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Iran's blunt rejection of Britain's proposal to negotiate the oil controversy between that country and the huge Anglo-Iranian Oil Company has increased the dangers of an explosive crisis.

The seriousness of the situation is further emphasized by the fact that the United States has felt compelled to appeal for friendly negotiation between Iran and Britain. This U. S. action brought a blistering denunciation from the Tehran government spokesman, National Front Deputy Makki. He warned against it.

"When the Iranian people find themselves in a situation in which they are fighting against the whole world, the foundations of communism in Iran would be prepared. It is Britain and the United States who are pushing us towards Russia."

Certainly the intervention of Russia is one of the gravest possibilities. Prevention of this contingency is, of course, one of the chief objectives of both Washington and London.

Close relations with Iran are the keystone of the western powers' strength in the Middle East. This is partly because of Iran's strategic position on the Persian Gulf, and even more because of her growth in petroleum, upon which the west depends so heavily.

The United States-British talks in Washington on the Iranian crisis might give rise to an overture for a revised accord in Iran under terms of the Russo-Iranian Agreement of 1921, which provides Russia with the same defensive self-protection.

The best thing the position it isn't further complicated by certain fifth columnists working overtime in Iran to create chaos. In the capital, to start a revolution.

The British note to Tehran declares that Britain is negotiating would have serious consequences. This was emphasized by the visit to the British War Office in preparing a 4,000 man parachute brigade, ready to be used for emergencies. The War Office declined to state how this brigade might be employed, but it was not left to infer that it might —

So sent to Iran.

Such a gesture is pretty strong mustard, as the reaction in Tehran has clearly demonstrated.

On the whole one would think that this is a moment for the Iranians to move with very firmness but with great discretion in dealing with the situation, by which naturally is anxious about her independence.

BELOVED VAGABONDS

I feel quite sure that there is within us all at least a streak of the vagabond. Born that way. This streak lacking all of those natural ingredients, prominently display- ed only in the professional wanderer, a searcher after knowledge, pure pleasure and gaiety. Such vagabonds as Stevenson, Charles Lamb, Jack London were typical literati vagabonds, but we imagine any one of them in a serious mood at times, but never for long. Their minds were far too speculative, too buoyant, too in love with life to be contained in the commonplace — so they took the world as a playground and appreciative minds for a hide-and-seek adventure in every one.

Stevenson once wrote that "exiles" business, whether at school or college, kirk or market, is a symptom of deficient vitality; and a faculty for living is rather a catholic appetite and a strong sense of personal identity." Stevenson regarded is a hustler, a thinker, a speculator in ideas, new adventures in the world. He didn't do ordinary if he tried. His idleness is constructive!

It is wonderful to have such a wide variety of interests in such trivial affairs. It must be awful to be a competent, workmanlike hobbyist who knows not only where everything goes, but why. Such a person would do more adopt a hobby than he would adopt a suit of harness. A hobby is for sissies.

High Scores Stimulate Play In Bowls Tourney

Competition has been stimulated in the bowling tournament at the Bowl-O-Drome, by the injection of a few high scores.

In the men's singles to date Cec. Hardwick leads the entries with a neat 903 total. His nearest competitor is "Letty" Reid with 827 and Walter Moore follows closely with 815.

Walter Moore and "Letty" Reid have set a mark to shoot at in the double bowling with 458 and 916 for a total of 1680, Callaghans follow with 1520 and 1505 scores.

Belleville Golf Club held the top spot in team scores having rolled 3549, being led by Joe Kirkwood with 1243 and Russell, 790. Their's is the only notable score to date.

These scores are expected to be attacked tonight by Oshawa and later in the week by Peterborough teams.

Fire Destroys Car and Garage

A car and garage owned by Mr. R. J. Brown, 233 Charles Street, were burned late last evening, the blaze having gained considerable progress before being noticed by neighbors. The blaze was discovered shortly after ten o'clock, but when the alarm was turned in already the flames were shooting out through the windows.

On arrival at the scene firemen turned their efforts to the Brown house and another garage and workshop within a few feet of the burning building. Heat from the flames had already set the paint afire under the eaves of the Brown residence, while the second garage and workshop were also badly scorched.

The Brown car and the garage in which it was stored were a complete ruin, it was stated.

Members of the Brown family could give no reason for the possible cause of the blaze which apparently started from the car. The car had not been in use since five o'clock in the evening, it was stated.

Unwary Angler Provides Free Lunch for School of Speckles

A school of speckles were in conclab in a shady spot in a northern lake last weekend, discussing ways and means of getting weekend fare without being hooked.

Suddenly came piscatorial manna from heaven.

Before their astonished gaze swam a small school of minnows, with no strings attached.

The speckles went into action and for a few minutes there was a flurry of darting bodies. Nary a minnow was left to tell the sad tale.

What the speckled "specks" didn't know was that their banquet was a gift from an angler, one of a party of city slickers who had travelled many miles to get themselves a fish fry.

The angler in question, just to make sure of his bait, had purchased a brand new minnow pail, one of those modern gadgets which preserve minnows almost forever without change of water.

That, the angler didn't know. So mindful of his bait he gaily strode down to the lake, stocked the new bucket in the water for a minute or so, and pulled it in.

Not a minnow was in sight. The "escape hatch" of the modern bucket had opened and the minnows were swept to freedom, if only temporary.

After all, sardines don't taste so bad, if you're actually fishhungry. Of course no newspaper man would ever be satisfied with that kind of fare alongside a beautiful lake.

Electric Still In Tennessee Is Confiscated

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 22 — (AP)—Electric power with some native east Tennessee ingenuity has resulted in a new device in this region of moonshine whisky:

An electric still.

Police today confiscated an elaborate electrically heated "pot" atop remote Daisy Mountain.

Sheriff Lee Brown, who eliminated the giveaway smoke, was built inside the 50-gallon pot, the police said.

Harold Crowe, former state highway worker, was charged with possessing untaxed whisky. Police quoted Crowe as saying he got the idea from hearing advertisements boosting the area's "cheap electricity."

Medical Health Officer Tells Avondale H.&S. Club How Health Unit Set Up

Last evening, the Avondale Board of Health. To date, the Home and School association in their final meeting of the season, had as their guest speaker, Dr. Alex. Breuls, formerly of Cobourg, and former assistant medical health officer for the counties of Northumberland and Durham, and now M.O.H. for Belleville, who spoke on the formation of a department of Health Unit in Belleville taking in the Avondale rural locality.

Dr. Breuls, who was introduced by the president of the Home and School Association, Mr. Ralph Knowlton, prefaced his remarks by stating that he was glad to be present, and also glad to see the interest Avondale was evidencing in the proposed formation of a full health unit in the locality, with Belleville as the focal point. So far, Dr. Breuls had been occupied in acquainting people with the purposes and function of a health unit.

No Rural Health Unit

There have been since 1910, in various cities, health units, but not in the rural areas. What is needed is one full department of health, not numerous part-time units. In Ontario there are, since 1945-'27 health units, but there is also a lack of nurses, inspectors and officers of health. Oxford county, because of its compactness has an ideal health unit, so has Brantford. But Hastings county, owing to its large extent has a whole, is unwieldy. What is needed is a city like Belleville, having a population of from 18, to 20,000 population with a rural community which forms a good nucleus for a health unit.

A health unit does not treat people, except in localities where there are no practitioners. The most ideal place for the health unit to work is in the school. Here, the defects among children are readily seen. The teeth, eyes and ears are examined by the nurse and where treatment is needed, the children are told where treatment may be obtained. Immunization is given for such diseases as diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and pneumonia.

Pre-school Health

There is also sanitary inspection, as well as lighting, heating, testing of drinking water, and advisability of any improvements is recommended to the rampant, taking a great toll of lives, has practically died out.

Decreasing Death Rate

Since 1900, the death rate has decreased due to proper supervision of the health of the young people. In the old days, whole families were wiped out, and many died in youth. Today, the death rate has fallen, and many are now living to old age. This is due to the application of the prevention of disease in improving the local health education, great results will be seen in the future.

Appreciative thanks were tendered Dr. Breuls for his timely and interesting talk, by Mr. James Musgrove, vocational director of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational Schools, and also by the president Mr. Ralph Knowlton.

Election of Officers

Following some discussion regarding a picnic and the pooling of firecrackers for May 24th, the election of officers took place, carried out by Mr. Ken Bird, with finesse and brevity, resulting as follows: president, Ralph Knowlton, re-elected; vice presidents, Reg. Williams and Morris Smith; recording secretary, Gordon Ryers; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Corwin Musgrove and treasurer, Cecil Ling; health convener, Grace Knowlton; membership convener, Doris Daniels; program convener, Arthur Clare; social convener, Dorothy Chalmers. Those appointed by president, Executive committee consists of Helen Jones, Irene Bell, Mrs. Mary Davies, Marjorie Wettlaufer and Edna Denyes.

The meeting will half hour declared the adjournment of the meeting.

Science Progresses

For 50 years we have used fine white tablets—exceptionally safe and relief of pain. Today the frontier pain-killer is available in a new form without the tablet—no bother of taking. Invisibly and bitter taste. It is called "DISPRIN" and is sold at druggists everywhere.

"DISPRIN" is available in Bottles of 24 tablets or Handy Pocket Folders of 6.

"Difficult Day?.. take a Disprin"

Why DISPRIN? Because DISPRIN is soluble and substantially neutral. When taken in water as recommended, it enters the stomach as a true solution and not as undissolved particles. It is therefore less liable to cause stomach discomfort.

DISPRIN is readily absorbed. Because it definitely dissolves (not merely disintegrates) DISPRIN permits speedy absorption and gives quicker relief.

DISPRIN is palatable. Even children will take it readily.

Phone Service Impossible Without Relays Rotarians Told

Telephone service as it is known today would be impossible without the relay, the electrical switch, Robert [illegible] Bell Telephone representative, told members of the Rotary Club at a luncheon Monday in the Hotel Quinte.

In an address entitled "Telephone Superhighways of Today," Mr. Martin said relays used in the telephone industry may not be able to think but they can do many other things almost like human beings. He described how relays "call" equipment what to do and how they "forget" or "remember" what has taken place during a previous conversation. Relays with these abilities are used throughout the telephone system and are essential for dial and non-dial centres alike and for long distance service.

What Relays Must Do

In a dial exchange, for instance, the relays must "see" that a call is coming in; next they must say, "Number, please" by sending out the dial tone; they must "listen" to the callers commands as the dial is turned; they must "find" the correct path; they must "set up the connection" and "tell" the called party he is wanted, by ringing his telephone bell; they may have to "report" that the line is busy, or possibly, "translate" the call to a special operator in case the number has been changed; finally, they must "disconnect" after the conversation is over.

The speaker emphasized, however, that relays, though they can be made to do almost anything men want them to do, cannot think, it still takes the human mind to do that.

Illustrating the operation of a typical relay by the use of a centralized demonstration equipment, Mr. Martin declared that even in a simple call to a telephone in the same exchange hundreds of relays operate at lightning speed, while on long distance calls a thousand or more relays may come into play. To perform the same switching by hand would take about two hours on the simplest call and probably a whole day on a long distance call.

How Calls Routed

By means of an illustrated map, Mr. Martin showed how relays play a vital part in routing long distance calls to their destination. Relays are used, too, to enable conversations to be transmitted simultaneously over the same pair of wires.

The speaker assured the members that relays and the thousands of other pieces of apparatus necessary are being manufactured and put into service as fast as humanly possible.

Rotarian Fred Adcock thanked the speaker on behalf of the Rotarians present.

Chairman of the Easter Seal campaign, Rotarian Jack Ireland, told the Rotary that over $2,000 had been received by his committee and that the books were being closed for the year.

Rotarians were again reminded of the Inter-club meeting at Batawa on the 28th of May when members from Peterborough, Kingston, Belleville, Trenton, Campbellford, Picton and Napanee will gather.

CAMPBELLFORD

Firemen Avert Serious Blaze By Quick Action

Campbellford—Quick action by Campbellford firemen averted what undoubtedly would have developed into a serious blaze here at 11.45 a.m. Sunday, when sparks believed to have come from the chimney, ignited the roof of a Canrobert Street home occupied by Jack Garvey, and owned by T. L. Diamond.

The fire was well under way when it was discovered, but firemen, fighting it from the ground and from the roof, soon had it under control. Considerable damage, which is covered by insurance, resulted to the roof and rear of the building, but no one was injured. The alarm was turned in by Charles Shaw, a neighbor, who noticed the flames from his own home.

McQueen's Tug Winner of Race On Detroit River

Waldor, May 22 (CP) — The 750-horsepower Amherstburg Atomic plowed up the Detroit River to a hard fought victory Saturday in the second annual international tugboat race.

Capt. J. Earl McQueen piloted the chugging diesel-powered craft on the Canadian side of the river, and rode an eddy current to fight for the lead. The course was plotted on the U.S. side of the international boundary.

Capt. McQueen swept ahead of seven other entries—but not much ahead of his old rival, Capt. Ole Jacobson and the Rees Mt. Capt. Jacobson rode the Canadian side also.

Over on the American shore, the race was between Capt. E. E. Roberts and the Florida, and Capt. Eric B. Miller and the Oregon. The Oregon and Florida are both high pressure steamships.

The Oregon and Florida, and the American entry, Capt. Charles Dickens, ran close together, and finished almost nose and nose. All three are owned by the Great Lakes Towing Company.

The America made the line first, followed in rapid succession by the Florida, and the Oregon.

The tugs which did their racing on the American side hooked a two-knot current. But the Atomic went into the almost-still waters of the Canadian side, where in some spots there is an upstream eddy current of a half knot.

MARMORA

Roadside Park New Addition To No. 7 Highway

Marmora—Through the enterprise of the Department of Highways an attractive roadside park is being laid out on No. 7 highway on the north side of the road a few hundred yards west of the Deloro turn and almost opposite the service station operated by Hec Boudreau.

Due to the fencing of the road having been carried back some distance to permit a future widening of the highway, the land is being levelled and cedars thinned out to give access to the shade of others. Tables placed there are being patronized already. Being near to Lily Creek the boon of the park to wayside picnickers is all the more of a boon.

PICKED WRONG CAR

Toronto, May 22 — (CP) — Police released a young man last night shortly after he was picked up for car theft. He explained his boss handed him some car keys and sent him on an errand. The keys fitted the car so he drove off. He just happened to pick the wrong car. His boss' car was identical to the one he was driving when arrested.

Seagram TELLS THE WORLD ABOUT Canada

THIS advertisement was designed by The House of Seagram to tell the people of other lands about Canada and things exclusively Canadian.

Many people in Latin America, Asia, Europe and other parts of the world are not fully aware of the richness of Canada's natural resources, wild life, scenic beauty and cultural traditions. The more the peoples of other lands know about our country, the greater will be their interest in Canada and Canadian products.

The House of Seagram feels that the horizon of industry does not terminate at the boundary of its plants; it has a broader horizon, a farther view—a view dedicated to the development of Canada's stature in every land of the globe.

YOU HAVE PLANS that are important, too. The things you want most, the worthwhile things, have to be planned for, saved for.

That's not easy, these days. But here are two suggestions that may help you to realize your own particular dream:

FIRST, decide what you want most, how much it will cost, and open a special savings account at The Royal Bank of Canada for that one particular purpose . . . then save for it.

SECOND, use the Royal Bank Budget Book to keep yourself on your course, and to avoid careless spending. The budget book does not suggest how you should spend your money. It does provide you with a simple pattern to help you PLAN YOUR BUDGET TO SUIT YOURSELF.

Voluntary Health Insurance Favored By Dr. Smith Over State Medicine

A former Bell[illegible] who has gained prom[illegible]nence in the Amer[illegible]n medical field returned to his native city for a brief visit yesterday in the person of Dr. Austin Smith, Chicago, editor of the American Medical Association Journal, who visited relatives in the city and addressed the local Kinsmen Club last night.

A graduate of Queen's University in 1923, Dr. Smith has been editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association for the past 18 months and is professorial lecturer at the University of Chicago. He admits, however, he has not much time now to lecture regularly.

Son of Wilfred Smith, of Kingston, and the late Mrs. Smith, Dr. Smith was born in Belleville, and attended Queen Mary School and Collegiate Institute. As a boy he attended Bridge Street United Church and Sunday School.

Likes to Return

"I have rather lost touch with Belleville since ..I attended at Queen's University," the doctor admitted yesterday while visiting at the home of his cousin, Mr. Norman Gerbrit, on Foster Ave. "But I still like to come back whenever I can find the time."

He said he would come back more often if there was plane service between Belleville and Chicago. It takes as long to come down from Toronto as it does to fly from Chicago to Toronto, he said.

Dr. Smith is a busy man. Besides his duties as editor of the American Medical Association Journal, he is editor in chief of scientific publications of the Association and is science editor of the American Druggist. He is member of 14 different medical associations.

Asked His Views on State Medicine or Compulsory Insurance

Dr. Smith replied that was not needed in the United States, nor in Canada. The reason was that participation in voluntary health insurance plans had expanded tremendously in recent years.

Needs Further Publicity

Voluntary insurance was said to be an inexpensive way of protection, but the public was not yet fully acquainted with the idea. He likened such plans to the time payment for automobiles and stressed they were "a convenient form of paying for medical protection."

He did not think there was any possibility of private insurance companies having influence on, or regulating, the medical profession.

Neither should insurance plans change a physician's practice. Such plans are intended to help the patient rather than the physician, he pointed out.

A great many different types of insurance plans covering hospital expenses and doctor's bills had been offered, but still needed were plans for old people and for long term illness lasting six months or more.

"Of course there will always be certain people who can not meet health insurance premiums, but this difficulty could be worked out on a local level," Dr. Smith said. "The only way to get enthusiasm and response is to

Labor Bd. Gives Consent for Union To Prosecute

The Ontario Labor Relations Board has granted UE Local 532 "consent to prosecute" the Belleville Lock Company Limited, it was announced here today by have local problems handled by local people."

Canadian Training Time

What about Canadian medical colleges as compared to those in the United States?

Possibly it was because Dr. Smith is a graduate of Queen's but his reply was that thus far he had seen nothing south of the border to quite equal the training of Canadian medical schools.

Neville Hamblin, District Representative of the United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers of America (U.E.). The letter received from the board reads as follows: "The Board consents to the institution, by the applicant of a prosecution of the respondent Belleville Lock Co., Ltd., for failure to comply with the provisions of section 48 (1) and section 49 (1) of the Labor Relations Act. The appropriate documents will issue." (Signed) P. M. Draper for the board.

The sections of the act referred to deal with intimidation or coercion to compel any person from becoming or remaining a member of a trade union and also to the fact that there shall be no lock out by an employer where a collective bargaining agreement is in operation.

The action of the board follows the application of the UE for consent to prosecute Belleville Lock Company Ltd., in connection with the labor dispute which followed the dismissal, by the company in September 1950, of 78 workers.

A UE application for conciliation by the government on behalf of the Belleville Lock employees is also pending before the board.

Most Grain Seeding Completed in Ontario

Toronto, May 21 (CP)—Spring grain seeding has been completed in most sections of Ontario, the Provincial Agriculture Department said today in its weekly report.

Early rain followed by warm sunny weather aided in the early seeding start. In the southern and western sections of the province, farmers have begun sugar beet, flax and corn planting.

Northern districts report excellent crop prospects almost everywhere except in Cochrane north where rain is badly needed. Close to 50 per cent of the potato crop has been planted and livestock have been turned out to pasture in most areas.

In central Ontario, Dufferin county beef men are obtaining top prices for winter fed cattle and a number are shifting to summer grass cows for the balance of the year. Farmers in Prince Edward county report land is hard to work, particularly in low-lying districts.

CHIEF IS MAD

Bronte, Ont., May 22 (CP) — Tombstones for picnic-tables? Not if police chief Fred Oliver of Trafalgar township catches you.

Chief Oliver complained today that Sunday picnickers spread their lunches on tombstones in Bronte cemetery.

"They just move in there... put the table-cloth on a flat tombstone, pick a headstone for a seat—and eat," said the police chief. "If I catch any of them..."

TRENTON

Present Colors At Trenton Station Early in June

Trenton—(Special)— Air force officials announced Tuesday morning that the King's colors and the colors of the R.C.A.F. will be presented by Training Command Headquarters at Trenton from the Chief or Air Staff, W. A. Curtis, C.B., C.B.E., D.S.C., on June 9.

June 9 has been designated as Air Force Day throughout the nation, and it is believed that the ceremony scheduled for that day at Trenton will replace the annual sport's day, when the station is thrown open to civilians. It is believed that emphasis will be put on the training phase of the station this year, due to the increased pace of service training.

The presentation of the colors will take place in front of the memorial gates at the South Station. Lt.-Gov. Ray Lawson is expected to be in attendance. The Air Officer Commanding, Air Vice Marshal C. R. Slemon, C.B., C.B.E., will accept the colors on behalf of the officers and men of the command.

The ceremony, scheduled for 2.30 p.m., will take place on the parade square in front of the administration building. Two bands will be in attendance, and the public is invited.

Officials said today that the Training Command is to receive one or two sets of colors. The other will be presented to the Northern Air Command at a date to be announced later.

Emergency Landing

Trenton—(Special)—The sirens blew for an emergency landing at the R.C.A.F. station here this Tuesday morning, but no great damage was suffered when a Dakota aircraft, with one engine smoking, made a safe landing. The fire reels and ambulance answered the call as the Dakota, on a routine flight, came in with one engine dead. None of the crew was injured.

British Malaya Announces Ban On Any More Shipments Of Rubber to Communist China

Singapore, May 22 —(AP)— British Malaya—which has sold more than 120,000 tons of rubber to communist China since the outbreak of the Korean war—today announced the ban on any more shipments of that vital product to the Chinese reds.

The embargo was revealed by both the crown colony of Singapore and the companion government of the Federation of Malaya at Kuala Lumpur. The mainland federation produces the rubber—Island Singapore ships most of it.

The British government had requested the ban. The United Nations' General Assembly last Friday asked for a global embargo of arms, ammunition and war materials against red China.

Governor Sir Franklin Gimson, announcing the ban here, said rubber exports to red China actually were stopped May 15.

In a similar announcement at Kuala Lumpur, High Commissioner Sir Henry Gurney asked the federation executive council to confirm his government's compliance with London's request for "the imposition of a ban on rubber export to China for the rest of the year."

Gurney said he felt confident the ban, "in the present grave circumstances, will command the support of all those who are united and of a single mind in the struggle against communist aggression whether it be in Korea, Malaya or elsewhere."

The announcement came as the British freighter Nancy Moller, with 3,700 tons of rubber in her hold was headed back to Singapore after intercepption by a Royal Navy destroyer near Hainan Island off the southeast coast of China.

Another ship, the Panama-registered Nor Bay, with 750 tons of rubber aboard for China, is being held under armed guard in Singapore harbor.

Search Party Locates Bodies Of Three Airmen

Halifax, May 22 — (CP) — A ground search party, slowed by Labrador's difficult terrain, has located the bodies of three airmen who died last Monday when their plane crashed during a routine flight.

The air force today announced they found the bodies of P.O. Joseph Rodier of Summerside and Montreal, 25, pilot; Flight Cadet Wilfred Smith, 24, Shelburne, N.S., and Flight Cadet Gerald Higgins, 21, Hull, Que.

Co-pilot of the plane, Flying Officer Owen Foster, 23, of north Vancouver, B.C., was found dead near the wrecked R.C.A.F. Dakota Saturday.

An inquiry is being conducted at the crash scene, a desolate area 130 miles southwest of Goose Bay, Labrador.

Searchers, hindered by one portage after another in the swampy and fly-infested hinterland, reported that the plane struck the earth at a steep angle. It was broken up badly. One wing was a quarter of a mile away.

Apparently the airmen didn't have a chance to use their parachutes. Three of them, all unused, were located amid the wreckage.

The plane took off from Summerside, P. E. I., last Monday on a routine training hop with two honor navigation students. It last reported its position as south of Goose Bay.

Forty planes, including aircraft from the United States Navy and Coast Guard, searched 200,000 square miles of the wilds of Labrador and northern Quebec before finding the Dakota Saturday.

Then a rescue party was flown to the crash scene by a Canso, which landed on a small lake a mile away.

How to Cripple Bookmaking Told To Crime Board

Toronto, May 22 (CP) — The Ontario legislature committee on crime was told yesterday how to cripple the bookmaking racket in the province.

Inspector W. G. Tomlinson told the committee that police should be permitted to trace telephone calls to locate bookie establishments and that all wire service at race tracks should be forbidden.

The inspector, a provincial police anti-gambling squad said gambling would not flourish if these steps were taken. Attorney-General Porter said legislation on telephone calls was now under consideration at Ottawa as an amendment to the criminal code.

Mr. Porter said that Sam Rober described as a publisher of a Toronto scratch sheet, will appear voluntarily as a witness. The committee was disposed to hear what Rober has to say and may ask him to appear when scheduled witnesses have completed their testimony.

$1,600 Monthly Phone Bill

Yesterday's testimony included statements that Howard Kerr, one-time head of a racing wire service for Windsor bookies, had a monthly telephone bill of $1,600 paying for more than 50 phones.

E. B. Jolliffe, C.C.F. leader, asked the inspector if it would do any good to bar wire services from race tracks and if the bookies would suffer from the loss of up-to-the-minute race news.

"Yes, it would make it more difficult for bookmakers to get information and that would cut down the business," the inspector replied.

He said he saw no reason for denying newspapers and news services wire facilities from the tracks, providing they were used for news and not bookmaking.

VICTIM OF PROGRESS

Prescott, May 22 — (AP) — A 250-pound bell, which Prescott citizens salvaged from a ship wreck in 1890, has become a victim of progress. One used as a fire alarm and curfew, it has been replaced by a new fire siren.

Separated Couple Keep Tryst On 'Maid of Mist'

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 22— (CP)—A Ukrainian couple separated by an international boundary met in the shadow of the Niagara Falls yesterday on the deck of the Maid of the Mist below the cataract.

It was the first meeting in three years for Vasili Patrikeew, a Toronto carpenter, and his wife, who is working in Connecticut. Immigration restrictions kept them apart after they came to North America, but Mrs. Patrikeew's employer, C. C. Brown of the United Aircraft plant in Connecticut, arranged the meeting through the Church World Service.

They spent several hours riding on the boat, which has several times before served as a meeting place for couples unable to cross the international boundary.

Lampreys at Peak Of Spawning Run

Toronto, May 22—(CP)—Lampreys, the eel-like parasites which attack Great Lakes commercial and game fish, now are at the peak of their spawning run in rivers, the Ontario Lands Department reported today.

The attack against lampreys is centred in the Lake Huron area, with special traps set on rivers such as the Saugeen, Nottawasaga, Sauble and Thessalon. Traps last year killed 16,500 lampreys before they could spawn.

NECESSARY TO RAISE RATES

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 22— (CP)—A general increase in hotel rates, made necessary by rising operating costs, was predicted Monday by delegates attending the Ontario Hotelmen's Association convention here. Hotelmen said most hotels must operate at 90 to 95 per cent of capacity to meet expenses. They also reported keener competition in the hotel business.

Says Russia Could Gain Little By Seizing Oil Fields

Washington, May 22—(AP)—A top American Oil executive yesterday belittled the possible military advantages Russia might expect from seizure of middle eastern oil fields.

Conceding that Russian control of Middle East would result in loss of the oil to the west, Ralph G. Follis, chairman of the Standard Oil Company of California and director of the Arabian American Oil Company said:

"The danger of their availing themselves of the oil is almost nil."

Follis, who recently returned from inspecting oil installations in the Middle East and Southeast Asia, also was optimistic about prospects of a settlement between Britain and Iran of their difficulties over the Iranian decision to nationalize the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

"I can't see how Iran can afford not to work this out with the Anglo-Iranian," Follis said in a copyrighted interview in the magazine U.S. News and World Report.

STOPPED FROM POLLUTING

Fee Increases At University Are Announced

Toronto, May 22 (CP)—Fee increases were announced Monday night by the University of Toronto.

They range from $29 a year in the music general course to $70 in engineering, architecture, medicine and dentistry.

Persons seeking a Bachelor of Arts Degree in University College will pay $36 more a year, a total of $278 including incidental fees. The same increase will apply to arts students in the federated colleges of Victoria, Trinity and St. Michael's.

Dr. Sidney Smith, president, said the increases were made necessary by new salary scales and a rise in operating costs.

He added that a bursary fund of more than $115,000 will be used to ensure that talented and deserving students will not be discouraged from attending the university because of the increased cost.

Horse Will Eat Rollin'-Tobacco By Whole Sack

Inglewood, Calif., May 22 (AP) —Flash Burn may not be the cleaningest hoss at Hollywood park, but his trainer, Robert L. Anderson, will have you know he's the "outs-est one in the whole park."

"He likes cake, he's nuts about doughnuts, really goes for vegetable soup, and tobacco— why he's a slave to the weed," says Anderson, "Of course, he hasn't learned to smoke, but he'll gobble up a whole sack of rollin' tobacco, but seems to prefer the juice brands. He eats it like candy bars, and of course, he likes candy, too."

End of A Chapter

By Edw[illegible]

"Do," Muriel left her.

Alice changed into a gray flannel sports suit and squamarine pullover and went downstairs.

She presently discovered a formal garden that promised a virginal flower show later on. A crew cut individual in dirty coveralls was digging therein. He regarded her with neither interest nor approval and did not speak. He looked rather surly, Alice thought.

But she had no time this afternoon for surly gardeners. She left both contented and elated. It was miraculous to have stepped so quickly from a good-paying job into a better paying one. And Greenmoor Point, Conn., would be an ideal spot in which to spend the summer.

"Miss Pine," she told herself, aloud and gally, "it's your day out!" She walked toward the beach, enjoying the salty tang of the Sound.

Then on the beach itself, she stopped.

A small boy of about four had come into view, running along the water's edge. He had hair the color of pulled taffy and a complexion little body. At intervals he paused to kick delightfully at curlers of white spume that frilled the shore. As Alice watched, one kick was too vigorous. It set down abruptly, to the confusion of his blue playsuit.

Alice moved forward. "Hello, there!"

The youngster scrambled up. His cheeks were like ripe apples; his eyes large and brown.

"You're not Mural," he said, almost accusingly.

"Mural!" Alice repeated. "I . . . Or, I see not."

She didn't finish. A voice from behind said: "I imagine I should pick up at once, Miss Pine."

Alice whipped around, upon a tall man in tweed slacks and frayed sports jacket. He had black hair slightly gray-flecked, and dark unsmiling eyes.

"Oh!" she exclaimed. "I . . ."

"Didn't see the sign, eh?" He pointed to where the road along which she had driven became a tendency at the Sound. "Well, it's over there. Perhaps I'd better have it blown up into a billboard, against the usual summer invasion."

He spoke in a proprietary manner. Alice announced a guess. "Not of course, you're Mr. Hallock?"

He nodded. "Yes, Brent Hallock."

Hastily Alice explained herself.

"Sor" Hallock did not seem amused at the little misunderstanding. "Well, my wife's been talking about getting a secretary. But I didn't know she'd actually done it. My apologies, Miss Pine."

You see, Sullivan—that's the village here—is a summer resort. And sometimes visitors try to use this beach. I thought you were an early visitor."

Brent Jaw jutted. "It's not that I want to hog the country's natural playgrounds. Under all this is my property . . ."

The small boy had been inspecting Alice cautiously. "She's not mural," he told Brent now.

"No," said Brent. "She's Miss Pine and she's staying at our house. Say how-do-you-do! Rick."

Rick did so gravely, then darted back toward the water raising sand-bursts in his wake.

Brent looked after him. "He meant my wife, of course. But Muriel is beyond him."

"He's adorable," Alice said. "Is he your son?"

Brent's thick dark brows lifted. "Muriel didn't tell you?"

"About Rick? No. I'm afraid we talked work, to the exclusion of everything else."

"Well, Rick—short for Richard—is my brother's child. He passed frowning. "My brother and his wife were killed three years ago in a plane crash. So we took Rick, adopted him."

He sounded matter-of-fact, impersonal. And Alice felt herself move, involuntarily, a little away from him. Something about this man repelled her.

"Well, that was a wonderful thing to do," she said, somewhat embarrassedly.

He shrugged and, for the first time she noticed a peculiarity in the set of his shoulders. They seemed to sag inordinately, as if he had practiced relaxing them until they gave almost a suggestion of limpness. "You do what you have to do," he said shortly. "Shall we go up to the house?"

"Yes," said Alice. With Rick at her side she followed him.

Muriel Hallock was on the terrace as her husband Brent came up with Alice Pine and Rick. "Well," she said to Alice, "I see you've met my family."

"Quite informally. But you didn't tell me you had a cute little boy, Mrs. Hallock."

"Oh Mrs. Hallock, drop the 'Mrs. Hallock-Miss Pine' business. My name's Muriel. But you should let pale cold head— "I can't think why I didn't mention Rick. You see, he's quiet, and engaging, a secretary."

"Now, really," Alice said "you will make me feel I'm important —Muriel."

"I assure you, you're going to be very important," Muriel turned to Brent who had stood silently by, his mouth Alice thought, a trifle sardonic. "Go and change will you darling? Then make us cocktails."

Brent moved off at once. "Come on Rick! Time for your supper. I'll hand you over to Stella."

"Stella," Muriel explained to Alice, "is a combination housemaid and nurserie. And a perfect godsend. I simply can't give the child the time I'd like to give him."

Alice could believe it. Manifestly, her profession alone was enough to occupy Muriel Hallock. She said you were a stenographer, be with him a good deal. And now that you're going to take charge of work off my hands, maybe I'll do better. Well, let's go in."

Brent joined them in the living room, but of a more presentable variety. He brought Alice a chair, began lighting a cigaret

Muriel's slipper tapped softly. "Brent dear! Cocktails!"

"Oh, yes." He got up hurriedly, shaking out his cigaret. "Forgive me.

Researchers Hunt for Best Variety of West Oil Seed

Saskatoon, Sask. — (CP) — Plant breeders are searching for the right varieties capable of giving the Prairies a profitable oil seeds crop.

The University of Saskatchewan's department of field husbandry this summer is starting a safflower breeding and production program. The safflower, or carthamus tinctorius, is a member of the thistle family.

Its common varieties have spines like a thistle and are hard to handle, but there are some spineless varieties and the plant scientists here are trying to develop one of these into a high-yield, early-maturing strain suitable for the western growing season.

Increasing demand for edible and industrial oils has stimulated interest in safflowers. Dr. R. C. Jenkins, directing the project, said safflower oil is used in manufacture of paints and varnish, but it is edible too. It does not have the same drying qualities in paint manufacture as linseed oil from flax, this quality makes it a better edible oil.

Dr. Jenkins said he does not anticipate any great difficulty in breeding an early-maturing variety. He thinks farmers would find safflowers attractive because they can be handled like any other grain crop, without any special equipment.

The seeds look like sunflower seed, the growing of which has become popular in southern Manitoba for salad oil manufacture. In size the safflower is about the same as barley grains.

The seed can be planted with ordinary grain drills and the crop can be harvested with an ordinary combine. The safflower plants grow about the same height as grain crops — 18 to 40 inches — and compete with weeds much better than flax, for instance, Dr. Jenkins said.

Fit Sturdy Ships For Arctic Trips

Montreal — (CP) — Ten thousand miles is a long, trip, but members of Capt. D. D. Howard's crew take it all in their stride.

C. D. Howe, the Dominion government's largest and most up-to-date ship of the Arctic Circle fleet is preparing for her trek to the wastelands of the Arctic where she is the only contact between the missions and civilization.

Equipped with a helicopter, a hospital, and research facilities, she is undergoing a complete overhaul before she departs from the Land of the Midnight Sun. Aboard her will go doctors, dentists, missionaries, and Mounties to work in the remote settlements.

Nearby in this city's harbor is the wooden-hulled, 139-ton veteran mission ship, Regina Polaris, the Oblate Fathers' vessel which annually cruises some 14,000 miles in northern waters.

In a short time they will be followed by the Superintend, 600-ton Hudson's Bay Company supply ship which trades within 100 miles of the Arctic Circle during her 9,000-mile supply cruise.

Other vessels scheduled to leave for the Arctic are the ice-breaker Ernest Lapointe and Gordell Mission Ship, Nellie A. Cluett, supplying the isolated missions in Labrador and Newfoundland.

The airman bought him a meal, allowed him to share his room at a Moose Jaw hotel and promised to take him on to Calgary the next day. But when the airman awoke, he found his car keys, his wallet and his car gone.

N.Z. Divides Pay Of Idle Workers With Servicemen

By J. G. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Wellington, N.Z. — (CP) — One of the major problems when New Zealand's long waterfront strike is settled will be the division of the money earned by servicemen.

For nearly three months thousands of men in the army, navy and air forces have been working at the docks in place of the striking longshoremen. They have also manned coastal ships instead of seamen striking in sympathy with the longshoremen.

It is estimated the servicemen have done work which would have cost the employers about $1,300,000 to civilian workers. The servicemen are drawing their normal pay, but the employers are also being obliged to pay normal wages for the work into a fund.

The government has announced that distribution of this money will be decided when the strike is over. It has said unequivocally that the money belongs to the services and will not be used to offset defence costs. The problem is how it is to be split up. One suggestion is that it should be used to establish service hostels and clubs in the cities, but most of the men themselves appear to favor direct distribution in cash.

Here again problems occur. The defence establishment has had to be maintained and many men not actually working on the waterfront have had to do the work of two or three men to allow others to be released for dock work. There is wide support for splitting the money up among all servicemen. The question arises whether the unit in Korea, which is most active of all in fighting communism, should be included.

The government will consult with service representatives before taking any decision. Meanwhile the employers are paying out the money for the servicemen are in many cases getting through at least twice as much work in a day as the striking longshoremen.

ROAD VERSUS BLIMEY

Should be a Battle of the [illegible] Arena next Friday night when Ellis Laidlaw, [illegible] Layton, Bend Street publicity, meets Fred Atkins, the hardrock from Amityville.

The host, and, by turnout, the ultimate winner of the British Empire Championship, Fred how "Gerald," His Ladyship's "gentleman's gentleman" will resort to the brutal maybanic tactics of the bloke from the land of "Waltzing Matilda" should be interesting to watch.

"Gerald" who incidentally was a staff officer with Lord Mountbatten during the Asiatic nastiness, and won his flying spurs with the RAF in the Battle of Britain, just hates to say the idol of the Savoy, Claridges, and Mayfair get roughed up. And knowing Atkins as we do, the blue-blooded Britisher is in for a real "snowy time", by'gad.

But, the wrestling hate to hang Surrey cockies holds no fear of the rugged Australian. He has been around a bit, y'know, and during his last campaign has probably met and defeated such types as the Abbo, Red Freedom Freddy has no yearnings for gum trees or boomies. His main object is to win, come back or high water, and he doesn't give a hoot to whom he applies his methods, nor how he does it.

SOME GOOD ADVICE!

Recalling that during the past season many episodes were reported of unsportsmanly conduct of coaches and players in minor-league baseball, Cecil Duncan, secretary Provincial Fraser passed along some timely advice.

And it applies to coaches of all sorts whether baseball, softball, hockey or pinochle.

Says Frankie: "You, as a coach, have the responsibility of teaching your boys to play ball — to become good sports — to develop the good attributes players look up to you and they will imitate you — whether your actions are right or wrong.

"You therefore, must teach your players the right way! You must not be content to remain seated on the bench and allow the umpire on a ball field is the equivalent of a policeman in civilian life.

"Teach your players to respect the umpire — if you have taken part in disputing decisions you know that did disrespect of an umpire is not tolerated by this or any other association.

"Do not allow your players to learn the hard way — by learning a suspension or by any unfair forfeiture of a game."

"PLAY BALL!"

The opening day parade scheduled to add some color to the paying off of the baseball season Ild next Saturday afternoon, is gradually getting into some sort of organization. The committee under Chris Lockey and "Stoller" Lloyd has been working hard and matters are beginning to take shape. The Kinsmens' Boys' Band will provide the rhythms and it is expected the Redmen Band, with their thrilling stip steeds in open cars. Minor league players will also parade, but unfortunately, the disastrous fire that occurred to a knitting company's plant over the weekend will prevent the moppets from being in uniform. Decorated bikes will also add color and any youngster who would like a free ticket to the game is requested to fasten the bicycle and report at the collegiate campus at 1:30 p. m. sharp.

The parade will leave the campus at two o'clock and proceed to Victoria Avenue west to Front, down to Bridge to Bridge Street and westward to the Exhibition Park. The parade route has been abbreviated due to the fact the day is Saturday, and police requested it be made as brief as possible.

At the Exhibition Park, opening ceremonies will be held and it is expected civic and association officials will take part. Players of both teams will be introduced over the Booth Radio public address system, and from then on it should be a ball game.

SOFTBALL OPENERS!

Glenroy and Howe and Hagerman squads of the Intermediate "A" section of the Belleville Commercial Softball League start the season officially at Alemite Field on Thursday evening. The game is scheduled to start at 6:45. It is expected there will be opening ceremonies with President Bert Lee and other members of the executive assisting him as with civic officials. While the actual strength of the teams is not known, some exhibition tilts which have been more or less sub rosa would indicate that a stern battle will ensue in the opening clash.

Ramsay Paints, (don't sell this squad short) will tangle with the potent Point Anne aggregation on Friday May 25th to get their activities under way and this tilt should be one for the faithful's books too. Ramsay's Paints with Earl Darragh and "Smiley" Morocok at the helm have signed quite a squad, while the power of the OxPainters has changed but little from the squad that won the championship last season. This game will be played on the Point Anne field.

CHILLERS!

For those who like their excitement dished up in spine thrilling chunks, we suggest the stock car events at Speedway Parkland near Marysville, Thursday afternoon. Dick Burrowes, who will operate a full season of events in this exciting sport, tells us he has a flock of dare-devil drivers coming that guarantees to send shivers up the rocky road of the Sphinx. It is the inaugural meet of the season, with an outstanding card. Interest is high in the event and no doubt a large crowd will turn out to watch these speed-hellions in action. If its thrills, spills and chills you desire for your Victoria Day sports fare, don't pass up this meet.

Comeback of Nippy Jones Injects New Life into Cards; Yanks Protect 2-Game Lead

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The comeback of Vernal (Nippy) Jones has injected new life into St. Louis Cardinals and helped move them back into contention in the ding-dong National League pennant race.

The rise of the St. Louis fortunes dates from May 15 when the Cards recalled Jones from their Rochester farm in the International League. The fun-filled club had lost seven of eight.

The Nipper brought his hot bat with him and since his return the Cards have won five of seven. He has hit safely in seven straight games. He is fielding away at .407 clip with 11 hits in 27 times at bat and has driven in 10 runs.

Jones went to town Saturday, batting in five runs in the Cards' 8-4 triumph over Brooklyn. Yesterday he drove in three runs to lead St. Louis to a 5-3 victory over New York Giants in the National League's only scheduled game. The victory moved the third-place Cards within 1 1-2 games of the pace-setting Dodgers.

Jones' clutch hitting broke up a pitching duel between Gerry Staley and the Giants' Larry Jansen. Jones doubled with two out in the fifth inning to drive in the first inning to drive in three runs and break a 2-2 tie.

Yanks Protect Lead

The New York Yankees protected their two-game edge over Chicago White Sox in the American League race. The Yankees defeated St. Louis Browns 3-0 while the White Sox downed Washington Senators 5-3 in night games. Boston Red Sox outlasted Detroit Tigers 9-7 in a day affair.

Big Vic Raschi turned in his seventh victory against one loss in blanking the Browns at Yankee Stadium. Raschi and Early Ed Lopat limited the Browns to four of the Yanks' 31 victories.

Stubby Overmire who pitched for the Browns deserved a better fate. The Yankees broke a scoreless tie with two out in the sixth on a scratch hit by Hank Bauer and singles by Joe DiMaggio and Yogi Berra. The Yankees scored again in the eighth with the aid of an error by Fred Marsh.

White Sox Extend Streak

Joe Dobson, Billy Pierce and Harry Dorish held the Senators to four hits as the White Sox extended their winning streak to five games.

The Sox, with the aid of shoddy fielding, nicked Julio Moreno for four runs in the first three innings and clinched the game in the eighth on a double by Cassie Minoso, fly out and Chico Carrasquel's single.

Ill Chen outpowered with two on in the sixth for Washington's runs.

Ted Williams snapped out of a batting slump, pounding out a single double and home to help the Red Sox edge the Tigers. The Sox scored seven runs in the third inning but Williams' two run homer in the seventh was the deciding factor.

ANCIENT ROUTE

The Nottawasaga river which empties into Georgian Bay was the historic route for Iroquois Indians travelling north.

Waterloo Tigers Take Strong Hold On First Place

(By The Canadian Press)

Waterloo Tigers added another victory to their unbeaten record last night to take a strong hold on first place in the Intercounty Senior Baseball League.

The mighty Tigers romped to a 10-3 win over Kitchener Lionnaires before 3,000 at Kitchener.

In two other Intercounty games London Majors used a three-run 12th inning to beat the Maple Leafs at Guelph 11-8 for their second win of the season and Galt Terriers invaded St. Thomas to hand the Legion their fifth straight loss 16-8.

Joe Yosurik, yielding 10 hits and fanning seven batters, hurled Tigers to victory. He also batted in two Waterloo runs and drove out three singles.

Frank McDonald and Bob Burrichter were the big guns for Leaguemen with three hits each. But it was Shorty Miller's triple in the eighth inning that drove in the first two Kitchener runs.

Guelph watched London rally for four runs in the ninth inning of their game to tie the count. Then in the 12th Majors the win by committing three errors to break up the game in the 12th.

The Majors used six errors and only one London run was earned. The fourth Majors pitcher, Tommy White, who came in in the eighth inning, was given the win and Marty Philp, who went the route for Guelph, was charged with the loss.

It took Galt three hours to beat St. Thomas by 10 runs and earn their third win of the season. But Legion Manager Andy Johnston of Slots and trouble with the lights had a part in the delay.

Ray Webster and Andy Johnston led the Galt hit parade against the St. Thomas pitchers with three apiece. Southpaw Roly Chalifoux went 4 2-3 innings for the Legion before Walt Doherty, a righthander, took over for the rest of the game. Chalifoux was the losing hurler.

Galt coach Pappy Smith started Herb Simmers, replaced him in the fifth inning with Len Cook and then sent in Lefty Ross Palmer to finish the game and was credited with the win.

For tonight's games, Waterloo travels to Galt and Brantford plays at Kitchener.

Robinson Will Defend Title For a Price

Paris, May 22—(AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson is willing to defend his middleweight boxing championship over here—that is, for a price.

The price, says manager George Gainford, is $90,000. Or at least $75,000.

The subject of the 100-pound title bauble in London or Paris was raised after the middleweight king stopped Kid Marcel, the French champion, in the fifth round of a 10-round bout here last night.

London promoter Jack Solomons was on hand to see the bout. Jason and Randolph Turpin, the Layton brothers, were also present.

Afterwards he talked with Gainford about a match between Robinson and empire middleweight titlist.

The talks didn't get past the preliminary stage.

WHO will have a Canada "Pop-Off" Champion this year? 1951 fan we loaned from Chuck Rowan, Secretary-Treasurer of the Ontario Lacrosse Association) give the lie to the old catch phrase. Whatever the prophets of gloom may say, lacrosse is not dead. Nor will it be, as long as there are boys left to football, hockey and baseball clean, and, partially, to the strong commercialization of these sports in recent years, but sight now lacrosse seems slated for a healthy comeback.

Growth in Ontario

Under the aegis of the O.L.A., lacrosse is particularly flourishing in the Senior A League towns (Peterborough, Brampton, Toronto, Hamilton and St. Catharines) and in those of the Senior B loop (Caledonia, Whitchurch, Windsor and Chatham). Both are looking forward to a banner season.

According to Chuck Rowan, there is little fear for the future as far as players are concerned. The O.L.A. has 130 minor lacrosse teams, with a constant flow of youngsters in the porous and lacrosse classes.

Chuck Rowan, as we also learned that the old bugaboo of stuffy, indoor playing space is gradually being overcome as more and more all-weather arenas are being built and this season Dundas, Alliston and Brampton (as 50-year old Club) will boast brand new buildings in Canada's lacrosse game. Many Ontario cities and towns are also discovering lacrosse for the first time, paralleling a revival of interest in the game and the O.L.A. is constantly receiving new league teams from Orrawa, Perry Sound and Sault Ste. Marie.

Asked about the injury element in lacrosse, Chuck Rowan pointed out that strict supervision of the leagues was practiced by the O.L.A. and warranted rough play. Lacrosse we found, is, he figures, a much safer game to play than football, soccer or hockey. Speaking of hockey, Rowan said: "Few questions are more the great contribution lacrosse has made to the game of hockey. Speed being the common denominator of the two games, a generous helping of the stick-handling and passing of lacrosse has made fine hockey players."

Indian Beginnings

Christened "lacrosse" by the French Canadians, the game is now the Indians playing their wicked open game of "Baggataway," using what appeared (to the Frenchmen) to be a lacrosse stick. Later, the game caught on quickly with both the French and English settlers, no doubt its rough reputation came from the fact that the Indians used the techniques of free sparring as many opposing players were pitted against each other at the game. Medicine men acted as referees and as many as 200 players appeared on a team at one time. The field was as wide from 2 to 10 miles as the game moved in search of plum, salmon, "goalposts" and all.

The Lacrosse?

Lacrosse became a governmental sport in the Province of Ontario in 1867 and the Montreal Lacrosse Association was formed in the same year. Before the end of the sailing body, Rules and regulations were drawn up by the M.L.A., knows known as the Canadian Lacrosse Association and the game was "confined" to a field 110 yards long by 60 yards wide. Goal posts were converted, more or less, into the shape we now know as hoops and was played in two halves of 30 minutes each. Strongly in favour of brain as well as brawn, the game of lacrosse was drawn up by

With the game abandoned and revived, and organized in the U.S.A., there is every sign that lacrosse is coming into its own. Its popularity, Chuck Rowan pointed out, is not confined to any one area but is fast becoming a game of wide appeal.

Owen Sound Will Honor Mercurys At Dinner, Dance

(By The Canadian Press)

The city of Owen Sound will honor Owen Sound Mercurys, Allan Cup hockey champions, at dinner, presentation and dance tonight.

Following the banquet, the Mercurys will be the main attraction in a mammoth parade from the city hall to the arena. Following the presentation of gifts by the city, the Mercurys will be the guests of honor at a complimentary dance staged by the junior chamber of commerce.

The Mercurys won the Allan Cup by defeating Fort Frances Canadians.

Stokes, one of the early favorites for the 114-mile Epsom Derby, injured a leg in a stable accident Saturday and may not run in the famed event at Epsom Downs May 30.

The colt, second in the two thousand guineas at Newmarket May 2, Monday was listed as a doubtful starter. The odds on him fell from 30 to 1 to 90 to 1 following the accident.

Ironically, Stokes was originally picked by Count of Gordon Richards, England's champion jockey who has never ridden a derby winner.

An unknown bettor hit the jackpot Sunday—winning $300,000 on a $2.50 wager—in Venezuela's "five-and-six" betting pool. He hasn't claimed his fortune yet.

He was the only one of hundreds of thousands of bettors to pick the winners of all six of the final races at the Caracas race track. Nearly all the favorites lost. Only 10 guessed five of the winners and they will receive approximately $12,800 each.

The largest field in history to try for the national open golf championship—1,430—has entered the 1951 tournament, the U. S. Golf Association announced Monday. The event will be held June 14-16 at Oakland Hills, Birmingham, Mich.

Entrants include defending champion Ben Hogan, nine past open champions, British Open champion Bobby Locke, amateur champion Sam Urzetta and P. G. A. champion Chandler Harper.

Johnny Bratton, who lost his National Boxing Association welterweight crown to Kid Gavilan Friday, had his broken jaw wired Monday. Today he'll have a cast put on his right hand. He broke two knuckles as well as his jaw in the losing fight.

It was the third time he suffered a left-fracture in a fight and the Chicago welterweight said "I'm good and disgusted."

Jackie Robinson, righthand pitcher from New York, and infielder Bob Marshall reported for service Monday to Galt Terriers of the Intercounty senior baseball league. Robinson has pitched in both Mexican and Cuban leagues. Marshall plays either third base or shortstop.

Middleweight champion Ray Robinson stopped Kid Marcel of France in the fifth round of a non-title fight in Paris Monday night. The New York Negro toyed with his rival for four rounds and then tossed some hefty punches in the fifth.

Marcel's handlers quickly threw in the towel.

Remember When

Ted Lyons, ace righthander, scored his 200th American League victory when Chicago White Sox won 9-3 over the Washington Senators 13 years ago today. The veteran knuckle-baller yielded eight scattered hits, including a homer by Jonathan Stone in the eighth inning.

Rocky Graziano K.O.'S Greco In Third Round

Montreal, May 22 — (CP) — Former middleweight champion Rocky Graziano smashed a title driving right hand here last night that knocked out Montreal's Johnny Greco in the third round of their scheduled 10-rounder.

A crowd of 8,167 contributed a gross gate of $23,431 for the shortlived bout that saw the 26-year-old Graziano, New York southside product, tag the Canadian welterweight king squarely on the chin at 1:56 of the third with the only damaging blow.

At 161½ pounds, Graziano held a 7½-pound margin over the 27-year-old Montrealer.

The steam appeared to have left Greco's punch. His reflexes were slow. However, the Montrealer scored enough blows in the second to win the round on points. Graziano took the opening three-quarter heat.

It was Greco who started the third round's pummelling that led to his downfall. Fighting in a low crouch, he kept free of Graziano's body punches and gradually bulled him against the ropes in his own corner. While the New Yorker took a dozen punches to the body, Greco was gradually straightening up. It was then Graziano fired his kayo punch.

Following the fight, Graziano said in his dressing room that the knockout punch "was the best I ever remember throwing—it was terrific."

Graziano, looking toward the future, said that he now wanted to fight Sugar Ray Robinson or "I'll settle for a fight with (Laurent) Dauthuille" of France.

Voiselle May Earn Another Crack as Starter

(By the Associated Press)

The excellent relief pitching of big Bill Voiselle may earn the former major leaguer another crack at a starting job for Montreal's pace-setting International League Royals.

Voiselle, who pitched for New York, Boston and Chicago in the National League saved his third game of the season as the Royals edged Syracuse Chiefs 5-3 last night. The veteran righthander has won a game and lost a game in relief roles. He lost his only start of the season.

The Royals clinched the decision with a seven-run blast in the fifth inning. Jim Russell featured the uprising with a two-run homer. Voiselle took over in the seventh and blanked the Reynuls until the ninth when pinch hitter Pete Riggan homered with one aboard. But Voiselle knuckled down after Riggan's blast and saved the game for Jim Hughes, third Montreal pitcher.

The victory enabled the Royals to maintain their three-game lead over the runner-up Rochester Red Wings. The Wings edged Buffalo Bisons 4-3 in 11 innings. Rookie Jennings Edwards' error with the bases loaded and one out allowed Ed Mierkowics to score the winning run.

Righthander Karl Drews pitched the Baltimore Orioles to a 7-0, five-hit victory over the Ottawa Giants. The Orioles snapped a 0-0 tie with six runs in the seventh inning on five singles, a double and a walk.

Toronto Leafs outlasted the the Springfield Cubs 10-8. The Leafs put the game away with six runs in the second inning. Grover Bowers highlighted the uprising with a three-run homer. Rookie Hal Hudson went all the way to post his third victory without a defeat.

Westbury, N.Y., May 22 (AP)—Roosevelt Raceway opened its 12th season of harness racing under the lights last night at Westbury. Harold Abbe, seven-year-old gelding owned by William C. Harris and driven by Billy Haughton, scored a length victory in 2:05 in the feature event.

Lucky Chief was second and Scott Blackstone closed fast for third. The winner paid $4.50, $3.30 and $2.80.

Two fast dashes in the first and second races resulted in a daily double payoff of $99.20. Grace Scott paced to a 2.07 2-5 triumph in the first and returned $5.20. Urban Hanover scored in 2:06 3-5 in the second for a $17.30 price.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A worm may turn. The hunted may turn into the hunters. But a defensive bidder is still called a defensive bidder even if he turns into the aggressive bidder during a deal.

Each type of defensive bid promises a minimum set of values peculiar unto itself. Consequently, the responses to each depend on values that fit. They act like code signals with code answers.

An overcall in opponent suit promises nine tricks; no losers in opponent suit; forces the partnership to go to game. Partner is asked to show his fingers unbid suit, even if it is not biddable.

A jump overcall promises eight tricks; a rebiddable suit. It does not force partner to bid. It asks partner to pass with less than two tricks; to bid with two tricks or more.

If partner has two tricks or more, a total of ten tricks must be in the pair. So, any bid by partner admits there is a game in a major suit. Thereafter the bidding must not stop short of game.

South, started with an opening bid of one heart and your partner in west jump overcalled with two spades. Whether or not north bids you should bid something with this east hand:

♠J 6 4 2
♦A J 4 3
♣A 6 2

You have more than two tricks; your ten high cards and a short card is hearts. You may raise in spades or bid your diamond suit. In either case, bidding must continue to game.

The fact that you do not pass tells you have tricks enough to help make a game in something. If you bid diamonds, you later assist in spades. Either way, one of you reaches game.

Of course, partners must know these things. The joy of bridge is in having a partner who understands you. Maybe this is what some husbands mean when they say they are so misunderstood.

Norman Krasna; he had just signed a deal with R.K.O. boss Howard Hughes to make $50,000,000 worth of pictures in the next five years.

Wald coined a new word for Hollywood's troubles.

"I call it 'Hollycide'," he said. "By that I mean we are scaring ourselves to death by every new symptom of industry unrest. This is no time for despair. We've got to return to the things that made this business great — imagination, showmanship, energy, excitement."

The producer commented on some of the recent news stories. About the salary cuts for 20th-Fox executives: "Fox has a problem of getting down its negative costs. Now I understand it's down to $1,300,000 per picture but it has to go lower than that. We expect our pictures to average $750,000."

About the Warners wanting to sell out: "Maybe they were just tired and didn't care anymore."

About theatre closings: "The reason is Hollywood's fault. We simply haven't supplied a consistently entertaining program of films."

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in this section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Wednesday, May 23

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Mercury favorably aspected stimulates mental keenness, intuition, imaginative powers. Mars, Jupiter and Venus not so auspicious, so urge extra care in private and money matters.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Moon and Venus aspects here warn against indifference to personal, family interests, carelessness in work or other important affairs. It is a favorable day to sound engagement, study.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Your Mercury, promising for journalists, teachers, students, all mental work, writing advertising, planning promotional stunts. But other planets stress conscientious care, so think!

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Restrictions imposed and heeded today can well be for your ultimate good. Restrain self in spending, making extensive promises. Moderation and common sense necessary these times.

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—You, too, are on the "be sensibly careful" list if you wish results from your labors. Study, analyze. All mental work favored, but be moderate, not foolhardy, in any activities.

August 24 to September 23—(Virgo)—Can be a stimulating, progressive day for you with Mercury so auspiciously aspected. However, avoid extremes, such as taking more than you can safely handle, more in expenditures.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Day's benefits turn first to familiar matters, urgencies, interests for which you have special talent, training. Go about duties without worry, with your inborn common sense.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—If seeking a good record today, control temper, all emotions. Several planets' influences point this advice. But it is a great day for education; gathering, using fresh knowledge.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Your personal attitude toward good and unfavorable offerings is important to how and what you accomplish. Should be little trouble with familiar activities, occupation duties. Think!

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)— Not promising in some matters but day grows better as it advances, tomorrow has highly favorable rays. Keep this in mind, with careful management now you can double later events.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—May need extra dose of good sense plus constant application to avoid day's pitfalls, which are mostly carelessness, tendency to overrun, make extravagant promises. Be wise, tactful.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)— Similar indications to most of us now; use your fine gray matter to plan and exercise actions according to demands of your position and rightful obligations. Better rays tomorrow.

YOU BORN TODAY: Keen mentally, much talent but are often too restless and changeable to put the proper consistency of effort back of plans or work to achieve the success that is possible for you. Correct tendency to be too elaborate about details, and undertaking too extensive projects. Recognize due restraint; save time, energy, money. Once you set your will power to correct faults, you will advance quickly, gain greater benefits. Study constantly to improve. Ask God's help always. Enjoy outdoor relaxation.

Birthdate: Ambrose E. Burnside, U.S. general; Douglas Fairbanks, Herbert Marshall, James Gleason, actors.

More Men Being Trained for Navy

Ottawa, May 22—(CP)—More Canadians are being trained and more ships are being constructed for anti-submarine operations, a spokesman for the Royal Canadian Navy said yesterday.

He was commenting on a New York Daily News report which said the United States Navy has for months mounted "on a war-time basis" a round-the-clock anti-sub watch in the Atlantic that is increasing steadily in scope and intensity.

The spokesman said it would be physically impossible for the Canadian navy, with the ships and men available, to maintain a 24-hour submarine watch on the Atlantic.

"Our first concern is to train men and bring forth ships needed for anti-sub operations," he said. "We are getting more men and more ships."

The R. C. N. tries to combine training cruises with anti-sub watches. Regular lookouts for subs are kept during the cruises.

About a year ago there were several reports of submarines having been sighted in east coast waters, especially in the Bay of Fundy. The navy believes that one or more Russian subs did visit those waters.

"But," said the spokesman, "that has increased our vigilance."

LANDING CRAFT CAPSIZES

Oceanside, Calif., May 22 (AP) —A landing craft with 13 Marines and a crew of three aboard, capsized in the surf off Camp Del Mar yesterday. Four were killed and another was seriously injured.

The craft was engaged in a practice landing operation, overturned a few yards offshore. A heavy surf was running at the time.

LONG CROSSING

The Pacific Ocean, largest body of water on the earth, is 10,000 miles wide at the Equator.

Bullet Smashes Through Plane

May 22—(CP)—A air force training plane crashed near Grove, Ont., Sunday and a rifle bullet ripped through the rear cockpit, just missing F/O. Thomas Low.

The bullet smashed the plexiglass cockpit canopy and splinters of the glass cut into Low's shoulder. He was treated for cuts when the single-engined Harvard trainer returned to Mount Hope R. C. A. F. air station.

Provincial police combed a nine-square area near Carlisle, 12 miles south of Hamilton, hunting for a person who fired the shot believed to have been from a .303 rifle.

The Harvard, flown by FO. Arthur Brown, D. F. C., on a low level cross-country flight, was about 800 feet up when the bullet smashed the canopy, entering from the left side and passing out the other side.

Low, who like Brown, is from Hamilton, said he was bending over his maps at the time. Otherwise, he said, the bullet would have struck him in the head.

Before returning to base, they plotted the area in which the shot was fired and reported it to police. Neither member of the crew saw anyone who might have fired the shot.

WILL OPEN FRONTIER

Guatemala, Guatemala, May 22 —(AP)— Guatemala said Monday it decided to reopen the frontier with British Honduras because of "magnificent relations existing with Great Britain." Guatemala claimed the British territory in 1948, saying it was legally part of this country. The name "British Honduras" was stricken from books and citizens ordered to refer to it as "Belize."

ROTARY LEADERS MEET

Lake Placid, N. Y., May 22 —(AP)— Rotary leaders from 53 countries are meeting here to plan the organization's activities for the year. Their work will be submitted to the annual Rotary International convention opening May 27 at Atlantic City, N. J. Arthur Lagueé of Quebec is presiding.

FOG BLANKETS N.Y.

New York, May 22 (AP) — Fog and drizzle again Mon., disrupted passenger flying schedules to and from New York City.

A spokesman at La Guardia Field said all incoming and outgoing traffic was stopped with ceiling zero.

At least 197 La Guardia flights were cancelled yesterday before the weather let up in the late afternoon. The fog returned in the evening, and the field has been closed since.

The Weather Bureau predicted a partial clearing for this evening.

CONTRIBUTORY OLD-AGE PENSIONS PROPOSED

Several Provinces To Co-operate In Federal Plan

Health Minister Says Blind To Get Continued Assistance

Ottawa, May 23—(CP)—Federal legislation for enlarged old age pensions will be introduced into parliament this year, Health Minister Martin today told the federal-provincial conference on pensions.

In an opening speech to the conference, he said the measure will be brought in as soon as the United Kingdom parliament passes a constitutional amendment giving the federal government power to operate a contributory system of universal old-age pensions at 70.

Passage of the amendment is expected promptly after the U.K. parliament reconvenes next week from Whitsun holiday.

Mr. Martin told the delegates from all provinces, meeting to determine the type of pension legislation for those between 65 and 70, that the federal bill will cover both that group and those over 70.

Provisions also will be made for continued assistance to the blind, he said.

After preliminary statements were made by representatives of the 11 governments, the conference decided to carry on its discussions in private. Mr. Martin said the federal government's duty was to outline its pensions legislation. Parliament's first rather than to the public.

He could not be said, at a public sitting, give delegates a general outline of the legislative proposals the federal government has in mind. He could do so at a private meeting. A recess was called to allow the newspapermen to leave the room.

Modified Plan

In his opening statement Mr. Martin made it plain that, for the present, he will be content to augment to a total payment of not more than $30 a month for the 1950-51 wheat crop. The motion by Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) was defeated 171 to 39 with Percy Black (PC—Cumberland) as the opposition member joining the government members in voting the motion.

Would Support if Unanimous

During the sales-tax debate, Prime Minister St. Laurent said he would support an amendment among the provinces, the government would support the move for a constitutional amendment. But held it would be wrong to vote now for the removal of the sale-tax plan since it might never come before the House because of lack of agreement among the provinces.

Hon. Earl Rowe, Progressive Conservative leader, said it was preposterous" to claim a motion calling for a declaration of opinion could be construed as a want-of-confidence motion. He charged that the Liberal party in the recent Prince Edward Island election had got votes by false pretenses by saying if the Progressive Conservatives were elected it would end the sales tax, and the new old-age pension plan.

Hints of Bigger Atomic Explosion At Eniwetok Current In Washington

Washington, May 23, (AP)—Hints of still another and even bigger atomic explosion at the Pacific proving ground—nuclear weapons proving grounds were current today.

A statement by Representative Henry M. Jackson (Dem.-Wash.) more than ten days ago suggested that a test of tests at Eniwetok in the Marshall Islands had been scheduled.

But there were fresh indications today that another explosion remained on the list. Representative Jackson's return from the proving grounds.

For one thing, the atomic energy commission so far has not issued its customary brief announcement on the conclusion of a test at Eniwetok. The commission was still standing on its announcement of more than a week ago that "we are engaged in a test program" at Eniwetok.

There seemed reason to believe that the final shot of the current series of tests, perhaps, whenever made, was expected to be the most powerful set off. Nuclear weapons experts have been piecing a an explosion about 10 times the magnitude of the original "Model T" bombs used at Hiroshima and Nagasaki in the Second World War.

This has led to speculation that there has been developed a new type of bomb more and of the size men of "lenses" which surround and contain the nuclear explosion until a high order of explosive force is built up. In this way, the efficiency of the bomb could be stepped up without a substantial change in shape or weight.

The next atomic test series is looked for, perhaps early next fall, in the Aleutian Islands. That was agreed to in a test program" at Eniwetok.

Collapse of Box Car Cause Of Derailment

Napanee, (Special) —Twenty-four freight cars on the Canadian National Railways went off the tracks near here early this afternoon when one buckled in the middle under a heavy load.

The car was loaded with cement blocks, and is believed to have collapsed in the middle, dragging the other cars off the track with it. Early reports said there were no injuries suffered personnel aboard the train.

The train was westbound about quarter-mile out of Napanee when the derailment occurred.

Seaway Canada's Greatest Need Says Saunders

Toronto, May 23 — (CP)—The St. Lawrence seaway is Canada's greatest single need for continued industrial development, Robert Saunders, Ontario Hydro chairman, said last night.

In a 15-minute radio address over a Toronto station Mr. Saunders said development of St. Lawrence power resources is an absolute must if an income of $7,000 per cent power is to be maintained in Ontario, Present construction, Mr. Saunders said, $284,432,000, will only be sufficient to carry the province with safety through the next five years.

Failing development of the St. Lawrence, the alternative would be construction of more steam generating plants. Cost of operating them would be $200,000,000 a year more than the cost of the same amount of power from a plant on the river.

Mr. Saunders said last week's average peak demand was 4,000,000 hp. about 450,000 horsepower than in the same period last year.

Tune up Motor, Remove Woodchuck Orders to Mechanic

Buffalo, N. Y., May 23 (AP) —Start tune up the motor and install a new set of seat covers. Oh yes, and remove the woodchuck.

These were orders A. L. Turner left with startled mechanics yesterday when he took his automobile into a garage for service.

The mechanics tuned up the motor and installed the seat covers. But removing the woodchuck was something else again. They said it would be between a side panel and the upholstery.

Turner said the woodchuck apparently got into the trunk when the car was parked in the country with the trunk open, then worked his way up into the side.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, May 23 (CP) —Synoptic situation: The weather situation tonight and tomorrow will be unsettled over most of Ontario leaving generally fair in its wake. Except for some cloudiness this afternoon, skies will be clear today. Old Sol will be smiling on Queen Victoria's Day too with the mercury climbing into the mid-70s by afternoon.

Regions north of Lake Superior will have some cloudiness today and Thursday, but temperatures will be warm for the holiday.

Tokyo, May 23 (AP)—Communist troops retreated northward along all battle fronts in Korea today before allied tanks and infantry.

The entire U.S. 10th Corps opened a counter-attack against the east-central front and gained up to 3½ miles. In the attacking force were the 1st Infantry and 1st marine divisions and other unidentified units. They recaptured Hariye, key road centre.

All along the front from Munsan on the far west to punnam in the east-central sector, the reds were pulling back toward north Korea.

On the eastern front, allied forces drove through rugged mountains out off the spearhead of the last red offensive forced back when black-bearded Iranis on a 24 - hour alert, patrolled the streets in horse-drawn hacks back. A dozen tanks roamed the city.

A resolution declaring "strong hatred" of the United States and Britain was cheered wildly at yesterday's mass rally, called by Moslem religious leaders and Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's National Bloc.

The cheering reached fever pitch when black-bearded Ayatollah Ghanatabadi, leader of the militant Moslem Fedayan Islam (Fighters for Islam), said:

"All loyal Moslems will throw the British bandits into the Persian Gulf, if they do not leave the country."

Thousands of Moslem religious banners were waved in approval when another speaker, parliament member Hossein Makki, said a recent statement by the United States department was a stab in the back of the Iranian nation."

The British Department, which has urged moderation of both sides of the dispute, has been accused by Iranians of backing the British stand against nationalization.

The rally—called by Ayatollah Seyed Abolghassem Kashani, one of Iran's leading priests—was the latest move to step up pressure against any British resistance to government seizure of the British controlled Anglo-Iranian oil company.

The law nationalizing the giant firm was enacted more than three years ago. But the government has given no hint of how it intends to carry it out.

The resolution, which drew loud cheers, contained these points:

1. "We hereby declare to the whole world that Iran is still of the Iranian people to take over the British oil company without any conditions."

2. The British note protesting nationalization is interference in internal affairs and "we hereby declare it rejected."

3. Parliament had the right to submit the United Nations charter to nationalize oil and "the former oil company, which is only a business concern, must surrender to the will of the Iranian people."

4. "Rumors of dispatching parachutes from Britain are considered by the Iranian people as wilful aggression."

GIVEN 15 YEARS

Toronto, May 23—(CP)—John Chylinski, 32, Tuesday was given 15 years in prison by Chief Justice Robert McRuer after pleading guilty for shooting with intent to kill. The charges arose from a holdup of a west-central grill March 3.

John Stockman, 29, and Joseph Michanzk, 35, convicted on similar charges, were sentenced to 12 years each.

Wolf and Bobby, Two RCMP Dogs, Seek Lost Survivors in Rockies

Gold Hill, B.C., May 23 (CP)—Two RCMP scent specialists, Wolf and Bobby, have been flown into this mountainous country in the search for an 18-year-old survivor.

The two dogs were put on the scent near the wrecked twin-engine, north of Kootenay Lake in southeastern British Columbia, after a search party of 60 failed to locate Carl Olson.

Olson was last seen only 600 yards from the shack dwellings of Gold Hill. He was blazing a trail near the foot of snow-capped, 10,000-foot Mt. Nelson.

Searchers Monday missing persons in old stuff for the two hundred German Shepherd dogs. As there are only 12 such dogs in RCMP service, they get frequent postings.

The RCMP use the German Shepherd breed almost exclusively because of their all-round ability.

Wolf and his master, Constable S. A. Ramsage, were trained here at Rockcliffe, Ont., and have formed a competent team for six years.

Wolf's talent for sniffing out moonshine has enabled the RCMP to obtain scores of convictions in BC against operators of illegal stills.

Given an even break—that is, put on the trail before it is too cold—the dogs are usually forced out any object, indoor or otherwise, which is foreign to its surroundings.

In this search, Wolf or Bobby may run across the ax Olson was carrying or sniff out a piece of his clothing.

Tension Mounts As Moslems Boo Britain and U.S.

Vow to Wage Holy War if Necessary

Tehran, Iran, May 23 — (AP)—Tension mounted today in crisis-torn Tehran after some 30,000 Moslems booing Britain and the United States— vowed yesterday to wage Holy war if need be to nationalize the country's rich oil resources.

An air of crisis gripped the Iranian capital as police and troops, on a 24 - hour alert, patrolled the streets in horse-drawn hacks back. A dozen tanks roamed the city.

A resolution declaring "strong hatred" of the United States and Britain was cheered wildly at yesterday's mass rally, called by Moslem religious leaders and Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's National Bloc.

Neighborly Relationship With U.S. Go By The Board; Issues Involve Peace or War

--Pearson

Ottawa, May 23 (CP) —The day of neighborly, back-fence relations between Canada and the United States has been superseded by an era in which the major issues of the day involve the crucial issue of world peace or war, External Affairs Minister Pearson said yesterday.

He got back on the subject of Canadian-American relations in his first appearance of this session before the Commons committee on external affairs.

The Canadian-American subject was raised by David Croll (L-Toronto Spadina) who asked Mr. Pearson to elaborate on a recent Toronto speech in which the minister said the days of relatively easy and automatic political relations between the two countries are over.

Carefully weighing his words, Mr. Pearson recalled that before the war the problems between the two countries were mainly problems affecting the two of them. They were "line-fence problems," such as boundaries, dangling problems, commercial and waterway problems.

Those still remained and were being solved as they always had been. But now there was an important power nd she was a member of a free world coalition dominated by the U.S. and Washington's policies could decide the question of peace or war.

Thus both had moved into an international sphere where the major problems of one affected those in the other. Problems, in this cold war era, relations with any major ally were difficult and they were difficult with the U.S., but they could be and would be worked out although it would not be easy.

There were no questions when he finished.

Gist of some of his other statements:

1. It is impossible to tell whether the cold war is going to be a sprint or a marathon. The best the west can do is prepare as fast as possible, having towards a military strength that would deter aggression. This strength would be reached in time—he wouldn't give the anticipated date—but the allies could not really count on having any time before aggression came in Europe.

2. Admission of Greece and Turkey to the 12-nation Atlantic pact is under "very active" study.

3. Canada still is against joining the Soviet Union.

4. CBC international broadcasts follow policies laid down by external affairs headquarters. They are heard in at least some iron curtain countries including Czechoslovakia.

5. Atlantic-Pact military posts in Europe are primarily based on contributions of manpower and Canada, with two fairly senior officers in Paris, is in a favorable able that some day a Canadian might hold the job now held by Gen. Eisenhower because of his ability.

6. Canada has slapped on an embargo to prevent shipment to Hong Kong or China of goods which could be used for war purposes. She places no such bars, however, on goods that can't be used for war.

7. Iran is the No. 2 trouble spot after Korea. It would be too bad if "another country" got Iran's oil.

8. There is nothing known here to substantiate reports of Russian peace feelers.

9. A number of countries want Canada to exchange diplomats. That would be further expansion of the diplomatic service this year.

Canadians Recall Great, Good Queen on May 24th

(By The Canadian Press)

First of the year's warm weather holidays, Victoria Day will be celebrated across Canada Thursday with sports meets, family gatherings and fireworks.

In Canada, May 24 is a holiday commemorating the birthday of Queen Victoria on May 24, 1819. The good Queen died just 50 years ago, and her birth date has been a holiday for Canadians ever since.

In other parts of the British commonwealth the day is celebrated as Empire Day, which always leads to a little confusion because in Canada Empire Day is a separate thing altogether. Canadians celebrate Empire Day on the school day before Victoria Day, which means May 23 in this instance.

Empire Day is largely observed by school pupils who put on plays and demonstrations indicating the links which bind the Empire and Commonwealth. Victoria Day is a festive commemoration of a Great Queen who ruled for 63 years and 216 months.

The federal government recently let it be known that no interference is contemplated with the date of the holiday this year. In recent years there has been a growing movement to celebrate holidays on the first day of the week, to provide three-day, long weekends for grown-ups alike a long weekend.

There had been some reports still fighting.

--And the Elephant Wasn't Pink

Butler, Pa., May 23 (AP)—"I just saw an elephant alongside the road."

This remark shocked a sleepy trooper at the State Police Barracks here into wakefulness.

"Is it pink?"; the trooper asked.

The trooper investigated—and found an elephant. In fact, he found several elephants.

A circus truck had broken down and the cargo of elephants unloaded while the truck was repaired.

Caboose Retired Until Robins Grow Up

Attoon, Ill., May 23 (AP)—An Illinois Central Railroad caboose has been retired until a family of robins grown up.

Last week switchmen making up a train discovered the robin's nest just above the rear end of its contents to another caboose in the north end of the yards.

The mother robin followed the crew, fluttered down and set on the nest.

Quebec and Ontario Against Imposition

Ottawa, May 23 (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent told the Commons yesterday that provinces for a constitutional change to allow the provinces to levy sales tax up to three per cent may never come before parliament.

They probably will die for lack unanimity, he said as he argued into a debate on an opposition move to kill the sales-tax plan.

Unanimity among the provinces was set out by the premiers at the Dominion-Provincial conference last year when the proposals were suggested—first by Premier McNair of New Brunswick—as a means to help the provinces build up their end of the new old-age pension plan.

The federal government still was discussing the matter with the provinces, but at the moment he understood Premiers Duplessis of Quebec and Frost of Ontario were against it. And if there was no unanimity, there would be no constitutional amendment, though he made it clear the implementation of the pension plan is not dependent on agreement on the sales tax.

The Prime Minister was speaking during debate on a motion by E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops) to put the Commons on record as opposing any further expansion of the sales-tax plan. He indicated that any vote on the motion be a vote of confidence in the government.

Later the house voted 138 to 36 to uphold a ruling by Speaker Rene Beaudoin that the motion was out of order. Liberal, Social Credit and C.C.P. members except Solon Low (Peace River)(CCF—York South) supported the speaker.

In the second recorded vote of the day the House crushed a CCF move to increase old-age assistment to a total payment of not more than $40 a bushel for the 1950-51 wheat crop. The motion by Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) was defeated 171 to 39 with Percy Black (PC—Cumberland) as the opposition member joining the government members in voting the motion.

Would Support if Unanimous

During the sales-tax debate, Prime Minister St. Laurent said he would support an amendment among the provinces, the government would support the move for a constitutional amendment. But held it would be wrong to vote now for the removal of the sale-tax plan since it might never come before the House because of lack of agreement among the provinces.

Hon. Earl Rowe, Progressive Conservative leader, said it was preposterous" to claim a motion calling for a declaration of opinion could be construed as a want-of-confidence motion. He charged that the Liberal party in the recent Prince Edward Island election had got votes by false pretenses by saying if the Progressive Conservatives were elected it would end the sales tax, and the new old-age pension plan.

TAX PROPOSALS MAY NEVER COME BEFORE COMMONS

Provinces Would Co-operate On Pensions

Ottawa, May 23 (CP)—Federal legislation for enlarged old age pensions will be introduced into parliament this year, Health Minister Martin today told the federal-provincial conference on pensions.

In an opening speech to the conference, he said the measure will be brought in as soon as the United Kingdom parliament passes a constitutional amendment giving the federal government power to operate a contributory system of universal old-age pensions at 70.

Passage of the amendment is expected promptly after the U.K. parliament reconvenes next week from Whitsun holiday.

Mr. Martin told the delegates from all provinces, meeting to determine the type of pension legislation for those between 65 and 70, that the federal bill will cover both that group and those over 70.

Provisions also will be made for continued assistance to the blind, he said.

After preliminary statements were made by representatives of the 11 governments, the conference decided to carry on its discussions in private. Mr. Martin said the federal government's duty was to outline its pensions legislation. Parliament's first rather than to the public.

He could not be said, at a public sitting, give delegates a general outline of the legislative proposals the federal government has in mind. He could do so at a private meeting. A recess was called to allow the newspapermen to leave the room.

Modified Plan

In his opening statement Mr. Martin made it plain that, for the present, he will be content to augment to a total payment of not more than $30 a month for the 1950-51 wheat crop. The motion by Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) was defeated 171 to 39 with Percy Black (PC—Cumberland) as the opposition member joining the government members in voting the motion.

No Publication Victoria Day

Thursday being Victoria Day there will be no publication of the Ontario Intelligencer.

future consideration will be given to a program of assistance to the disabled.

Ontario was pleased with the decision to abolish the means test on pensions to those 70 and over. He wondered if it was consistent thinking to keep the "undesirable" means test for persons in the 65-69 age group.

Mr. Goodfellow wondered if the means test would discourage those in the 65-69 group from working in order to qualify for the pension. If the means test is to be retained, he said, it should be as generous as possible so as not to discourage the men working.

Premier Duplessis of Quebec said the co-operative attitude of Quebec is well-known.

However, the conference should limit itself to the task assigned—drafting legislation for the 65-69 group. The conference was not called to deal with pensions for the disabled.

Hon. Harold Connolly, welfare minister for Nova Scotia, said his government planned to wait and see how the old people fared before it had to offer.

Hon. F. A. McGrand, minister of health and social services for New Brunswick, said his government is in the process of pay fully. P.C. for Federal Govt.

Hon. Ivan Schultz, Manitoba's welfare minister, said that under the new program the Federal government would be assuming responsibility for about 92 per cent of the old age pensions in the aged. Manitoba felt that it was "unwise and unnecessary" to ask the province to assume responsibility for the remaining eight per cent.

Manitoba believed the Federal Government should assume full responsibility for old age pensions. However, since that had been decided against Manitoba would co-operate with others in working out an alternate program.

Hon. W. A. C. Bennett, British Columbia's welfare minister, said his government welcomes the new pensions program because "we consider our province the best province in the world and of Canada." He could not commit his government at any specific program but he was sure it would "go along" with the others.

Hon. Walter S. Walker, Mathewson of Prince Edward Island said he hoped some satisfactory pensions program will result from the conference.

Hon. Woodrow Lloyds of Saskatchewan said he was pleased to hear that the Federal Government plan to introduce at this session" legislation covering the Ontario said he was pleased to hear that the Federal Government plan to introduce at this session" legislation covering the Ontario said he was pleased to hear and for those in the 65-69 age group.

New Q. E. School Will be Ready For Fall Term

Assurances that the new Queen Elizabeth School now under construction in the east end of the city would be ready for the opening of the autumn school term in September, has been given by the school architect, W. A. Watson.

According to Mr. Watson the general contract on the new classroom school will be completed by August 15 despite a delay caused by soft ground early in season. This will give slightly more than two weeks to furnish the school and to install equipment.

"It will be drawing the line pretty close, but I expect the school will be ready for the opening of the term in September," L. A. Kells, administrator-secretary for the board of education said yesterday. Some of the equipment for the new school has already been purchased and delivered.

H. P. Gundy Gives Interesting Talk On Early Journalism

The Belleville and District Branch of the Queen's Alumni Association held its annual spring dinner in the Sunday School hall of St. Andrew's United Church, in Stirling, on Friday evening last. An excellent dinner was provided by the ladies of the Women's Association.

The guest speaker, Mrs. H. P. Gundy, Queen's librarian, gave a most informative and enjoyable talk on "Early Canadian Journalism." His address, providing a fascinating insight into early Canadian days, was delightfully illustrated by actual copies of some of the early newspapers from which Mr. Gundy read a few choice and amusing news items of the day. One of these was an account of a naval battle which took place in Kingston Harbor during the war of 1812. This was reported in what seemed to the audience a most casual style in comparison with the type of newspaper writing we know today.

Mr. Gundy was introduced by Mr. Cox, principal of the Stirling High School, and thanked by Mr. Douglas Burr, of Belleville, Chairman for the gathering was Mr. Don Dies, president of the Belleville and District Branch.

In addition to the toast to the King and the University, toasts were also proposed to the University of Western Ontario, University of Toronto and University of London, representatives of which were present at the dinner.

Grants for New School Area Will Not be Less Than Now Received Says Department

Formation of the proposed Bay of Quinte High School Area seemed a bit closer realization this week with assurance from the Ontario Department of Education that department grants to the combined board would not be less than those now received by the local Board of Education and by the South Hastings High School Board.

It is proposed to form a new high school area by combining the Belleville Board of Education with the South Hastings Board for high school purposes. Included would be the City of Belleville, Thurlow and Tyendinaga and part of Ameliasburg township.

Assurance to the effect that grants would not be less under the proposed setup was received yesterday by L. A. Kells, secretary-treasurer of the local board from C. F. Cannon, acting deputy minister of education.

Under present regulations, should the new board be formed, grants for 1951 would be based on data of 1951 and calculated as if the present board had remained separate. Any changes in grant by-laws are passed by city council and council of Hastings county and of Prince Edward prior to July, 1951 the new board would become into existence on January 1, 1952.

The deputy minister assured in his letter that the grant for each of the years from 1953 to 1956 inclusive would not be less than the two grants to the two boards if they had not formed the new single board.

It was the question of what grants might be expected that has more or less delayed formation of the proposed Bay of Quinte High School Area. There had been no confirmation from the department and earlier in May a letter was received by Earl Dafoe, secretary of the South Hastings High School Area from S. D. Rendall, department official to the effect that it may be advisable not to form the larger area.

Following this the chairman of the local board, A. C. Campbell, with members Frank Cushing and Enos David, with George Currie, principal of Belleville Collegiate, went to Toronto on May 16th and met with department officials. They were then promised consideration and a statement with respect to grants.

KILLED BY TRAIN

Toronto, May 22 — (CP) Body of a girl identified as Eleanor Flowers of Toronto was found last night near a suburban railway crossing. The girl is believed to have been killed by a train.

Truck Overturns, Forced off Road By Passing Car

Tweed, (Special.) — A "road-hog" car driver is sitting somewhere today unaware that his highway-hogging practice caused what might have been a serious accident.

This morning eleven tons of beer lay in a ditch near this village, Memorial Park. A telephone pole is sheared off and a large tree ruined. The driver is safe, if he has been shaken up but otherwise uninjured.

It all happened at four o'clock this morning when a Tackles Transport truck, out of Kitchener, had been out of Ottawa, met a car near the southern outskirts of this village.

The car hugged the centre of the road, it is alleged and transport driver, Norman Dennis, Kitchener, swerved to avoid what he thought might be a collision. The transport struck the road shoulder careened across the highway and came to rest in the ditch, smashing a telephone pole and crashing into a large tree. The driver escaped unhurt. Cargo hurt but badly shaken.

The car, driven his way, the driver apparently unaware of what had happened.

Fortunately the transport did not catch fire, but gasoline leaked freely from the tanks.

Chief of Police George Spratt stood guard over the overturned transport in case of fire breaking out.

DECLARED DANGEROUS

Tallahassee, Fla. May 23—(AP) —The Florida supreme court yesterday declared it dangerous to allow an employee "to be disciplined for criticizing or voicing a want of regard for his superior's abilities." To uphold action of a lower court in reinstating a St. Petersburg fireman who was suspended from his job for 90 days for criticizing operation of the fire department "and the fire chief's ability to run said department."

L. Wood Ends 40-Year Career As Railroader

A 40-year career as a railroader was ended for Leonard Wood of Wellington yesterday as the north station when he stepped down from the engine after pulling the Madoc-Belleville inland train into the city.

As he stepped down from his cab for the last time he wrote finis to a railroading career extending over 39 years and seven months. A resident of this city at 67 Cannifton Road for the past 40 years, Mr. Wood recently purchased a home at Wellington where he has taken up residence.

Born in the Cloyne district, Mr. Wood came to the city in 1911 and the next year joined the old Grand Trunk as a fireman. In 1928 he started pulling the throttle and since then has pulled both passengers and freight trains in and out of Belleville. He was engineer on the first trial run of No. 15 fast train out of Belleville.

Sought Shorter Runs

But after running the fast trains and heavy freights on the main line he then sought out the shorter runs and finally on three months has been on the Madoc-Belleville station run. Incidentally enough his last run was on "stock day" and with waiting for farmers' stock at stations along the run was three hours late on his final trip.

It was a big day for Mr. Wood, but it was even a bigger day for his wife who made it sort of a dual celebration. It was Mrs. Wood's birthday and she treated herself to a ride on the locking the engine on the last mile of his final trip. She boarded the incoming train at the roundhouse and rode in style to the station, where members of the train staff and friends had gathered for a rousing welcome.

Hold Family Supper

Festivities were continued late with a family supper.

And the family of Mr. and Mrs. Wood is of the fashionable variety with no less than eight sons and daughters most of whom were in Belleville for the big day.

There are five sons, Edward, Clare, Clifford and Jim of Belleville and Fred of Toronto. There are three girls, Mrs. J. Anderson of Toronto, Mrs. Lorne Clarkough, and Jean of this city. Two of Mr. Wood's sons are following their father as railroaders. Clare is a brakeman, now classed as conductor, and Clifford is a car inspector.

What to do following retirement from the railroad, Mr. Wood is going to get in a lot fishing. But first they are going on a honeymoon trip to Toronto, Detroit and the Canadian West.

Sweet memories of a loved one.
Dearest Frank, I loved so dearly,
I think of her in silence;
No one knows the pain we suffer
But many silent tears are shed
When thoughts gathered for a loving one.

Belleville Cheese Exchange Created at Overflow Meeting Of Buyers, Salesmen in City

A new era in the marketing of cheese in Central Ontario was inaugurated last evening with the creation of the Belleville Cheese Exchange.

An overflow gathering of more than 100 representatives, buyers, and salesmen from five Central Ontario cheese boards packed City Hall's council chambers for a two-and-a-half-hour session, at which phases of cheese marketing were discussed with representatives of the Ontario Marketing Board.

The initial business of the new exchange was conducted by Interim president Phil Carr, and secretary, Fred Mallory, with 1400 cheese offered being sold at the minimum domestic price of 36 cents a pound, and 257 white cheese being sold at the marketing Board at the export minimum price of 37 cents. All cheese boarded on the new exchange have been produced since May 10th.

Prior to the formation of the new exchange, cheese made up into boards in the city was boarded and sold under the old system, and 13/16 cents a pound. Seven hundred colored cheese and eight white were sold at that price.

Called by President

The meeting was called to order by the president of the Belleville Cheese Board, Phil Carr, whose opening remarks were that, "cheese has become the shock troops of the dairy industry, a fact that is proven by the industry's pioneering of the new marketing system."

He called on Mr. Heath, a representative of the Ontario Marketing Board, to explain the structure and operation of a cheese exchange. Mr. Heath outlined changes but each exchange is free to add anything it so desires."

Slate of Officers

The new exchange shall elect at least a president, first and second vice-presidents, and a secretary, and any others that are deemed necessary, and the secretary does not necessarily have to be a cheese producer.

The minimum price established for cheese, to go into effect immediately in all trading on the new exchange, remains in operation for first grade, 35 cents for second grade, 34 cents for third grade, and any of these grades may be graded to be sold by agreement between the buyer and the seller. The "quality premium" paid for No. 1 grade over and above the sale price, with the money going to the factory.

A fee of three cents a pound will be levied by the exchange on all cheese sold. This money will be used to operate the exchange, and any balance will be returned to cheese sold for export and that sold on the domestic market. Any surplus remaining at the end of the year will be returned on a per pound basis to the factories.

In replying to questioning by Frank Gallagher Mr. Heath stated that the new system of trading on cheese grades was set by the Marketing Board following a survey of more than 500 cheese, and most of whom felt that that was the most equitable system of breakdown.

Levy Comes In For Comment

The three cent levy per pound of cheese came in for comment but it was pointed out that it was impossible to predict the amount of production for the year and therefore the amount that would be needed to balance prices should excess production cause a decline in domestic prices. A figure could be set, and surplus funds would be distributed to the factories at the year's end.

Mr. Heath pointed out that with the dissolution of the Campbellford, Malone, Madoc and Stirling cheese boards, it will place a hardship on some of the distant factories to send their samples to the exchange each week. To ease the burden the Marketing Board will forward to each factory, a form which can be filled out and returned to the exchange or the Board, with the information as to the number and kind of cheese.

Can Withdraw Production

The secretary of the exchange then boards the factory's production and arranges the sale. It was stated however, that if the factory salesmen does not wish to complete the sale he may withdraw his production until the next meeting of the exchange.

Mr. Heath, in answer to questions from the floor, made it quite clear that federal inspection of cheese off the exchange. When asked if the factory can sell to outlets other than the five boarded outlets, Mr. Heath stated that the Board does not wish to cut this thing to low a line, but as it stands now the retail dealers are going to have to buy their cheese from the regular buyers on the exchange.

When it was claimed that this penalized the small retailer, Mr. Heath replied that exemptions from the regulations in special cases may be arranged. He promised to investigate this matter further.

Special cheese produced under an agreement between the factory and the buyer, will be called on the exchange but will not be up for sale. In this way the members of the exchange will know what cheese is being made under special exemption from exchange regulations and why. However, all cheese so produced will be assessed the three cent per pound levy and paid on cheese produced and sold in the regular way.

Asks for Co-operation

In concluding his remarks to the members, Mr. Heath asked for their patient co-operation and understanding while the many details of the new scheme are ironed out.

"Business is changing and there are new ways of doing things," he commented, "but the Board is trying to do its best for you and for the consumer, and I hope you concluded.

Further details in the operation of the new scheme will be explained to members at subsequent meetings. The next meeting of the new Belleville Cheese Exchange will be held in the Council Chambers at the City Hall, Tuesday evening, May 29, at 9.00 p. m.

Cause of Terrible Toll of Life Taken on Highways Outlined To Kiwanians by Traffic Expert

"A poor class of drivers operating high-class motor cars, is the cause of the terrible toll of life taken on our highways", stated Inspector Norman Paige, of the Traffic Safety Division of the Toronto Police Department in an address to the weekly luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club held Tuesday noon in Kiwanis Centre.

"Every motorist considers himself an expert, if not a genius, in operating a motor vehicle," Inspector Paige continued, "when in reality the poorest nut in the whole machine is the one behind the wheel."

"If I have found in a careful survey in Toronto that 40 per cent of those with licences do not know the fundamentals of safe driving and an even greater percentage have little or no idea of their duties and responsibilities as operators of motor vehicles. Not can drivers be blamed entirely, as their responsibilities are clearly outlined in the Ontario Motor Vehicle Act where these duties and responsibilities are clearly outlined."

Nearly Million Killed

Inspector Paige's statistically proven indictment of the human element in traffic accidents was as stated that, "during the month of November of this year the one millionth person will die in the United States as a consequence of the operation of an automobile. In the second World War America suffered 94,000 casualties on the field of battle, while in the same period, the 'peaceful' Canadian front was devastated with 170,000 traffic casualties. In 1949 in the United States 32,900 lost their lives in traffic accidents and 1,670,000 were injured at a total property loss of six and a half billion dollars. This is a 72-year period of their Memorial Day holiday, 573 people died on the highways of the United States."

Coming closer to home, the speaker said that in Ontario there were 12,534 drivers involved in accidents, the city of Toronto last year, "11,000 of them driving straight ahead in broad daylight."

"This staggering loss of life places a heavy economic, and in consequence, you and you and you, the drivers of these vehicles, right behind the wheel, responsible for the purchase of the proper-ty, but also included interest and carrying charges and any alterations necessary to the proper-ties following purchase."

News of Trenton

Month in Jail Given For Drunk Driving

Trenton. (Special.) — Roy Deschane received the maximum penalty for drunken driving yesterday when he appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in the weekly police court session and was sentenced to 30 days in jail at Belleville.

He admitted being the driver of a car owned by Robert Carr of R.R. 4, Brighton, which crashed a hydro pole on the night of May 12 and literally fell apart.

Backed up by a photograph of the wreck at the scene, a police constable told of finding Deschane lying on floor of a Front St., residence in a semi-conscious condition and smelling strongly of liquor. Car was with him and was suffering from a long gash on the side of the face. Both men were admitted to the Trenton Memorial Hospital after the crash the next morning. Dr. J. V. Byrne found that Deschane's only injury was a bruise on the back of the head.

A third occupant of the car, Newman Deschane, father of the accused, was located later and sent to the hospital.

The car, valued at $150, was a complete wreck.

The police officer testified that Deschane was kicking around on the floor and complaining of the accident. The doctor who treated him said that his condition was due to the effect of alcohol.

An eye witness stated that she pushed her daughter and husband back out of the path of the vehicle as it careened along the shoulder of the road and struck a curb ahead of the pole.

Deschane was wearing the uniform of a U.S. Army airborne trooper. He sat nervously as the Crown evidence of his criminal record which included assaulting a Trenton policeman several months ago.

Magistrate Wills said that some steps should be taken to notify the American army to come and get him.

The Crown asked for another extension to continue the search for a missing witness in the attack made upon Mrs. Cecile Gilmour by a pair of dogs in April.

Jack Zigman, also charged of owning vicious dogs, was assured by the Magistrate that the case would proceed next week, Crown regardless.

The case against Alfred Anderson, charged with setting traps in a game preserve, will proceed on Tuesday next. He pleaded not guilty and the Crown asked time to bring in conservation official witnesses.

TEN YEARS AGO

Although it seems a part of dim, dark history, it is only 10 years ago tomorrow, on the 24th, that the famous H.M.S. Hood, then believed to be the biggest warship on the seas, went down to her grave between Iceland and Greenland. She sank from the fire of the guns of the German battleship Bismarck, and only three of her crew of 1,300 were recovered. It was a dark day for Britain and the free world.

By May 27th, however, the Hood's foe was revenged. Torpedo planes from the famed Ark Royal found the Bismarck in the North Atlantic. Deserted by her escort, she Prinz Eugen, the Bismarck was shattered without cere-mony, and the German fleet heeled over and went down. At first thought to be a 35,000-ton ship, she was later found to be in the 50,000-ton class, and of her 2,400 officers and men, only 100 were saved.

The sinking of the Bismarck, along with the Tirpitz, which made up the top echelon of the German fleet, was a severe blow to Germany. The loss of the Hood, a 42,100-ton battleship, was a disaster that Britain could not discount, either. Nevertheless, the strength of the British fleet was so great that the loss of the Hood knocked only one ship of the war machine. Not Germany the death of the Bismarck almost stopped the naval machine, and if she had entertained any thoughts of beating the British on the seas before that, she had her thoughts killed by the might that blasted the Bismarck.

It proved that Britannia ruled the waves was something that destroyed when the Hood was hit. An unlucky shell ploughed into her magazines, and for three days the Germans crowed that the battleship was an unsinkable one. But Germany changed their tune, and Germany was plunged into mourning, when the Royal Navy reasserted its might.

Those were the days when sea power was still the biggest thing in the world. The intensive air raids had not started by both Britain and Germany, but there were those who foresaw the immense role airplanes would play in the world's history. Now, only ten years later, we have the atomic bomb and other accomplishing feats that in the 'thirties were only flights of fancy in 1941.

And the war has changed from one where we fought direct enemy to a situation in which we are at times fighting an invisible menace. Fascism, although it had many of its other countries, was, in 1941, rooted in the German Nazi movement. It was a blatant, powerful form of government. It fought on the surface.

This time, we are faced with an insidious form of totalitarianism — the communist way of life. Just as the Bismarck was sunk ten years ago, so will be communism.

HASTINGS PROGRESSES

Statistical reports never make the best reading in the world. No one could hope to sit down and get any relaxation from any of them, and the most of them contain figures that remain meaningless to most people. But once these figures are made into easily-read headings, with subdivisions in each, Ontario has been divided into nineteen economic zones, of which the Quinte district is one.

The figures (which are quoted for 1949) show that the total payroll in Hastings, with Belleville, Trenton, Napanee and Addington and Prince Edward amounted to more than $41,000,000. Doubtless, it has risen since then, and will continue to rise. That amount was an increase of more than $6,000,000 over the previous year, and $10,000,000 over 1947. The indication is then, that there has been at least one of two factors at work in the zone. Either wages have gone up through those years, or there has been expansion of industry. Likely both have affected the trade.

In Hastings county, with which Belleville is most concerned, there were 266 firms in the manufacturing field, employing 7,112 workers. The payroll for the county represented $14,000,000 in 1949, and the gross value of goods at nearly $19,000,000. There are no employers in fishing in the county, but the extent of the lumber industry in the district in 1949 was indicated by the presence of 49 employers in the zone. There were 201 people in mining, 12 firms employed 203 men, showing that mining on an employee basis purely, is a definite asset to the area. Transportation, storage and communication provided employment for 383 men; trade provided 549 jobs; under 88 employers; construction employed 325 men, and public utilities 227; services, 1,041, and agricultural concerns, apart from direct farming, employed ten people.

The number of employers in the county has risen steadily from 1947, an indication that business economy on the whole is sound.

There are a million other figures in the report. They are valuable, but hard reading. However, if they all give the picture the above statistics have given, they are worth dissecting slowly.

THE RECEPTIONIST

The young receptionist in white
Inquired in manner most polite,
"Have you been here before?
And why is it you come today?
I wonder if you'd care to say
Who sent you to our door?

"How old are you and what's your weight,
And why are you two minutes late?
What size your hat and shoes?
How can we reach you on the phone?
Your teeth. How many are your own?
The dentifrice you use?

"Your business, and your middle name?
Gray eyes, I see, and hair the same.
A bow tie badly tied?"
A most inquiring maid was she.
She promptly made it plain to me.
That nothing I could hide.

I rattled off the answers all:
"One sixty-one; five seven tall."
And, with the high degree
"Cum laude" I am sure I passed
Because she smiled and said, at last,
The doctor I could see.

"It's just a minor repair job that we'll be able to take care of with a major overhaul."

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL D. DOUGLASS

THE IMMEASURABLE PEACE

My friend Albert Ludlow Kramer was a millionaire, but with all his wealth he was an unhappy, frustrated, unsatisfied man.

Then something happened to him. It is difficult to say just what known to anyone else. By an assiduous reading of books and by a prayerful study of the Bible, and this almost entirely apart from the help of others, Albert Kramer became a very great Christian disciple.

Later he lost most of his money, but he wrote a book entitled "From Millions to Happiness." It is very marvellous book. Years ago I read it, and its ideas are still indelibly impressed upon my mind.

This remarkable man found that he had found Jesus Christ in his heart, he had inner peace; when he had inner peace he had a thing that millions of dollars could not buy. He knew the joy of making a great fortune, of having an outstanding businessman, and yet with all this he had heart unrest.

Our beloved nation is suffering from spiritual malnutrition. We are probably closer to soul starvation than we realize. We think in terms of what we call the standard of living; what we really want is the peace that passeth all understanding.

All earthly joys are definitely limited in scope, only spiritual joys and concord surpass our understanding.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

We have now arrived at the season of year when everybody and his mother-in-law heads for the highways and the waterways, camps and wayside resorts. The weekend in the country is no longer the privilege of the fat and well-to-do. Everybody goes. It has become as universal, and exhausting ritual in Canada. Everybody suffers in about equal measure.

But there is one exception. There one character who suffers out of all proportion. And that is the poor fellow who, on arrival back in the city after hours of driving in that steaming, chivying, nerve-racking procession, has to deliver his friends to their homes in various parts of town.

It is bad enough now; but in a few weeks, as the holiday season advances, it becomes tragic.

You know what happens. One of your neighbors up at the lake or up at the point, telephones. Are you driving up to the cottage for the weekend? How about a lift? Before you know it, maybe two or three of your jolly resort friends have clubbed together with you, and you take them up, you have to bring them back.

Or, if you're not driving, you're the cottage on Sunday, even if you have brought nobody up, somebody is almost certain to want a lift back to town. Some live in the east end and some in the west. Often an hour is added to the homeward journey by this distribution of passengers to their homes. A newspaper photographer friend of mine, who suffered this infliction for many years past, put an end to it last summer and now is a happy man where great offices stood there is nothing but melancholy ruins.

Old Mother Nature is covering the scars of destruction with her flowering weeds are blooming between the cracks of mortar and on the very foundations on that which once was. We were in St. Paul's, one wing received a direct hit and is barred to the public, and there is an illuminated sign above showing what it will be like when reconstruction is completed. London suffered, they rebuilded the very old bottom of human endurance, but even when alone, they cannot, even in the justice for which they took up arms.

No Spirit of Bravado

And these common people show no spirit of bravado. They talk of the hell they went through, but with a quiet everyday expression, they went to bed hopeful, they awakened to those who lived, thankful. The most have told us, many, many of them, that women were great. They kept their chins up and would never have given up they were not. "Why, we'd have died in the last ditch, to the last, ruined home." And the women have told us, "We'd have fought with you." Twenty-four hours straight they stayed with their men, they went to their work, after four hours or so called rest and worked for 12 hours. They have saved us."

We have talked to many people about the political situation over here and one has to truthfully say that there are many diverse opinions. I talked to an artist whose views, expressed as body trenors, extended wings and gestures, were left wing. The anemic chicks were divided into groups.

The first group received suitable daily doses of pure B12.

The second group received folic acid alone.

The third group received B12 plus iron.

The fourth group received folic acid plus iron.

The fifth group received B12 plus folic acid.

Blood count and hemoglobin throughout the time of the examinations every second day and it consistently proved that that the combination of B12 and folic acid produced the most profound increase in red corpuscles and in hemoglobin, bringing both up to nearly normal in about twelve days.

The group of chicks receiving B12 alone made the slowest recovery.

It would seems then that it is a mistake to depend on pure crystalline vitamin B12. The "red vitamin" has been overestimated by near scientists who regularly rush into print with dramatic stories of the "amazing" new cures. As experiment on the chicks demonstrated, the red vitamin in its purest form is even less effective against anemia than is iron, and far less effective than it is when taken combined with folic acid, as described in the pamphlet The Red Blood Vitamin, published on request if you provide stamped self-addressed envelope.

It would be wrong to infer from anything said here about B12 and/or folic acid, its potentiator, that iron and vitamin B complex are no longer required to prevent or cure anemia.

England--Then and Now

By Fred Hart

(Article 2)

"Let those who may complain that it was all so different remember that only on paper has humanity yet achieved glory, beauty, truth, knowledge, virtue and abiding love."
— George Bernard Shaw.

SO THIS IS LONDON

To describe London is impossible. It is the greatest thing the high spots. Here in this vast and scattered city one rubs cheek by jowl with every race of the far flung empire, of this far wide world. There seems to be more Indians, dusky turbaned people, than Europeans. There is a daily trail behind their menfolk and the men big and fat, lean and skinny.

The women have trailing skirts of fright and colors that run the eye with a diamond stuck in the side of her nose. Charlie, when he saw it, turned to me with, "Wouldn't it be bad if she had a head cold!" I said, "If that happens I'll pull her nose, she might blow her diamond."

It is impossible to be every-where, French and 'other foreign tongues are heard, no matter where you go. It is the same in the streets or on the marvelous system of tubes and trams. The people, the common people, are courtesy personified.

Given Directions

Charlie and I got on a bus and asked the conductor to tell us where was the nearest bus stop to Cockspur Street. He gave us the information to the further trouble of pushing through the crowded aisle to tell us. He said with "Sir, you alight at the next bus stop" and went on to give us clear and concise directions. To another occasion, Charlie and I were standing outside a shop when we in the bush at Bill Nugent's camp at where-is-it in Renfrew County. A man stopped, turned back and politely said "Can I help you, sir?" Knowing our readers will guess, he knew us not. But with evident pleasure he gave us our bus direction. The parting word "I'm happy if I have been of any assistance."

If one goes into a shop — the parting words are, "Thank you very much, sir," or "Thank you, please" and "thank you" from the costermonger to the duchess. One sees no signs of panhandling. During our week's visit we have seen but three old men beggaring, one was blind and playing a violin, one was singing in a good tenor voice and the third was selling matches. Poverty is open-handed, but there are no well, but plainly dressed. All seem to have fist meals on their backs and rubber soles on rubber even during this continued wet weather.

War Damage Everywhere

How can one describe the bomb damage? Wherever one goes in this vast metropolis there is the evidence of the war. Some people suffered. Streets have been demolished, not one block but for of another, gaping holes, stark destruction. Skeletons of churches are everywhere. In the open spots, one can only compare this terrific, awful thing to what a great steam shovel would do if the jaws were big enough to bite and remove whole blocks.

A fairly young railway worker told us the other evening that he was in the first fire-watch. He was only 17 years old at the time. He was on the roof of a tenement building, went right through several floors and exploded in the basement, killing the inmates crouched for shelter. It was his job to go through the debris, pick at the awful sight. Dismembered women, men and children. He said he was sick and vomited every fire-watcher said to this lad — "You are learning your job." He said "It isn't your job — it's dead." He went on to say that the woman's arm, torn off at the shoulder. He went on to say that he saw many similar sights and they did not affect him to such a degree as he intended.

Old Hotel Gone

We went into Oxford Street and looked for Dean's Hotel where many Belleville stayed during the Visy Pilgrimage in 1936. I was particularly anxious to get into the room my family and I stayed there on that occasion. Nothing save a gaping hole where this lovely old hotel once stood. Across the street are the ruins of Selfridge's. For streets and streets around St. Paul's Cathedral there is nothing but vacant cellars. Incendiary fire bombs started the inferno and again.

"Going," he says, "I have these days to take care of my house, to be there at a certain exact hour, and I never walk more than ten miles per day. Saturning, they can either get out at the city limits and take a street car or taxi, or come to my house and call a taxi. I may be in the long-distance haulage business, but I am no longer in the city taxi business.

It is only reasonable.

Old Mother Nature is covering the scars of destruction with her flowering weeds are blooming between the cracks of mortar and on the very foundations on that which once was. We were in St. Paul's, one wing received a direct hit and is barred to the public, and there is an illuminated sign above showing what it will be like when reconstruction is completed. TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE MYSTERIOUS

It is the mysterious which is forever intriguing us into knowledge. One of our greatest inborn qualities is that of curiosity.

From earliest childhood to old age we want to know, even though we have learned much and lived long. We want to know more. It is the mysterious that is the source of all art and science. It is what makes us love a stranger, who can no longer surprise us after a few years, and be in awe, is as good as dead; his eyes are closed."

We wonder at the miracle of the telephone, the radio and the airplane—and now the television, which is the newest thing there will be discoveries that will make these present instruments lea, look strangely out of date. People are forever wanting something, when something different. I walked into my room this morning with a handful of early violets and other small flowers that helped to earthen the room with perfume. I am still just as fascinated by the mystery of nature as when a boy. Then I was filled with the mystery of bird build its nest exactly the same as every other of its kind? And the mystery of how flower reproduces its kind in every way, no matter where its seed may be planted.

The mind of man has achieved wonderful things in the realm of ideas leading to his accomplishments have come from nature. Even animals, from the smallest to the sea, and from flowers to shrubs to trees, reveal that intrigues and drives us to further study and discovery. Our combative thinking ends when we cease to wonder at God's mysteries.

RAWDON

Many Attend Inaugural Service

Last Sunday evening Carmel United Church in Rawdon town-ship and Carmel Jubilee Hall were filled to overflowing with worshippers from many points for the inaugural service of Carmel Young Adult Association.

The guest speaker was the Rev. A. M. Laverty B.A.B.D., chaplain of Queen's University, Kingston, who was the minister of St. Paul's Carmel before going overseas in World War II. Mr. Laverty brought a special message of inspiration to the young folk on the timely theme "Follow the crowd to do wrong". He pictured the men of Bible days who found themselves on the wrong path by following others' but when they stood firm on the moral issue irregardless of the crowd they were given strength to follow "The Ten Commandments" and to keep on the right road."

Lovely Floral Display

The church and hall presented a picture of beauty with baskets of tulips, apple blossoms and lilacs.

The officers of the Young Adult Association are: — presidents Mr. and Mrs. Russell Pyrah; vice president Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Grillie; sec.-treasurers, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bailey; pianist Miss Verna Brown.

The Junior Farmers' choir of Hastings county composed of young men and women contributed two numbers, "The Prayer of Thanksgiving" and "Jacob's Ladder". Miss Jean Aylesworth rendered a soprano solo "Come Unto Him" by Handel. Mrs. A. E. Baker, A.R.C.M. director of this choir played the accompaniments for these selections.

Mr. Russell Pyrah welcomed the large audience and presided over the service which opened with "Praise the Lord, Thou King of Heaven" with Miss Verna Brown at the piano.

Rev. A. E. Baker, pastor of the church, spoke briefly and introduced the guest speaker.

P.A. System Used

A P.A. system carried the service from the church to the hall and the large group of worshippers sang in unison "Creations Lord We Give Thee Thanks".

The pastor and the president both extended thanks to the guest speaker, to the choir members (who had travelled from various parts of the county), to the Carmel congregation and to the young adult group and to all the visitors in attendance from other points as all had contributed to the success of this special service. "The Day Thou Gavest Lord is Ended" and the Hebrew benediction closed an evening long to be remembered by those privileged to attend.

The Carmel group served refreshments in the church hall to the Junior Farmers' choir and the guest speaker and all enjoyed a social half hour of fellowship together.

Choose the Pots and Pans For Your Kitchen Carefully

Pots and pans, cookie sheets, canisters, measuring cups and egg beaters are the tools of the homemaker just as a hammer and nails are the tools of the carpenter. As a homemaker you should choose your kitchen tools just as carefully as any craftsman.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture tell us that there are three things which should be considered before it is decided which pot or pan or other utensil is to be bought for the home. First of all, is it durable and sturdy and will it stand up to the wear it will be given? Secondly, is it convenient to use and care for? Thirdly, is it suitable for the type of cooking which will be done in it? It is always wise to remember that buying pans of good quality is an economy rather than an extravagance. On the other hand, it may be sheer extravagance to pay top price for a utensil which is unsuited.

The appearance of the utensil and the finish of the metal may, to some extent, denote its quality but, if the homemaker is familiar with the characteristics of the different materials used for utensils it is much easier to decide which utensil to choose.

Use For Several Purposes

There will be a saving both in money and storage space if a utensil may be utilized for several purposes rather than for just one purpose. Some homemakers prefer matched pots and pans bought in individual pieces or sets while others prefer different types of utensils. For instance, one homemaker may have an iron frying pan, a glass baking dish, an aluminum roaster and enamel ware pots and pans white, the reason liking the new. Another may have all aluminum or stainless steel utensils.

Today, in the stores, there is a great variety of cooking utensils from which to choose. The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture say that they want to point out a few facts about each type.

Aluminum may be used for pots and pans of all types. Heavy and medium weight aluminum pots are very durable. Light weight aluminum ware is cheaper but is often too thin to stand up to daily use. If a pan is to be used daily it will pay to buy heavy aluminum. However, for things such as jelly moulds, which are used only occasionally, the lighter weight will do. Though easily darkened by alkalies in foods and water, aluminum readily responds to cleaning with soap and water or a mild abrasive or a weak solution of house hold acid such as vinegar or lemon juice.

One of the newer materials, stainless steel, is now being used for utensils. As a utensil made entirely of stainless steel would tend to become too hot in pots, it is usually found that the bottoms and sides of copper. The surface of enamel ware is really glass fused on to a steel base by firing at a high temperature. It is smooth, non-porous and easy to clean. Good quality enamel ware is resistant to acids and it is not readily marked by metal spoons as is the poorer quality. Quality in enamel ware depends on the number of coats of enamel and the thickness of the base. Treat enamel ware as you would treat glass, avoid sharp knocks and see that the utensils do not boil dry.

The unique advantage of heat resistant glass is its transparency in cooking. Foods may be seen without removing the cover and the hard smooth surface of glass ware is easy to keep clean. As there is a difference between top stove and oven glass ware it is important to use it only as directed.

There are two types of iron used for utensils, cast iron and sheet iron. Cast iron frying pans and dutch ovens are made of cast iron while such things as bread pans and cookie sheets are made of sheet iron. When cast iron frying pans or dutch ovens have been seasoned by the manufacturer there is usually a sticker on the pan stating this. If they have not been seasoned the pan should be rubbed with unsalted fat and left in a warm oven for several hours before using for the first time.

Tin ware is iron or steel coated with tin. As it is not suitable for top stove use it is mainly used as ovenware.

Good Companions Elect Officers

Keting was the favorite pastime of the entertainment of the Good Companions' Club of Tabernacle United Church when they met for the pot-luck supper held in the church basement last Friday evening.

After partaking heartily of scalloped potatoes, meat loaf, macaroni, beans, peas, celery, salad and three kinds of pie, tarts, muffins ice cream everybody present did their share back into the table and settled down to the business of the evening.

Vice-president Bud McCready called on the Rev. F. R. Harbach to conduct the election of the officers. Past President Albert Mulvey was asked to present a slate of officers drawn up by the nominating committee. The officers elected for the 1951-52 season were:

President, Lewis Andrews; vice president, Howard Nelles; secretary, Mrs. Norman Howard; treasurer, Mrs. Earl Stansfield; pianist, Mrs. Robert Johnston; music convener, Harold McNish; religious convener, Rev. F. R. Harbach; press secretary, Mrs. Howard Nelles; recreation convener, Thelma Schlimert; refreshment convener, Mrs. Morris Smith.

Following the election of officers, Helen Sulman gave two humorous readings, the first one telling of the trials of a lady with one of her seven husbands, who was a food faddist. The second reading was a take-off of a certain type of radio program—advertising of Flossie's Pink Pills for Pale People, which pills could not be surpassed, no matter for what purpose they might be required. If laughter is any indication, everyone thoroughly enjoyed both readings.

Fashion Flashes

DANCING HOURS find many girls wearing pretty, short-skirted dresses of sheer fabric with whirling skirts. Nylon navy marquisette makes one such dress, the intricately draped and tucked bodice finished with a pointed neckline, the skirt all-around accordion-pleated.

NAVY LEADS, despite the fact that many shops say that black is most in demand. Mayhap it's because so many of us have stocks of the navy dress and handbags! Anyway, we admired a dress of navy silk shantung with a circular back yoke, semi-balloon sleeves and a curved V neckline filled in with white lingerie lace frill. There's a matching petticoat frill under the stiffened hemline.

SOON ENOUGH it'll be hot again, and that's when we'll really appreciate the beautiful sheers moving into the stores. Black cotton, made up into a sleeveless shirtwaist sheath with shoestring shoulder straps, is worn a sheer film of black organdie, the full skirt gold-printed in a fine abstraction design. Tailored belt of black velvet has gold kidskin in front.

BECOMING to most women is the hat with the curving brim. This line is often expressed in a mushroom-colored braided straw, trimmed with two spirited pink velvet roses nestling in green velvet bows, and placed either side of the brim.

PRETTY FRIVOLITY is encouraged by a group of dainty accessories, one of which is an elegant little bonnet bordered with giant green lilacs that dangle from green stems. Nice on a dressy dress.

A NEW COMBINATION of fabrics is noted in a pretty bag. The model is a navy blue suit bag of bedford cord, with a red triangular yoke top and bottom of navy calf. Handles and gussets are also of leather.

Owner of Gold Ring Sought In Canada

Vancouver — (CP) — Two months ago a plain gold ring arrived, sent by two women in London, England.

In a letter accompanying the ring Miss Sheila Hands, said it had been left in her keeping by a flight officer, Eric W. Erickson, who valued it highly as a gift from his mother.

Mrs. Hands said that Erickson's parents, to the best of her knowledge, are retired Winnipeg people now living in British Columbia.

The ring, showing faintly the initials "E.T.", is waiting at Royal Canadian Air Force Flying Officer Erickson to come and get it.

But so far, all efforts to locate him or his family have been fruitless.

The mayor's office said that the ring would be turned over to the police department's bureau of missing persons.

Expert Puzzles Over Style Of Address

Montreal — (CP) — How would you go about addressing a woman's law firm in their official capacity, is a problem which has Montreal's barrity on "Mesdames" at — top — brass — level" completely stumped.

The group in question is the Montreal law firm of "Mrs." Wilhelmina M. Holmes and "Miss" Joan Gilchrist collectively — the first women's law firm in the province of Quebec, and possibly in Canada.

Howard Measures, the federal government's chief of protocol, wants to know how. When he finds out this precedent-setting bit of information will go into a book he is writing.

In the meantime, not even Holmes and Gilchrist are sure how they will settle the matter. The familiar "Messrs" is obviously out. They can't be referred to as "Mesdames, since only one is married, and for the same reason, "Misses" won't do.

So far, the best solution they've been able to settle on is to use the firm name, without titles of any kind.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The Small Things Are Significant

If more girls realized how much of a person's character is revealed in the seemingly small things, there would be fewer unhappy marriages. For the small things often are significant in showing a girl whether a man is truly thoughtful and considerate, selfish or unselfish, even-temperedor hospitable—all of which are vitally important once a man has become a husband.

I have on my desk a letter from a girl who is in love with a man purely because he helped her in and out of cars, held doors open for her and was always attentive in other small ways.

"She put me in a daze," she writes, "because never before had anyone treated me that way." With the man she was going out with at the time—who, incidentally, was the father of her child—it was always, she says, "Hop in, baby," and I got in the car door when he was ready. If I could, that is, if I could even get the door open after he had already gotten in and slammed it. He was 32, but had no more manners than a grade school boy."

It may seem as though these were trifling reasons for falling in love. But they actually did to the girl, however, was to make her feel protected and cared for, and most female creatures instinctively respond to a man who makes them feel like that.

Complicated Life

As a result, in this particular case, the girl's life has been badly complicated. She had become a mother at only a little over 15, finding out after she had become pregnant that the man present was married at the time. "Because", she says, "he didn't want his wife to find out," he left her to work out her problem by herself as soon as he learned what had happened. Later, this man left his wife, separated, and he was around to have a look at his child. By that time, the girl had married, but because her husband never knew about her child and kept reminding her of her past experience, she finally left him.

Now there are three men in the girl's life: the husband, whom she apparently sees no more, but does speak of as "not the real father of her child, with whom she thinks she is still in love; and the man who saw her by her side attentive ways that she thinks she also loves him.

When she made up her mind what she wants to do about the two men she thinks she loves, she will free herself to marry. In the meantime she has become so confused—and why wouldn't she?—that she left the place where she formerly lived with her child and went to stay with her brother in a distant state, far away from any of the men.

Caste Advice

What she wants me to do is advise her on which of the two men she should marry. If she married one man, it would give her child "the father that is rightfully hers," she says. On the other hand, the second has captured her imagination by these small things that promise so much of genuine tenderness and protection.

The first man writes her quite often; the second, who, she says, "is very patient waiting for me to make up my mind," has not even discovered she has moved away, as in her confusion, she broke off with both of them before she left. "If it is the second one I should marry," she asks, "how shall I go about letting him know I still love him?"

No one can decide for another such a question as this. I would say, however, that when a man runs out on a girl who is to have his child, it is hardly a good omen for any future happiness with him. When the characteristics shown by him are stacked up against the characteristics shown by the other man, my vote would go for the second.

My advice would be that she remain at a distance from both of them until time clarifies her thinking and her feelings. If she wants to write a frank and honest letter to the second man, explaining that she wants to wait awhile before making a decision and asking if he is willing to wait for her until then, it might be a constructive step. But she should let him try to make as many new friends as possible where she is among whom she might find someone who would make her forget both the other men.

BEAUTY

Complexion Bloom Depends upon Circulation

Beautifying methods are getting down to brass tacks. The cash customer who blows herself to a course of complexion treatments may be surprised to get a lecture on health and hygiene from the operator. Most women expect too much from cosmetics. Toilet-ries fulfill an important mission, but they cannot combat fatigue, tension, lack of fresh air, sluggish blood streams.

How is your circulation? Is it skipping along as it should, or is it just strolling? You will probably answer to the effect that you are not aware of the behavior of your circulatory system. All right. There are ways of telling. If your complexion has good coloring, the chances are it is doing well by you. If you have cold feet and fishy hands, and your countenance is pale, it is not on the job. Outdoor activity is what you should have—rain or shine, willy-nilly.

When women are interested in learning more about the wonderful workings of their bodies, when they decide to make every effort to be strong and well all the time, cosmeticians will not be selling their merchandise to the tune of billions a year. The sisters will grow their own blushes, and their lips will be ruby-red.

If a woman will realize that the blood stream are the life-bearing plant of the body, the bringer of good groceries to every cell, and also the waste collector, she will understand how necessary it is to have them functioning normally. Regular periods of exercise, and air-conditioning of the lungs, help them on the job. If a woman is in a chronic state of inertia, never walks if she can ride, and hates exercise, her circulatory system slows up. We all know those Lazybones who love their soft cushions. Lifting an eyebrow is almost more than they can manage.

If they would make it a habit to take a brisk walk every day, drawing in oxygen that has a favorable effect upon the blood streams, they would not only feel better and look better, but they would be more ambitious, more highly energized. Their complexions and figures would improve. Birthdays wouldn't matter.

The blood carries building material to every part of the body, even to the little silky winkers that fringe your eyes. It is like a kind old doctor going on his rounds.

The blood picks up waste material and finds means of getting rid of it—through the skin, the kidneys, the intestinal tract, the exhalations of stale air from the lungs.

"Yuh can't do that to me, sister" howls Ted McDonnell to the haughty statuesque blonde who is busy giving him the brush-off. All of which is part of one of the hilarious skits being staged by members of the YMCA Boys' Choir at their Variety Show in the collegiate auditorium, Monday May 28th. Incidentally the "gal" in the picture is Paul White. Nifty, eh? The show contains music, melody in mirth and hilarious comedy besides outstanding choral music. One of the best attractions to appear here this season. Proceeds go to help defray the choirs' expenses to the Canadian National Exhibition where they have been invited to sing.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

With Blue Business Suit . . . Groom's Boutonniere and Tie

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our wedding is to be an informal afternoon wedding. In the chapel of our church. One attendant each. I am to wear a street-length silk suit. The bridegroom is to wear a dark-blue business suit.

1. At the ceremony should he wear gloves (or at least one of his gloves, carrying the other, as I have seen at formal weddings)?

2. With a business suit for this occasion, would a gardenia be appropriate?

3. Would a white four-in-hand be appropriate?

Bride-to-be

1. No.

2. No. . . a white gardenia is too "all-dressed-up" looking for a business suit. The bridegroom wearing a business suit most often wears a white carnation, or, in season, a white aster. Or a very popular plan in summer is for the groom to wear white cornflowers; the best man, blue and white cornflowers; and the ushers (if any), blue cornflowers. This boutonniere-plan is very effective when the man in the wedding party wear blue ties with narrow white or very-light-gray stripes or small decorations.

3. No. . . a white tie also gives that "all-dressed-up" look. Very fashionable tastes is the four-in-hand tie, tie-background, combined with white or light gray. Or blue bow ties if (and such an important "if") bow ties are becoming to the groom and his attendants.

When Notes of Invitation are more Suitable than Formal Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please help me to word my wedding invitations?

I am a widow (32 years old), my parents live in another state, and the reception is to be held at the home of my fiance's parents. We are having a church wedding, and my dress and my bridesmaid's dress are full-skirted and ballerina-length.

E. A.

You haven't given me enough information for me to give you much definite advice. Unless your wedding is a very formal church wedding, sponsored by your parents, and to include many guests, my suggestions would be that you (or your mother) write informal note of invitation. Since it is most unconventional (and definitely not correct) to have the reception at the home of your fiance's parents, you could then explain this plan better in a formal invitation. Perhaps like this (writing for your mother):

Dear Dorothy,

Elizabeth and Charles Kent are to be married in the Central United Church on Saturday, June 30th, at four o'clock, and we all very much want to have you and John with us at the ceremony. The reception is to be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Kent (the parents of the bridegroom), at 4 Home Place, directly after the ceremony, and they and we would like you both to come, to bid godspeed to the newlywed couple. Please tell us yes.

Dearest love to you both, from all of us.

Affectionately,

Should a Divorcee with Children Wear her Wedding and Engagement rings

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me the correct procedure for the wearing of wedding and engagement rings in the case of a divorcee with children.

E. K.

This is entirely a matter of the divorcee's preference. She may wear her wedding ring and engagement ring if she wants to. A divorcee with children very often does prefer to wear her wedding ring—and on her left hand, where it belongs, if she wears it at all. The reason for this is obvious, and can be a kind of social protection to her children.

CHOWDER MADE EASY

It seems impossible for me any longer to keep from the whole world my secret recipe for Clam Chowder.

The small and worshipful coterie of gourmands who gather at regular intervals about the steaming pot has grown over the years until I can scarcely find elbow room for the ceremony. Pierre at the Ritz is begging me for my formula. Oscar of the Waldorf—God rest his soul—died a miserable man without the secret.

I have decided, therefore, to bow to the press of public clamor and to reveal everything.

My Clam Chowder is an almost fool-proof ambrosia. If you can boil an egg you can make my clam chowder. Thus it is the perfect recipe for all those men who have felt the urge to run amok in a kitchen and to produce something which will give them a niche in immortality.

I propose, therefore, to pass on my recipe in the simplest possible terms, partly so that you maiden in the audience will be able to undertake this creation yourself, and partly because I haven't the faintest idea of what the proper culinary terms might be. We will take this slowly, a step at a time, and I want to wish you all the luck in the world.

1. You will require, first a pail of clams. This may seem a bit steep, but by my experience is that making chowder is no fun unless you go at the thing in gigantic way. I should say that ten pounds of clams would be sufficient. If you don't like clams by yourself so much the better. The last chowder I made was created from clams personally dug for me by Mr. P. Edwards, of Kuper Island, an old Indian gentleman who has been digging clams for nigh onto 60 years, a lifetime of honest service to his fellow man.

* * *

2. Put this bucket of clams under the cold water tap. Any sand or sediment will float up and spill conveniently over the side of the pail, leaving the clams washed and eager for their glorious sacrifice. Notice the beautiful coloring and pattern of the shells. What other food comes in such an elegant package?

* * *

3. Put the clams in a large pot (I use a huge roasting pan), cover with cold water and let them boil and then simmer for about 10 minutes. This should really be done over a beach fire, in which case you let the pot boil over four (4) times. (Old Nova Scotia Indian formula). However, the results in the kitchen are equally good, except that you don't have little bits of embers to add their subtle flavoring.

* * *

4. Take the pot off the stove (careful, now) and pour off the juice. This should be done through a sieve to catch any stray bits of sand and stuff. This juice is known as clam nectar, is colored a pale milk of olive shade and is worth its weight in gold. Notice the fragrance, the aroma of quiet beaches and sandy shores. Oh, boy!

* * *

5. Now take the meat out of the clams. You will notice that they have wide gills. These gills make this easy to you and the tender little critters lie in their hard white cradles ready for you to gently detach them. Don't they look good!

* * *

6. This has nothing to do with the recipe, but you may pause now, have a glass of the hot nectar and several of the clams, dipped in melted butter. This will give you the strength to go on and will provide a pleasant respite while your wife clears away the empty clam shells.

* * *

7. Now take to onions and mince them, mix with a cup of diced salt pork and fry them together until they are a nice brown. While they are frying you should be preparing four cups of diced potatoes, two cups of diced carrots and one minced garlic clove. Cut 'em small! You don't want any of that restaurant stuff with great chunks in it.

8. Now you are all ready. Select the largest pot or pan in the house. Put into this (4) the fried onions and pork; (b) the diced potatoes; (c) the diced carrots; (d) the minced garlic; (e) one large tin of tomatoes; (f) all of the clam nectar; (g) all of the dear little clams; (h) salt and pepper.

9. [illegible] on the stove and let [illegible] very until everything is [illegible] should take about an hour, you must keep tasting all the time. Well, this isn't really necessary, I suppose, but you'll find it irresistible. I find it worthwhile, too, to pass my nose over the pan from time to time, uttering small animal cries of delight.

10. When the chowder is cooked you should chicken it a bit. This is done by mixing three tablespoons of flour with some nectar to make a sort of paste, which you stir gently into the gorgeous mess. As a final gesture add one large blob of butter.

Well, there it is. This should serve 10 ordinary people or four clam-lovers, depending, of course, on how much you've been sipping and sampling en route. In my own case there are times, when there's almost nothing at all left by the time I've completed the job.

Soon your name, too, will be on everyone's tongue, connoisseurs will be beating on your door and you are on the road to fame.

Serve with hot garlic rolls.

MELROSE

Melrose — Mrs. Carman Millligan entertained a group of ladies on Wednesday evening when a demonstration was held. Mrs. G. Hudgins of Belleville was gratified with this successful meeting.

Miss Marion English, Reg. N., Toronto, spent the weekend at her home here.

The church was almost filled for the recent Sunday morning "Mother's Day" service. Combined with this service was a baptismal service at which five babies received the rites of baptism. The infants were Gloria Jean Macfarlane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Macfarlane; Lois Gail McMechan, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Ken McMechan; Harold Allan Sherman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sherman; Peddie Adam Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hall and Ronald Franklin Bush, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bush.

According to custom, the cut flowers about the pulpit were presented to the oldest mothers present, in this case being Mrs. A. Pringle and Mrs. W. Embury.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherry Demill and Mr. and Mrs. Graydon Ackerman had Sunday dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Newton Demill. Supper guests at the same home were Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cross and family and Mr. Jack Clarke and Miss Doris Sills.

Mr. and Mrs. John Beatty and Mrs. A. McCullough called on Mr. Robert Sherman at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. Lasier on Tuesday afternoon.

11TH-CENTURY WELL

Kendal, Westmorland, England — (CP) — A well believed to be 900 years old was discovered here when workmen were excavating to lay new drain pipes.

WHITE'S DISTRICT

White's District — Mrs. M. J. McCallum of Kearney, New Jersey, who has been visiting her brother, the Rev. A. C. McCallum and sister, Mrs. H. L. Mooney, at Bayside parsonage, for the past month, left for her home last week.

The Rev. C. D. McLellan and Mrs. McLellan, of Napanee, were recent callers at the Bayside parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones were tea guests on Mother's Day of their daughter, Mrs. Bill Hunter and Mr. Hunter, of Belleville. They also attended Mother's Day service at Holloway Street United Church.

Friends will be glad to hear that Mrs. H. C. Lord returned home from Peterborough last Sunday where she had been a patient for the past month. It is hoped that she will soon be able to be out again.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Mallory attended the funeral of his uncle, the late Stanley Mallory, of Hamilton, on Monday. Mr. Mallory resided in this district at one time and has many friends here.

Mrs. James Sandercock spent last week with her daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Jones and Mr. Jones of Alken's district.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Mallory are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Harley Winterton, and Mr. Winterton and baby son of New Lowell.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Young were Tuesday visitors of relatives and friends in Consecon.

Sunday School and church services were held at White's Church on Sunday afternoon. The Rev. A. C. McCallum chose as his text Matthew 13:16, "But blessed are your eyes, for they see." Blessed has sometimes been translated as "happy". He told of a small child who lost the sight of both eyes but, when operated upon, regained the sight of one eye. However, after being in darkness for so long she had to learn to see again. "So with many tasks we have to learn to see and faith is needed at all times to overcome obstacles".

Miss Sharon Jeffery was a Sunday visitor of her grandparents Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jeffery.

White's W.A.

Mrs. Clifton Rush was hostess to the members of the White's Woman's Association on Thursday afternoon with 18 members and two visitors present. The president, Mrs. Floyd Dudley, presided.

The devotional service was taken by Mrs. Frank Sandercock who read Psalm 1 followed by the reading of "Why Limit Him." The singing of "Take Time to be Holy" closed this service. Mrs. Mooney and Mrs. Wettlaufer paid dues and Mrs. Rush made a birthday donation.

Delegates Appointed

Some business was discussed, the 1951 registration fee was paid, $1.25 was sent to Toronto to assist in the shipping of "Overseas Parcels." Mrs. Walter Jones and Mrs. Lloyd Sandercock were named delegates to the W.A. convention at Holloway Street United Church, Belleville.

A plant and a shower of cards were sent to Mrs. Lord in Peterborough hospital. Plans for the celebration of 110th anniversary of White's Church were discussed but left for later discussion.

A letter from Mrs. Acker was read thanking the ladies for remembering her on her birthday. A letter from Toronto was also read thanking the ladies of the W.A. for two "overseas relief" parcels.

The program was in charge of Mrs. George Bilham. Reading, "Granny", "Suppose" and "Words from Thoughtful Giving" were read by Mrs. Jim Palmer, Mrs. A. Jones and Mrs. Ernest Curtis.

Two contests were much enjoyed. "Days and Months" started everyone thinking properly but "Books and Songs" brought back memories of nursery rhymes and school days past, but not forgotten. Mrs. Jim Palmer was the lucky winner.

Mrs. Ernest Curtis moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Rush for opening her home.

The hostess served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

Family Day Observed

There was a good attendance at the recent evening service at White's Church on Mother's Day when a special service under the auspices of the Board of Christian Education and the local Sunday School was held. The theme, "Christian Family Day" was followed throughout the service. The Rev. A. C. McCallum in his address warned his listeners against the dangers of sentimentality or excessive piety.

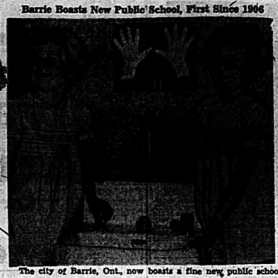
Barrie Boasts New Public School, First Since 1906



The city of Barrie, Ont., now boasts a fine new public school, the first new one to be opened since 1906. Attending inaugural ceremonies along with 2,000 others was Dr. Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto, who, in his opening address, pleaded for greater emphasis on moral training in the schools. He said too many people regard educational process merely as means for sharpening the intellect and it is the duty of schools to develop strength of character. Among school's new features is pint-sized sink in kindergarten, seen being examined here by twins Madge and Rosemary Pearce. — Central Press Canadian.

PICTON

Reeve of Athol Confined to Home With Broken Leg

Picton — Reeve of Athol township, Clinton Green is confined to his home at Salmon Point, suffering from a double break in the leg. Mr. Green was going to get the cows at his farm Saturday night, when he discovered that one of the horses had rolled on its back into a ditch and was unable to get back on its feet. He assisted the animal to its feet, but it was so exhausted that it fell down, pinning the Reeve beneath it. Despite urging, the animal refused to try to get up, until Mr. Green was able to reach a piece of wire and use it as a whip. He then freed himself after being held fast for five minutes. Fortunately his young son, Larry, was with him and he ran to the house to give them aid. After xrays and treatment at Prince Edward County Hospital, he was able to be removed to his home. One bad break is just below the knee and the other fracture just above the ankle. A cast must be worn for six weeks.

FRANKFORD

Frankford — The Acca bowling team held a party Thursday evening, which proved to be highly successful. The eight members of the team and their invited guests drove to Belleville for a show, returning to the village about midnight. Back in Frankford, all went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymon Rowe where refreshments were served by Mrs. Rowe and the girls of the team.

The Lions Club auction sale at the ball park was well attended Thursday evening. A number of articles for sale was limited, but the auctioneer, George Arnott, did a splendid job with what was on hand. Highlight of the evening came when the draw for the new bicycle was made. Marjorie Moran was the lucky winner. The entire net proceeds for this bicycle contest will go to the Frankford Public Library.

Owen Slingerland has completed his current term at Queen's University, and is visiting at the home of his father, Mr. Ted Slingerland.

Edward Turley of Ottawa is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Turley this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Frost of Burlington are visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Frost.

The First Frankford Boy Scout Troop held their weekly meeting Friday night with a full turnout. The Scouts hiked up to the hill west of the town, where tests were completed. The boys took part in a wide game, and then returned to the village. It was noted that Douglas Conant, one of the newest Scouts in the troop, has made rapid progress, and has already caught some of the other Scouts who were in the troop long before he was.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Knitter

To play good bridge you do not necessarily need a good head on your shoulders. Not even a blond. Some players can get by with only a few efficient rules and a cooperative disposition.

An efficient rule in bridge is an overcall to opponent's suit. It shows a hand with nine tricks and no losers in that suit. It signals partner not to let the bidding stop short of game.

In reply, what if a bid by either partner is not yet as high as game? Remember, the bidding must go to at least a game. So, whatever partner should hurry to the final bid at once.

South opened with a bid of one heart. West bid two hearts. North passed. There is no need for east to jump at once to game or slam. The bid should be two spades with the east hand shown here:

♠A K 6 2
♦8 6 4 2
♣6 4 2

The two spade response is not yet a game contract. Therefore, west is forced to keep the bidding alive. What east would like to know is if west likes the spade suit for trumps.

When west makes his second bid, what if it is not yet at game-bid? East will keep it alive again. Both players should continue to do this until they have discovered a trump suit to their liking.

If west learns this first and sees slam, he will invite some kind of slam information, if advisable. If west shows spade support, east knows there is a slam of some kind in their pass.

If west does not invite slam information first, east will do so. West will use a signal for asking partner how many aces and kings he has. The convention for this is a bid of four no-trump.

The west response to four no-trump tells east how many aces and kings they have. He then bids five or six or seven spades.

Some player is always afraid he will not get another chance to talk.

Iran Premier Has Not Resigned, Just Disappears

Tehran, Iran, May 23 (AP) — Premier Mohammed Mossadegh disappeared from his refuge in a boarded - up parliament building room for 24 hours and set off a flood of rumors today that he had resigned.

"Ridiculous," said Deputy Premier Hossein Fatimi of the resignation rumors which swept this crisis-tense capital.

He said the premier returned to the parliament building this morning. He had been staying there behind locked doors since May 19 after his life was threatened by leftists and Moslem fanatics.

One source said the aged Mossadegh left his refuge to take a bath.

Fatimi said, however, his boss left the parliament building "because yesterday was a religious holiday and he had no business to attend in."

To cover up his disappearance, officials had told correspondents Mossadegh listened from the parliament steps to speeches calling for his death as a rally in Parliament Square yesterday of 4,000 communist-backed trade unionists.

After his return, the premier remained in isolation.

Will Remove Bullet in Head Of Transient

Windsor, May 23 — (CP) — An operation will be performed soon to remove a bullet in the head of Victor Marleau, 22-year-old Ottawa transient shot Monday by police in a gun fight. Hospital authorities said today his condition is fair.

He is under police guard but no charge has been laid yet.

Marleau was shot by Provincial Constable George Williams in a running fight near Maidstone, 10 miles from here, when the constable was trying to investigate him as a suspicious character.

In the chase, Marleau fired four shots at the constable and had his gun misfire on the fifth, at point blank range. Constable Williams fired one shot only, the bullet striking Marleau and knocking him to the ground.

No further explanation of his action has been made by Marleau. At the time of the shooting he said merely that "I have always been in trouble."

SUPPORT BAN

Melborne, Australia, May 23—(Reuters)—Dock workers here today decided to support any ban on handling ships from New Zealand, where longshoremen have been on strike for three months.

The decision may bring all Australia's ports to a standstill, though only about one-quarter of the union's 5,400 members took part in the vote. Local union chiefs opposed the ban.

Author Schulberg Admits Being Member of Reds

Washington, May 23 — (AP) — Author Bud Schulberg said today he was a member of the communist party for a brief time in the late 1930's but broke with it because the party tried to tell him how and what to write.

Schulberg said in a statement issued in advance of his appearance as a voluntary witness before the House of Representatives un-American activities committee (10:30 a. m. EDT) that he was attracted to the party by its concern over economic problems and, its opposition to the axis powers.

From 1937 to 1939, he said, he took part in an informal study group and 'drifted' into the Young Communists League and the party itself. He said:

"In 1939, at the age of 25, I broke with the communists because of their efforts to dictate the content and direction of my literary work and because their quick switch to virtual-alliance with Hitler convinced me of their intellectual dishonesty and their false claims to anti-Fascist leadership . . .

"Over the past ten years . . . at no time I in any way renewed my association with the communist party."

Schulberg, 37, wrote "What Makes Sammy Run"? and the current popular seller "The Disenchanted." He has also written for the movies.

He asked for a chance to testify before the committee after it heard testimony from Richard Collins, an acknowledged ex-communist, that Schulberg "or perhaps Ring Lardner, Jr.," got him interested in communism in Hollywood in the late 1930s.

CANNOT KNOCK ME OUT

Chicago, May 23—(AP) Heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles says challenger Joey Maxim could not knock him out if "I dropped my hands and stuck my chin out as a target for his best punches."

Light heavyweight champion Maxim, who shoots for Charles' heavyweight crown in Chicago Stadium next Wednesday night, has predicted he will win by a knockout.

Charles was reminded that Maxim knocked Freddy Mills for the light-heavy title in London 16 months ago.

"I'm not Freddy Mills", retorted Charles.

1st Commonwealth Division, Which Has Canadian Troops Called 'Terrific' by Commander

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer)

WEST CENTRAL SECTOR, Korea, May 23—(CP)—Maj.-Gen. Archibald J. Cassells has only one word to describe the 1st Commonwealth Division he will soon lead into battle. It's "terrific!"

The youthful looking commander who recently arrived in Korea has just completed a rapid trip around the Korean front to see the units which will be under his command.

He said yesterday that the division, of which Canada's 7,000-man 25th brigade will form one third, won't go into action "tomorrow or the next week but it will be as soon as possible." That will be when extra personnel "coming here from the four corners of the world" can reach Korea.

The Canadian and two other commonwealth brigades now are in the theatre. More personnel, mostly artillery, will be brought in to fill out the division which will be formed of troops from six countries—Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India, The United Kingdom and one other. Refuse Formulation.

(Censors refused to permit mention of the sixth country which will provide men for the new division.)

Gen. Cassells told the Canadian Press:

"This is going to be a terrific formation."

He has come to the Princess Patricias in action northeast of Seoul. He termed them "first class" troops.

Of the Canadians generally, he said:

"The Canadians are mad keen to get into action. I couldn't have seen more obviously in the ball than I've seen in the last few days."

In the last two days, Gen. Cassells has visited the Patricias, who have been in Korea since December, and the newly-arrived members of the 25th brigade, among them the Royal Canadian Regiment of London, Ont., the Royal 22nd of Quebec and the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery.

In Finest Fettle

On completion of his visit to Brig. John Rockingham's Canadian force, he flew to the headquarters of Lt.-Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Korean commander, where he told a press conference that the troops he had seen were "in absolutely the finest fettle."

On his visit to the Royal 22nd—the "Vandoos"—the tall, friendly general, wearing summer drill and a Seaforth Highlanders bonnet, told the men that he was "delighted" to have Canadians in his command. He left them with this cheerful statement:

"I am sure that we will have a happy time and good hunting together."

Gen. Cassell's fresh-complexioned face and clear blue eyes belie his 44 years. He recalled leading a fellow student with Vancouver's Brig. Pat Rogers during the war at the Camberley, England, war college. As a student and later as instructor there, he came to know many Canadian officers.

Almost Visited Canada

"I almost visited Canada before the war," he said. "There are many Cassells there and I wanted to look them up as well as visit the Seaforths of Canada in Vancouver."

He saw the Patricia's advance 5,000 yards when he visited them Monday north of the Hwa River. They were "in excellent spirits despite the rain which was pouring down."

Gen. Cassells forecast that "friendly rivalry" would develop between the battalions, each trying to outdo the other."

The general, who was in Italy during the Second World War, said he could compare the Korean terrain only to Kashmir or India's northwest frontier.

"These mountains around here, these hills—the valleys with their terraces and rice paddies — the stinking villages—it's all Kashmir except that Kashmir is more beautiful. Yet perhaps it could also be the northwest front."

WILL DEFEND TITLE

Quebec, May 23 — (CP)—Fernando Gagnon of Quebec, Canadian lightweight champion, will defend his title against Claude Memnier of Three Rivers, Que., here May 28, it was announced last night.

Gagnon some time ago was ordered by the Canadian Boxing Federation to defend his crown before June 1. His last title bout was in 1949.

The 10-round fight will be held at the Municipal Stadium.

Bookie Refused To 'Pay Off' Court is Told

Windsor, May 23 — (CP) — A story of $50 bets placed by telephone and failure of a bookie to pay off on $1,054 was told in court here Tuesday and indicated that handbooking is not a dead issue here, despite continued police raids.

Charges of keeping a handbook laid against Gordon Girard of Windsor were adjourned to Friday.

Crown witnesses Wilfred Fournier, also of Windsor, said he had been making bets with Girard almost since the first of the year. On one occasion, he said, he had made $50 win and place bets on two horses by telephone.

He said he telephoned a Windsor number and was answered by a man named Gordie. He himself replied by identifying himself as Wilfred. This was a telephone code, he explained.

On this particular occasion, Fournier added, Girard called to tell him that his horses had "run out." The following day, Girard came around and was told the telephone call had been based on wrong information, that actually one horse had been scratched and the other had won, paying the limit of $1,154.

Fournier said Girard then denied having taken a bet on the horse that refused to pay off. Fournier figured his net loss on the transaction at $1,054.

He said that normally Girard came around to collect a bet if Fourier's horse lost or to pay off if it won. He said he had been betting from $25 to $75 a day since Christmas but could give no total for money bet in that time.

Wife of Writer Found Dead In Liquor Closet

Los Angeles, May 23 (AP) — Frances Hollis Bercovici, 41, wife of one of the screen writers who testified recently before the House of Representatives un-American Activities Committee in Washington, was found dead in a liquor closet of their home last night.

Police listed the death of Mrs. Bercovici, wife of Leonardo Bercovich, as "apparent suicide" although no note or evidence of poison was found.

However, coroner's deputies listed the death as "cause unknown — apparently natural death" pending an autopsy.

Bercovici, at last appearance before the Congressional Committee investigating communist influences in Hollywood, denied any current affiliation with the communist party but declined to discuss past activities.

Nehru Refuses Press Freedom

New Delhi India May 23—(AP) —Prime Minister Nehru today informed the India newspaper editors conference his government is unable to drop or postpone an amendment to the constitution relating to freedom of the press "for a variety of weighty reasons."

In a letter published today, Nehru said the amendment which would restrict press freedom in India was undertaken for "a variety of reasons unconnected with the press."

"We would be failing in discharge our responsibility if we did not pay due regard to these weighty reasons" he added;

The prime minister assured the conference, however, that he would do all in his power to prevent government abuse of press freedom but added "we cannot obviously ignore a large number of other considerations."

Official sources said Nehru possibly has in mind the situation which may arise if the communists or religious factions make violent speeches during the general elections scheduled for next November and December.

Last Monday the editors conference adopted a resolution attacking Nehru's proposed amendment as "unwarranted and unrallied for."

Urges Easier Life For Heart Cases

Boston, May 23 (AP)—Dr. William Stroud, Philadelphia heart specialist, yesterday urged less rigid management of coronary cases. He said a person suffering such an attack could smoke, provided he also takes a drink.

Dr. Stroud told the 170th meeting of the Massachusetts Medical Society "a good slug" of alcohol would offset the constricting effect of nicotine on the coronary blood vessels. He advocated ordinary cases. He said a person suffering such an attack could smoke, provided he also takes a drink.

'Enemy' Bombers Hit Europe In Air Exercise

Paris, May 23 — (AP) — "Enemy" bombers struck at western Europe today in the first air defence exercise held under command of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's Atlantic Pact headquarters.

Jet fighters from the air forces of six Allied countries swarmed up to meet the raiders, in a test of their ability to work as a single air force.

A communique from exercise headquarters said "the enemy opened hostilities without warning and is making some progress."

The attackers were identified as "groups of hostile B-50's from the United States 7th air division in England, and Mosquito bombers of the Royal Air Force flying training command."

These planes hit targets in north and northeast of Europe, while C-82's of the U. S. 61st training command wing simulated similar attacks from their bases in Germany.

Planes of the French, Belgian, The Netherlands and Danish Air Forces also are taking part.

The exercise, dubbed by the code name of "Umbrella," is to last three days and will test fighter defences, radar network efficiency, mobility of air defence units and anti-aircraft batteries.

No Bars Against Shipments Not Used for War

Ottawa, May 23 — (CP)—Canada places no bars against shipment to communist China of goods which would be of no use for war, External Affairs Minister Pearson told G. K. Fraser (PC —Hastings - Peterborough) Tuesday.

He said Canada's embargo on shipments to either China or Hong Kong covers strategic goods and those in short supply.

He testified that restrictions by red China herself have meant that little if any western goods are getting to China from Hong Kong.

Mr. Fraser had asked if Canada ships any goods to Hong Kong or other places that deal with China.

The minister recalled that the United States slapped an embargo on exports to China and Hong Kong in December. Canada had effected an embargo on all strategic shipments to either place.

Mr. Fraser asked what check is kept on arms shipments from Canada generally.

Mr. Pearson said he personally has to approve of any really significant shipments to any country and of all shipments to certain countries. In many cases, he received his decisions to the cabinet.

Poles Veto Clearance For U.S. Ambassador

Berlin, May 23 (AP) — The Polish government has refused air clearance for American Ambassador Alan Kirk to fly over Polish territory from Moscow to Berlin, United States officials in Berlin were informed today.

A United States air force plane assigned to pick up the ambassador for a proposed holiday trip to western Europe has been halted in Berlin.

American authorities said the Russians recently turned over to the Poles the question of such air clearances over their territory.

Jerusalem Paper Says Crown Prince Wounded Briton

Jerusalem, May 23 (AP) —The Jerusalem Post said today Crown Prince Talal of Jordan recently shot and wounded Brig. John Bagott Glubb Pasha, the Briton who heads Jordan's Arab Legion.

The Post said Glubb Pasha has been confined to bed for more than a week after being shot in the arm by the 40-year-old crown prince, eldest son of King Abdullah.

A week ago King Abdullah left to visit Turkey and the crown-prince took over as acting king. But on the following day a dispatch from Amman, Jordan, said Talal was taken "suddenly ill" and had to leave for Beirut, Lebanon, for treatment.

The Jerusalem Post says Talal was taken to a mental institution because he acted in a moment of insanity when he shot at Glubb Pasha.

The Post said the prince went to Glubb Pasha's residence where he charged the Legion commander with responsibility for the failure of Jordan to follow Iraq in sending troops to Syria following the Shishi Lake dispute (between Israel and Syria.)

4,000 U.S. TROOPS CAPTURED

Washington, May 23 (AP) — Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, said yesterday "more than 4,000" United States troops have been captured in Korea and "something like 1,400" of them recaptured.

"The rest of them are still missing," he told the joint Senate Armed Services-Foreign Relations Committee.

The general's testimony followed introduction of defence department reports saying United Nations forces in Korea are exacting a heavy toll of enemy combat casualties for every one they suffer.

Bell Telephone Official Will Be Called in Probe

Toronto, May 23—(CP)—An official of the Bell Telephone Company was called to testify today before the Ontario legislature's seven-man fact-finding committee on crime.

The company has been mentioned in testimony by police officers who reported difficulty in putting bookies out of business.

At yesterday's sitting, Chief Constable John Chisholm of Toronto said the telephone company isn't doing all it might to assist police in locating bookie joints.

The chief said the firm has a "legal and moral obligation" to aid in detection work. Telephone installation men could tell at a glance, he said, whether they were installing a phone in a bookie joint.

Chief Chrisholm said he was convinced that the Bell could show, upon request, how many calls were going from betting spots and where most of them went.

"Citizens have an obligation to assist in law enforcement and when a citizen becomes a member of a corporation he doesn't lose responsibility."

Special Court Needed

The chief told the committee that a special court and prosecutors are needed to handle the volume of gambling cases in the Toronto district. He said that standard fines imposed by the courts on convicted bookies amount only to unofficial licensing of bookmaking.

"Many betting cases last as long as murder trials," he said. "And the gamblers are always able to secure bail quickly, pay the costs of prolonged court cases and, in many instances, even pay the fines of found-ins."

A city the size of Toronto, with its already overcrowded courts, needed a separate tribunal for gambling cases if it was to make any headway in curbing the shady industry. The special prosecutor required would be versed in knowledge of the professional gambling racket, he said.

Chief Chisholm's suggestion was the third major one placed before the committee since it began sittings. Previously police officials had suggested that wire services be cut from race tracks and asked that police be given permission to trace telephone calls made from suspected bookie joints.

Hollywood, May 23 (AP) — A girdle-less, bosomless future for American women was predicted today by Verda, Yardley creator of pin-up girls.

The Peruvian artist has been watching the evolution of women since he arrived in the United States in 1942 and started painting the female form.

"I have also made a long study of the development of the female from prehistoric times to the present," he added. "I believe that American women are reaching the point achieved by the classic Greeks. The Greeks worshipped the human body. They believed that as long as you had a healthy body you were rich.

"Their regard for the body was shown in their athletics and their sculpture. You'll notice they did not make statues of pot-bellied men or women. Their ideals were expressed in the classic forms, such as Venus De Milo.

Follow the Greeks

"The Greek women wore only light tunics that showed their forms to the best advantage. They had no girdles or brassieres. The only thing under their outer garments was a perfect body."

The illustrator declared that he expects American women to follow suit.

"Why not?" he inquired. "In the last 10 or 30 years, American women have come closer to the early Greeks than any other race in history. They have acquired independence and self-assurance and that has affected them physically.

"American women are already the best formed in the world. I predict they will continue to improve and eventually will discard those clothing which tend to restrict their figures."

Varga is in Hollywood to create a billboard painting of Shelly Winters to advertise a picture ("Behave Yourself"). About Miss Winters' attributes, he commented: "She isn't the most beautiful or the most shapely girl in the world but she makes you think so. She has an inner fire that makes her an exciting subject for an artist."

The Perfect Body

The perfect female star? Alas, he said, there is none. But he did supply a composite, which he said comprised the best parts of the community:

Face—Linda Darnell. "She has a classic face, and her beauty is aided by her Indian blood."

Eyes—Marie Windsor. "Most women, like most automobiles, look good from some angles and not so good from others. But Marie looks good from the front, sides and back."

Thighs—Barbara Britton. "Perfect."

Lower Legs — Betty Grable. "You can't take that away from her: they are beautiful."

China Agrees To Send India Tons of Cereal

New Delhi, May 23—(Reuters) China has agreed to send India 400,000 tons of millet, a cereal, to help fight famine, the government announced today.

The agreement brings the total of grain contracted for from China up to 850,000 tons out of the original 1,000,000-ton Chinese offer.

It also makes China India's second biggest food supplier this year after the United States.

India now has gained assured supplies of nearly 5,000,000 tons of food grains for this year—two-thirds of her deficit.

The American 2,000,000 ton food aid bill, if passed, would fill the remaining gap.

Canada has sent 290,500 tons of wheat this year to famine-stricken India.

OTTAWA TENEMENT BLAZE LEAVES 35 HOMELESS

Remains of an abandoned tenement house in central Ottawa are shown after it burned to the ground, simplifying the work of wreckers who were to demolish it to make way for the new Mackenzie King bridge. Blaze jumped from the tenement house known as "Hasty Row" to a two-storey building across the street inhabited by 35 persons, now homeless. Fire is believed to have been caused by leaking gas pipes. — Central Press Canadian.

PICTON

Wolf Menace In Athol Twp. Believed Ended

Picton—With the shooting of a second wolf yesterday, it is believed that menace to sheep flocks in Athol township has been ended. The first animal, a female, was shot on Monday by Cooper Dulmage and Frank Dennett. Yesterday, a party of hunters with dogs flushed the male into the open and he was shot by Jack Tuttle.

The female had borne young but it is believed that these have perished since the wolves, in killing the lambs, did not carry off the carcasses.

A search is being made in an effort to find the den. Both animals weighed just over 30 pounds.

The hunt for marauders had been unsuccessful for the past several weeks, and the Department of Lands and Forests of Ontario was contacted by Reeve Clinton Green. Fred Richardson was sent with two especially trained wolf dogs. These, with dogs owned by Harry Cowan, were used by groups of hunters. Among those present when the wolves were shot were the successful target men; Harry Cowan, Charles Cowan, Elmer McConnell. Scores of others had hunted previously.

Bounties totalling $200 will be paid by the township and county. Both animals were bagged in the Salmon Point district where most of the lamb killing had been done.

For the past months, sheep owners over a wide area have been forced to bring sheep to the barns, while others who took them to pasture farms brought them home.

How the wolves got into Prince Edward county, apparently from Hastings is not known. A pair was shot in Athol township six years ago.

Chicago White Sox Surprise Team of American League Under Handling of Richards

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Shades of 1919? Can the 1951 Chicago White Sox duplicate the feat of the predecessors of 32 years ago? And we don't mean "throw" the World Series.

The similarity between the two clubs is striking. Both finished in sixth place the previous campaign; both began the new season under new leadership; both were picked to finish deep in the second division, and both got off to flying starts.

The 1919 Sox, ably piloted by freshman manager Bill (Kid) Gleason, went on to win the pennant. Can the '51 Sox, under the leadership of newcomer Paul Richards, do the same?

Richards' astonishing athletes need only to win tonight and tomorrow in Philadelphia to complete a clean sweep on their rampaging tour through the eastern ballparks.

The White Sox began the trip by trouncing the Red Sox twice in Boston. Then they whipped the Yankees in New York. Last night they whipped the Senators in Washington for the third straight time 9-8. That made six victories in a row, nine of 11 on the road this year, and 16 wins against nine defeats for the season.

Yesterday's triumph kept the club in second place, two lengths in back of the defending Yankees who beat St. Louis Browns 6-1. Boston's Red Sox tamed the Detroit Tigers 6-3 to move past Washington in fourth place, a half game behind the Nats. Cleveland clipped Philadelphia Athletics 6-3 in a night affair.

In the limited National League action, front-running Brooklyn outscored the Pirates 17-8 in Pittsburgh and Boston's Braves thrashed the Cardinals' 7-2 to displace St. Louis in third slot.

Main Events Tomorrow

Rain forced the postponement of the scheduled contests between New York Giants and the Cubs in Chicago, and Philadelphia's Phils and the Reds in Cincinnati. A three-run White Sox rally in the seventh, featured by Nelson Fox's home run, overcame a six-run Washington assault in the sixth to win for relief pitcher Harry Dorish. The defeat was charged to Joe Haynes.

Allie Reynolds hurled a four-hitter against the Browns as his teammates clubbed Ned Garver for nine hits, six of them for extra bases. The biggest blow was a home run by Yogi Berra, Bobby (Doc) Brown hit a triple, two singles and walked in four times at bat.

Catcher Les Moss hit a grand-slam homer off Ted Gray to spark the Red Sox to their victory over Dizzy Trout. Manny McDermott spaced seven hits for his second straight route-going victory.

Early Wynn pitched five hit ball for the Indians to end a personal four-game losing streak. The Indians stung Bobby Shantz and two relievers for 14 hits including Bob Avila's first home run.

Seven home runs highlighted the Brooklyn-Pittsburgh slugfest. Gil Hodges, stout Dodger first baseman, hit two, one with the bases loaded. His 14 for the season is high in the majors. Wally Westlake hit No. 13 and Ralph Kiner No. 8 for Pittsburgh. Bruce Edwards got one as a pinch-hitter for the victors. The Brooks made 18 hits to 13 for the Pirates.

The Braves took advantage of a down St. Louis base on balls and chipped in with eight hits including Bob Elliott's eighth home run to win from the Cards. Warren Spahn pitched his fourth triumph, Red Munger was the loser.

King and Savoie Matched to Meet In Toronto Ring

Toronto, May 23 (CP) —Arthur King, British Empire lightweight champion, and Armand Savoie of Montreal have been signed for a 10-round main bout at Maple Leaf Gardens next Monday June 4.

Signing of the two highly-rated fighters climaxed weeks of negotiations by Jack Allen, Toronto promoter.

King, a native of Toronto who now fights out of Philadelphia, is ranked among the top 10 in the world lightweight class. Savoie, a hard hitter, has been acclaimed as best Canadian lightweights and is ranked a top contender for the vacant Canadian title.

The fight will be a non-title go, and maybe set a Gardens attendance record. Tuesday's gate was registered four years ago when King defeated Dave Castilloux of Montreal. About 11,000 attended and receipts were $23,500.

JACK GRAY BIGGEST LOSS

Toronto, May 23 (CP) —University of Toronto expects to lose few football players through graduation this year.

Biggest loss will be Jack Gray, star football and basketball player, who missed last season with a dislocated shoulder. Also graduating are halfback Tony Cecutti and guard Joe Errington.

Doug Wigle, quarterback, is unlikely to play; he'll be in his last year of medical studies. Johnny Evans, standout tackle, will also be entering his final year in medicine.

Both Sections Softball League OASA Affiliates

Affiliation of the Intermediate AA Section, decided last night at an executive and league meeting here, brings the entire Belleville Commercial Softball League under the aegis of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association.

Represented were Alemites, Avons, Belleville Motor Car, Cleaner Combines and Merchants of the AA section and Howe and Hagerman, Glen Roys, Ramsay Paint and Point Anne of the senior bracket.

Suggestions were received and discussed regarding gate receipts. This will be left in the hands of the team managers.

Umpire-in-chief Harold Bawden submitted the names of his staff for the coming season, included are Phil Lott, Gerald Ethier, Cy Young, Herb Pointer, Herb Henn.

A lengthy perusal of the rules took place following which the meeting was adjourned.

The three local teams in the A section of the softball league appear to be very evenly balanced according to a check of their rosters.

Plenty of Strength

Howe and Hagerman have signed Harry Brown, Herb Wardaugh, Ed Widger, Manny Lee Goyer, Tim Williams (coach) and pitchers Al Adams, Hec Young and Len Carroll. Jack Howe will handle the managerial reins.

Manager Earl Darrah of the Ramsay Paints is still looking for a pitcher to aid Frank Baldwin and "Smiley" Mercook. Others signed include Glen Young, Bob Temple, Harold Wood, Claude Carr, Vic Halsey and "Bunk" Young.

Coached by Jim Ethier and managed by Don McNevin, the Glen Roy Athletic Club feels that it will give the other two teams a run for the money. Carrying the pitching load will be Don Doyle and Marty Halloran with Jimmy Irvine another possibility. Backing up this trio will be Art Rowbotham, Roger Mallory, Mike Tomasic, Bill Spafford, Doug Sword, Jack Hunter, Lyle Wannamaker, Keith Baldwin, Johnny Rousky and "Red" Culkin.

Glen Roy and Howe and Hagerman begin league play on the 24th of May at the Alemite field, both games starting at 6:45 p.m. sharp.

Harry Giddings' big gingerbread colt Ten to Ace plowed through a sea of mud at Woodbine Race Track in Toronto nine years ago today to win the 83rd running of the classic King's Plate, Ten to Ace took the lead right after the start and was 10 lengths clear of the field at the finish of the race.

Ottawa Giants Moving Up In Int. League

(By The Associated Press)

The pitching of Alex Konikowski is one of the reasons Ottawa Giants are right in the thick of the International League pennant scramble.

Konikowski was tabbed for relief work when the season started. The 22-year-old righthander came through brilliantly. He won two games and saved three others.

His excellent work in relief roles earned him his chance as a starter last night. Konikowski made the most of the opportunity. He pitched the Giants to a 10-3 victory over Baltimore Orioles. He allowed eight hits, walked one and fanned seven in bagging his third victory without a loss.

The Giants banged out 13 hits with Stan Jok and Ziggy Jasinski leading the way with three hits each. Jok and Dutch Mele drove in three runs each. The Orioles scored in the seventh on a two-run pinch-hit single by Jane Moore. The victory boosted the fourth-place Giants to within four games of the second-place Montreal Royals.

Syracuse downed the Royals, 7-3, in a game marred by 18 bases on balls. The Chiefs led all the way but the Royals threatened in the ninth, scoring twice and loading the bases with two out. Art Hartley, fifth Syracuse pitcher, then got George Pfister to hit into a force play to end the game.

Rochester's runner-up Red Wings dropped a 7-6 decision to Buffalo Bisons. The Bisons scored all of their runs in the first three innings against previously unbeaten Kurt Krieger. Alex Carrasquel, third Bisons pitcher, was the winner.

The scheduled game between Springfield's and Toronto was postponed because of rain.

O'Neill Puzzled By Relief Hurler's Effort as Starter

Boston, May 23—(AP)—Stout Steve O'Neill wore a worried smile today as he heard his Boston Red Sockers singing praises about lefty Maury McDermott, newly acquired control.

The fact that McDermott has re-established himself as a starting pitcher is not all profit in O'Neill's managerial book. Steve now is worrying about McDermott's replacement in the bullpen.

Since he has seen his starters go the full distance only seven times in 39 games, O'Neill, naturally, ranks effective relief performers high upon his erratic fielding staff.

McDermott was rated as one of O'Neill's two prospective starters until last Friday when he turned back the Cleveland Indians 8-1, in his first 1951 start. Yesterday he tamed the Detroit Tigers 6-3, in fairly outstanding fashion.

"McDermott has a great fast ball and he can throw his curves in there without letting up," enthused new catcher Lee Moss. "He say Mauy's curve is nearly as fast as Bob Feller's was when he was at his peak."

"That kid has everything," was Tiger manager Red Rolfe's tribute. "He had plenty of stuff and he was able to get the ball over from start to finish. All McDermott needs is the chance to pitch."

The stringbean 22-year-old southpaw now has pitched 40 innings, the last 18 of them in a row, for an earned run average of 1.35. He has piled up 36 strikeouts, given up 24 hits and 22 bases on balls while putting together a 2-1 record.

"I don't get mad at myself any more," the now-poised McDermott explained. "When I get in to holes now-a-days, I try to keep cool and keep throwing hard."

With McDermott on regular assignment, O'Neill now can depend upon only Harry Taylor for sure-fire relief service. That righthander has not given up an earned run in his 13 relief innings to date.

British Applaud Urzetta Showing In Golf Tourney

Portheawl, Wales, May 23—All American dominance of the British amateur golf championship may reside in the hearts of all British enthusiasts, but they try hard not to show it.

That was demonstrated yesterday when more than 100 gallery-ites walked around the 6,858-yard Rhodewell course in a raging gale to watch Sam Urzetta, 33-year-old ex-caddie from Rochester, N. Y., being done in by local favorite, Steve Tredinnick, 3 and 2.

Tone Sam is the U. S. amateur champion, a title that would be a drawing card anywhere. But he also has the appeal of a fighting link competitor and one who has battled his way to the top over a rocky course.

Urzetta hasn't shown here the flashing game that flattened the current-British title holder, Frank Stranahan, in the 36-hole final of the U. S. amateur in the States last year.

"The rain and the wind don't bother me," Urzetta said after a so-so performance yesterday. "Most of the trouble is with my short irons. They're not crisp enough. But I may get that touch back Wednesday. If I do I hope to be staying around for a while." Urzetta admits candidly that he is trying to pattern his life as much as possible after his idol, Willie Turnesa, 36-year-old former British and U. S. amateur king.

"Willie helps me every way he can, both on the course and off," Sam said. "He's been like a godfather to me."

All-German Team Will be Selected For Olympics

(By The Canadian Press)

The Olympic committee of east and west Germany confirmed Tuesday that they would collaborate in selecting an all-German team for next year's Olympic Games. They failed to reach agreement on any other point.

The two committees had been summoned to Lausanne by the International Olympic Committee in an attempt to iron out differences and establish a single German Olympic Committee.

The two delegations met all day with the executive committee of the International Olympic Committee in an effort to extend the area of agreement, but all that was achieved was the signature by both sides to a statement that they agreed to differ.

The son of Canada's greatest athlete, of the half-century, Lionel Conacher, Jr., performed in the family tradition at the annual Upper Canada College track meet Tuesday.

He took first places in the junior 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes, the high jump, and broad jump. He set school records in the 220, 440 and broad jump.

At Los Angeles, Albert R. Scroggins, ex-jockey's agent with a record of 20 arrests on bunco making charges, was fined $3,500 Tuesday for trying to fix a championship basketball game between Southern California and Utah.

He was convicted of attempting to bribe University of South Carolina forward Ken Rohrer to throw a Southern Division Pacific Coast Conference title game for $1,500 last March 3. Flower's team beat the University of California at Los Angeles.

Britain's Fulham football club arrived in Dublin Tuesday for a 6 1-2 week tour of exhibition games in Canada and the United States.

The 21-member squad, led by club president Sir Leslie Bowker, is scheduled to play at Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Vancouver, Victoria and New York.

A 22-year-old who has had Detroiters proclaiming him "the next Joe Louis" since he began boxing two years ago, gets his initial first-class test at Detroit Olympia Tuesday night.

He is Ezmerel Davidson and he meets Clarence Henry, sixth ranking heavyweight, in a 10-round bout. He's unbeaten in 23 pro fights.

Frank Loftis, Davidson's manager, said the fight of his 205-pound, six-foot-one heavyweight "means everything" and predicted: "If Ezmerel ever tags him Davidson will win, sure."

At London, Tony Mottram, England's veteran tennis ace, defeated France's Paul Remy, 6-3, 6-4, on Tuesday to give his country a 3-2 victory over France in the second round of the European Zone Davis Cup competition.

Mottram's decisive triumph was scored in the first of the final two singles matches. Tuesday, it gave England a 3-1 edge and reduced the final match for a formality.

Mahlon Hanover Picked to Win Hambletonian

Rockville Center, N.Y., May 23 (AP)—Mahlon Hanover, a Canadian-trained colt with designs on the famed Hambletonian trotting classic, makes his 1951 debut tomorrow night at Fort Miami raceway, Toledo, O.

Mahlon Hanover is only three years old, and not many people have heard about him yet. But his owner, Willet C. Evans, is 72, and they know he wants that Hambletonian like nothing else.

Evans is a milkman. He owns a big dairy near here, and drove trotters to milk wagons as a boy. That's when he got acquainted with horses.

"I'm leaving today for Toledo, but don't want to make any predictions about the horse," said Evans. "The trainer should be the one to say about his chances."

His trainer is 25-year-old Joe O'Brien, the Canadian reinsman from New Glasgow, N.S., who now calls Orlando, Fla., his home.

Mahlon Hanover meets several eligibles tomorrow for the $90,000 Hambletonian, to be raced Aug. 8 at Goshen, N.Y.

The boy son of Nibble Hanover won eight of 16 starts last year, earned $15,971, and had a race record of 2.04 for the mile.

Evans paid $1,400 for the colt as a yearling, and says Mahlon Hanover has never been touched with the whip. O'Brien will be in the sulky.

Last winter, for the first time in 30 years, Evans climbed into the sulky at Orlando and jogged Mahlon Hanover as a second trainer to O'Brien.

"He's a nicely-mannered colt, always stays on the trot, and can be depended on to do what's expected of him," says O'Brien.

Evans made one other crack at the Hambletonian, getting fifth last year with Stuart Hanover.

40 Candidates Nominated For Gold Cup Race

Inglewood, Calif. May 23—(AP)—Citation, Coaltown and Moonrush, three of the best known names in horse racing today, head a roll of 40 candidates nominated for the $100,00 Hollywood Gold Cup handicap July 14.

The Hollywood Turf Club announced the list today for the mile and one-quarter fixture, the only horse race which guarantees $100,000 net to the winner.

Nationally famed stables are taking at least a preliminary step toward winning the pot, notably Calumet Farm, Brookmeade, the King-Lucilwitz stable and others.

Calumet nominated Citation, Coaltown, All Blue and Bewitch; Brookmeade, the nation's leading money winner last year, came he with Greek Ship, Chains and Why Not Now; Moorcrist is the prize winning hero of the Grace King-Gus Lucilwitz string.

Whether all the big name horses get up to the post remains to be seen. If they do, the 1951 Gold Cup could match in color last year's race. That one found the great Irish horse, Noor, defeating Bill Prince, Palestinian, Assault, Next Move, and others in track record breaking time.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, May 25

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Be about affairs in sane manner. Don't try to force things, rather get your credits with diplomacy. Be ready for quick changes in business, money matters, personal plans.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Don't stop to contend each instance, concentrate in the way you will bring bigger, better results. Unsettled business, finances and affairs of the heart are mildly sponsored.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Uncertain aspects suggest caution in home matters, important undertakings. Things necessitating drastic changes and speculative investments should have more forethought, accuracy.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)—Concise effort and poise will see you through in fine style. Salesman, professional, all honest work should succeed with especial care in a.m. P.M. likely better possibilities.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Be on your toes! New advantages can come through friends, relatives. Be ready to act when right moment arrives. Security, careful judgment will bring big results.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—May be some strange twists that can be unexpectedly helpful. There is no sure guarantee for success but consistent honest trying. Much depends on you, how you perceive and manage personally.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Dull period if you just take things without extending some enthusiasm. The one who won't be downed will find good in this day others could not see.

Shun rumor.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—You will not find it easy or outside help plentiful this inauspicious planetary day. Rather chin up! Be determined to match your capability with the best. Have faith.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Good day for your true self. Right gamble with your assets, give honest effort, you will achieve.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Curtail some personal desires. Avoid frivolous interests for general good of essentials. You may have to make some sacrifices, do so cheerfully and reward will be big.

January 23 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Keep within your sphere or knowledge and ability to deliver. Stars warn against risky unknown trips, going after high-sounding schemes. News to your advantage now or soon. Cheer!

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Keep your mind on what you are doing, don't worry about others' activities. Hold wise controls on money and personal activities. Be co-operative; deliberate well in decisions.

YOU BORN TODAY are intriguing, sometimes unpredictable, generous; can usually come up with right decisions or deeds in right moments. Not easily deterred, will come back to try again; a good thing. Mercury, your planet, indicate speed, be careful not to be too speedy. The difficult seldom bothers your ambitious nature, however, realize physical limitations. Take needed rest, relaxation. Be always honest, upright and gain many blessings.

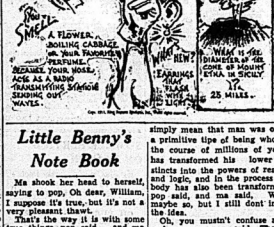
SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK — By R. McSCOTT



Little Benny's Note Book

Ma shook her head to herself, saying to pop, Oh dear, William, I suppose it's true, but it's not a very pleasant thawt.

That's the way it is with some true things, pop said, and ma said, I was thinking of the theory that man developed from the lower animals. I dont want to seem behind the times in this age of science, and I realize that some of the lower animals are very bewitsil in their way, but still, William, really, I mean really, she said.

You mustn't take the scientists too litterly, my dear, pop said. They dont mean that the munkies all went to sleep with a headake one nite and woke up the next morning reciting the ferst 3 letters of the alfabet. They simply mean that man was once a primitive tipe of being who in the course of millions of years has transformed his lower instincts into the powers of reason and logic, and in the process his body has also been transformed, pop said, and ma said, Well, maybe so, but I still dont injoy the idea.

Oh, you mustn't confuse man and, woman, pop said. There's one school of thawt that claims woman developed from the flowers, he said, and ma said, Now William, dont be so sentimental, though I admit it is a nice thawt.

But my dear, there's scentific foundation for it, pop said. Flowers have no conscious instincts, like animals, and that explains why woman's ability in reason and logic is still in a rudimentary form, he said, and ma said, Oh, hush and keep quiet, and if you want to laugh, go ahead and laugh.

FOUR WORKMEN KILLED St. Louis, May 23—(AP)—Four workmen were killed yesterday when the walls of a ditch caved in on them. Rescue workers recovered the bodies about an hour after the walls, about 15 feet high, collapsed.

1,200 Honor Owen Sound Hockey Champs

Owen Sound, May 23 (CP) — Pouring rain Tuesday night failed to dampen the enthusiasm of Owen Sound hockey fans who turned out to pay tribute to the Owen Sound Mercurys, 1951 Allan Cup hockey champions.

Spectators waited in the rain for more than half an hour for a parade from the city hall to the arena, scene of many Mercury triumphs this season. The parade followed a banquet tendered the team by the city.

At the arena about 1,200 people loosed a great roar as the Mercurys took their places on a platform at one end. Mayor E. C. Sargent and members of the city council presented the players with travelling bags. Following the presentation of gifts, there was a complimentary dance in the arena staged by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The toast to the champions at the banquet was proposed by N. H. L. Star Harry Lumley, a native of Owen Sound and now Chicago Black Hawks, who said he got a bigger thrill out of watching the Mercurys of his home town win the Allan Cup that he did in winning the Stanley Cup with Detroit in 1950.

Team manager Charlie Blackwell replied that the Mercurys operated on a co-operative basis and the players stood to gain nothing financially unless they went a long way down the playoff trail. "This is the lowest price ever paid for the highest-priced trophy in Canada," he said.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, May 23 (AP) — Between Broadway and Eighth Ave. where the fight mob hangs out, they say even the angles have angles. . .so it's difficult to figure the angles on the sudden burst of boxing activity that is taking place after a dull winter. . .to wind up the indoor season the International Boxing Club carded three title bouts—Gavilan vs. Bratton last week, Ike Williams vs. James Carter Friday and heavyweight champ Ezzard Charles vs. light heavy boss Joe Maxim next week in Chicago. . . after that, the mob will have to rick fresh air poisoning in the ball parks.

There's Joe Louis and Lee Savold June 13, Jake LaMotta and Bob Murphy on the 27th and Rex Layne and Rocky Marciano July 18, all in New York. . .if Maxim doesn't beat Charles, he'll defend his 175 pound title probably against the LaMotta-Murphy winner in Chicago.

The IBC is figuring on one outdoor fight for its Detroit branch in connection with that city's 250th anniversary celebration and plans to send Charles against the Louis-Savold winner and possibly stage another Sandy Saddler-Willie Pep brawl before the summer ends. . .so the angle? Well, it might be that outdoor fights aren't covered in the annual television contracts and there has been some lively bidding by the outfit which airs them on Wednesday nights.

THERE'S AN INTERNATIONAL FOR EVERY PURPOSE

When buying a Truck, cost of operation, trouble-free performance, and years of service without costly tie-ups for repairs, is most important. Many owners of Internationals report mileage of 75,000 to 100,000 or more without repairs of any kind.

Even if the first cost of an International should be slightly higher — owners know that the difference is saved many times over in operating costs, and years and years of trouble-free operation.

Internationals from ½-Ton to larger sizes are Heavy Duty, engineered to save you money. Owners will tell you the new 1951 models are the most comfortable and easiest riding trucks on the road today.

J. WILFRED HOLMES,

End of A Chapter

By Edwin Rutt

It was then, perhaps, that Alice first understood rather clearly. Muriel Halleck had the essential, if a fine, gift for a great writer, and despite her becoming modesty, Muriel knew it. This book of doubtless was expected which if successful, would bring Muriel into a new and more important literary plane. Beautifully and it certainly promised to be successful. By Muriel Halleck, the author but basically shallow serials she wrote under the pen name of Jo Palgrave were terrible.

"Well," Muriel urged, "there must be some hope. Nothing's 100 percent."

"There is one thing," Alice said couldn't quite get from the outline the—the payoff on Larry." She referred to the book's central character.

Muriel glanced at her keenly. "Payoff, that will you?"

"Well, just how are you planning to leave him with the reader? I mean, what kind of a man is he, actually? It almost seemed sometimes I shouldn't say this—but as if you weren't sure yourself what he make of him."

That's very shrewd observation, Alice. I really don't exactly know what I'll make of Larry, in the end. Oh, I've got some nebulous ideas. But I'm positive that something will crystallize soon."

"It's bound to," Alice said. "But outside of that I can't think of a thing."

Muriel turned her back to her typewriter. "All right. You run along and catch some sun. I should spend a few hours on this."

Alice went, thinking that she had not earned her excellent salary this morning. She headed for the garden and saw Brent.

He was sucking a short pipe and regarding gaily colored tulip bed broodingly.

She checked her pace. She did not especially want to talk to Brent. But he beckoned to her casually. "Hello, Miss Pine. Getting big things done?"

"I've made a start, anyhow. But just now Mrs. Halleck—Muriel—hasn't anything for me."

He knocked out the pipe. "Well why your freedom while you may usually Muriel goes in for mass production."

Alice looked at him. His dark face and shadowed eyes told her nothing. She had probably imagined the hint of a sneer in his tone.

"I wouldn't know about that," she said. "But she's certainly producing a grand novel."

"Is she?" Brent murmured. "I hadn't heard."

What I'd have thought . . ." Alice stopped.

Brent laughed. "That I'd know all about it, eh? Oh, Muriel and I don't discuss our work. Good way to keep a couple of artistic temperaments from clashing, you see."

Alice did not see. Their professions, albeit allied, were noncompetitive. Why, then, should there be a question of clash?

She shrugged. It was no business of hers. But her idea of Brent Halleck as a strange, difficult man was growing. She said over a sudden, indeterminate word: "Perhaps I shouldn't have mentioned the novel. She may have wanted to surprise you."

Brent raised a hand interrupting her. "What was that?"

Before she could reply the sound was repeated, more clearly. A solid ring crack, as two hard surfaces brought violently together.

Brent swung around, ran toward the house and disappeared behind it. On impulse, Alice followed.

Under the apple tree outside of her library window was the surly individual she had seen yesterday He held an ax, suspended in midair. A white rash showed in the tree's gnarled trunk.

Brent stood between tree and gardener. His face was twisted with anger. "Who told you to do this, Sloan?"

The man lowered the ax. He met Brent's eyes levelly, even insolently, "I had my orders."

"From whom?"

"Mr. Mims."

"Well," Brent snapped, "they are canceled. I've told you never to cut down any trees without my permission."

Sloan kept his gaze stubborn. "A man can't serve two masters" he grumbled,

The disrespectful tone seemed to rob Brent of his temper.

"Listen you!" he shouted. "Get as Biblical as you like! But let the trees around here alone or —"

"Brent!"

Muriel had come up unheeded, grass muffling her footsteps.

"What's all the fuss about?" she asked quietly. "If it's the tree Sloan's only doing what I asked him to."

Brent wheeled on her, eyes stormy. "And why ask him to?"

"Because the tree obviously has to come down. It keeps light out of the library. And it's so old that it might fall any minute and hurt somebody if it damages the house."

"I don't care if it's as old as Methuselah!" Brent barked. "It stays!"

Alice thought that Muriel handled herself very well. She looked past Brent to the gardener. "There's nothing to be done right now, Sloan."

The man brushed off. Alice would have liked to go with him, despite his dour disposition. She felt highly embarrassed.

"Please be reasonable, Brent" Muriel said—patiently. "There's no place for Alice to work except in the library. And, with this here, it's practically pitch-black in there."

"I'm sorry," Brent repeated, and this time he sounded so. "I don't intend to interfere with whatever it is you and—er, Alice are doing, But"—his eyes, opaque black now, fastened on his wife's face—"I'd better tell you again, since that does seem necessary. This tree, and what gros on it, is mine."

The little incident about the tree in the garden increased Alice Pine's natural curiosity about Brent Halleck. She wondered if anyone who could afford a leisurely life in this charming spot could or should be as Brent apparently was, perpetually discontented and almost truculent. In her opinion, both the Hallecks Muriel and Brent, were at the top of the world.

Muriel seemed sensible of that fact and was becoming grateful about it. She was not, Alice gathered, even dispositioned. At her writing, Muriel drove herself relentlessly, but she knew how to stop and throw the work out of her mind. She had a calmness, even a serenity that was remarkable in a creative person. After the first week of close contact with Muriel, Alice had yet to see the woman actively irritable.

Eventually Alice decided that Muriel had been right, Brent was spoiled. With that conclusion, Alice stopped thinking about him. He was a side issue, anyhow. Her business here was with Muriel.

As the days passed she found it a pleasant business. After the feverish operation of an advertising agency, this ordered routine was child's play. She did not even have to take shorthand. To Muriel's own great disgust, she could not dictate satisfactorily.

They tried it, exhaustively but fruitlessly. The words that flowed so easily to Muriels' fingertips balked at getting off her tongue.

"Oh darn it!" Muriel exclaimed at last. "It's no use. I'm just a wooden Indian. Why was I born an Edgar Wallace or an E. Phillips Oppenheim? They made it seem simply by talking to pretty girls and into dictaphones.

"You were born a Jo Palgrave," Alice reminded her. "That puts you in the upper brackets."

But the simple, flattering Alice. She was being highly paid and felt that, under these conditions, she wasn't earning it. Without hypocricy, she suggested a downward salary revision. Muriel blasted the idea.

"Look! I engaged you thinking I could work in a certain way. It's not your fault that I can't. The salary stands." But—her quick smile flashed—"you're going to suffer now, my dear. "A pound of flesh!" Alice laughed.

"Definitely. For years I wrote in longhand. I really like doing it that way, but it's bit old-fashioned and lately I've tried to learn to think on the typewriter. I'm not much good at it, though. So, back to longhand, And you can struggle with my chicken tracks."

Muriel's handwriting however, was reasonably legible. Alice found she could do everything required of her and still have plenty of leisure.

But the question of what to do with this extra time puzzled Alice. But Muriel solved this problem for her.

I saw a golf bag in your room," Muriel said one day. "Play much?"

Alice's blue eyes lighted. "Every chance I get."

"Well," Muriel tapped a pencil against her strong white teeth "Neither Brent nor I play, but we belong to the Tolliver club. I'll fix it up for you to have a round robin tomorrow."

That was why, on a certain afternoon, Alice slipped away leaving Muriel wrestling with a tricky point in her story.

The golf club was a nine-hole affair, and informal. It was deserted too, as far as the first ten was concerned. Alice drove a ball and split the fairway for 200-yards. But the second hole her drive landed in the rough near a clump of trees.

She found the ball after a short search in a bad lie. She was pulling out a niblick when she heard the oath. A round, whole-souled oath in a deep contralto voice. Alice swung around.

A tall woman in tweeds materialized from the little grove of trees. She picked up a golf bag, hitherto hidden by tall grass and stamped her foot. Then she saw Alice.

"Heaven! I thought I was alone," she exclaimed.

Alice controlled a desire to laugh, "Well, I just got here."

The woman came up. She had chestnut hair streaked with gray and a long bony face. "Wish I'd gotten—here," she pointed at Alice's ball. "I'm lost in the blasted woods. But I won't look for that ball any longer."

"I'd be glad to help you," Alice said.

"Thanks. I'm beyond help in this game. Are you playing alone by chance?"

Alice replied that she was. The tall woman hesitated.

"Well, I'm terrible. But why don't we go on together?"

"Certainly," Alice said.

U.S. Successfully Carries Out Atomic Tests at Eniwetok

Included Some Experiments That May Lead to H-Bombs

Washington, May 25 — (AP) — The United States announced today it has "successfully" carried out atomic tests at Eniwetok atoll in the Pacific including some experiments that may lead to H-bombs.

The tests were announced jointly by the atomic energy commission and defence department.

They included the blast and heat effects on "structures, aircraft and various other items" as well as measurement of radiation from the weapons.

The announcement said in part: "Certain previously announced, test activities at Eniwetok are under security restrictions including those or the Atomic Energy Act. Information obtained from the tests, and future operations, the major purpose of the tests, is secret. In furtherance of the President's announcement of January 31, 1950, the test program included experiments contributing to thermonuclear weapons research.

"Information on several projects in fields of biology, medicine and radiology will be declassified and provided to appropriate agencies of the government when results have been analyzed and evaluated. The program also included extensive measurement of blasts and thermal effects on buildings, aircrafts and various other items.

Much of this data will be declassified for use by both the Department of Defence and the Federal Civil Defence Agency. The data obtained include additional information of primary military interest in the field of weapons effects.

"The commission will continue to use Eniwetok proving ground and the area will remain closed to unauthorized persons."

Heart Ruptured By Gun Blast At Close Range

Toronto, May 25 — (CP) — A young Canadian racing car driver died of a cinder track Wednesday night, his heart ruptured by the blast of his coach's starting gun.

Paul Vamplew, 17, rated as future great in middle distance running, died a few minutes after a blank cartridge accidentally discharged in a revolver held by Syd Percival, well known athlete and sports mentor.

Dr. W. L. Christie, coroner, said Vamplew died of a haemorrhage when his heart was ruptured by the explosion in the gun at close range. The findings of an autopsy discounted an earlier theory that a paper wad in the cartridge might have penetrated to the youth's heart.

Dr. Christie said the blast penetrated the youth's chest and reached his heart. No trace of the cartridge wadding, or any other foreign matter, was found in the wound.

The accident, which occurred during a practice session at the track at Toronto's Parkdale, was described by Chief Coroner Dr. Leslie T. Lawson as one of the rarest he had encountered in 20 years as a coroner.

Tells of Accident

Percival, who was helping Vamplew train for Saturday's track meet at the University of Western Ontario in London, isolated last night how the accident occurred.

"Paul had finished a race," he said. "It was a warm up and I was not satisfied with his performance. I knew he could do better, so I let him go once more. He was here and all with another runner for a half-hour.

"I went over to where Paul and the other lad were sitting. I put my left arm around his shoulders and was leaning my other arm on my right leg which was resting on the bottom seat of the bleachers.

"I was giving Paul a bit of a pep talk. You know what you do when you're trying to train someone into peak condition. I'd be after him along perhaps 50 times in a night, because you want him to give his best.

"After a pep talk, some of the boys often jump up and say 'okay pop.' Paul was like that.

"The gun was in my right hand, lying limply. Paul bounced to his feet and hit my hand. The pistol must have knocked my finger against the trigger, for there was a blast and Paul shouted: 'Holy cow!'

"Paul looked all right. Then he put his hand to his chest. When he took it away it was covered with blood. He threw his arms up over his head and suddenly collapsed."

Pearson Wants Military Force Always at Ready

Ottawa, May 25 (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson said today army strength should be established a United Nations military force ready to take the field wherever aggression occurs.

Continuing testimony at meetings of the commons committee on external affairs, Mr. Pearson said a committee of United Nations is considering establishment of such a force.

His statements were made after Howard Green (PC-Vancouver Quadra) asked why only 17 of the 58 countries who voted to oppose aggression in Korea had sent troops.

Enlarged Old-Age Pensions Scheme Nearly Complete

Federal-Provincial Conference Ends

Ottawa, May 25—(CP) — The federal government, following a conference with the provinces, now is ready to draft legislation for an enlarged old-age pensions program.

A two-day federal-provincial conference on pensions ended yesterday with "general agreement" on principles. The conference was called to discuss legislation under which the federal government and the provinces will share on a 50-50 basis the cost of pensions to the needy between 65 and 69.

The program will be separate from the federal government's plan under which pensions of $40 a month will be paid to everyone 70 and over regardless of means, provided they have lived in Canada for at least 20 years.

In a statement issued at the conclusion of the conference, Health Minister Martin said:

"There was a full exchange of views and general agreement on principles to be incorporated in the proposed old-age assistance legislation, and on the conditions under which it would apply in the provinces."

All provinces were represented at the conference which met in private following a brief inaugural public session Wednesday. Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan headed the delegations from that province, and provinces were represented by welfare ministers.

It is expected that the age limit can be reduced to those 70 and over will start early. In 1952. The date for payment of pensions to the needy in the 65-69 group may vary from province to province.

Gives Interview

In an interview following the conference, Mr. Martin said:

"It is naturally our hope that all provinces will take uniform action on this matter, not only in the interests of equitable treatment for all Canadians, but also in order to avoid the administrative complications which may otherwise arise.

"Nonetheless, if any province comes to the conclusion that it cannot for reasons unknown, implement this part of the program at the present time, or that it can only do so on a limited and partial basis, it is open to it under the federal government's offer as it applies to the other provinces."

It will not affect the payment of pensions to those 70 and over.

Mr. Martin recalled that in 1949 the federal government passed legislation providing for pensions to the aged, in consultation with the provinces in the payment of pensions to the aged, and entered into agreements with the provinces. Quebec was the last to sign—in 1937.

Brig. Geoffrey Walsh Named To Command Canada's 27th Brigade to Serve in Europe

By H. L. JONES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 25—(CP)—Brig. Geoffrey Walsh, C. B., D. S. O., a 41-year-old engineer whose army career has taken him from Spitzbergen to China, was named today to command Canada's new 27th brigade group and direct its preparations to serve in Europe or elsewhere.

The army announced, too, that the only Victoria Cross winner to stay in the regular forces after the war—Lt.-Col. John Mahoney, 39, of New Westminster, B. C.—will command one of the three infantry battalions in the brigade.

Brig. Walsh, from Brantford and St. Catharines, Ont., is a husky, able regular force officer who rose to be chief engineer of the first Canadian Army overseas in the Second World War and come home to direct Canada's resumption of control of the Alaska Highway. He led Canadians ashore in the bloodiest of all Sicilian beaches, their first of the war, in 1943.

Lately he had been serving as commander, eastern Ontario area, with headquarters at Kingston, Ont. His new headquarters will be at Valcartier, Que.

He is expected to tour Canada soon to help stimulate recruiting interest in the 5,000 men earmarked primarily for service with Gen. Eisenhower's Atlantic Treaty Army in Europe.

The brigade now is nearing the minimum requirements of 3,500 men for its own formations. It will need thousands more for replacements.

Battalion Commanders

The army said the brigade's four main fighting units will be commanded by these men:

Lt.-Col. Mahoney, quiet, serious Irish-Canadian who married last fall. He won the V.C. for holding a bridgehead over the Melfa River in Italy seven years ago this month. His leadership guaranteed final success for cracking of the Hitler line a few miles south. He will command the 2nd battalion, 1st Canadian infantry battalion.

Lt.-Col. Richard L. Rutherford, DSO, 33, of Vancouver and Kingston Ont., married with one child. He led a company of the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders in the early stages of the northwest Europe campaign in the last war. He will command the 1st Canadian Highland Battalion.

Lt.-Col. Edward W. Cutbill, DSO, 38, of Niagara Falls, Ont., and Hamilton married who served in the North African, Sicilian and European war theatres in the last war. He will command the Canadian Rifle Battalion. Col. Cutbill was Canadian military attache in Moscow for almost a year ago. The Poles have refused to allow Canada to replace him.

Lt.-Col. Marcellin A. Lahaie, DSO, 37, of Buckingham, Que., married and one of four brothers who served in the army. He campaigned in France, Holland and Germany in the last war. He will command the 60th Field Regiment, RCHA, the artillery unit.

Hasty Fees With Mahony

Lt.-Col. Mahony's unit will be made up of companies recruited by the Loyal Edmonton Regiment, Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment from Belleville, Ont., Algonquin Regiment from Kirkland Lake, Ont., and the Carleton and York Regiment from Fredericton.

Lt.-Col. Rutherford's fighters are being recruited by the Canadian Scottish of Victoria, Seaforth Highlanders of Vancouver and

Prime Minister Says Iran Will Fight to End to Achieve Nationalization of Oil Fields

Tehran, Iran, May 25—(AP)—Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh declared today that Iran will "fight to the end' to achieve oil nationalization.

The aged government leader, interrupting the guarded seclusion in which he has met threats on his life told a press conference on by the nationalization of his country's oil industry.

"We are ready to talk, he said, with the Middle East 'if the government takeover of the British-developed oil fields is installed.

(Britain announced today she is sending her tough 16th parachute Brigade of 4,000 men to the Middle-eastern land of unrest —within easy striking distance of Iran.)

In Berlin Gregory Pushkin, Soviet ambassador to the east German government, was reported to have told east Germans that Russia will "resist" injection of foreign troops into the Iranian oil area.)

Mossadegh last week fainted and fell from the parliament rostrum after announcing he was "ready to die" in his nationalization battle because of the threats to his life.

Today he sobbed and broke down briefly as he described the poverty of Iran's people.

Await Reply

His government meanwhile awaited a reply from the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company to the ultimatum under which a start of negotiations for surrender of the company's vast holdings in Iran.

A time limit after 220 words had been deleted by the censor, Collins said:

"Now, one of the British brigades was thrown in and dig a perfectly magnificent job in holding that breach, while General Van Fleet shifted his reserves in order to contain that penetration.

"That was successfully done, and the Chinese were then brought to a halt, and at tremendous number of casualties; so, they had to pull back again."

"But the Chinese air, some of which we are quite convinced is flown by Russians, is not what I am talking about."

Briefing the Senators generally on the Korean situation as of this time, Collins said the allies have moved to the 38th parallel positions and the red Chinese "are in pretty complete retreat along the front."

All this before the Senate committee was Collins' first appearance before them.

U.S. Quite Convinced Russians Are Flying Red Planes in Korea

Washington, May 25—(AP) — Gen. J. Lawton Collins said today "we are quite convinced" that Russians are flying some of the communist planes in Korea.

Collins, U.S. Army Chief of Staff, also said that equipment captured from the Chinese reds is "mostly Russian."

Collins was testifying at the Senate inquiry into foreign policy and the dismissal of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

In a general discussion of the situation as to the air war, Collins said "the Russian air is never come down below this river up here in Korea very often."

He was using a map and the river was not immediately identified in the stenographic transcript. Presumably it was the Yalu, the river forming the boundary between Korea and Manchuria.

Then Collins said his use of the word "Russian" was a slip of the tongue "because they have not been in at all."

He added:

Civil Defence Program Stirs House Debate

Pearkes Says Protection For Civilians Paltry

Ottawa, May 25 (CP) —Canada's civil defence program stirred controversy in the Commons last night.

Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C. (PC-Nanaimo), Progressive Conservative military critic, said the federal provisions for the protection of the civilian population in case of attack are "paltry."

Health Minister Martin, civil defence chief, said the general is wrong and Canada's precautions stack up with those of other countries.

The civil-defence discussion branched out as an offshoot of a defence debate that saw Defence Minister Claxton under close questioning.

In the civil defence discussion Mr. Martin said the federal government cannot operate the organization; this must be done by the provinces and municipalities. He said that the effectiveness of the program cannot be measured accurately by the amount of federal spending.

Critical of Budget

These expenditures for the current year are estimated at $4,190,000, and Mr. Pearkes was critical of the size in relation to the defence budget of $1,879,000,000.

"Never has a public servant in this country been asked to make so little use of the services entrusted to the task faced by Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, federal civil-defence co-ordinator.

The military side of the debate revolved around the employment of civilians in the defence department. Mr. Claxton told the Commons that civilians are being hired in large numbers to free servicemen for operational work.

Civilians, Mr. Claxton disclosed, cost less than men in uniform. Their average cost would be $2,300, against a total of $3,200 for uniformed members.

The minister said civilian employees now are nearing the 30,000 mark. This is expected to hit 35,000 by the end of this year.

Minister Rejects Idea

Progressive Conservatives urged that a complete survey be undertaken by outside experts to ensure that the best use is being made of manpower. However, the defence minister rejected that idea. He said government checks are quite adequate.

Mr. Claxton announced during the debate that it has been decided the 125,000-acre Wainwright military camp in Alberta will be used next year whether overseas training of army formations as a unit, or 5,000 man brigade group. The development might go further than that, he said.

There was a lengthy debate on reform of the upper chamber petered out with the withdrawal of a motion by Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader, that touched off the discussion, three months ago.

Fate of Polar Bear Club Causes Concern to Churchill Residents

Churchill, Man., May 25 (CP) —The fate of Nanook is causing concern to residents of this northern Manitoba town on the west coast of Hudson Bay.

About two years ago Charles Webber, pilot of a commercial plane flying out of here, picked up a baby cub at Eskimo Bay, 725 miles north of here in the Northwest Territories. The baby bear had been killed by a native.

Mr. Webber realized that the bears —they were only about 10 days old—wouldn't survive without special care so he loaded them aboard the plane for the return flight.

While in the Northwest Territories he landed at Repulse Bay because one of the tiny cubs was proved to be a problem in the plane. A priest, Father Didier, took him off Webber's hands and promised to give him a good home.

Nanook, without her brother, continued on and took to civilization like a duck takes to water. Full of interest and entertainment to everyone as she waddled around the streets, begging and in fact, adding friends and posing for photographs.

But it is the children she loves and they love her. She likes to play hide and seek among them and drinking from her chocolate-milk filled bottle.

Recently Webber realized Nanook could not find a permanent home here. He wrote to the Ottawa zoo permitting to sell her to a Chicago zoo.

He received a telegram in reply refusing permission to remove the bear from the Northwest Territories.

But to return her to the Territories would mean death because now Nanook knows nothing but friendship from the hands of man.

2 French Trawlers Collide in Fog Off Grand Banks

Rescue Ships Take Survivors To St. John's for Treatment

St. John's Nfld., May 25—(CP) —Death toll in yesterday's collision between two French fishing trawlers in the foggy Grand Banks was set at 12 in official reports from the ship which arrived here and from the trawlers' owners in France. There were 31 survivors, including a boy seaman suffering from exposure.

First eyewitness reports of the collision were given here today with the arrival of the French rescue frigate L'Aventure. The frigate's captain, Jean Blanchard of the French Army, gave details of the collision 150 miles southeast of Cape Race.

The captain said the trawler Ginette is Borgne of Fecamp, France, was rammed broadside by the trawler Notre Dame de Lourdes.

The Borgne went down in 10 minutes after the collision which smashed half the lifeboats and spilled her crew of 45 men into the sea.

Moving In Heavy Fog

The two ships were moving in heavy fog in a muffled warning signals. The Coeur was on her way back to France with a sick crew member and the other trawler was still towing her big net.

When the collision occurred, the impact sent a shower of steel splinters at the crew on deck and it is believed some were killed instantly. When the remaining half of the lifeboats were lowered, the survivors jumped into the sea and hundreds of numbersome oilskins made their way with difficulty to the boats.

Meanwhile ships in the vicinity raced to the scene in response to the distress signals. The Coeur had picked up the survivors and the dead were transferred to the L'Aventure which was only 25 miles away when the collision occurred.

Details of the dead will be flown to France for burial and the Coeur will continue her voyage home.

Govt. Winning Battle to Restore Sea Commerce

By ERIC BENTON

Wellington, N.Z. May 25—AP—Prime Minister Sidney G. Holland's government is winning a battle to restore sea commerce choked by a strike Feb. 15 of the communist-angled New Zealand dockers union.

A vigorous use of the armed forces and civilian volunteers has taken up most of the slack along the waterfront and in industries affected by sympathy strikes or freezing plants, some coal mines and coastal sea traffic.

"Behind this strike is the hand of Moscow," Holland said in an interview yesterday. "A small minority of our trade unionists is endeavoring to paralyze trade in this country and so serve the ends of the communistic masters. The government has taken up the challenge. We are going to stick it out in this battle with determination. There will be no retreat, no appeasement, no surrender."

250-Acre Bush Fire Raging Out of Control

North Bay, May 25 — (CP) — More than 100 men are battling a 250-acre bush fire raging out of control in Clary township about 45 miles northwest of River Valley. The fire is 35 miles northwest of North Bay.

The blaze — the only one in the North Bay district not under control started Thursday afternoon. Planes are whipping through a tangled growth of slash and jack pine.

Frank Fowler, forest protection supervisor, said reinforcements were being transported to the fire today by air and road from Timagami and Cache Bay. The fire is burning in the Geo-Gordon Company timber limits.

Two other bush fires broke out over the holiday. One was located in Caldwell township, near Verner, and the other in Calvin township, immediately west of Sundridge on the line of the Canadian railway. Both blazes are small.

CHILDREN FILLED TANK WITH STONES

It wasn't Hallowe'en but two five-year-old lads in the South end of the city had some mischief in Victoria Day fun, the time when the witches and goblins roam.

At least what happened to the car owned by Francis Irvine of 22 Bristol Street wasn't any joke. Irvine had left his car parked near his home when on going to get it found two young lads busily engaged in filling the tank with stones. The lads had the filler cap off and were dropping the stones in one by one. They had the tank filled up to the filler pipe when discovered.

FIREWORKS DISPLAY GIVEN BY HASTY PEES

A fireworks display and show of mobile equipment by the readquarters company of the Hasty Pees last night at Alemite Field was attended by a large number of people.

Under the command of Capt. J. L. Field, the equipment included three 60 hundredweights, one 15 hundredweight, one station wagon, one motorcycle and two lorry and carriers.

To the accompaniment of all the children's own gun carriers made several sorties about the outfield carrying a full load on every trip.

At dusk everyone was cleared from the centre of the field and a half hour display of fireworks followed. Shooting-stars, variegated spinners and flights, thunderflashes, and Verey pistol shells comprised the majority of an enjoyable show.

PRIVATE DISPLAYS OF FIREWORKS SEEN IN ALL PARTS CITY

The old saying that the 24th of May is firecracker day was born out yesterday and last evening when fireworks displays of a private nature were seen in practically every part of the city.

The display staged by the Hasty Pees at the Alemite Field drew a large number of spectators, but many residents apparently were not to be satisfied with the one public display and put on private shows of their own. Shortly after dark, colored rockets could be seen soaring above tree tops with sparklers and many other types of displays also being popular.

Accident Toll Not Serious Over Holiday

Despite a heavy volume of motor traffic which streamed through the city and district over the holiday, no accidents of a serious nature were reported by local police.

Provincial police did not report a single accident of a serious nature, while the same was true of city police. One motorcar driven by James Appleby, R.R. 2, Belleville, turned over on the 2nd concession of Sidney last evening but no injuries were reported.

In the city, two motorcycles and one police cruiser on patrol kept a close check on traffic and their appearance undoubtedly served to slow dawn traffic on the main arteries. The traffic department's new Harley-Davidson motorcycle was put into service Wednesday and is a welcome addition in traffic control.

Seems Fantastic But It Is True

It happened some time ago, but the story just came to light.

Ross Palmatier, Tweed hunter, the remedy of marauding wolves in that district, is the hero of the piece.

Palmatier went for a hunting stroll one morning with two of his trusty dogs. He was armed with a .22 rifle and not expecting any big game, carried but two or three cartridges.

But, they'll do it every time.

The dogs cornered a large wolf, and Palmatier speeded his ammunition. Fighting, snarling the wolf showed battle scars from previous bouts, but what to do was Palmatier's problem.

He thought quickly and acted just as fast.

He rammed the gun muzzle down the throat of the wolf, drew his hunting knife and cut its throat.

Boys' Choir Variety Show Mon. Evening

What promises to be an evening of gala entertainment is taking place at the collegiate auditorium on Monday evening when the C.C.I. Boys' Choir offers its first annual variety show.

Under the direction of Walter Bennett, the program, which is augmented by vocalists and instrumentalists will offer an outstanding production that runs the musical gamut from the classics to popular and standard scores.

Versatility of the young choristers is shown in the program where they are billed as soloists, duetists, trio and quartet performers and last but not least a marked histrionic ability especially along comedy lines. There will be female impersonators skits, a girls' choir and quartet and other numbers.

Instrumento Too

Accordeon, guitar, organ and piano solos will feature the instrumental part of the program, with such artists as Alec Gordon, Dale Rokosh, Ron McBride and Ken Davidson taking part.

Humorous skits of marked variation offset the more serious side of the show and a few of the choir numbers have been secured.

There'll be the "Inkspots", the "Andrew Sisters" and "Al Jolson", each in their own comedy. Many old favorite melodies sung in harmony will feature the show.

The entire proceeds of the show will be devoted to defraying the expenses of the boys' choir to Toronto where they have been invited to sing at the Canadian National Exhibition this year.

Walter Bent, director and producer of the show has had plenty of experience in the management and production of such stage vehicles as this. During the war he produced some 200 shows for army camps as well as organizing musical aggregations in boys' institutions both in Canada and Britain. He toured the continent during the war and produced shows in France, Germany and Holland.

Milk Quality Improves In Cheese Factories

The quality of milk going into cheese factories seems to be considerably improved over last year, it is stated in the weekly crop report published by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Sediment tests of all cheese milk are being made8twice monthly this year.

Nearly all cattle are now out on grass with prospects for good pasture having seldom looked better. In Northumberland some grain fields at the first of the week were well up but it was estimated that about 25 percent of the cereal grain crop was still to be sown.

In Hastings, seeding was said to be progressing satisfactorily but there are still farmers in several of the low-lying districts with very little seeding in. Farmers report that land is very hard to work with low spots holding up completion of fields.

Weather Man in Splendid Mood And Thousands Enjoy Holiday

With the weather man in holiday mood, Victoria Day was enjoyed to the utmost by thousands of pleasure seeking citizens.

The day dawned with a cloudless sky and not even a threat of rain marred plans for the day's outing.

Brilliant sunshine streamed down on baseball diamond, racetrack, softball field, lake, river and creek and on "blackened" fishermen who preferred their fun basking in the shade of trees.

Fishermen were out in force and reports from the northern haunts reveal some nice catches of trout and pickerel.

Thousands sweltered in the hot sunshine at Speedway Parkland near Marysville at the stock automobile races.

Large crowds witnessed the Belleville Redmen-Batawa Shoemen senior baseball clash at Batawa last night.

At the same time Alemite Field saw a near capacity crowd as the Glen Roys and Howe and Hagerman Intermediate 'A' teams battled in the softball opener.

On the Bay of Quinte Country Club links, the divot diggers were out in force from early morning, and despite a rather brisk wind some good cards were turned in.

Members of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club also opened the season, taking advantage of ideal weather conditions to stage a members jitney.

Many Go North

The northern parts of the country were thronged with those who liked the country air, or holidayed in resort, cabin and cottage. Traffic was heavy on the highways but alert Ontario Provincial Police kept a watchful eye on activities.

Yachtsmen and other nautical gentry spent the day on the bay albeit the majority turned the holiday into Labor fitting their craft for the season's fun.

Youth had its fling, too.

The city resounded to the staccato explosions in the evening as the Joes and Janes aided and abetted by equally curious persons celebrated the 24th with fireworks display.

All-in-all it was one of the best "24th's" in years, with the weather-man giving an all-out blessing.

Hot, Humid Temperature Causes Much Discomfort in New Delhi

New Delhi, May 25. (AP)—Let the rest of the world talk about Gen. MacArthur, the Korean war or the British Cabinet crisis.

In India's torrid capital the prime topic of conversation is the weather.

This is the season when searing winds from India's western deserts makes this city probably the world's hottest capital.

Comfort becomes an illusion. Fighting the heat seems much more important than any productive work.

In the pre-Independence days May was the month when most foreigners, and many Indians, fled to Himalayan Hill stations. Minor functionaries or clerks were left to keep the wheels of government and business rolling.

Since Indian Independence the annual migration has been halted except for those officials who managed to schedule summer vacations or find convenient excuses for trips away from the capital.

For those who remain in Delhi May means a blossoming of sports shirts and sandals. A few of the more brave wear open-neck and shirts even at dinner. Such informal attire is equally acceptable in parliament, at cabinet meetings or at the movies. Temperatures reach a peak of more than 100 degrees in midday and drop but slightly when the sun goes down.

A fortunate few boast air conditioners or desert coolers. The latter is a locally designed contrivance by which an electric fan blows air through water-soaked khus-khus mats.

In May most Indians—and many foreigners—move their beds outside. Hotel rooms are dotted with cots, each one equipped with netting to protect its occupant from malarial-bearing mosquitos. Flat roofs are a favorite location for summertime bedrooms.

The Delhi weather station has unofficial reports of a top temperature of 120 degrees in the shade in India's capital.

Officially, the high mark since recording began is 115 degrees on June 11, 1931. The average maximum temperature in May is a mere 104.8 degrees, with daily tops ranging from 100 to 110 degrees.

The dry heat continues through May and into mid-July when monsoon rains — which move up from the south and are watched in their daily progress as carefully as a new-born babe—bring relief.

THE PUBLIC MUST JUDGE CALMLY

Prediction that the dreaded cancer would be under more effective drug control within the next few years was made by a prominent medical man. Dr. Austin Smith, a former Belleville man who is now editor of the American Medical Association Journal, forecast the eventual control. Coming from a man well qualified to speak on the subject, the news is good to hear.

Cancer, of some types, can already be controlled by drug therapy, and much pain can be relieved by other drugs. As yet, however, no cure for the disease, itself, is in sight. It is doubtful that the ravages of cancer can ever come to the developments of medical science for too long. If the cure can be brought forward within ten years, it is much the better.

Another point that Dr. Smith brought out is well worth considering on. He urged that the public remember that miracle drugs were not developed overnight, and that their true value should be judged over a period of time. The public is well acquainted with drugs which at one time were hailed as the final cure. It is not so long ago that drug manufacturers were praising the effects of certain of their products on the common cold. Their claims indicated that the ordinary cold was a thing of the past, and that immediate relief could be promised to those who were subject to that type of illness.

The public rushed to buy the products, and many were disappointed because they had little or no effect on a cold. Some did find relief in the use of the drug products, but in general, there was no evident proof that the cure had been found.

This must stands to reason. All the medical developments of today have a long background of history. They are all the result of a great deal of hard work on the part of scientists and research workers. Discoveries that were made years ago form principles of research that are followed by today. Thus, there is a gradual evolution producing every new medical achievement, and the work that has gone before cannot be taken lightly. It is hardly reasonable to assume, therefore, that the trial by public of the new discoveries should be made in a few months. Rather, it is well that the public regard as any other new product on the market, and given a fair, but not famous, trial.

The medical profession has a huge load to carry in the years to come. It must make fair judgment of products given them by manufacturers, and their field for trial must be the public. The public would do well to take the discoveries calmly, thus aiding not only its own cause but also those of the medical profession and the kingpins responsible for research and production.

BRITAIN FORGES AHEAD

Canada has long been ahead of the rest of the world, and particularly the United States, in the application of jet propulsion to large planes. When this country produced a jetliner which eventually may take over the job of normal airplanes on commercial flights, the United States laughed. And even when the jetliner was taken on a flight into that country, and proved its worth in the fields of speed and economy, there was still a great deal of derision.

The United States has made great strides in the jet fighter fields, and if reports from Korea are any indication, their planes are superior to anything that Russian technicians can offer. But still, unless it is being kept under cover from newspaper reporters, they have not made any move in the heavier field.

It is interesting to note, therefore, that Britain has now completed first tests on a jet bomber that may revolutionize air power. Designed by the Royal Air Force's main weapon of air attack, the Vickers 660 is powered by four jet engines, and even though no figures have been given on the craft's performance, it is expected to leave all the jet bombers in the world behind in speed range. The huge bomb carrier's engines are still on the secret list, but their power was indicated by a test in which they pushed a prototype fighter 40,000 feet in an upward climb in four minutes.

At one time, Britain's great strength was contained in her marvellous navy. A great part of it still lies in the grim war harbor, as witnessed by the gallant stand made by the Gloucesters in Korean waters. Her Royal Air Force made a heroic name for itself during the hectic days of the Battle of Britain, and now it appears that that branch of the service is still forging ahead. The new developments have to be made in one or another quarter of the world, and it is to be hoped that the free nations, like Britain, can continue to lead the pack.

FORMAL GARDEN

The formal garden's not for me,
I hang the rake upon the tree,
And when the dinner call is made
Between the rows leave the spade
Where I stumbled I continue
Now I strayed in formal dress,
And unashamed I'm adding that
I'm awkward in a high silk hat.

The formal garden's fair to see,
The close-shaped hedge and boxwood tree,
The perfect lawn, the estates that
All things by right rules
Although I may be tempted
Seem much too fine for me to touch.
All may be beauty, pure and rare,
But I'm uneasy standing there.

I like to walk about at ease
Among familiar flowers and trees,
And when it seems the thing to do
Stoop down and pick a rose or two.
As 'tis with people, so with flowers
I like the comfortable hours
We spend together and can be Good friends without forcing

PAGING THE PSYCHIATRISTS

The little publican Zacchaeus, described by the evangelist Luke, is one of the most interesting figures in the Bible.

The psychiatrist would have exclusive over Zacchaeus. He was everything a psychiatrist likes to work on. He had an inferiority complex. He was little of stature. He was maladjusted to such an extent that everybody hated him. He had plenty of wealth but it brought him no joy.

But Jesus saw in this unhappy introverted little publican the possibilities of a redeemed soul. Jesus passed through Jericho, Zacchaeus, because he was little of stature, climbed into a tree that he might see the great Man. And Zacchaeus in the tree is a symbol — he was above the crowd in every way. He had the stuff in him out of which God could make a saint.

The saints are the sinners who kept on trying. Zacchaeus had been slapped down by the people of Jericho until he was sorry for himself and a mean and unscrupulous as the rest of the publicans. But Jesus took an interest in him and there was something in the little man which responded. At last he was not completely lost in the life of Zacchaeus, he had become a figure of such unselfishness, a man marked by such a deep love, that Jesus spoke to him in terms of enthusiasm and praise.

Health of Moslem Pilgrims to Mecca Worries World Health Experts

GENEVA, Switzerland, May 23—(Reuters)—World Health Organization experts have drafted a new set of health rules for the annual Moslem pilgrimage to Mecca.

The great trek, with its hundreds of thousands of pilgrims, presents one of the biggest regional health problems of its kind in Asia.

The rules, which will be submitted to the World Health Assembly are aimed not only at preventing the spread of epidemics among the numerous pilgrims who visit the Holy Land at Medina but also at protecting the health of the local population. At the same time, the rules seek to ease some of the existing irksome health restrictions on pilgrims.

Mecca, birthplace of Mohamed and in Saudi Arabia, is a pilgrimage to it is one of the five sacred duties which each of the world's 300,000,000 Moslems hopes to perform during his lifetime. Last year, 80,000 pilgrims visited Mecca. The pilgrimage season is not fixed because by the Moslem lunar calendar the new year comes 11 days earlier each year. This year it is in September.

During the next 10 or 15 years, W.H.O. experts say, the pilgrimage will fall in a bad cycle of fast, unhealthy journeys with heat and sun strokes take heavy toll of the pilgrims.

McGill Professor Is Noted Student of Russian Life

Montreal (CP) — Even the Russians would be surprised at the extent of knowledge, so vitally important for security and war potential, which Prof. Bogdan Zaborski of the Department of Geography at McGill has amassed on Russia.

"This is the geographer, who spent some time in 1941 in one of Siberia's "resorts" and whose maps of Russia are among the best private collections in the world, will "tell all" this summer during lectures on the May 31 McGill Geography Summer School.

The course of some 11,000 miles Professor Zaborski will draw upon a lifetime's learning and research. Besides the thousands of miles of travel in Russia, in order that civilian and military students may learn accurately what the free world would face in the event of war, Prof. Dr. Zaborski, one of the outstanding authorities in the geography of the Soviet Union on this continent, came by much of his knowledge the hard way.

When Poland fell to German and Russian forces, Professor Zaborski was taken from War saw, in May of 1941, across Russia to Vladivostok and then on Hokkaido at the mouth of the Yenisei River.

Made Way to Scotland

After several months there he was released at the outbreak of Russo-German hostilities, and made his way southward, working in Soviet manufacturing plants before turning westward.

He eventually arrived at the temporary Russian capital of Kuibishev where, with the help of the Polish Embassy, he found his way to Scotland.

Throughout his travels the geographer carefully noted points of interest, the conditions of the people, industries, agriculture and other data of economic significance, amplifying knowledge gained during a trip across Russia in 1937.

One thing the professor regrets keenly is the destruction of a previous collection of some 15,000 maps, which were burned in Warsaw.

Professor Zaborski admits it is an arduous task building up a complete set of data concerning Russian industry and agriculture, economic progress, since the Soviet Union has the most pertinent information since around 1933.

But the professor laboriously examines hundreds of books and articles for information to be checked against his own background of knowledge of the Soviet. He intends to tell the story to tell and he will tell it this summer.

Inflation Causes W. African Living Costs to Rise Rapidly

By STANLEY CLARK

Dakar, French West Africa — (Reuters) — Dakar, great port of French West Africa, is in the grip of a great inflation.

Its citizens are paying for the development of the port which is destined to handle a million tons a year when construction ends.

Dakar is the main destination of continual increase in prices which outpaces all wage increases.

Take the basic foodstuff in Dakar itself. All the larger towns in the hinterland of which it serves are paying, to a greater or lesser extent, the price of boom conditions in the territory.

Costs Offset Wages

The French worker in the larger towns earns between 20,000 francs and 60,000 francs a month. As the local franc is valued at about 2½ cents, most of the metropolitan French franc, that means that his wages range from $150 to $500 a month.

But with rents of apartments running from 5,000 francs to 20,000 francs a month to as much as 90,000 francs, many French artisans must seek workers' flats that they had great difficulty in maintaining an adequate standard of living.

The native worker is earning four times the wages he earned in 1945 and can now demand from 20.50 francs an hour to 98 francs an hour — or from $5.60 to $26 a week.

The 129 a week man is the exception. But he, too, however, finds the cost of living rising.

The 129 a week man is the exception. But he, too, however, finds the cost of living rising.

Foods Up Too

In the towns, the price of bread has increased from 2 francs per kilo to 4 francs. Butter costs 220 cents a pound, tomatoes, 12 cents a pound and bananas, 24 cents a pound. There is no fresh milk for either European or native, but sweetened condensed milk costs 24 cents for a four-ounce tin.

Even the basic staple diet is couscous, a sort of wheat pudding, which costs 20 cents per kilo, doubles. Couscous costs roughly three cents a pound. In Dakar, too the French worker finds a good buy in prices which work out at about two cents a pound. Fruit prices, in native markets are also below those paid by the French worker but tend to rise above price in the parts of the town. Clothes are also expensive.

Yet the life in Dakar and Bamako is surprisingly like that of any French provincial town of similar size and make-up. Dakar, the town of mechanical workers and the Bamako native market, are almost replicas of a score of French towns. Here you can forget the scantily dressed natives who throng the streets.

Syrian Traders

There is, however, one great difference. The Syrian trader of French West Africa are coming increasingly under the influence of the British trader, who specializes in buying and selling to the native people. The British trader's control of large blocks of property in most towns.

Mackenzie's Colour
Cold War Reds' Most Profitable Method in Crisis

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told the Senate committee of inquiry yesterday that while Russia's danger point he is "not too sure" Soviet Russia will start something in Iran before they start it somewhere else."

Bradley and General Forrest O. Sherman, chief of naval operations, said in a secret session that we might have to fight a whole series of "relatively small wars" if we intended to defend the free world.

These two rather general statements seem to me fitting in with the idea that, instead of early development of world conflict, the "cold war" may continue indefinitely. In any event, these appear to be the methods with by sides of a continuation of present tense situation.

The course one hastens to qualify this thought with a reiteration of the warning that a world war is the major explosion. As long as communism continues to juggle with peace, there is no long will those dangers exist.

Still, the "cold war" is Moscow's most profitable method of expansion by aggression as matters now stand. Russia is not prepared, because Russia is keeping the democracies under military and economic strain while she sits on the sidelines, letting her satellites do the spade work.

Naturally Russia has to take chances of her "cold war" getting too hot, and even breaking out into a major conflict. The Kremlin is playing a dangerous game. It is a gamble, but the Soviet thus far has safeguarded itself with extraordinary skill.

The Anglo - Iranian oil dispute may hold opportunities for trouble by Moscow, and it is a wholly different problem from that presented by Korea. Russia has no satellite force in Iran. And direct Russian intervention might probably result in a major conflict with the western powers.

Therefore, it is unlikely that Moscow to proceed with exceedingly caution in Iran. But there are numerous angles to the whole situation of the "cold war." Another would strike at the Kremlin with its wealth of rubber and other resources, and French Indo-China, where costly strife long has been raging.

Trenton Firemen Defeat Belleville By 15-6 Score

Trenton (Special)—One of the main attractions of Recreation Week, the softball game between the Belleville Fire Department and the Trenton Fire Department stimulated a great deal of good feeling between the sportsmen of both centres and in particular the youth of Trenton who turned out in good numbers to watch the much-talked-about affair.

The Trenton Fire Department squad, half of them members of the Trenton Fire Department lassoheed the ball all over Bayshore Park here yesterday pounding out a 15-6 defeat over a team representing the Belleville Fire Department.

The booming bats of Joe Hastings and Jibber Kelly aided the Belleville pitching staff as home runs by both of these sluggers sent seven of Trenton's total scampering across the plate while the invading mob and ladder outfit was standing up bravely against the locals onslaught.

The Two Pitchers

The Belleville firefighters used two flingers but their best was not good enough as Trenton moved up the heavy artillery. Emerson started the visitors batting four innings until Hunter took his place after the locals drove in four runs and extended their lead to six runs.

Trenton pitcher against Barney McGill went the entire route his offerings were spasmodic although he studded 12 pitchouts against five whiffed by the two opposing moundsmen.

The locals biggest batting came in the 5th after Hunter had walked three in a row to load the bases. Ellis, the next man up, popped one of Hunter's fast ones to the waiting hands of Shannerry-go-round cleared the bags as the Trenton supporters shouted and clapped with across the plate.

Rump and O'Brien with two runs apiece, Miller and Yorke with one each, accounted for Belleville's total.

Bitten by Dog, Catcher Quits

Trenton (Special)—The town of Trenton hasn't got a dogcatcher any more. He got bitten by a dog.

Fred Smith, middle-age dogcatcher employed six months of the year by the town, attempted to nab a wayward mongrel on Tuesday, and the dog retaliated by grabbing the forefinger of his right hand and mangling his left wrist.

Smith had the dog by the nape of the neck prior to stowing him in the truck. The hair came out of the mongrel's neck, and it turned and grabbed Smith. Smith has 15 bites in the wrist made by the dog's teeth, and no dog to show for the expedition.

He says he hasn't seen the dog since the biting episode, and doesn't know who owns it. He had received a complaint to pick the dog up on Water Street. Smith treated himself to a tetanus shot, and then called the doctor. The doctor said that treatment was as good as any.

Waving his bandages today, Smith said, "I'm not going to try to catch any more dogs until my wrist and finger get better."

In the cool of the early morning, the first racers sped away from the starting line, smothered in homemade tin-lizzies carried by khaki clad soldiers from the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Several of the racing enthusiasts cracked up in the heat of the competition but no injuries resulted and the event as a whole was a huge success.

PICTON

Hospital Plans Discussed By Picton Board

Picton—Plans for the erection of a new hospital, or building a wing (which would eventually form the beginning of a new institution, were discussed at a meeting of Prince Edward County Hospital Board and members, Wednesday night. As a result, it was decided that an architect would be engaged to complete plans for the erection of a wing on the present building and plans for a complete unit.

The need for an entirely new hospital was stressed by speakers, but it was felt that due to other commitments of town and county, that there might be difficulty in raising the amount required.

One suggestion is that a modern wing, to accommodate 14 beds, be built adjacent to the present building. Later, it might be feasible to add to this wing for a complete hospital as now the present frame structure as a convalescent home.

Elsewhere H. MacDonald, chairman of the Board, presided for the meeting. Members of the medical profession, Drs. R. A. Thompson, J. H. Wickstead, C. A. Poulos, K. B. McQueen, Gerald Allison, J. P. Wells were unanimous that the present hospital was entirely inadequate and that provision for additional beds is an emergent necessity.

Requests totalling $235,000 are available for installing pneumatic and other donations have been promised if an expansion program is undertaken, it was revealed. In a 30-bed hospital $275,000 would be needed locally.

Several doctors pointed out that with hospitalization plans, the hospital facility used a great deal more, and these people are entitled to proper accommodation.

The Picton fire department was called but was of no avail when it went to the home of another William Anderson in the same district.

Bomb Tossed At British Embassy And Leaflets Left

Dublin, May 23 (Reuters) — Police in Dublin today for two men who tossed a bomb at the British embassy last night and left leaflets threatening the lives of the King and Queen.

General opinion in Dublin is that the men are attached to remnants of the outlawed Irish Republican army. But one police official was reported as saying: "We have no doubt there is communist influence involved in this."

The leaflets left on the steps of the embassy declared: "The English King and Queen visit Ireland at the peril of their lives." The royal couple were due to visit Belfast Ireland, June 1 and stay there four days.

Last night's bomb, thrown into the basement of the embassy here did little damage. Fleeing from police, one of the men fired a shot.

Russians Will Resist Injection Of Foreign Troops

Berlin, May 25 — (AP) — The Russians have advised their East German satellites they will resist if they will "resist" injection of foreign troops into the Iranian oil crisis, authoritative sources reported today.

Reports Pushkin, Russian ambassador to the East German government, was said to have conveyed this thought to the German communists at a top secret meeting in East Berlin last Saturday.

Informed easter, quarters said Pushkin sounded the "world situation" and said:

1. The Soviet Union will not agree with sending of foreign troops to Iran.

2. Presence of foreign troops in that area will be regarded as a "direct threat" to the Soviet Union.

The Soviet-Iranian treaty of February, 1921, authorizes Russia to send armed forces into Iran if she considers her security menaced.

In touching on the Korean war, Pushkin was represented as commenting that the Soviet Union would agree to intervene for peace "on certain conditions."

The east sources said there were hints from the Soviet diplomat that one "condition" would be a western "hands off Iran" policy.

King Confined With Mild Attack Of Influenza

London, May 25—(Reuters)—The King was confined to his room at Buckingham Palace today with a mild attack of influenza.

Princess Elizabeth is taking his place at two public ceremonies today and tomorrow.

These are the prestation of new colors to the 3rd battalion Grenadier Guards at Buckingham Palace this morning and the presentation of the King's color to the R.A.F. in London's Hyde Park tomorrow.

The King was visited by his doctors this morning but no bulletin was issued.

The King was last confined to his room in March when he was suffering from a feverish chill.

Earlier this month, he had a vacation at Balmoral, Scotland, with Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret.

There was no official confirmation of reports that the vacation had special significance with regard to the King's health or that he flew to Balmoral so that he could rest his sight leg on which he had an operation two years ago.

During the dedication service of the Festival of Britain May 3, observers commented on his drawn appearance. His duties at the festival and during the visit of King Frederick and Queen Ingrid of Denmark made one of the most strenuous periods of his reign.

The King's health was reported to be standing up well, but two weeks ago it was understood he had been advised to rest before his visit to northern Ireland at the end of May.

God Is In The Dark, Too

By ROY L. SMITH

Browning has been credited with having said in the midst of some evil time, "God is in the dark, too."

Whether the great poet said it or not is not important, but it is true whoever said it. The hours of adversity for a nation or an individual may become the most profitable through which it ever passes.

Brave Experiment Ended

The Israelites in Babylon had come to the end of the trail. The terrible power of the Babylonians had crushed the beautiful city of Jerusalem and left it a mass of smoking ruins. Thousands of the best citizens had staggered across an infernal desert to spend the rest of their days as exiles. The dreams and hopes of the fathers had come to an inglorious end. Judah was through!

The experiences of the people in Babylon may have been difficult, and even painful, but the material gains were well worth the price that was paid. Never again did the Jews turn back after idolatry; never again did they forsake the faith of their fathers; never again did they look lightly on their national or racial identity and destiny.

Prophet of Disaster

The prophet of disaster is never popular, and Jeremiah was no exception to the rule. His honest predictions that the nation was to pay the penalty for its folly and godlessness made him an unpopular individual. He was never invited to speak on any community programs.

But his kept faith with his own soul, and to a genuine prophet that always more important.

BRIG. GEOFFREY

owner, 48th Highlanders of Toronto, Black Watch of Montreal and North Nova Scotia Highlanders.

MR. Col. Cutcliffe's Battalion will include companies from Royal Winnipeg Rifles, Regina Rifles, Prince Pat, Rifles of Vancouver, Victoria Rifles of Montreal and two Fusiliers Mont-Royal, Montreal.

The artillery batteries are being recruited by regiments in Winnipeg, Guelph, Ont., Levis, Que., Montreal and Yarmouth, N.S.

The three battalions will be based initially at Valcartier. The artillery element will be located at Shilo, Man.

It is unusual but not unprecedented to find a brigade to be formed to command such a force. Normally, two battalions constitute usually go to infantry, artillery or tank men.

Have Fewer Officers

Brig. Walsh and his top unit officers will have a similar personnel setup. John Rockingham of the 5th Brigade, now in Korea, and most of his top officers returned to uniform from civilian life.

Known as "Geoff" to his friends, Brig. Walsh usually displays his versatility when he is not come of outdoors life, including boating, fishing, curling and golf. He has had wide military experience. He left Royal Military College and enlisted as a private.

Three highlights pinpoint his military career — the raid on Spitsbergen, engineering work to keep Russian convoys to the Murmansk front open night and day during his stint with the Alaska Highway system preparatory to Canada's take-over from the United States.

Brig. Walsh led the troops which made the Spitsbergen operation, said on the Arctic archipelago 600 miles from the North Pole and reported by Brig. A. E. Potts. He was a major, commanding the Red Field Company of the Royal Canadian Engineers and he directed demolitions, including burning of the coal mines, dumping fuel into the sea and other measures to deny the Spitsbergen base to the Germans.

Proud of his men in Europe, he regards their work on the roads—work that involved thousands of men and hundreds of vehicles night and day for weeks — as one of the big jobs of the war. He recalls that he used to tell his officers: "Think how can it be done and why should it be done."

Organized Highway

As Whitehorse he organized the Alaska Highway system for Canada's end of the job. Maj.-Gen. Wm. M. Hoge was deputy quartermaster - general at the time and just back from overseas. He and wife, Gwynne Currie of Chatham, and their 12 - year - old son, Robert, spent a winter in the Yukon and "enjoyed every minute of it."

From Whitehorse he went to China for engineering planning. On his return, in mid-1945 he was given command of the army's electrical school.

Born in Brantford, Ont., Brig. Walsh was educated at Nova Scotia technical school, McGill University and R.M.C. Then he went to military college at Woolwich, Britain and held various attachments to engineering units of the British army.

He won the Distinguished Service Order in Sicily and was twice mentioned in dispatches. He also holds the C.B.E., the U. S. decoration of commander in the Legion of Merit and The Netherlands decoration of Commander of Orange Nassau.

U.N. Troops Slash Across Parallel

Tokyo, May 25 (AP) —Allied tanks and troops today slashed across the 38th parallel at two more points in their officially-designated all-out offensive to hunt down the battered and retreating communists.

The new crossings kept up the pressure on the red, wheglal-ready were battling an allied spearhead now thrust four miles into North Korea on the east-central front.

Field dispatches said the new crossings were made on the western front, north of Seoul and on the central front southeast of Chuncheon. Both these tank-infantry teams withdrew to South Korea by nightfall.

"The 38th parallel means nothing to me," said 1Lt.-Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the U.S. Eighth Army.

He showed he meant it by crossing into North Korea himself.

Van Fleet visited a tank and infantry task force. It was attacking solidly as a huge "cold" block north of the border astride the reds' escape route from the east-central front. He said his army's tactics of surrounding the reds like their own territory was a gamble but is paying off.

Progress Made

"The Eighth Army is in an all-out offensive," Van Fleet said. "Considerable progress" has been made.

Field dispatches told of open flight of Chinese toward the 38th parallel from some fronts, while they fought stubbornly on others. The pursuing Eighth Army, Van Fleet said, will not be limited by such barriers as the 38th parallel in chasing them down.

"It looks like the pursuit tactics are working well," Van Fleet said. There will be no technical limit on running down the reds. He puts it this way.

The reds backed up fast. But they left rear guards who fought bitterly to slow the allied advance. Communist artillery forced our own allied tank patrol to return to the main body of troops.

The Chinese retreat route in the east was blocked by a huge U.N. armored force astride the main highway, nearly four miles north of 38.

BUSY POET

Girl Crushed, Dies at Scarboro In Landslide

Toronto, May 25 (CP)—The crushed body of 13-year-old Barbara Ann Blankenstein, A. R. Clay under six feet of clay—part of a landslide that trapped her Thursday on the beach below Scarboro Bluffs on Toronto's eastern outskirts.

Police and firemen from the 300-man crew which had dug for hours in search of the girl, said she apparently tried to run out into Lake Ontario to escape the landslide.

About 100 tons of clay had broken almost every bone in her body. She was found, face down, with her arms thrown over her head in a vain attempt at protection.

The pretty, red-haired girl was the second child in 10 years to die in a cave-in under the towering Scarboro cliffs. In 1944 Theresa Burton, 10, was crushed by a falling chunk of clay.

Searchers had been certain the girl was trapped under the huge fall of earth. But on Thursday they found an empty paper bag in which she had carried her lunch on the beach. Her red bicycle was at the top of a 200-foot path leading to the cliff-top.

Herbert Blankenstein, father, was standing on the beach near the landslide.

Neighbors, police, firemen and Boy Scouts began digging last night, and resumed at dawn today after two youths who had been swimming near the spot said they saw the girl walking along the beach and later heard the landslide.

Beaverton Bonds Found in Newark, Five Arrested

Newark, N. J., May 25 (AP) — Five men were arrested today by the Federal Bureau of Investigation on charges of inter - state transportation of $30,000 in stolen Canadian bonds.

K. McKee, special agent in charge of the Newark office, said the bonds were part of the loot in a $300,000 bond robbery last Aug. 28 at the Beaverton, Ont., branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

The trail of the bonds was picked up at a New York brokerage house, McKee said, and a strong possibility exists that the operation is part of a well - organized international bond theft ring.

The F. B. I., Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Various local police agencies are continuing the investigation.

New Program

Under the new program, he said, it is possible that a province might decide it cannot afford to pay pensions to the people between 65 and 69. It would not be obliged to sign an agreement. Another province might decide to assist the needy in the age group 67 to 69. Still another province might decide to limit the assistance to certain groups in the 65-69 brackets.

No matter what the provinces decide, said Mr. Martin, the federal government is ready to pay by half the cost of pensions to the needy in the 65-69 group, in addition to existing legislation. Maximum pensions of $40 a month—more provinces pay more—are paid to those 70 and over who can prove need. The federal government pays 75 per cent of the cost and the province the remainder.

FRANKFORD

First Camporee Of Trent District Set for Batawa

Frankford—The first Trent District Boy Scout Camporee will be held at Batawa Scout Camp on June 2 and 3. Hundreds of Scouts from the surrounding district will camp in patrols, for a beautiful trophy, which has been generously donated by the Bata Shoe Company of Canada. The trophy stands three feet in height, and is valued at over $100.

"Camporee" is a demonstration of camping by Boy Scout patrols, brought together under their own patrol leaders. It can be run up a troop basis with the patrols, or the single troop participating, or it can be run on a district basis, with one or more patrols entering from each troop. Standards are set up and patrols are rated on their demonstration of proficiency in various arts of camping. Each patrol will be judged on the standards it sets recognition.

Camporee is not a competition where there is only one winner. There is no "champion". All patrols have equal opportunity to earn recognition as they are not competing against each other, but are striving to achieve a standard. Each patrol aims to reach "par", instead of first, second, third, etc.

The Camporee is definitely a boys' activity. Patrols are under the leadership of their patrol leaders for the whole period. Scoutmasters may attend the Camporee, but must not in any way assist their patrols or offer suggestions.

Increasing Numbers

The Camporee system of short-term camping—camping with an objective—is being adopted to an increasing number of districts throughout Ontario as the basis for district rallies and weekend camps. Participation in a Camporee is a preliminary and training for patrol system summer camps.

A big value of the Camporee will be the encouragement of hiking, camping, and other outdoor activities, as any patrol which hopes to obtain a high Camporee rating will be sure to carry out previous practise.

The participating patrols, from Cobourg on the west, to Kingston on the east will arrive in Glen Miller about noon on June 2. From this point, they will proceed to the Batawa camping grounds, west of the shoe factory. Their trip from Glen Miller to Batawa will incorporate "orientation", i.e., practical use of compass and topographical mapping.

They will arrive about 2.00. In the afternoon, register, be given inspection and prepare camp. At 8.00, patrol camps will be inspected, and points given for cleanliness, tidiness, ease with which the camp is prepared, and smartness of each patrol itself.

Following supper, the flag lowering ceremonies will be observed. The flag break and the flag lowering are two of the most beautiful and impressive Scout ceremonies.

Points Awarded

At 9.00, a council fire will be conducted by the Camporee officials. Each patrol is to present a stunt or charade, and points will be awarded for the best of these.

On Sunday morning, Scouts will be up at 7.00, have their morning wash, and exercises, and assemble for flag break.

At 9.30, following breakfast, a "Scout's Own" will be held. This is an interdenominational worship period, with the singing of universal hymns. Special arrangements have been made whereby the Catholic boys may attend the Batawa Church for their worship.

In the morning and afternoon, patrols will take part in various projects. Each patrol is allotted a list of ten projects. Any patrol participating will receive certain point awards, and the better that patrol's effort, the more points it will receive.

The boys will break camp at 2.00 and prepare for departure at 4.30. At this time, patrol standards will be announced.

The projects in which patrols will participate include the building, estimation of heights, knot tying, cooking, signalling, first aid, stretchering, map and compass, and making a twist (a Scout pastry delicacy).

Such an event as this entails a great deal of work on the part of the organizers. Most of the credit for this first Camporee, goes to Scoutmaster Victor Baker, of the 1st Batawa Troop, who has worked every day for some months now and has laid the groundwork for what he hopes will be an annual affair.

Commissioner Doug. McInnes, of Trenton, and Commissioner Jackson have been hard workers on this project as well. The Bata Shoe Company, which has always been a booster of young people's work has been most co-operative and helpful in bringing this first Trent District Camporee into reality.

Canada is Building Strong Framework for Home Defence

By DOUGLAS HOW

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa. (CP)—The forces that would defend Canada herself and the headquarters for directing that defence in war are being built up quietly amid the clamor over creation of forces to go abroad.

In the opinion of informed observers, Canada in a number of ways would not be in a good position if war came tomorrow. What Gen. Omar Bradley said about the United States goes for Canada too: this country isn't ready for a showdown with Russia either.

Canada's air defences are weak. Her navy, reported in the Mainguy report to be over-extended even before Korea, still is committing a relatively large portion of its fleet there. The army's airborne brigade is there, but air transport for it could become a major headache if an enemy struck hard and often.

Need Year Longer

The build-up to buttress all three positions is on. By the end of this year major strides will have been made but it probably will be at least a year before the forces are really in a fairly sound fighting position.

The basic premise of defence headquarters' thought continues to be the assumption that no large-scale land invasion of Canada is likely in the years immediately ahead. For that reason, Canada isn't doing what Britain recently did—came a trio of military leaders specifically to direct home defences if war strikes.

Britain must prepare for large-scale invasion. Canada feels this isn't necessary; at least for the present, there is no Canadian equivalent of the head of the British trio, Gen. Bill Slim. Canada's navy, a man closely associated with Canada's in the Second World War in England, Italy and Normandy.

The responsibility for co-ordination here rests with the Chiefs-of-Staff committee in Ottawa. The committee has under it at this stage a series of operational headquarters—an air defence group headquarters in Montreal, a headquarters for the scattered airborne brigade here, naval headquarters on each coast—that would direct wartime battles.

A year ago the forces being built to defend Canada herself were all that counted. Korea changed that completely. Now the news is all about the brigade in Korea, the brigade for Europe, the destroyers off Korea or heading there, plans for an air division for Europe.

This assumption of peacetime obligations overseas has worked a revolution in military policy and in the forces. It has obscured preparations to defend Canada herself.

Position Reviewed

This briefly is a picture of Canada's own position:

Air defence could become a major air battlefield. Seven communities are considered potential A-bomb targets but they probably don't rate among the top 20 on the continent.

By year's end, the R.C.A.F. will be forming a new fighter squadron every month and arming them with modern jets built at home. It will be only a few regular fighter squadrons, their plans are not of the best and radar facilities—the start of a network—are no; impressive.

The air defence headquarters at Montreal is the forerunner of a fighter command, Canada's first, that would be the top factor in Canadian defence. By this time next year, the R.C.A.F. should really have something to fight with although Europe has a high priority in assignment of new squadrons.

Land—the airborne brigade, officially known as the mobile striking group, is scattered across the country. It has never trained as a unit. Ottawa expects separate elements would be used to take on small groups of Russians who might parachute into the northland.

Defence Minister Claxton has said the R.C.A.F. has transport planes to fly enough men into action to handle any attack now considered likely. Some people say the transport situation could become tight even if the plans started dropping platoons or companies at various spots.

Three Brigades

With the Korean and European brigades, Canada now will have three or the equivalent of a division.

Navy—The navy is recommissioning warships, from its reserve as fast as it can and is building others. War for it would mean a far, far lot tougher North Atlantic battle plus defence of the coasts and harbor cities against mine that could lob atomic missiles or fire shells ashore. Mines would be a great headache.

Key Shipbuilding—of seven new-type anti-sub escort vessels in slow. They won't be launched until late this year and won't be ready for a lot longer.

In the meantime, headquarters isn't particularly happy about the Canadian soldiers in Korea and a couple more to relieve them at a time when a war could make them sorely needed nearer home.

Two Smart Bears Show Fishermen How To Do It

Kirkland Lake, May 23 (CP) —Residents of Matachewan have reluctantly admitted that the bears are smarter than they are.

More than 50 residents of the district ended camp vouch for this story.

They were sucker fishing in Middleton Creek Tuesday night, scooping the suckers out of the water in baskets and small nets.

Two bears ambled into the creek and 30 yards away and started throwing out suckers with their paws. The bears eventually climbed out and collected their catch.

Working quickly, the bears snapped off the heads of each fish and left them piled neatly. Prospectors claim that the bears will return to eat their catch when the sun has "ripened" the fish to suit the bear's taste.

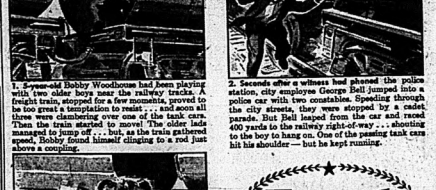
MAN RACES TRAIN TO RESCUE BOY CLINGING BETWEEN CARS

George Bell, of Niagara Falls, Ont., risks life to snatch youngster from precarious position



1. 5-year-old Bobby Woodhouse had been playing with two older boys near the railway tracks. A freight train, stopped for a few moments, proved to be too great a temptation to resist . . . and soon all three were clambering over one of the tank cars. Then the train started to move! The older lads managed to jump off . . . but, as the train gathered speed, Bobby found himself clinging to a rod just above a coupling.

2. Seconds after a witness had phoned the police station, city employee George Bell jumped into a police car with two constables. Speeding through the city streets, they were stopped by a cadet parade. But Bell leaped from the car and raced 400 yards to the railway right-of-way . . . shouting to the boy to hang on. One of the passing tank cars hit his shoulder — but he kept running.

3. Lunging in between the cars where the lad was clinging, Bell got a grip on his arm. As he started to pull him away, the platform of the car behind struck him and sent him spinning. But he was still holding the youngster! Bobby later admitted that he could not have hung on much longer. We are proud to pay tribute to George Bell through the presentation of The Dow Award.

New Dionne Tale Puts U.S. Blast on Quint's Doctor

By A. E. FULFORD
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto.—(CP)—A recent book about the Dionne quintuplets left early attacks Dr. Allan R. Dafoe, their famous physician, accusing him of everything from striving at the quints' birth late to send getting them free publicity.

The book is "The Dionne Legend: Quintuplets in Captivity" by Lillian Barker, published in the United States by Doubleday and Co., and due to be published from sale in Canada by Doubleday Canada Ltd., because of certain inaccuracies in the text.

The book tells the Dionne side of the story in the long-time controversy which sprang up when the Ontario government took over the custody of the quints shortly after their birth May 28, 1934. The guardianship ended in 1941.

Dr. Dafoe's great or credit for the quints' years of care that brought five puny, premature infants into North America's childhood.

There are only two references to his medical care of the children. One gives full credit with using common sense in early stages in their lives.

The accusation is made that Dr. Dafoe made a fortune from his association with the quints. Friends say he left a large estate built up after he received promotions as the quint doctor but not from the funds of the quints, which now are valued at $1,000,000.

The medical profession's approval of his conduct was established by the life membership he received in the Canadian and Ontario Medical Association and the Academy of Medicine.

Friend of Family

Mrs. Barker, an Atlanta, Ga., writer who is a friend of the Dionne family, says as fact high-ly controversial matter. For instance, she quotes Dr. Dafoe as saying—he is alleged to have said the day the children were born. By own admission Mrs. Barker did not arrive in Callander until ten months later.

She attributes to him language that is "clothed neither in the other writers' quotations. "Press reports" and "editorials" are quoted without any indication of their source.

Much is made in the book of the fact that Dr. Dafoe did not arrive at the Dionne home until two of the babies had been born and a third was arriving. Dr. Dafoe reported with his self as an article in the journal of the American Medical Association, Sept. 1, 1934, three months after the babies were born.

Events at Birth

Mrs. Barker's account of events on the night the quints were born differs from the account the doctor wrote from notes made in the first week and still is available. She says that a midwife hastened the quints. Dr. Dafoe wrote: "I hastened them separately." Mrs. Barker writes that Mr. Dionne drove to Corbeil for a priest. But Mrs. Dionne, who was very ill, Dr. Dafoe reported in his A.M.A. article that Mr. Dionne could not be found and he (Dr. Dafoe) drove to Corbeil for the priest.

Another criticism is that Dr. Dafoe left the Dionne home early in the morning the children were born, "went on about his business" and did not return until 8 p.m.

Modern medical practice is not to touch premature children unnecessarily for the first 24 hours. The quint doctor spent the day scouring the district in a successful hunt for cribs.

The book says that Dr. Dafoe expressed the opinion several times in the first few days that the quints would not live. This was not an isolated opinion. The fact that they did live was called the cases through the courts. He had "Scarlet Bonds in Gold" in security, about threats to pass legislation to stop both Dr. Dafoe and keep them there were being tried in Ontario. The threats came from official sources in Toronto."

The books accuses Dr. Dafoe of having advised Mr. Dionne when the babies were a few days old to sign a contract to exhibit them in the United States—the famous "Chicago contract"—and later denouncing Oliva Dionne for signing it.

The accusation that he gave birth which was never made publicly during his lifetime.

Details of Dr. Dafoe's private life are brought out in the book. It mentions, for instance, that the quint doctor failed in some examinations while at university.

Mrs. Barker also discloses that Dr. Dafoe's wife was ill mentally some time before she died following an attack of meningitis. Actually, she had a brain tumor. No mention was made of the country doctor's part in keeping his wife at home with him for some years and caring for her himself while he carried on his practice.

4TH THURLOW

4th Thurlow — Mr. and Mrs. Percy Orland, of Belleville, were Sunday dinner guests at the Rits home.

Mrs. Douglas Tummon and Diane spent Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Miller, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Treverton were Sunday afternoon callers of Miss Margaret Dawson, of Melrose.

Mrs. Manley Mitchell and girls, and Miss Janet Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pound.

Criticism of medical care.

Other Charges Made

The charge is also made that the famous country doctor "strove for publicity" with French-speaking Canadians. Mr. Barker says Dr. Dafoe told reporters that when he handed on the day the children were born that they were "five little French girls."

The statement seems out of character in view of Dr. Dafoe's reverence to French-speaking Canadians in his A.M.A. article.

Dr. Dafoe wrote of the "remarkably pure" home life of the French-speaking people in the Northern Ontario District, adding: "They live close to the soil and have been unspoiled by civilization; a sturdy, simple, and lawabiding folk, loyal to their race and to their faith."

Mrs. Barker represents the controversy over custody of the quints as a "battle between the church and state, the French and English-speaking Canadians."

She says "French-Canadian leaders, politicians and newspaper editors (in 1935) took up the fight for the Dionnes, 'honorable' Roman Catholics."

At another point Mrs. Barker says: "Dr. Dafoe, proud of his Flemish-Dutch blood, was independent. Members of the Liberal party in Toronto who had made the quintuplets government wards and supported and co-operated with Dr. Dafoe were English-speaking and Protestant." She makes an exception of the Hon. Wellington Mackenzie, David Croll, who, she points out, is Jewish.

Government Criticized

The Ontario government is criticized for not exploiting the quintets as a tourist attraction, yet the book admits that their exhibitions were controlled after the parents regained control and until the tourist business dropped off during the war.

Dr. Dafoe resigned as a guardian of the children in 1939 and as their physician in 1941, saying: "I feel my period of usefulness is over. I hope I have done a good job." The text of his resignation does not contain the statement attributed to it by Mrs. Barker that he resigned because "the quints were allowed to speak only French."

The organization as guardian is represented as having been brought about by an agreement with the parents under which two law suits started by the parents were dropped. Court records from Dr. Dafoe's initiation into the Saints and Sinners Club in New York as a "Doctor of Litters", an incident for which the president of the club took responsibility, to the court's approval at accounting of any sums Dr. Dafoe had received as a result of his association with the quints.

Scientific Woman Stuns Industry by New Lipstick

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

New York, (AP)—A lady chemist who didn't like a school teacher has set the cosmetics industry into a pretty stew.

Hazel Bishop emerged from her laboratory with a formula for a long-lasting lipstick and in a few months it boomed into one of the most popular brands in the country.

More important, it started a vogue for what is popularly but inaccurately known as "indelible" lipstick. It isn't indelible, because only tattooing is indelible. But it certainly stays on.

At first the big cosmetics industry watched thoughtfully, debating whether it was just a fad which would die down. Now most of the big companies are in the market with their own brands of long-lasting lipstick.

Unusual Advertising

Actually, it wasn't Miss Bishop's formula which upset competitors as much as the unorthodox manner in which it was advertised.

The cosmetics people had largely been using advertising with the French spelling. They have considered themselves purveyors of dreams, selling delicately that users of their products were pretty sure to get men to win back their husbands or otherwise achieve success in romance.

Then along came Miss Bishop and broke all the rules.

Here, said Miss Bishop, is a lipstick which, properly used, will stay on for a long time. It won't eat off. It won't kiss off. It won't come off on cigarette ends, cups and glasses. It won't smear off on the wearers' teeth.

Those Names

She brought out only seven shades. Some of her rivals have a range of over 30 shadings. There she produced names to them "pink", "red-orange", "medium red", "dark red". Miss Bishop thinks women want color information when they buy lipsticks, not a prism quiven.

Chemists had fooled around with long-lasting lipstick formulas before, but previous products has a tendency to be hard, waxy and left any on the teeth.

Hazel Bishop herself is a quiet, conservative woman in her early 30's. She thinks of herself first and foremost as a research chemist.

Unlike some of her sisters in the cosmetics field she owns no string of horses, has no town and country residences, no decorator's dream office. She doesn't even have an office, in fact, but spends eight hours a day in her laboratory, working to improve her unpatented formula.

Lives With Her Mother

She lives with her mother in a Manhattan apartment, and her major fear is that her involvement in the frivolous field of cosmetics will bring her discredit among workers in pure chemical research. In conversation she is as precise as a physician, and given to using jaw-breaking chemical terms.

She did not set out to be a female beauty tycoon. After period as assistant to a New York dermatologist she was employed by one of the major oil companies, working with petroleum products. She helped develop a special oil for bombing planes.

SCOHARIE

Scoharie—Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Foster and Mr. and Mrs. Sam Way were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Wannamaker, Demorestville, Mrs. William McWilliams and Mrs. H. Rossean were guests at the same home.

Mrs. Clara Jackson and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jackson were Sunday afternoon visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hicks.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hutton and Evelyn were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Johnson and family, Picton.

Quite a few from here enjoyed the Minstrel Show at Picton.

Victoria Day Celebrated In Traditional Style

(By The Canadian Press)

Canadians celebrated Victoria Day in traditional style Thursday—setting off thousands of firecrackers for the youngsters; heading into the country to open summer cottages, and jamming sports stadiums.

Golfing, fishing trips and picnics, or just plain work in the garden were popular in almost perfect weather in central Canada.

Rain-in the Maritimes and cool cloudy weather on the Pacific coast put a slight damper on holiday activities.

There were the usual number of fireworks accidents, none of serious nature. Probably the most tragic Canada Day fatal of a youngster at Aurora, north of Toronto, who dropped a lighted firecracker into a gas tank. The explosion sent his chum flying 20 feet in the air. His injuries were minor.

In Toronto and Montreal sports enthusiasts turned out in force for International League baseball, car and horse racing and more than 50,000 at stadiums and fields in Toronto.

At the Governor-General's residence in Ottawa, a crystal-and-bronze chandelier given to Canada by the British government as a token of friendship was formally presented.

Many Off Work

Most Canadians were off work for the celebration of good queen Victoria's birthday. But there were the usual number of persons on the job, including a handful of civil servants in Ottawa who had to work as the House of Commons was sitting in the afternoon and evening.

The holiday was marred by the violent deaths of at least 10 persons across Canada.

A Canadian Press survey showed six killed in a train wreck in northwestern Quebec, two killed near Montreal and another two in British Columbia.

The two deaths near Montreal were Claire Sie. Marie, 6, and her brother, Gerard, 3, struck by an automobile while crossing a highway at St. Constant Que.

In Vancouver Herbert G. Smith, 60, was fatally injured in a collision between his automobile and a street car. A 14-year-old cyclist was also killed in Vancouver.

Canadian Troops Win 'Battle Of Flags' With Australians But They're Down on Flagpole

By BILL ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadians in Korea, May 25 (CP) —Round one in the Canada-vs-Australia "battle of the flags" is over and would-be rivals have been won by the Canadians, on points.

The battle continues.

Begun when a raiding party from rear headquarters of the Princess Patricias stole the Australian national ensign—the only one in the frontlines area—from rear headquarters of the 3rd battalion, Royal Australian Regiment, the good-natured prank is assuming major proportions.

Strictly in fun, the unlike respective arms nonetheless never had more thought round the clock patrols than since the inception of the campaign.

While the Patricias still have their flag—and the Aussies' —they've conceded to the "enemy" the loss of one flagpole.

So stunned were the Australians when they saw a great red-and-white banner adorned with "ham and eggs" flying from the pole before their own regimental tents, that in their confusion they forgot to haul it down.

The Patricia patrol had transferred the banner from a nearby canteen operated by the Navy, Army and Air Force Institutes.

But it couldn't be hoisted.

The Aussies had made off with the pole.

"Hey, the Van Doos and the R.C.R. had better hurry up to help us hold their flags," one officer said. "If the Aussies come into reserve before they arrive we may have a battalion attack on our hands."

Medieval Custom Keeps Old Church Bright, Spotless

Quebec (CP)—The corvee, a custom borrowed from the middle ages, still plays a big part in the life of a small parish on the St. Lawrence River.

And it's all because French-speaking Canadians can be stubborn about certain things, says Cure Maurice Tessier.

The quaint old Quebec City's Notre Dame De La Garde parish take pride in having their little church spotless and refuse a year they hold a scrubbing-bee.

Had to be just right

Everything had to be just right recently for the spring visit of Monseigneur Lionel Desmarais, Archbishop Maurice Roy of Quebec—and the confirmation rites of small children from the parish.

Out came the pails of hot water, cakes of rouge, yellow Canadian soap, hard-bristled brushes and wash rags. Men, women and children scrubbed and polished for two days.

The job didn't cost the parish a penny and will be repeated just before next Christmas.

In feudal times, peasants were required by law to do a few days' unpaid labor each year on manorial estates. This was known as the corvee.

New Voluntary Job

The custom, toned down to a voluntary basis, was adopted at Notre Dame De La Garde in 1877 when the church was built on Quebec harbor piers near Wolfe's Cove.

In those days the custom was to sell church pews to families of the parish. The first Cure of Notre Dame De La Garde sold the pews—with perpetual rights of legacy—for 75 cents a foot with owners responsible for the church's upkeep.

The arrangement has continued to this day, although, now, more volunteer corvee-workers than pew-owners do the work.

The parish, mostly steve-doves and dock workers, cling to the tradition.

Dean of the corvee-workers is Mrs. Alfredine Dion, a widow, who has been doing odd chores around the church for almost 40 years. She fills in as sexton.

For her work she received the Medal of Diocesan Merit in 1946 from the late Cardinal Villeneuve, then Archbishop of Quebec.

5,000 at Work On Sabre Jets

Montreal, —(CP) — The key weapon in Canada's defence program, the F-86E Sabre jet fighter is being mass-produced in the sprawling Canadair plant here under a cloud of secrecy.

Made up of seven tons of manmade lightning, the Sabre today is recognized as the West's fastest operational fighter. Its manufacture has brought top Canadian engineers, designers and planners under the roof of the 50-acre Canadair plant north of Montreal where 5,000 workers were switched from production of civilian aircraft to fill a $10,000,000 order for over 400 Sabres.

These tigers of the skies cost about $300,000 each and are being produced under an agreement with the North American Aviation Corporation, a U.S. firm, for use by the Royal Canadian Air Force.

At the Canadair plant where Trans-Canada Airlines North Stars are also built, a competent operation is located for the handling of the most complex problems in aviation manufacture.

James Geoffrey Notman, executive vice-president and general manager of Canadair, believes that his plant can handle any aircraft order the Government wants want to place. "Availability of supplies from the United States would be the only brake on output," he said.

Trillium Garden Attractive Spot

Kitchener, Ont. — (CP) — John Stickle's woodlot is different from most — he specializes in growing trillium.

Situated on his farm near here it is the favorite stopping place of hundreds of nature-lovers each spring when the trillium are in bloom.

Steckle, alarmed at the rapid disappearance of the beautiful spring flower, set aside his lot for trees and trillium several years ago. Since the plant dies when the flower is picked, he made it a strict rule that no flowers were to be picked and then sat back and let the trilliums multiply undisturbed.

Now the woods are carpeted with a snowy-white covering of the three-petaled flowers. Here and there, the rarer yellow and white-known blooms add color. In between, other spring flowers flourish under the trees.

The trillium, a member of the lily family, is Ontario's official flower. It has three showy petals measuring roughly two inches across, which grow above a solid green stem and three broad green leaves. Some 18 species grow in Eastern Canada. Some say most of them grow on John Steckle's woodlot.

Maugham Satire Amuses Artists

London — (CP) — Somerset Maugham says that beauty is as transitory as everything else in this world.

Beauty, he said in a speech at the Royal Academy's annual banquet, "depends on the climate of sensibility and that changes with the years."

The 77-year-old British writer, perhaps the most widely read of living authors, delighted a distinguished audience — including honorary extraordinary member Winston Churchill — with a description of the "Lady" who doesn't know anything about art but knows what she likes."

This was an elderly woman in well-cut tweeds, a woman who was going to "do" the Academy with her nephew, a woman who was a little nervous because her nephew said he had had to scrap Cezanne because he was really too pretty-pretty — in short, the woman everyone had heard about but never met.

Maugham quoted the woman as saying she herself didn't know anything about art but what she always said was, a thing of beauty is a joy forever. But since she had heard that Keats had said that — but only once. He added:

"And then I said that if Keats said that it always retained its beauty for so long, because beauty is as transitory as everything in this world.

"Sometimes it has long life, like classic Greek sculpture. But since the Greek world owing to the contact we have made with China, Japan and India, it no longer having a long life."

Maugham sat down amid applause and laughter. Afterward he said he had committed his speech to memory.

WILL GO TO KOREA

Memphis, Tenn., May 25 (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham announced yesterday he will go to Korea "to enter into the experiences of soldiers on the front line so that I may know what a minister should say to them" the 32-year-old preacher said he "will go to the Far East next March and April at my own expense."

Six C.N.R. Employees Dead, Five Injured in Head-on Collision Near Parent, Que.

Parent, Que., May 25 (CP) — Six Canadian National Railways employees died yesterday in a rail collision in this remote north-western Quebec district. Five others were injured.

The head-on collision between a freight train and a ballast train occurred on the Quebec-Cochrane, Ont., line at a point between Dix and Langlade stations.

The two-man engine crews on both trains were killed in their cabs when thestwo trains met about 2:15 p.m. EDT, 335 miles from Quebec.

Two other workers aboard the heavily-laden ballast train also died.

At C.N.R. list of dead, completed today, gave these names:

R. J. Robert, Riviere Du Loup, work train engineer, and his fireman, J. P. Groulouis, Loretteville; H. Stafford, Montreal, freight train engineer, and his fireman, Simeon Chretien, Riviere A Pierre;

L. Desjardins, Senneterre, and Henri-Louis Boldue, Quebec, both aboard the ballast train.

Two of the injured, Kelly Delisle of Senneterre, and J. A. L. Lasalle of Parent, were taken by plane and ambulance to Val d'Or, in the gold mining district to the south.

They were picked up by a plane from Senneterre piloted by Adrien Nenu, who made a landing on a lake four miles from Dix.

At Senneterre they were placed in an ambulance which made the trip by road to Val d'Or.

At Val d'Or, hospital, Lasante was said suffering from burns to the body and arms, while Delisle was said to be suffering from burns and a broken nose.

Locomotives Derailed

Others injured and due to be taken by train eastward to Latuque were: H. Bourcier, a conductor; F. R. Blouin, brakeman on the freight train, and a man named Berrigan.

The two locomotives derailed after crashing together and a flat car in the ballast train was driven up on top of the engines trapping the engine crews.

Fire swept through the coal tenders and burned several hours.

Nine cars—five on the freight train and four on the ballast train —left the tracks.

The accident disrupted communications and hampered identification of the dead and recovery of the bodies.

The first auxiliary train left Senneterre for the scene of the crash, 60 miles away almost three hours after the accident.

The freight train left Senneterre bound for Parent 140 miles to the east at 7:30 a.m. EDT. The work train, heavily-laden with ballast, had set out from Mobet about 20 miles east of where the wreck occurred.

Late last night emergency crews cut through the wreckage with acetylene torches to extricate the engine crews.

C.N.R. officials said it would be 12 to 48 hours before all communications could be resumed.

ESCORTED TO AIRPORT

Singapore, May 25 — (Reuters) — Detectives escorted five communist Chinese diplomats to the airport yesterday and saw them into a plane for Hong Kong. They had arrived Wednesday from Calcutta on their way to Peiping and detectives stood guard throughout the night outside their hotel room. Four were from the communist Chinese Embassy in New Delhi and the fifth was a counsellor in Rangoon.

They laughed as they described the high silk hats worn by the drivers, and the men present.

The happy couple were presented with gifts in the form of roses, tulips and lilacs, and gifts ranging from a large wall picture, to cheque book, in leather of copy and saucers. Mrs. Powell remarked that they believed they received every gift at this time, that on their wedding shower, fifty years ago.

Thousands See Records Broke, Spills at Speedway Race Meet

Norman Brioux, crack Toronto driver sent his flame-painted "Puddlecombe" stock car careening through a field of nine starters to win a sensational victory in the feature event at the Speedway Parkland stock auto races yesterday afternoon.

An estimated 4,500 spectators crowded the new track park near Marysville and ran the gamut of thrills, chills and spills in a series of spine-tingling events that were topped with the track records being broken on two occasions.

Jerry Ball, a Belleville novice driver provided the biggest "chill" thrill of the meet when his 1946 Packard went out of control during a race hurtled the air and somersaulted three times before stopping. Crowds rushed to the almost completely wrecked car, and Bush's ambulance raced to the scene. Ball, however, emerged with a slight shaking up and no injuries.

Never Lost Lead

Brioux' victory in the feature event saw the sensational driver hurtle into Monday afternoon's dropping of the start flag and he was never headed. He lapped the field twice and covered the 14-lap seven-mile race in nine minutes and twenty-five seconds.

Wally Brandon, another crack Toronto driver chased Brioux for three laps and was forced out of the running through mechanical trouble. Bill Wilson, also of Toronto finished in second place with Bruce Irvin, Toronto third and Sherman Kenney, Trenton, fourth.

Brenize Track Record

The track record of 36 seconds held by Brandon was smashed twice during time runs. Briour hurled his "Puddlecombe" streak around the track to make the first new mark of 36 and four-fifths seconds, but Brandon came out in his Jardahl Special in an effort to regain the mark. His first try established the time of 37 seconds but his second attempt saw him negotiate the distance in 36 seconds a new record for the half-mile track.

Brilliant sunshine favored the meet and hundreds of cars packed the parking lots. A detachment of six traffic officers of the Ontario Provincial Police handled the difficult traffic problem without a hitch, and they should be highly complimented on a hard job well done. City firemen were also on hand.

Five Events

Five races were staged with the novice race arranged for drivers driving their maiden races attracting a half dozen entries from the district. Jerry Ball, who later met with the accident, showed fine driving promise and pushed his "48 Packard to the front in the first of the eight laps and stayed there.

Wally Brandon drove a thriller in the second race winning over a field of four. Toronto drivers and Ball of Belleville. Brandon reared his Jardahl Special through the eight laps in a little under six minutes.

Briour won the third race handily from a field of six starters and lapped his field before the checkered flag waved him down to victory. His time was 5.05.

Howard Whitesides, Alliston, Ont., won the fourth race in a little over six minutes from a field of four. Sherman Kenney got a first, a third and two fourths on the day's racing.

Promoter Dick Burgoyne announced at the conclusion of the meet, that another will be held on June 16th.

Mal Sinclair, Lansing, Ont., a director of the Canadian Auto Racing Society handled the meet in a fine manner. Officials were Charles Sinclair, Roy Cook, starter; Jack Devine, announcer and Geo. H. Carver, timer and scorer.

Ball Players Will Demand Bigger Slice

New York, May 25 — (AP) — Big league baseball players will demand a bigger slice of world series revenue this fall, Fred Hutchinson said today.

The Detroit pitcher, who is American League player representative, said world series income has gone up, with television and higher admission prices. But, he said, the 1950 player share was about the same as 25 years ago with the cost of living about three times as high now.

Hutchinson said the request will be put to the owners' committee at their annual meeting in Detroit in July. Hutchinson will meet shortly with Ralph Kiner, newly - appointed National League representative.

Hutchinson also said he plans to renew discussions concerning distribution of the radio and television money earned in the All-Star and World Series last year.

A House of Representatives judiciary sub-committee Thursday postponed for about a month its proposed study of organized baseball's status under the anti-trust laws. A bill was introduced Wednesday in the senate and house to exempt organized sports from anti-trust laws.

It carries a provision to legalize baseball's reserve clause—perpetual ownership of a player.

Annual awards were set up Thursday for good sportsmanship in major-league baseball, the first such awards in the game's history. The Bowman Gum Company of Philadelphia announced the Jack Singer awards, carrying a $1,500 war bond, would be presented to the player in each league voted to have been the best gentlemanly on the field during.

At Lake Garda, Italy, Donald Campbell said Thursday he will attempt to break the world water-speed record Sunday with his speedboat Bluebird.

The world mark of 160.324 miles an hour was set June, 1950, by Stanley Sayres, of Seattle business man, on Lake Washington in Sayres' boat, Slo-Mo-Shun.

Y., and two other American Walkers Cup stalwarts, Dick Chapman and Charlie Coe, battled their way through two gruelling rounds over the Royal Porthcawl course Thursday to reach the quarter-finals of the British Amateur Golf championship.

Four of their countrymen, including defending champion Frank Stranahan from Toledo, finally fizzled out going too rough and bowed out of the classic.

Son Owes Dad A Hambletonian, May Pay This Year

Columbus, O., May 25—(AP)—Gib While, harness racing son of a harness racing father, owes his 78-year-old dad a Hambletonian.

And don't be surprised if he pays the debt by winning the $90,000 classic Aug. 8 at Goshen, N.Y.

It's like this. Back in 1933, in the stables of Ben White, a filly was foaled. Ben, dean of the nation's reinsmen and four-time winner of the Hambletonian, gave the youngster to his 19-year-old son, Gib, who was recovering slowly from the effects of a serious illness.

Gib named her Rosalind, and told his dad that his biggest hope was that the darling daughter of Scotland and Alma Lee should win the Hambletonian, greatest of the three-year-old trotting classics.

Old Ben brought the filly along slowly, and then drove her to straight heat victory to pick up $25,000 in August of 1936 in the top trotting race of them all.

Folks who saw the finish said there wasn't a dry eye in the place as Gib raced into the winner's circle and threw his arms around his dad. Old Ben's victory with his ailing son's filly became one of the legends of the sport, and years later a book, Born to Trot, recorded the story in detail.

But Gib has a chance, and a good one, to writh the epilogue this year.

And he gets that chance because an Ohio horseman went shopping for a yearling trotter two years ago, and picked up a good one at auction.

The horseman is Bill Foster of Marion, and the yearling he bought is True Boy, son of Worthy Boy. The sire finished second to Ben's Valo Song in the 1943 Hambletonian, the last time the veteran piloted a victor in the big race.

Before True Boy ever got to the races, Foster sold a half interest in the colt to the elder White, and young Gib, now 37 and recovered from his long illness, last year drove the two-year-old to six wins in 1 Estate's, a 2.05 1-2 record, and earnings of over $16,000.

True Boy hiked his Hambletonian victory hopes last night at Toledo as he won the $5,000 Matron Stake, with Gib handling the reins. The win was scored over a field of Hambletonian eligibles in the first big test for the three-year-old trotters.

Gib will be up behind True Boy in the Hambletonian, and he has horse right into the winner's circle to pay off that 15-year-old debt. True Boy is one of the five Winter Book favorites.

Ike Williams Laying Title 'On The Line'

New York, May 25 — (AP) — Ike Williams takes his lightweight title out of the deep freeze today for a long-deferred sixth defence against James Carter, a little known Negro from New York's Bronx.

Chances are Ike will have his toughest battle on the scales at noon (EDT) making the 135-lb. class limit. Last time he fought, April 11, he weighed 145½. But he'll make it by drying out. He weighed 135 3/4 yesterday and will take no liquids until the weigh-in.

Nobody seems much disturbed about Williams weakening himself making the weight, for he's 3-to-1 favorite with no takers. The boys know what he can do. They're not so sure about "mystery man" Carter.

The 15-rounder starts at 10:00 p. m. EDT at Madison Square Garden. If Ike should fail to make the weight, he'll have until 2:30 p. m. to pare off the extra ounces. If he's still over, he'll lose the crown and the bout will go on as a non-title scrap.

"It probably will be a tough fight for about seven or eight rounds," said Ike. "Then I hope to knock him out."

That's about the way most experts look at it. Little enthusiasm has been stirred up. And a crowd of some 7,500 and a gate of about $25,000 are expected.

Williams hasn't defended his title since Dec. 5, 1949, when he whipped Freddie Dawson at Philadelphia. Both men are 27 but Ike has been fighting since 1940 and Carter didn't take it up until he got out of the army in 1946.

This is Williams' 128th fight — in the first 127, he won 117, lost 16 and drew four times. He has 91 knockout wins and has been stopped twice — by Montgomery in 1944 and Sammy Angott in 1945.

In 62 fights Carter has won 45, lost 11 and fought six draws. He won 16 by knockouts and has one KO by Gabey Lewis in 1947.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

WHAT A DAY!

Well, that is that. Anyone who would complain about yesterday's weather should have been rated, unless it was one of those self-styled, never-tired exposed to the sun in Dick Burrowes' satirical "Tal Mahal, at Speedway Park. The noggin was the color of a beautiful boiled lobster when the final checkered flag waved down. In any event lovers of outdoor sports had a field day. A cloudless sky, brilliant sunshine tempered with a bit of a coolish breeze that sent the pennants into contortion and some of them into the water, greeted all and sundry. It must have been tops for the blokes who own summer cottages, cabins etc. and for the soaring gentry. Baseball and softball fans had a gilded time and all-in-all it was one of the best "24ths" celebrated in many a moon.

Jack Corson's Belleville Redmen heated up the fine five-hit hurling of youthful Johnny Mowat with some timely clutch hitting in the league opener yesterday and came home with their first victory. The score was 5-1. Mowat's victory and the pitching mound performance for he let those down with five scattered hits while walking two. Art Wright, Redmen ace so bested in the hurling duel and was staked for eight clouts. Mowat and Wright struck out seven apiece with Wright issuing three bobbles against a single for the losers. The brand of baseball produced was good, according to observers, considering it was the first game of the season.

Meanwhile over in Picton, Wallington's mighty Tweeds bested the Athletics and the Napanee host with a six-hit performance, the Pictonians winning the opener by a 6-2 score. The homerun poke by McTaggart for thirteen double but errors are played another five runs across. Incidentally, Wallington's battery mate, Bill Hawley, is a brother of the late Bob Green, one of the best players ever developed in this district.

GOOD SHOW!

Hammerin Grilled to Dick Burrowes' Speedway Packland stock car mogul near Marysville yesterday. A feature was the semi-final driving of Norman Brioux, Toronto, whose daring behind the wheel of his' Dodge - colored "Pinkie" brought the wrath of well-known pilot plaudits. He had the huge crowd standing as he took his car around the turns in breath - taking attacking. Wally Branston was another driver whose daring was a feature, Branston surged his courser around the oval in 36 seconds flat to establish a new record. Another feature was the fine driving of the novices especially Jerry Ball, of Belleville, who miraculously escaped injury when his 39 Packard rolled over three times and was almost completely wrecked. Ball was unscathed. He drove in fine style to cop the novice race and was went out in front in the second race when his car went out of control. It was a good show and it would appear stock auto racing has caught the public fancy.

READY FOR PARADE!

Arrangements have been completed for the parade that will herald the opening of the senior baseball season here tomorrow afternoon. The parade will leave the collegiate campus at the 2 o'clock sharp and all participants are requested to be on hand at 1:30 on the dot. Major R. T. Potter and Belleville Baseball Association officials will perform in the opening ceremonies at Exhibition Park while players will be introduced over the South Radio and Television public address system.

The parade will leave the campus at two o'clock and proceed to Victoria Avenue, west to Front, down Front to Bridge Street, thence to the Exhibition Park. Included will be the Kinmount Boys' Band, minor baseball players, members of the Belleville Rotary Club, with its fleet new station wagon, civic and other officials in cars and military vehicular equipment of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

ATTENTION YOUNGSTERS!!

Also there will be decorated bicycles ridden by youngsters of the city. Three prizes have been generously donated by the Stephen Licence Ltd., Sports Shop of this city and these will be awarded to the three best decorated bikes. Riders and their "steeds" are requested to be at the collegiate campus at sharp 1:30 for the judging will be done there before the parade moves off. Remember, folks, be on time, or you may miss the chance to win one of these handsome prizes donated by a dynamic blending lamp, a battery lamp and a rear vision mirror, thanks to Messrs. Stephen Licence, Limited.

WHAT HO, MATEY!

Fred Aikins, the hard-rock Australian wrestler who has been having things too much his own way of late, will be in a dangerous spot himself tonight in the ring at the Memorial Arena. On that occasion, the arrogant Aussie will be up against none other than Lord Athol Layton, the big, handsome Britisher, who has been bowling over his opposition in impressive fashion since his invasion of this continent.

Aikins is a past-master of the rough, damaging style of wrestling. Howeve, in meeting Layton, Aikins will be pitted against a mat-man who has a few lethal but legal weapons—notably Layton's judo chop, in addition, Layton has the edge weight by his favor, being a big heavyweight. This advantage is usually enjoyed by the over-bearing Aikins.

Of special interest, the semi-final will have Earl McCready, the former Olympic mat ace, of Regina, meeting Wladyslaw Talun, the Polish giant. In the semi-final, Nate Brown, the former boxer, will wrestle talented Lou Stoberg, of Minnesota.

SOFTBALL PRIES OFF THE LID!

Glen Roys opened the Belleville Commercial Softball League "AA" Schedule in an auspicious manner and showed plenty of power in their defeat of Hows and Hagerman by an 8-3 count. The Hows-Hags kicked the ball around plenty for five costly errors and Lou Corson deserved a better fate. Don Berry was in mid-season form as he shackled the opposition with seven scattered clouts. Roy Mallory was the pole star with a single, double and home run for five. It was a good brand of softball for an opener and augurs well for the season. Over-all comments are: Marvel Dick Potter, the Yorke Board's Jimmy Rocker and loop jersey Don Lee in action. Miss Barbara Burley, 402 Bleecker Ave., won the $5.00 lead with clothed ink.

Frank Lane, Who is Not Afraid To Make a Deal, Rates Bow For Success of Chicago White Sox

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Frank Lane, the man who isn't afraid to scorch his fingers in a deal, can take a bow for the amazing early story of the Chicago White Sox.

The White Sox, 1-3 games with a sorry 32-41 record a year ago, the surprising Sox now are a driving second with 19-8 and on the unprecedented clean sweep on their eastern tour.

Paul Richards, the new manager Lane brought in from Seattle, rates the big cheer. But the man behind the scenes is Lane, the energetic go-getter who is the Chicago general manager.

This is a "made" club, put together almost entirely with deals. The Sox has no farm system worthy of the name.

Randy Gumpert gave up 11 hits to Philadelphia yesterday but went all the way in a 5-3 victory. Chicago's seventh straight. Robinson's seventh homer led the Sox's 11 hit attack on Joe Coleman and Carl Scheib.

Two wins in Boston, one in New York, three in Washington and one in Philadelphia sends the White Sox west with their first sweep in many years.

But hot as they are the Sox can't gain on the New York Yankees who behind seven-hit Detroit 11-1, for their 14th win in 18 Yankee Stadium starts.

Casey Stengel got an extra day's rest for his regulars by rushing the Detroit game and they appreciated lefty west all the way. It was his first complete game since May 24, 1950.

Although Detroit outhit the Yanks 10-8, Reynolds drove home seven and couldn't match the Yank extra base hitting. Gerry Coleman hit a homer with two on and Joe DiMaggio got No. 4 with one on.

Knocked Out in Sixth

Lefty Bob Cain who beat the Yanks four times last year while pitching for Chicago, was knocked out in the sixth with his third loss.

Bobby Feller bounced back from his first loss at Boston to shut out Washington with two singles, 16-0, supported by a 19-hit barrage. It was the fourth straight defeat for the slumping Senators, now tied with Cleveland for fifth place.

Bobby Avila with four hits and Larry Doby with a three - run homer and single were the stout-est sluggers for Cleveland. Sid Hudson, making his first start of the year after a long layoff due to a back injury, was racked up inside three innings.

The St. Louis at Boston game in the Red Sox home was rained out.

Only scheduled action in the National brought St. Louis a rousing 11-3 win over Cincinnati in a night game. Rookie Joe Presko, a Houston grad, had a no hit game going for 6 1-3 innings. Johnny Wyrostek ended that with a double. He still had a no-hit-ter going to the ninth when the Reds got to him for four hits and their three runs. It was the third win for the 22-year-old right-hander.

Stan Musial and Peanuts Lowrey helped him along with homers. Stan Rojek and Red Schoendienst had three hits, like Musial and Lowrey, as Ken Raffensberger suffered his fifth loss. The win left the Cards in possession of second place, two games behind idle Brooklyn.

Toronto Leafs Win Twin Bill From Syracuse

(By The Associated Press)

Montreal and Rochester went be watching the National League standings for these International League farm clubs are keeping step with parent Brooklyn and St. Louis in the big show.

The Dodgers' Montreal Club is out-front in the International with the Cards' Rochester farm running second. Just like the National League.

Montreal picked up two more victories by Downing Springfield 1-1 and 5-1 but Rochester kept step by polishing off Ottawa 10-6 and 7-0. As a result Rochester shook off Syracuse and took over second place for themselves, 2½ games off the pace.

Syracuse took a costly double loss, bowing to Toronto 2-1 and 4-1, while Buffalo sneaked into fifth place by shading Baltimore 4-3.

Montreal got tight pitching from Tom Lasorda and Bob Alexander to twice whip last-place Springfield. George Byam hit his sixth homer in the opener and Hector Rodriguez had three for four in the second game of the split-night doubleheader. Frank Marino and Bill Padget were the losers.

Hal Rice and Russ Derry each drove in four runs in Rochester's opening victory behind Bob Habenicht. Ed Tuhas shut out Springfield with seven hits in the seven-inning second game with Don Richmond's double and a two-run homer by Johnny Bistek leading the attack on Frank Fanovich.

Russ Bauers and Johnny Heiki pitched Toronto past Syracuse twice with the help of Johnny Ostrowski's two doubles in the opener and Charlie Grant's three-run homer in the second.

Timely hitting in the early innings and Fred Shuffa's wildness gave Buffalo the one-run edge over Baltimore. Butch Wertz's homer with one on in the sixth made it close.

Touring Fulham Team Defeats Ontario All-Stars

Toronto, May 25 (CP) — The touring Fulham soccer team Thursday defeated an Ontario all-star team 3-0 in an exhibition soccer match before a crowd of 8,000 at the Canadian National Exhibition grandstand. All goals were scored in the first half.

Superior passing provided the first division English league team with its edge in the game.

The Ontario all-stars held a slight edge for about the first 20 minutes, keeping play in the Fulham zone with long, high kicks.

However, Fulham turned the tide sharply when Bobby Brenner, left inside, scored at 19 minutes.

Bedford Jezzard, Fulham centre, scored at 32 minutes with a 30-yard shot which caught Ontario goaltender, Dick Arends, napping.

Jezzard also got Fulham's third goal at 36 minutes when he dribbled the ball downfield and shot from the edge of the penalty area, beating Arends cleanly.

Belleville Redmen Open Season With 3-1 Victory Over Batawa, Mowat Hurls a Five-Hitter

Belleville Redmen got off to a flying start in Quinte Baseball League yesterday in the grand manner as they took a tight 3-1 victory over the Batawa Shoemen in a seven inning twilight game in Batawa.

The game, looking more like a ball-room struggle in the first league opener, was a pitchers' battle from the first inning. Veteran Batawa right-hander, Art Wright was nicked for a walk and two doubles for two runs in the first innings and that was the ball game, a newcomer John Mowat fashioned a neat five-hitter for the home side in giving the Redmen the nod.

Mac Carson led off for the Redmen and bounced a three-two pitch at third base for a double into left field. Dick Fitzpatrick was thrown out pitcher to first with Carson tagging at third. Sam Mulholland was walked and Bob O'Shaughnessy struck out, centre fielder Wilson and Bud Strunk out to end the inning.

In the bottom of the second frame, with Wright and Aquino retired on a double play from Bush to Mulholland-to-Carson, Mowat hit Dick Bridgman amid-ships. Coupey Gifford, a wrong field double into left field with Bridgman taking third, and the Batawa ace fanned the next lesse on life. Mac Watson dumped a slow roller between third with the runners on the next. O'Shaughnessy charged in, made a bare-handed pickup and threw to Watson and the Batawa bopes out at first by a step in the neatest fielding piece of the game.

Led Off With Double

Neither side threatened again until the sixth when Redmen catcher John Dean led off with a double to left field that nurled into an out as he tried to stretch it to a triple. Earl Bush hunted down the first base line and was safe as catcher Aquino's throw to the bag hit him between the shoulder blades. Vern Goyer hit a towering fly ball behind second base that fell in for his third single in three trips with most of the Batawa defence watching it.

Bush took third on Mowat's long fly to right field and Goyer stole second three pitches later. Both were left stranded, however, as Wright struck out Carson.

Batawa came up with their lone tally in the sixth, but it was initiated by a disputed call at first base. Bill Rankin led off with a bouncing ball to short that was originally called safe at first base when Mac Carson dogged Rankin to the sack. Redmen claimed that Carson had caught the ball, moved off first base, and then dropped the ball as he tried to throw it to the pitcher, he umpire, as usual, prevailed.

Wright then took first on a fielder's choice as the infield made sure of Rankin at second. John Aquino connected solidly for a base hit into right field that grew into a triple as bad bounces went past Wilson. Wright scrambled all the way around to break the shut-out.

Added Insurance Run

Belleville added the insurance run in the seventh with Wilson doubling to left field to score Mulholland who had reached first via his fourth straight walk and gained scoring on a standing start.

In going the route for the Shoemakers, Art Wright walked Mulholland four times and Dean once, struck out six, and gave up seven hits including three singles by Vern Goyer.

John Mowat showed nice control in limiting Batawa to five scattered hits, while walking two and striking out seven. He finished in great style retiring the side in the seventh on a strikeout.

For Batawa Aquino was the big gun with a single and a triple in three appearances.

Picton Defeats Napanee 6-3 In Opener

Picton—Amidst the fanfare of Picton R.C.A.F. Band, parade from the monument and Mayor Harvey McFarland's opening game ball, Picton Flying Officers beat their old rivals Napanee 6-3 in the opening game of the C.O.B.L. season.

It was a gay afternoon for Picton, graced with an array of local ball players and with Billy Greer making his first start in senior company, Picton outhit Napanee 13-5 and took command of the game in the sixth inning never to be headed.

Greer was in trouble in the first inning when he walked four batters which forced in a run. He settled down after this and held Napanee hitless until two outs were out in the sixth when two hits and an error Picton scored accounted for two Napanee runs.

Stan McTaggart pitched a good game for Napanee although touched for 13 hits. However, he had 10 strikeouts and issued but two walk.

Joe Hayden's triple and Joe Dickey's double were the only extra base blows.

Quinte Mixed Bowling League Honors Champs

The Quinte Mixed League consisting of twelve teams finished their regular schedule with the following standings by Irene Morgan, in first place.

Other members of the team, Ethel Hough, Ann Hough, Peggy Ronsky, Jack Sills and Art Whalen. They were closely followed by Reddick's Bakery, Wilmer Moore's Olde Timers, and Cecil Hamilton's Merchants. Dodgers, Has Beens, Beavers, Jeeps, Head Pins, Fearnots, New Comers and Meat Heads followed in that order.

The high average for the ladies went to Florence Walden with 215, while June Matthews rolled the high three of 623 and Hilda Lawrenson the high single of 365.

Cecil Hardwick's average of 223 on 30 games was awarded first prize, while Jim McKenzie had 222 for 54 games. He also rolled the high three and single with 860 and 413, but was not allowed two prizes so high single was won by Frank Post with 348.

The league was brought to a conclusion with a banquet served at Tobe's County Gardens by the ladies of Mamaraga. The bowlers did ample justice to the bountiful supply of good "eats" and the election of officers for the 1951-52 season followed. A feature of the evening was the presentation of beautiful corsages to Dolly Diamond and Edna Moore in appreciation of their work as treasurer and secretary for the past season.

Patrick Halloran was re-elected president and Dolly Diamond re-elected treasurer while Catherine Hardwick will perform the task of secretary for the 1951-52 season.

Frankford Teams Ready to Go In Softball Loops

Frankford—The Frankford Legion entry in the Sidney Softball League held a workout this week in the local ball park. The Legion team is much improved over last year's entry, being strengthened considerably by the addition of a couple of Batawa players. Roy Cooke was unanimously elected captain and playing coach of the team Monday night, and Carman Mitel team manager. The team will be without the services of Mitel, their star hurler, as he is now recovering from an operation.

The town will be under the management of Bob Bates also held a workout and the team looks quit snappy. Bob reports that he will possibly turn the managing job over to Harry Hearns, who has done good work in organizing the team.

Glen Roys Defeat Howe, Hagermen 8-2 In Softball League Opener

Playing six-tight ball Glen Roy Athletic Club handed the Howe and Hagerman nine an 8-2 setback in the Commercial Softball League opener at Alemite Field last evening.

Taking advantage of the loose fielding of Howe and Hagerman, Glen Roy scored two unearned runs in the first inning and were never headed. They pecked away at Carson's delivery for single runs in the fourth, sixth, eighth and a trio in the ninth to sew the game up.

Earle Whitts 3

Righthander Don Boyle toiled on the mound for Glen Roy, showing plenty of form in the pinches. Although walking four, he struck out nine and left eight men stranded on the base paths. He gave up seven scattered hits never allowing more than one in any inning except the eighth, when a single by "Widge" Adams and ground outs doubles by Goyer and Williams provided Howe and Hagerman with their only two runs.

Lum Carson on the other hand deserved a better fate than that which he got. No less than five men reached first base as the result of errors by his team mates. Only in the first and ninth innings did he allow any more than one hit to the opposition. His control was good for the league opener as he issued only one base on balls.

Mallory Hitting Star

Roger Mallory was the hitting star of the Glen Roy A.C. crackling out a single, double, and a home-run in five times at bat. Wennemaker and Sweet also hit for two bases although neither one of them scored.

"Widge" Adams poked out two singles in four times at the plate and pinch-hitter Brown tagged one in his only appearance for Howe and Hagerman.

Opening Championship

In a pre-game league opening ceremony, Henry Beckon, member of the Recreation Commission and chairman of the Park Board, welcomed the teams and mayor "Dick" Potter, the pitcher, for a long hit. The catcher, Don Lee, president of the Belleville Commercial Softball League, never had his hands on the ball.

The game was played under almost perfect weather conditions although a bit cool as the night settled down. A near capacity crowd witnessed the fray and stayed afterward to watch the display of fireworks.

Gorman Withdraws Support From Team

Ottawa, May 25 (CP) — P. (Tommy) Gorman Wednesday night withdrew his support of the Ottawa Canadians, entry in the Border Baseball League.

At a special meeting attended by representatives of all six teams with league president John G. Hart of Oglebergen, Pa., presiding, the league decided to operate the team for the next two or four days.

The days of grace are to allow a committee of Cornwall citizens a chance to try to raise sufficient local support to carry on.

"Conditions in Cornwall were unsatisfactory and when we asked the league for permission to take the team on the road until June 16 while something could be done about the Cornwall field we were refused," Gorman said in an interview.

The Nationals were moved here this spring from Ottawa. The attendance at games has been small.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

This sign I must device for pards impertinent. Too quick to criticize; too slow to compliment. And when their cutting words start lashing out at me I'll hang it on the birds to teach them courtesy.

I feel like a terrible nagger about some bridge tilt. But how else am I going to cure some of the stubborn culprits who are at fault. I cannot beat their brains out. Their skulls are too thick.

Take the case of a defensive jump overcall. Some players still use this bid to show a long suit and nothing else. Consequently, a partner of theirs is at a loss to know what response to make.

The correct rule use of such a bid is to show eight tricks with a rebiddable suit. If used in this manner, partner can be certain of his reply. He knows the foundation for his reply is sound.

With less than two tricks he may pass; knowing they have less than game in the pair. With two tricks or more he should make a bid; knowing they have ten tricks to make game possible.

Why two tricks he may either takeout to a new suit or assist the suit bid by partner. To takeout he must have a biddable suit, of course. To assist, he needs adequate support in the bid suit.

What is adequate support in such a case? Remember that a jump overcall implies a rebiddable suit. Therefore, support need be only what it takes to assist a suit that has been bid twice.

South opened with a bid of one heart and west jump overcalled with a bid of two spades. This promised eight tricks and a rebiddable spade suit; expecting partner to bid with two tricks.

If north passes, decide what east does with this hand:

♠ 9 8 4 3
♦ 6 5 2
♣ 7 5 4 3 2

He should assist by bidding spades. It will say he has two tricks or more and spade support. He has very good support.

If you know just what you're doin', you don't drive your pard to ruin.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, May 25—(AP)—His pro football colleagues may never let him live it down, but Bob Waterfield is making his acting debut in the movies. And he's out-Flynning Errol.

Never was Flynn so brave. In "Jungle Jim in the Forbidden Land," Waterfield plays a former football hero who is downed in the wilderness during a wartime army flight. Sort of like Tom Harmon, you see.

Unlike Harmon, who came back to announcer sports on television, Waterfield remains in the jungle to become the leader of a native tribe. He likes it there. But he is sought after by a lady photographer (Sheila Ryan) and Jungle Jim, who is Tarzan with his clothes on (Johnny Weissmuller).

All of which becomes involved with a mad doctor, who is making synthetic diamonds, and the inevitable marauding natives. This problem is resolved when Waterfield tosses a forward pass with a packet of dynamite. Meanwhile, he has been throwing some passes at Miss Ryan, who also decides she likes it there in the jungle and stays with him.

Easy Money

Jound Waterfield, the star quarterback for the Los Angeles Rams, taking the rigors of his new job quite easily.

"It's easy," he admitted. "I don't have much dialogue, so I don't have to study at home or anything. It's mostly action, and that's not difficult. Can you think of an easier way to make a few bucks?"

I couldn't.

Danger of Russia Moving Into Iran Says Bradley

Washington, May 23 — (AP) — Gen. Omar Bradley said today "there is danger of the Russians moving into Iran and starting another aggression."

Bradley made the statement in reply to questions by Senator Owen Brewster (Rep. Me.) at the Senate's inquiry into the dismissal of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Brewster asked Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, what consideration the chiefs have been giving "to the apparent imminence of trouble in Iran," with relation to the desirability of ending the Korean war.

Bradley replied: "The longer the problem in Korea keeps up, the less we are prepared to meet any movement anywhere else . . .

"There is a danger, of course, of the Russians moving into Iran and starting another aggression. Whether or not that is any more dangerous than Yugoslavia or Indo-China or some other place, I am not prepared to say; but certainly it is a point of danger . . .

Bradley was before the Senate Armed Forces and Foreign Relations committees for the sixth day.

Some Senators of both parties were calling for an early end to the investigation but there was no signs it would be closed down soon.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, May 26

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Venus in fine aspect promises happy conclusions to planned and managed affairs. Family, good friends bring happiness. Your artistic tendencies highly approved now.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Your Venus is in fine aspect for planned and managed affairs. Family, good friends bring happiness. Your artistic tendencies highly approved now.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Not all suspicious for granting of personal desires; mental alertness may be somewhat slow, but don't let this worry you. Join activities, work that will help whole family.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Your Moon's position stresses need of a pleasant disposition, no "moods" and a willingness to cooperate with those near, dear to you as well as fellow workers. Show your best traits.

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—Stay neither be unfriendly nor very generous now but good thought backed by good deeds will not fail to reward now or in near future. Finish up things to better enjoy weekend.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—The calmer, more cheerful you are about things generally today, the easier will seem your tasks, obligations. Friendly period for the usual routine but new matters urge more caution.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Heed advice to Taurus. You are lucky with your Venus favorably aspected. Lend a helping hand where needed. Don't dally with day's requirement's and earn leisure hours.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—If work is not on schedule, get needed relaxation, enjoy outdoor activity, improve a talent, but if you work or are in armed services, be hopeful, cheerful; good results possible.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarian)—Jupiter will aspect helpful and pleasant for day's wise schedule. Don't be selfish, don't forget those who have helped you. Be kindly, charitable—you will be blessed.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Take things in general in your inborn calm, sensible way. Some restrictions but wholesome activities, including healthy pleasures in sane measure are favored. Be bright, enthusiastic.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Sudden changes in things are favored but carelessness are taboo. Think before acting to avoid mistakes. Day can be fruitful, predictive of much good if you do your best, and smile.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Mild in your sector but strong Mars and Moon rays say watch precision and facts. Overcome pitfalls by being your decisive, albeit kindly, helpful self. Enjoy a hobby in free time.

YOU BORN TODAY: Versatility, quickness to grasp situations and ideas, and an ingenious imagination are chief characteristics. Unusual talent and capability here but these must be developed and rightly applied if they are to lead you to fulfillment of high desires, to attain the fine success that can be yours. Curb tendency to want change or scenery and activity; this can cause you to lose stability of purpose, valuable associates. Stick at your life's work, pray when disturbed and also in thanksgiving for blessings.

Birthdate: Lady Mary W. Montagu, noted letterwriter; John Wayne, actor.

Magic's the Hobby To Keep You Going

York (CP)—It's a wonhobby, say the Magicals. ...ys you string, eliminates ...dom on hubby's club nights. It's magic.

While their husbands attend monthly meetings of the Society of American Magicians, the Magicals get together in their own sleight-of-hand sessions. Various members demonstrate effects and then show the others how to do them. Later, they watch stage tricks of which the secrets are not divulged.

It all started when a group of wives met to sew and talk while their husbands attended meetings. From that grew a national organization of 382 members in 15 active "rings" devoted to the promotion of magic. The first formal meeting was held in 1932 at the home of Mrs. Harry Houdini.

"It's a wonderful hobby to keep you young" said Shirley Packs, wife of a New York florist, who is also an amateur magician. "I'm not an expert, but I get a tremendous kick out of magic."

And that is one of the things that qualifies her for membership, which is strictly limited to "people who really care about magic."

"We don't want any dead wood," says National Secretary Ruth Clinton, one of the few professionals in the group, who assists her husband on the stage.

Becoming a proficient magicienne is not easy, says these Magicals. Real skill demands good co-ordination, sense of timing and tireless practice, for it's one thing to know how a trick is done and quite another to do it skilfully yourself.

End of A Chapter

By Edwin Ruth

Alice Pine saw the scrutiny of a [illegible] new acquaintance. "I don't believe I've seen you around here before! Are you new here?"

"Yes," Alice replied. She was about to explain when the tall woman extended a large hand. "I'm Molly Tremayne. And you?" Alice took the hand and gave her name.

"All right, Alice," Molly Tremayne said. "Nice to know you. Now let's get out of this filthy rough."

Alice addressed her ball. Despite her difficult lie, there came [illegible] Molly Tremayne [illegible] "What are you, a pro? They advanced slowly, due to Molly's vigorous but ungainly efforts. Alice didn't care. She had plenty of time and the day was wonderful, the sun high and strong and a salt-laden breeze whipping off the Sound.

"Now here," Molly said, on the seventh tee, "is what you golfers" — she appeared to have sprained respect for Alice's game — "call a dog's leg. And it's your honor as usual. Watch those contoured trees, my dear!"

The trees jutted out into the course some 150 yards from the tee. The fairway bent around them. Alice, head well bent down swung. The smack of the club against ball was neat, sweet.

Alice lifted her head. She saw the ball sailing along the edge of the fairway. Simultaneously, a figure emerged from the trees and started across the golf course.

"Fore!" Alice yelled.

It was an unnecessary precaution. Her shot was sailing that ambling figure by 20 yards or more.

If the man heard he didn't bother to look up or change his direction. Eyes straight ahead and hands in pockets, he plodded on across the fairway.

But, even at the distance, there was something familiar about the droop of his shoulders. Alice put her club back in her golf bag.

"My Heavens! He'd have been nobody for me to hit."

"If you ask me," grunted Molly advancing to the tee, "he'd have been just the person."

Alice started. "You know him?"

"Of course." Molly teed her ball. "I've known that grouch for years."

Alice waited while Molly drove. Then she spoke: "I should have told you at the beginning that I'm Mrs. Hallock's secretary."

"You are, eh!" Molly Tremayne regarded her interestedly. "Well, I heard muriel had one. And more power to you. That little woman needs help."

Wondering what prompted that remark, Alice said: "Well, I work exclusively with Mrs. Hallock. I'm hardly more than acquainted with Brent — with her husband."

Molly shrugged. "I used to know Brent well. And as a boy, he was a peach. But he seems to have come back from the war with some kind of complex."

"Was he wounded?" Alice asked.

"No. There's just no visible reason why he's — well, withdrawn from everybody. Everybody, that is" — Molly pursed her lips — "except that worthless Chuck Wimer, who's got more money than brains."

"I haven't met Chuck Wimer."

"That's because he's loafing in Bermuda, but you will. He and Brent are thick as molasses."

Alice restrained herself from trying to pump a total stranger. But the remark about Muriel needing help was provocative. The prolific and popular "Jo Pelgrave" did not appear at all in need of assistance.

"Mr. Hallock's rather a good painter, isn't he?" Alice finally did ask.

"I wouldn't know. I haven't seen much of Brent for some time — as they he used to do good things. But I hear that he doesn't work much any more. Just shambles around, like he's doing now. Of course," she added, I'm only giving you village chitchat."

It was clear however, that Molly Tremayne did not approve of Brent.

Molly's principal objection to him, it seemed, was the fact that he did not shoulder his responsibilities. Of course, Molly pointed out, it was all right for Muriel to have a career, but after all the man in the family should do something toward keeping the bills paid. As far as Molly herself had been able to discover, the little work that Brent did hardly paid for the drinks he was continually buying his crony Chuck Wimer.

THREE KILLED IN AUTO-BUS CRASH, DRIVER HELD

Company Requests Arbitrator In Iran Oil Dispute

U.S. Again Urges Iran Govt. To Settle by Negotiation

The Hague, May 26 (AP)—The Anglo-Iranian Oil Company today requested the president of the International Court of Justice to appoint an arbitrator to settle its dispute with the government of Iran.

The request was announced by the registrar of the world court.

The company's communication invoked article 22 of the oil concession, dated April 29, 1933, which provides that differences between the parties shall be settled by arbitration.

Failing agreement on the choice of arbitrators, the article says, a third or sole arbitrator shall be appointed by the president of the world court at the request of either of the parties.

Does Not Oppose Wish

Tehran, Iran,—(CP)—The United States told Iran today she does not oppose Iran's wish to control her own oil resources but does oppose one-sided cancellation of concessions contract with the British-controlled Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

In a diplomatic memorandum handed to Iran by Ambassador Henry Grady the United States again urged Iran to settle this dispute — "which could undermine the unity of the free world"—by negotiation.

The memorandum, a reply to Iran's accusation of U.S. interference, said Iran had misconstrued the American attitude. The United States has a legitimate interest in the well-being of both Iran and Britain and it considers a peaceful settlement of their financial controversy of the utmost importance to the free world as a whole, it said.

Agree On Principle

Baghdad, Iraq (Reuters)—The Iraqi government and the Iran Petroleum Company —in which British, United States and Netherlands interests hold equal shares—have agreed in principle to a new deal on oil payments, it was announced today by Prime Minister Nuri Es Said.

Talks have been going on between the government and the company since the beginning of this month.

FLIER KILLED

* Gimli, Man., May 26 — (CP)— Flight Cadet Donald Zimmerman, 22, of Calgary was killed Friday when his training plane crashed into the farmer's field near Winnipeg Beach, 40 miles north of Winnipeg. RCAF officials announced the accident occurred along the shore of a Harvard aircraft on a practice exercise when the accident occurred. Officials said the cause is unknown and will be subject of a court of inquiry.

Hint at H-Bomb Development May Signal U.S. Lead in A-Race

Washington, May 26 (AP) — The United States has apparently gained a wide new lead in the race for supremacy in nuclear weapons. But the question is: How long can it hold it?

The lead—indicated yesterday by a terse announcement of secretary Lovett—was completed recently at Eniwetok—depends in large measure on whether the atomic energy system is better than it was five years ago. The announcement said that the scientists may have found some of the atomic "trigger" that will fire superpowerful hydrogen bombs.

In the summer of 1946 Russian espionage agents gained key information on the making of atomic bombs. By official American estimates, Russia then gained a year and a half of time in her hitherto slow search for the atomic secret. She produced an atomic explosion in the summer of 1949.

Now, American government apparently thinks its security of nuclear secrets has improved.

But for some reason (perhaps international psychology) the U.S. now appears to want the world to know it is making progress toward production of a hydrogen bomb which could be a hundred times more powerful than atomic bombs.

The joint announcement yesterday by the atomic energy commission and the defence department didn't spell out the "hydrogen bomb" idea. But it mentioned "experiments contributing to the thermonuclear weapons research," in saying the latest tests on Eniwetok Island had been "successfully completed." The H-bomb is such a weapon.

It could be a bomb that by actual field test—using a relatively small quantity of hydrogen material, such as tritium, together with a conventional atomic bomb of plutonium of uranium-scientists have learned how to touch off an H-bomb.

In war or the experts also get some other badly-needed information on the immensely intricate business of devising a hydrogen bomb.

RED WITHDRAWAL CONTINUES ON ALL KOREAN FRONT

Allies Open Routes To U.N. Bridgehead

Tokyo, May 26 (AP) —American and French soldiers pushed through Chinese screening forces today and opened a supply route to the United Nations bridgehead in North Korea.

The drive swept up both sides of the Hongchon-Inje road to the bridgehead across the Chogang River on the east-central front.

United States infantrymen just north of Hongchon captured six important hills overlooking the vital road.

Reds continued to withdraw all along the Korean front. Chinese prisoners said some of their comrades had committed suicide rather than face any more U.N. fire power or risk being shot by their own officers for retreating.

A U.S. Eighth Army briefing officer said the reds were not following their usual pattern of withdrawing small groups and then reassembling.

He said there were "enemy on the left and the road north" from the central front.

"They just seem to want to get the hell out," the officer said.

Dwindling Chinese resistance Saturday indicated that most of the reds who poured through a gap in United Nations lines at the start of the Communist offensive had fled northwestward.

Leave Many Dead

The red screening forces, who fought fiercely Friday, faded into the hills Saturday, leaving many dead behind.

Nearly every advancing United Nations unit Saturday reported finding numerous Chinese dead—victims of the powerful allied artillery and air barrages of the last few days.

To the west, allied forces made two crossings of the 38th parallel Saturday.

An Eighth Army spokesman said one tank-infantry force swept through light resistance up the Chunchon-Hwachon road in the central front and took positions north of the border.

Another force drove across the old border north of Chunchon on the west-central front for the second straight day.

There was no word whether the columns had stayed across the parallel or had pulled back to the main allied line, ramming up within a few miles of parallel 38 in the center.

In the west, South Korean units reached the Imjin River some 25 miles northwest of Seoul. On their right flank, American units seized Hill 337, six miles due north of Uijongbu and 20 miles west of Seoul.

Allied units had probed within one mile of the red border Friday, near the confluence of the Imjin and Hantan Rivers about 30 miles north of Seoul.

Queen Mother Has Birthday

Queen Mother Mary Guest Of Honor as She Celebrates 84th Birthday at Luncheon

London, May 26 — (Reuters)— Queen Mother Mary celebrated her 84th birthday today. She was to be guest of honor at the traditional birthday luncheon with other members of the Royal Family at Buckingham Palace.

The King, in bed with influenza, will if possible attend the luncheon to propose his annual toast in champagne to his mother.

In the afternoon Queen Mary, famous throughout the world as the embodiment of regal majesty, will perform another of the public duties to which she still rigorously attends.

From the palace she will drive to Hyde Park to see Princess Elizabeth deputize for the King in presenting the King's Color to the RAF.

On the eve of her birthday the Queen Mother, seemingly as erect, alert and queenly as she was 30 years ago, stood on the palace steps while the heiress to the throne performed another duty for her father.

Princess Elizabeth, Colonel of the crack Grenadier Guards Regiment, took the salute at a parade of its 3rd Battalion and presented new colors to it. The King is Colonel-in-Chief of the regiment.

Today's newspapers were full of pictures of the Queen, dressed she is an authority.

$121,500,000 April Surplus Said Not Indicative of Year

Ottawa, May 26 (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott, aiming for a surplus of $30,000,000 in the current fiscal year, reported Friday that in the first month of the year his surplus amounted to $121,500,000.

But, he said, the figures for the first month cannot be "taken as indicative of the probable result for the fiscal year as a whole."

"April is always an abnormal month as a large portion of the expenditure made during April is now attributable to the previous fiscal year and are charged to last year in the government's accounts."

Revenues amounted to $218,-000,000, an increase of $22,200,000 over the corresponding month of 1950. Expenditures totalled $96,-800,000, an increase of $8,600,000.

Mr. Abbott's report showed that defence expenditures were $5,540,000 higher than a year ago. They totalled $25,646,243 compared with $20,101,340.

Expenditures of the newly created defence production department appeared for the first time 600,000 and amounted to close to $300,-000. A sum of $68,000 was earmarked for general and administrative expenditures and $200,000 for capital assistance to defence industries.

Family allowances at $26,274,-134 showed an increase of more than $1,000,000.

Income Tax Increases

On the revenue side, income tax collections amounted to more than $70,000,000 compared with $49,000,000 in the corresponding month of 1950. Corporation income tax collections were up to $50,600,000 from $38,127,000.

The yield from custom and excise taxes was $68,000,000 compared with $41,000,000.

In his budget speech April 10, Mr. Abbott estimated his year's revenues at $3,730,000,000 and expenditures at $3,700,000,000.

This would give him a surplus of $30,000,000. In 1950-51, he estimated he would end the year with a surplus of $15,000,000, but finished up with a surplus $203,-000,000 in the style to which she had adorned for decades.

Flowered or swathed toques still sit absolutely straight on her meticulously - marcelled white hair. Her straight and narrow coats with their fur collars never change their silhouette — no matter what fashion decrees.

Her strapped shoes with their Louis XIV heels have not for generations been seen on any other woman's feet.

Trained in the Victorian School of Royalty with its rigid ideas of self-discipline, duty to the public and dignity, Queen Mary has not allowed even sciatica to interfere to an appreciable extent with the round of public duties which she fulfils with unrivalled queenly grace.

In recent years she has made but one concession to age — she uses a wheel-chair when attending a function which demands a lot of walking.

Despite her scorn for such "modernisms" as stream-lined automobiles, telephones, and breakfast in bed, Queen Mary takes a keen interest in all contemporary events. She is an inveterate and enthusiastic theatregoer and attends many movie premieres.

But most of all, she is interested in art and antiques on which

WARNING SYSTEM IN CIVIL DEFENCE PLAN DISCLOSED

Special Network Will Be Spread Across Canada

Ottawa, May 26. (CP)—A special wireless network to flash word of an enemy's approach to civil defence organizations across Canada is under consideration, Health Minister Martin disclosed last night in a guarded statement in the Commons.

He said he didn't want to say too much about the system for security reasons, but he did indicate that civil defence, groups may have their own separate channel of communications as a check of warning from coast to coast. Two such channels exist for a special network are under examination, he said.

The armed forces already have their own highly-modernized communications network set to work as part of a team of men and machines to take on any enemy planes or troops.

The civil-defence network would be designed to get word of responsible for protection and care of the civilian populations.

Both communications would send their flashes from key armed forces centres at strategic spots. Civil defence liaison officers would be at those spots on a round-the-clock basis.

Not Yet Perfected

Mr. Martin disclosed that "this afternoon we made arrangements for the use of the communications equipment of two of the large communications companies in this country on certain terms of use have not been established, but the discussions will continue next week. This is by no means yet perfected, but it is certainly in the stage of receiving consideration.

He stated earlier that he is hopeful of getting one telecommunications expert to give his services to the government free for the duration. A committee is probing the whole question of communications for C.D. organizations.

The minister made the statements to Progressive Conservative questioners as the house moved through the 18th day of debate on $1,500,000,000 defence spending estimates.

The day brought renewed charges by Progressive Conservative members, backed by Solon Low, Social Credit leader, that the proposed $4,196,000 civil defence budget for the fiscal year is totally inadequate and would not be enough to help cities to prepare for the worst.

Services Must Come First

Mr. Martin replied Canada's program was worked out in discussions with the United States, the United Kingdom and the provinces. The armed forces must come first, the minister said, and needless diversion of energy from the fighting forces.

"One plane shot down not enough was being done, the minister admitted, is in informing the public about the dangers of attack and what they mean. This would be accentuated into a heavy educational program using pamphlets, films and talks.

Canadians Told Reds They Faced Certain Death Before Opening Drive

United Nations, N.Y., May 26 (AP)—Brigadier W. H. Ridgway told the United Nations today that his forces used loudspeaker broadcasts and leaflets to warn communist foes in Korea that they faced certain death before the big allied drive launched in April.

Ridgway's report as commander of U.N. forces, covering Korea operations from April 16 to April 30, was presented to U.N. secretary-general Trygvie Lie by the U.S. delegation. Since then, the U.N. army has turned the Chinese and North Korean communist back across the 38th parallel after inflicting tens of thousands of casualties.

The Ridgway report said that the enemy had expanded his effective forces from 10 divisions to 18 divisions for the offensive which began the night of April 22.

"More than 355,000 leaflets have now been disseminated in Korea," Ridgway said. "Radio broadcasts, in conjunction with leaflets, have kept the Korean people informed on the renewed communist offensive and its significance, and on the terms of added destruction of life and property."

Ridgway also reported that more than 90,000 prisoners of war now are interned in a new prison camp on Kojo-Do Island, south of Pusan.

His report said also that enemy guerrilla forces now number about 12,000 and are on the defensive but that groups up to battalion size—about 1,000 have been in clashes in south-central Korea.

Eighteen Injured, Three Severely Near Montreal

Side of Bus Ripped Open By Automobile Carrier

Montreal, May 26 —(CP) — Provincial Police today were holding a Montreal autobus driver for questioning in the death of three of his passengers as the result of . collision with a truck-trailer.

Eighteen other passengers were injured, three of them severely, in the accident at Repentigny, 20 miles northeast of here.

Dead are:

Ubald Tessier, 17, St. Paul L'Ermite, Que.

Miss Louise Desjardins, 20, Montreal.

Leon Gaudette, 50, Joliette, Que.

In hospital here in critical condition were Gregoire Genereux, 18, and Andre Rene, 17, both of Joliette, and five-year-old Pierre Sauve of Montreal.

The driver, Sylvio Gregoire, 28, escaped unscathed from the wreckage of the Provincial Transport Company bus which was bound from Montreal to Joliette, 45 miles northeast of here. The side of the bus was ripped open by the truck, an automobile carrier that was returning to Montreal empty.

A Montreal hospital despatched five ambulances to the scene to shuttle the injured back here, and police sent a score of officers to handle traffic on the busy Montreal-Quebec highway and to care for passengers with minor injuries.

Leo-Paul Roy, St. Zotique, Que., driver of the truck owned by Charlton Transport, Ltd., of Oshawa, Ont., suffered shock and bruises.

His vehicle tore into the autobus as the latter was making a left turn from a side road into the main highway, the impact spilling bus passengers on both sides of the road.

Tessier and Miss Desjardins were killed outright, while Gaudette died of a skull fracture shortly after he was admitted to hospital here.

Caterpillars Eat WayThroughBush

Toronto, May 26 (CP) —Tent caterpillars, in armies of millions are eating their way through forests from Dryden and Sioux Lookout in northwest Ontario to the Ottawa valley.

Not all areas are hit, and the caterpillars stay where possible on poplars, but lands department officials say it is one of the worst years on record for the pests.

A lands department expert said the scourge would be ended in early June when the insects turn to moths. The moths, in turn will lay eggs to keep over the winter and hatch into more caterpillars.

Trammen, Major Railroads End Bitter Dispute

Washington, May 26(AP)—The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the major railroads in the United States have settled their bitter two-year wage dispute. Three other rail unions remain at odds with the carriers.

The trainmen, lead and conductors started out together in March 1949 seeking a 40-hour week, or 240 hours' pay for those in yard service and a substantial wage increase for those in line service.

After army seizure of the railroads last August to prevent a strike of the trainmen and conductors, the firemen and engineers joined in a united front against the carriers. A tentative agreement reached Dec. 21 at the White House was not ratified by union locals although it was signed by the presidents of the four unions.

A stalemate has existed ever since.

The increases announced in a joint union-railway statement, amount to 2.64 a day for yardmen and $1.48 a day for road men. They include the 12½-cent raise for yardmen and five cents for road men previously announced, and retroactive to Oct. 1. These were authorized by the army.

Carriers estimate the cost of the over-all wage increases at $97,-000,000 a year.

In addition to the wage provisions, the settlement calls for a 40-hour week to be established in principle for yardmen. However, both the union and the railroads have agreed under present emergency conditions to defer that until Jan. 1, 1952.

GO ON STRIKE

Rome, May 26—(Reuters)— Some housewives were without bread here today because of a 24-hour strike by 3,000 bigher pay by bakers belonging to communist unions. But socialist and Christian-democrat bakers stayed at work.

'Clean-Up Week' Starts Today

Commencing today and running until next Saturday, June 2, it is "paint up and clean up" week in Belleville, when those who have not already done so are urged to clean up yards and gardens and to do that odd bit of painting.

Paint and wallpaper stores in the city, as well as hardware stores, are co-operating in the clean up campaign by offering special values in paint and wallpapers. In fact, special stocks have been purchased to offer during "paint up and clean up" week.

During the week these paint and wallpaper stores as well as the hardwares are featuring display advertisements offering special values in merchandise.

This city has long been known as Belleville the Beautiful, and it can be made even more so by cleaning up yards and lawns and by application of the paint brush to brighten up dingy verandahs and fences.

Members of Princess Pats Enjoy First Canadian Beer While Serving in Front Line

TRENTON

By BILL ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadians in Korea, May 26 — (CP) — Cooled in a mountain freshet, the liquid was an ambrosia in the 80-degree sun.

Bare-chested Pete, Bob Anthony of Toronto grinned appreciatively, took another look at the tin and pronounced:

"That's the first beer you can say is beer—in the meaning of beer—that we've had since leaving Canada."

Just arrived was the first shipment of Canadian beer to reach the 2nd Battalion Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry, dug in in strong defensive positions on the Korean front-line.

Ever since the arrival of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade, which the men term affectionately thousands of cases of Ontario beer, the gift of the brewers to the soldiers in Canada, they had been looking for their share to catch up with them.

And it did—at least, an initial instalment of it.

Lieut. Bill Campbell of Winnipeg, the regimental welfare officer, flew down to the South Korean port at which the force had landed, loaded a truck with enough to keep the Patricias going until the brigade might arrive, then followed it into a nearby stream and, on his way north within 24 hours, had begun distribution.

First samples were the front-line troops, and Campbell's truck went up to within a few hundred yards or their positions to be unloaded.

Then Lieut. Arnold Beauchamp of Hamilton in charge of the supply point supervising distribution among company representatives on the basis of two tins a man. There will be plenty for everyone until either the supply is used up or the remainder of the Patricia's portion arrived.

His work done, Beauchamp led the way to the nearby mountain stream, narrow, fast-running and cold, stripped and bathed. Hard by so that he could keep a watch-fire eye on those tins, he downed two cans. . . .

Half an hour later, appreciation drowned above the splitter of "swishes" as openers pried into the cooled tins and the aroma of bubbling suds filled the air.

"This," voiced Roger Laframbroise of Ottawa, his mouth presently sitting at home, your wife nearby, . . ." The remainder of the moistly soliloquy being drowned-ed in a roar of "Oh shut up."

Rated Next

Pte. Goldie Howard of Aylmer, Que., rated the brew "No. 1", in the current Canadian-in-Korea vernacular.

Enthusiastic Pte. Bob Lusty of Toronto however, was dissatisfied with when he said: "with two beers a day like this I'd gladly stay here six months or more."

Pte. Gerald Harper Prince Albert, Sask., and Pte. Art Connor, New York, Ont., however, had an excellent idea that in no time a group of the Patricias' mortar and machine-gun men decided to write a thank-you note to the brewery.

Anthony, approached by Lusty, readily agreed to "use some of those 75-cent words of yours" to frame a letter which would be handwritten by Pte. Ray McCartney of Lanigan, Sask., whose penpoof native drink is a throwback to the fellows.

The First Taste

It was the first taste of canned Canadian beer for all of them, and it went down well.

Another cooling method, incidentally, is to place the tins at the bottom of a slit trench for a while. But warm or chilled, the higher-proof native drink as a throwback to home after the weaker British and Japanese types the battalion has been getting.

Capt. Andy Foulds, who in civilian life works for a Vancouver brewery, said that a 12-ounce can of the gift beer gave the soldiers a bigger "lift" than did a 24-ounce bottle of either the Japanese or British kinds.

Be that as it may, the satisfaction registered on the faces of a dusty, tired patrol to whom Sgt. Al Taylor of Vancouver distributed its share on its return from deep into no man's land, would have assured the brewers that the gesture was a happy one.

Incidentally, the Patricias shared their beer with a company of the King's Own Scottish borderers and with American troops working with them.

THROW OUT HINT

Washington, May 26 AP) —The United States Atomic chief threw out a dramatic hint Friday that the first tests of atomic bombs by foreign powers—perhaps the forerunner of a true "super bomb"—have just been successfully completed.

The announcement, perhaps timed to emphasize America's possession of the world's most powerful and destructive weapon, said: the test program included experiments contributing to thermonuclear weapons research.

"Thermonuclear weapons" means hydrogen bombs.

Unions Protest Against Police Raids on Offices

Canberra, May 26 — (Reuters) Australian Seamen's and Locomen's Unions have called a mass demonstration in Sydney tomorrow to protest against police raids on their offices yesterday.

They have asked the Australian Council of Trade Unions to call a conference of federal unions to discuss the campaign for repeal of the Crimes Act, under which the raids were made and under which any prosecutions would be launched.

Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies was expected to receive reports today on what was disclosed in documents seized in the raids, believed to have been connected with the ban on "black" New Zealand shipping imposed by the communist-led members of the Waterside Workers Union.

The boycott is in sympathy with the Australian Seamen's Union three months ago by a New Zealand Longshoremen's Union, since transferred by the government.

Fifty nine overseas and interstate ships were idle in Sydney today. In Melbourne 34 overseas vessels were being worked normally. A mass meeting was held up because seamen refused to supply the steam necessary to work winches.

Melbourne tugs were also idle.

Sydney watersiders have been instructed to return to work Monday or be suspended by the Stevedoring Industry Board.

Two Jet Trainers Added to Force At Trenton Station

Ottawa, May 26—(CP)—The Air Force said today it has received two United States T-33 jet trainers and that more are on their way.

The two craft arrived at Trenton, Ont., last night and soon will be put into service with the R.C.A.F. Station at Dorval, Que., to train instructors.

Eventually, the two-seater aircraft along with dozens of other T-33s will be obtained from theU. S. will be located at the a/c force operational training unit at Chatham, now undergoing expansion.

The planes will be used to train pilots who will take over the high-powered jet fighters of the CF-100 Canuck and the F-86 Sabre, and may be produced in Canada.

Plans to get production going in this country are under consideration by the defence production department.

Altogether, it is expected that about 100 T-33s will be purchased from the U. S.

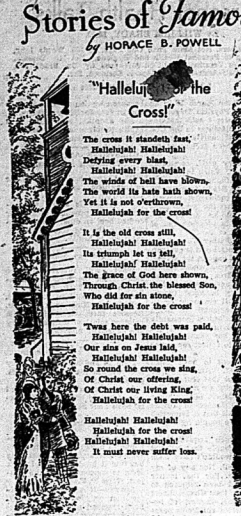
Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL



"Hallelujah for the Cross!"

The cross it standeth fast;
Hallelujah! Hallelujah!
Defying every blast,
Hallelujah! Hallelujah!
The winds of hell have blown,
The world its hate hath shown,
Yet it is not o'erthrown,
Hallelujah for the cross!

It is the old cross still,
Hallelujah! Hallelujah!
Its triumph let us tell,
Hallelujah! Hallelujah!
The grace of God here shown,
Through Christ the blessed Son,
Who did for sin atone,
Hallelujah for the cross!

'Twas here the debt was paid,
Hallelujah! Hallelujah!
Our sins on Jesus laid,
Hallelujah! Hallelujah!
So round the cross we sing,
Of Christ our offering,
Of Christ our living King,
Hallelujah, for the cross!

Hallelujah! Hallelujah!
Hallelujah for the cross!
Hallelujah! Hallelujah!
It must never suffer loss.

In the days of our grandparents, the raftered halls of prayer meeting halls throughout America used to echo regularly with the stirring chorus of this glorious old hymn.

It was written about the middle of the nineteenth century by Dr. Horatius Bonar, distinguished Scotch Presbyterian clergyman, and today is still one of Christendom's favorite hymns of the cross.

Like Sir John Bowring's masterpiece, it speaks of the enduring qualities of the cross. Bowring opened his hymn with the lines:

"In the cross of Christ I glory,
Tow'ring o'er the wrecks of time."

Bonar drew a similar picture in his stanza:

"The cross it standeth fast;
Hallelujah! Hall'lujah!
Defying every blast,
Hallelujah! Hallelujah!

Horatius Bonar has been called "the sweet singer of Scotland." He was educated at the University of Edinburgh and was ordained in 1837 as a minister of the Established Church of Scotland. In 1843 he helped to found the Free Church of Scotland and 10 years later the University of Scotland honored him with a doctor's degree. In 1866 he became minister of the Chalmers Memorial Church in Edinburgh, and occupied his ministry there until his death, in 1889.

Between 1843 and 1881, Dr. Bonar published eight separate volumes of hymns; many of his religious songs are still holding their places and their popularity in modern church hymnals. Apart from his hymn of the cross, whose swinging tune and chorus were written by the gospel hymn composer, James McGranahan, his best sacred poem perhaps is that which opens with the lines:

"I heard the voice of Jesus say,
'Come unto Me and rest;
Lay down, thou weary one, lay down
Thy head upon My breast!'
I came to Jesus as I was,
Weary and worn and sad;
I found in Him a resting place,
And He has made me glad".

SIENA

St. Gallen, Switzerland — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — No matter how widely spread the march of progress and invention may be, there are still a few towns which almost entirely escape its touch. Here one finds things pretty much as they were several hundred years ago, and if it were not for the modern appliances which have entered, one might just as well be living in the Middle Ages. This was the impression I received when visiting Siena, a Tuscan city of central Italy.

Of all the existing cities in Italy, Siena is the one which has best preserved the appearance of the Middle Ages. The city has a long history, being founded by the now extinct Etruscans, later taken over by the Gauls and finally by the Romans. It has seen its share of battles, sieges, and plagues. At first it was a separate city, but after a long battle with the army of Charles V of Spain, it was forced to join the duchy of Tuscany.

The city itself is built on three hills, and the wall which surrounds it is almost completely intact. Every road to the city enters through a large gate. Over the most famous of these gates is written the welcome of the city—"Cor magis tibi Siena pandit"—(Siena opens her heart to you wider than this). Within these walls are a mass of crooked, narrow, streets, so narrow that there is no room for a sidewalk of any sort. Every one just walks in the street, always to the left.

Drive Slowly

Not too many cars try to go through this mass of people. If one does the driver has to go very slowly, continually honking his horn. Everyone seems to get out of the way only at the last moment, and as soon as the car has passed, quickly returns to the spot vacated by it.

There are actually two traffic lights, but nobody seems to pay much attention to them, since there is always a policeman on duty to help direct traffic. The roads are all paved with large flagstones, and are sloped a bit toward the centre so that when it rains the water runs down the centre of the street. It is not difficult to imagine what the streets must be like after a heavy snowfall.

Fortunately for Siena, the railway yards and station are situated outside the walls. During the war they were entirely destroyed by Allied Bombers, but the city itself was spared. Now Siena has a fine modern station, new freight sheds, and several modern apartment blocks. This time they made the streets much wider and added sidewalks, so that we can begin to distinguish between Old Siena and New Siena.

Cathedral in Centre

As in most Italian cities, there is a cathedral situated in the centre of the city. Siena's is unique in that it was built under the influence of two types of architecture. It was started in Romanesque in the second half of the 12th century. Plans were changed when it was partly built and it was finally finished in 1382 under the influence of Gothic.

Opposite the cathedral stands the remains of another one of which only three sides were ever completed. The builder ran into difficulties and was never able to complete the task. For many years the three walls stood apart, but later were incorporated into three other buildings.

The surrounding countryside carries on this mediaeval atmosphere. Farmers still use oxen instead of horses and a tractor is unheard of. Many of the plough-shares are still made completely of wood. The farms are rather small and it is probable that most farmers never earn enough to buy modern implements such as are common in North America. The main crops in this part of the country are olives and grapes, from which are made the famous Tuscan wines. Other food crops are also grown.

Great Erosion

Because of the hilly nature of the land, the danger of erosion is great, and the fields are terraced and rows of trees have been planted. Every square foot of land available has been put under cultivation. This is quite an accomplishment in this part of the country, for some of the hills are almost so steep that it is almost impossible to drive a wagon in the fields.

Most farmers have a small quantity of livestock, and one usually finds a few cows both man and beast. The ground floor is used as a stable and the farmer lives on the floor above. The farms are handed down from generation to generation, since there is usually no lack of available heirs. The son carries on the work in the same way as his father with little thought of making any radical changes in methods or in the crops.

W.C.T.U. Holds Interesting Meeting

The May meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held in the "Y" with the president, Mrs. E. Farnsworth, in the chair. A welcome was extended and a quotation from the pen of Patience Strong—"There is a special piece of work you were meant to do. That is why you are where you are. God set the task for you, and you alone can do it."

May is the month for "Christian Family Week", which the Canadian Council of Churches arranged. Fifteen radio stations in Ontario are broadcasting each day, 15 minutes on the subject. A form of drama was used making clear the lessons. The nation will be better by observing these days. President Truman said, "A good family life, is the moral strength of the nation." To further the home is to fortify the nation.

Mrs. Ray Lockyer read two interesting leaflets of the A.A. group, "Just For Today" and "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow."

"The use of Philosophy in the Pursuit of Happiness", was the subject of an interesting talk, given by Mrs. Youdale.

Life Certificate Presented

A "Provincial Life Certificate", was presented to Mrs. McMartin, by Miss M. Brown.

Is Temperance Worthwhile?

Some of the highlights of the county convention recently held in Newcastle, where the W.C.T.U. provincial president gave two fine addresses, She was asked if the work of the W.C.T.U. was worthwhile? She replied, "As long as there is one liquor outlet we must teach the young the evils of this traffic. As long as there is heartbreak and sorrow caused by alcohol; as long as there are firms that advertise and use every inducement to spread the use of liquor there is need of every organization and individual work to destroy the traffic.

"In many organizations there is little if any time given for temperance teaching while all over the land this monster evil is lifting its head and striking down our boys and girls, our men and women, in dishonor. If the womanhood of Ontario were unbanded together with one common end, to abolish the liquor traffic, that enemy of the home, what a power we could be.

An Aroused Church Needed

We need an aroused awakened church, yet in some of our pews we have those with vested interests in breweries and liquor firms. An editorial in the Globe and Mail says, the incidence of crime (we have 40 per cent increase in the last three years) is a reflection on home, school and church."

How about our government, which in spite of our earnest pleas have opened 124 new outlets, 26 of them in Windsor where they can now open evening more an investigation into the rapid increase of crime. Could these outlets be partly responsible for this increase?

At the World's W.C.T.U. convention in England, last year, on missionary night, every missionary said the work was made more difficult by drink and drugs from Christian countries, hindering the work of the Kingdom of God.

In some parts of India the liquor policy is total abstinence in every phase and department. Already India is feeling the beneficial results of prohibition in better living, food and health for her people. "Better a little with great happiness than great revenue with great woe. Stand as one, train the child and seize every opportunity for service."

Club Activities

BRIDGE STREET Y.P.U.

On Monday evening, the Bridge Street Young People's met for their culture program under the leadership of Marjorie Telford and her group.

The meeting opened with the Scripture reading followed by the Bible Study period conducted by Rev. D. McTavish. Loretta McGordon and then led an enjoyable sing-song.

The guest for the evening Mr. Alec Gordon, was introduced by Loretta McDougall. Mr. Gordon gave several poems composed by famous writers, and then several interesting poems written by himself.

Marjorie Telford thanked Mr. Gordon on behalf of the young people.

Refreshments were served. During which time Frances West read an appropriate message to Jean and Bill Hunton, who are leaving for North Bay, and presented them with a pair of silver candle holders as a token of remembrance. The evening closed with "Taps".

THE SHOUTS DIE OUT

It looks now as if General Douglas MacArthur called shot correctly in his speech to Congress. The deposed military commander, after receiving a hero's welcome in his country, ended his explanation of policy by saying the old soldiers never die. They simply fade away." He intimed to say that he was an old soldier, and that he said now fade away like the rest.

Possibly, the man whom the Japanese worshipped in past years hoped that he was telling a lie. He hoped that the American people would clasp him to their bosoms and never let him go. But now that the initial excitement has passed over, MacArthur is getting little attention. The tongues he brought out by his disobedience are still being debated. The old cries of a bipartisan foreign policy are given way to newer demands, and the Truman-MacArthur incident is not forgotten.

It is also true, however, that the American people have rarely begun to applaud MacArthur. What else could he have? Americans are famous for their addiction to fads and sayings . . . things of the moment. When the decline in nothing can hold their attention to the old. They have something new, and that is the end of it.

Proof that the man dies not carry his old weight with the public was provided by a short note from New York which said, that only 30 persons showed up at a program where MacArthur was to speak. A small Tuesday night. The hall will seat 2,760 persons, plus standing room. The reason? Again, MacArthur, despite his initial appeal to countrymen, is losing ground. He has found that Mr. Truman still has a lot of friends, and that the people cannot possibly forget those who have served them well. Politicians have realized the same thing, apparently, because there are few now who are mooting MacArthur for president. His refusal would not stop them, if they wanted to. They realize that the star that is fading now will have very much of its glitter left by the time a presidential election rolls around.

It may be that the American people are seeing the situation more clearly now. They were fired at first by a love of MacArthur, and a belief that he could do no wrong. He was the savior of the east, and his strategy and cunning had saved American lives time and again. In the meantime, they had forgotten the politicians who could have prevented the job that was set before him.

The basic issue remains, however, that MacArthur is a civil servant, and he disobeyed orders. For that, he is treated the same as any other disobedient civil servant. He was removed from his position. Nothing can ever change that.

THE SALVATION ARMY

Once each year, the Red Shield asks for help. Thousands of times during the year, the Salvation Army gives help without being asked. For that alone, they should be loved and supported by all Canadians.

Belleville's campaign to provide the Salvation Army with funds is scheduled later than the other campaigns. That does not mean that it should claim any less attention, for that its work goes on during the next twelve months. There is no organization more worthy of support, and no group which makes less distinction on a race, color, or creed basis. The Army's helping hand is available to all who need it, with no questions asked.

There are many veterans who will verify the work that the Salvation Army does. They met the "Sally Ann" during wartime, and were thankful for the things that were done for them. Many of them turned there again for help after the war, and not turned away.

The Army is strong because of its aims. It can only remain strong if it is given a chance by the people. This is one time that the people of Belleville and district can show their hearts and their purses in a good cause. The campaign for funds starts Monday, and the objective is $7,000. That is not a great deal from the citizens of Belleville and the surrounding districts, when it is calculated on per capita basis. It is enough, though, for the Salvation Army to carry on its work of mercy.

At fires, disasters, wrecks and other scenes of misery, the Army is among the first to offer concrete aid. It asks no recognition from anyone, and no thanks from those it helps. All it asks is help to carry on the work. Surely Belleville and district can fulfill that request. Let us not be satisfied with reaching a quota of $7,000. Let us do more.

THE APPOINTMENT OF CANADIANS

Proof that Canada's officers and men are counted among the tops in the fighting forces of the world is illustrated in the formation of the First Commonwealth Division. Fifteen Canadians have been named for headquarters staff of the division, and will go into the field within the next two months.

Eight of the men named are officers, and the remaining seven are other ranks. In addition, Canada is providing seven officers for the 25th Brigade, which already is in Korea. Our troops will help carry the torch of peace, and they take a back seat to no other soldiers.

JUST FOLKS

THE GRUDGE

He carried a grudge and the weight of it grew.
He vowed he'd get even for one blow, with two.
"It may take me years," in Shrimper he said,
"But I'll look for revenge till the day I am dead.

"I'll never be happy till that debt is paid."
And that was the truest of statements he'd made,
For the grudge that he carried so weighed on his mind
That peace and contentment grew harder to find.

But, fancied or real, it had brightened his lot
Had the wrong he complained of been passably forgot,
All have burdens to carry as forward we trudge,
But there's nothing so heavy to bear as a grudge.

St. Paul's Church in Foster Ward, which is a part of St. Thomas' Parish, is undergoing alterations and repairs. The building will be stuccoed and the interior re-decorated; electric fixtures will also be installed. The work is being done free of all charge by men, with experience in such matters, who reside in the ward. Their co-operation is highly commendable.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It is the custom of the Packsack at this time of year to present a little piece about canoes aimed at the young people. Whenever you see a canoe far out on the lake you know that the people in it are greenhorns. The Indians and the backwoodsmen from those inherited their knowledge of canoes from the Indians, never go any farther from shore than they have to, in a canoe.

If an Indian has to cross a lake, even a small lake, he goes around it near the shore rather than risk trouble out in the middle. An Indian is never fond of work that is waste effort. And you might suppose he would save time and energy by heading straight across the lake. But not he. The idea of effort he would have to waste, if he upset in the middle of a lake, would be far greater than he would expend going around the shore. Besides, an Indian or a backwoodsman never wearies of the things he sees or might see by following a shore. There is always anything to see out in the middle of lakes.

Indians and backwoodsmen have no fear of upsetting. They follow canoes; and that is, if they do upset, even a few yards from shore, they never, never let go of the canoe, but swim it ashore. Men that stick around the shore as possible to sink a canoe.

In recent years, fatal accidents are occurring more often with outboard skiffs and motor boats than with canoes, partly because canoes, by their very nature, inspire respect and caution in those who use them, whereas larger and steadier-appearing craft inspire the carelessness that sinks. A canoe, if handled the way the woodsman handles it, is not merely safer; it is silent, and it takes you into the closest contact with the woods and waters that are the purpose to visit when you left the city for the out-of-doors.

time, save him the water when she tried to go out of the door, Gurman took hold of her and kissed her several times.

BOUNCING BABY

Chicago, May 26 (AP)—Darryle Robert Chapman proved beyond a doubt last night that he's a bouncing baby. The four-year-old child jumped from an eighth-floor window sill, plopped onto a trash pile and rolled to the sidewalk. Doctors found only a small scratch on him.

England--Then and Now

By Fred Hart

(ARTICLE 3)

London, (Special.)—The other evening found us quietly dining at Ingham Palace hard by the great Victoria Memorial. A crowd had gathered outside to "holler" what was on and he informed us that Her Majesties were both driving from the palace at 6:55—not 7—oh, no, 6:55! So we waited and, sure enough, at 6:54 the limousine stopped before the gates and at a very moderate pace came out and—incidentally—unnoticed — in the car was King George. On his right was Queen Elizabeth, beautifully gowned, a diamond tiara in her hair—and in the rear seat was Princess Margaret, also with diamonds in her hair.

The King and Queen raised their hands in silent salute to the cheering crowd. It was another bit of London pageantry, centuries old, and unending. We walked over to Marlboro House where Queen Mary lives and saw the Guards on stately sentry duty then walked through Green Park and noticed the wild duck—as tame as the farm yard variety—swimming around in the lake. We continued on down Whitehall and the Horse Guards and again the Guards were on sentry duty, dismounted.

Perfect Performance

Next morning we saw the grand and colorful spectacle of the "Changing of the Guard". To say it was well done would be putting it mildly. It was perfect. Utterly majestic. Each horse was as, well trained as the guardsmen who bestrode it. Each movement was like clockwork in precision. It is a sight no visitor to London should miss.

And now for a picture of the Festival of Britain on the south bank of the Thames. You who know London will get its spirit with us, looking south from Westminster Bridge with our backs to the Houses of Parliament. Before the old Crome & Blackwell plant once was, is the magnificent Festival Hall, built for the Festival and directly east toward Waterloo Bridge is the permanent site of the Festival of Britain. All these separate buildings are of temporary construction but our friend Charlie who knows a good structure when he sees it, says that the "Skylon" and "Dome of Discovery" will probably be here for a long time. Charlie knows a good structure when he sees it, and he ought to, for he is a many floors and avenues.

Panoramic Scene

The different sections comprise The Land, The Earth, Polar, Sea, Sky, Outer Space, Physical World, the Living World. It is impossible to get it from the Darwin theory right down to the present day. The next building of keen interest is that called "The People of Britain". Then the Lion and the Unicorn. Another building houses the New Schools, then Homes and Gardens, another called Exhibition of Power. These are fully licensed, the hours for sale of spirituous liquors are from 11 a.m. until 3 p.m., and from 6 until 11 p.m. There is also a large first aid station. It seems to us that Britain had been forgotten in the general scheme of this magnificent effort. One cannot describe this Festival of Britain—it is no huge, complex, so-called scientific and educational.

Beautiful Illumination

On the day of our visit the admittance was 10/—all other days the admission is 2/—and the grounds were not too crowded and one could view all the exhibits with comfort and ease. Moored to the grounds alongside the Thames are different types of ships, old sailing ships—and jammers that is—with modern craft alongside.

The illuminations at night are a joy to behold. We stood on Waterloo Bridge one night and gazed in wonder and awe at this colorful spectacle. This Festival of Britain will go down in history as being equalled only by the first exhibition held in Hyde Park in 1851, the only permanent building in that great show, the Crystal Palace, was removed to Sydenham in South London where it stood through the years until destroyed by fire in 1936. We were at the Festival for six hours, trying to see all we could, we but scratched the face of it. There will be many many thousands of visitors this summer and everybody will have to admit that it is a triumph of British craft and enterprise.

A "Moody" Tour

One day we went to the Tower of London. This old fort was left unmolested during the bombing and for but one bomb fell within its historic walls. The evidence is still there but it is only a matter of over three feet thick, but even this massive partition would not withstand the modern explosive. The Beefeaters are still there, the ravens hop about the grounds through and around the old buildings and they have a "spieler" who does it in spirit.

This chap whom we followed around was quite a character. He was describing the Bloody Tower and he used this expression, "and then that was spilled by the bucketful. He referred to where old Henry the Eighth had most of his wives beheaded. He talked of the poor old Princes in the tower which almost brought tears to one's eyes. He showed us the Bloody Tower, but which these wives and many other important famous personages were executed. Then there were the instruments of torture—he showed us all—except one that was missing, and he said it was getting toward closing time—then we took seven more long so we did not wait.

Inspiring Message

We explored Westminster Abbey on the following day. The Abbey is not yet restored since the Coronation Chair. It seems they think they will not be so apt to get it back again if it is stolen a second time so where it now is, now is unknown. At least is there, but where is the stone? We stood in reverence at the Tomb of the Unknown Warrior, and the inscription bears repetition for it is a perfect example of English terseness. The stone rest the body of a British Warrior, unknown by name but known by rank brought from France to lie among the most illustrious of the dead of all time. Here also are commemorated the many multitudes who during the Great War of 1914-1918 gave the most that man can give, life itself. For God for King and Country, for loved ones, home and empire, for the sacred cause of justice and freedom they died. It seems to us that him among the Kings because he had done good toward God and toward his house."

Judge Did Not Regard Action As Serious

Hamilton, May 26 — (CP) — "A girl or woman should not be kissed unless she asks for it," said Magistrate John Robinson Friday when a 21-year-old father of two children appeared before him accused of having kissed a girl in a trailer, where he had called for glass of water.

Police revealed that on May 16, Stanley Gurman went into a trailer and asked for a glass of water.

I TRY TO STICK TO HEALTH

In this column March 16 in an article titled Physical Degeneration and Divorce I said that the sentiment childlessness in the first three years of marriage is one of the first three factors of divorce.

So far, very good, comments Rev. Joseph C. Wales in Sword of Michigan Catholic March 22. "Then Doctor Brady turns social worker and sociologist himself. He declares that the 'magic remedy' for the cold and dreary prospect . . . is adoption, not of one child, but of two.

What made Father Wales think I had turned sociologist is evidently the advice I gave in the article: "So I urge people whose efforts to adopt children are frustrated by the many agencies that erect these arbitrary barriers" (particularly difficult economic or financial requirements) to work with their state legislatures incessantly until the bureaucratic red tape that has enabled adoption agencies to collect some nice incomes.

All this seems to have irked Father Wales. Among other things he states that economic or financial capacity are not the predominant factors. That if a home with adequate finances to provide for a child is all that is required of any adoption agency, I'm in error.

Had any such request been made of the couple that brought me up I just wouldn't have been here today. But I was one of three brothers. For that matter if couples had been required to have the proper financial backing in Canadagua, instead of becoming a sort of children's paradise, it would have become just a kind of lonesome road.

Father Wales insinuates that it would do well for me to do some research into the practices of adoption agencies before studying but find it hard to do so. I don't seem to concentrate on the subject. (Miss E. Hall.)

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE READING HABIT

I can think of no habit as valuable, and so far reaching in its influence on character and upon all that we do, as the habit of regular reading. A well mastered art of reading we hold as important as a well nourished body.

Once the habit of reading is established, new interest springs up, ambition is stimulated, and a desire for knowledge is increased every day. There is such a variety of reading and the opportunity to read only that which most interests one is before us all. Or, if we take up with a subject that does not interest us, the subject that interests us most—we get a thrill in hunting and studying about it.

Books that become friends never desert one. Their first impressions remain, and their friendship increases and enlarges as time goes on. We can turn to them for relief for comfort and relaxation as well as for peace of mind. The best of us are not the deepest book.

Walking into a well-stocked library is like walking into a room of friends, each one expecting you. Through books you can travel the world, delve into the secrets of science, learn the ways of men who have been the leaders in shaping the ways of this world. Nothing that has ever been written is beyond the reach of a great human being.

Books you cultivate a love of books that love will never desert you. They are every part at your life, and add to your personality, always making you a more interesting person. They will read people are sought out and invited for other people wish to learn from them.

What books should you read? Books that you like and need you. You go to a book store where they are to be found, get introduced to them, and be human friends, and from then on you select and buy the ones that inspire and instruct you most. Reading taste is different among us all. It is our privilege to read only those books which we like best.

Those who have never been able to adequately compete with a good book read just before retiring, one night. It can well testify to this fact. It always invites "pleasant dreams!"

SPRINGS OR LEAKS

Recently in a western town where the citizens rely upon the water impounded in a great dam, a most amazing discovery was made. The dam had frozen over during the winter. Then what appeared to be a big hole seemed to gain to manifest themselves at points below the surface. This they were overjoyed. New sources of water which they needed very much were evidently springs under the ice. The dam had been leaking all winter and the supposed "springs" were in reality leaks.

We all get a bill of goods sold to us now and again. Some people go on through life being deceived. They break into rejoicing over what is a mere aspect of evil. You with great gusto how valuable is most things in life are. It is great, they say, to be born of distinguished ancestors. It is marvelous to have a big bank account. The lucky guys are the ones who have long seconds and loaf and play and bring themselves into a state of heavenly bliss.

What these people do not realize is that all these "blessings" are accomplished by a demoralization of their characters. At the end of life, the reservoir is found to be empty. What they regarded as "springs" of joy have turned out to be only the wrecking of their own foolish lives.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

FROM MRS. PELLY

Some weeks ago—April 1 to be precise—I devoted three or four paragraphs and a picture to Mrs. Pelly, chairman of the Gotham Marriage Guidance Council.

A Reuters dispatch had quoted Mrs. Pelly as follows: "I am convinced that in marriage a little wife-beating is a good thing. You cannot get emancipated and equal to man in every way and at the same time demand chivalry and seats in buses."

I took the liberty of seconding Mrs. Pelly's motion and developing her theme, an approach which produced a good deal of dissention from the ladies, including the one I married. Now, to my surprise, I received the following letter from Mrs. Pelly, herself, which speaks for itself:

* * *

"I agree with everything you say and my speech was very much on those lines, ending with the sentence which was mauled on by the press and quoted without any reference to the twinkle in my eye or the fact that I was only speaking in fun.

"By a little wife beating' I meant a little male dominance. We have actually had women coming to our Advice Centre saying how much they wish their husbands would be a little more dominant, and several men have told me how unwanted they feel in their own homes, especially where they are living with the wife's mother, when the 2 women seem to form an alliance against their poor, unfortunate menfolk.

"I made my remarks in protest against the very foolish statements made by a Married Woman's Society in which they resented the husband being considered the head of the household for signing our recent census papers.

"I believe in a complete partnership of man and wife, based on love and trust, but there are many marriages of the Ozzie and Harriet type and the relegating of the husband to the status of 'simp we' boob' is deplorable.

"Both man and woman have their separate functions and contributions to make to a perfect marriage and home life and it will be a sad day if men become effeminate and women become domineering.

You can imagine how I have been criticized, especially by the various feminist societies who shout for women's rights."

From Dr. Hutchins

A recent column here on television, in which I suggested that Canada should go into this field with the utmost caution, has brought me from Chicago an article prepared for the Chicago Daily News by Robert M. Hutchins, former chancellor of the University of Chicago.

Here are some quick excerpts from it:

"The multiplied force of television probably results from the fact that the viewer, sitting in his own home, has the sense of secret participation in public events.

"I am told many old ladies, who would shudder at the thought of being seen at a prize fight or a wrestling match, now dedicate their lives to watching these exhibitions in their favorite parlor.

"If television has 30 times the impact of radio, and if it is only half as bad as radio has been, it will be 15 times worse for us than radio.

"Present indications are that the normal fare on television will not be up to the low standard that radio has set.

"Radio, generally speaking, has given the best time to vaudeville and the rest to soap opera. Educational programs, even those of wide appeal and long standing, like the University of Chicago Round Table, are kicked around with reckless abandon whenever the stations can sell the time.

"It may be too late to save television, for already it seems to be hardening in the pattern of radio. But, if television goes the way of radio, we shall lose the greatest opportunity we have ever had to enlighten and civilize ourselves.

"Like most other instruments, television is itself perfectly neutral. It can be used for good or evil. Its effect will be 4-tremendous either way."

And Mr. Maney

Wish I had the space to quote the whole column written by Richard Maney, of the New York Times under the title "Baseball Should Drop Dead." Here, anyway, is the main point.

"The game is getting progressively slower, progressively duller.

"A good half of the major league games are prolonged, dreary bores. Not so long ago a numbed realist held a stop watch on a nine-inning Giant game that ran well over three hours. He found to his horror that, over this exhaustive span the ball was actually in play eleven minutes."

Mrs. Georgia Smith and Miss Gladys McDonald attended the Masonic Ladies' meeting of the Corinthian Club at Timmins over the holiday.

WEDDINGS

DESJARDINS—BARTLETT

Tall standards of nuptial beauty were achieved in the Church of St. Michael on Wednesday, May 31, at 3 p.m., for the union of Miss Dorothy Bartlett, daughter of Mrs. Bartlett, 10 St. Andrew's Crescent, Trenton, and the late Mr. Bartlett, and Mr. Lawrence Desjardins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Desjardins, Belleville. The Rev. J. F. Walker officiated.

Mrs. R. Skinner, of Foxboro, church organist, provided the wedding music, and Mr. Jack Clack, of Corbyville, soloist, sang before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer" and during the signing of the register "I'll Walk Beside You".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length ballerina length bridal gown of white velvaray, fashioned with molded bodice with deep sweetheart neckline and nylon yoke edged with Chantilly lace and need pearls. Her long, tight-fitting sleeves ended in lily-points over the wrists. The full skirt, which was caught at the left side with three tiny pearl buttons, terminated in a long sweeping train. A pearl and sequin tiara and bouvardia, tied with narrow, pearl-edged white satin ribbons.

Mrs. Allyn Pinkle, of Marsh Hill, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid wore, gowned in yellow taffeta, featuring a molded bodice with nylon yoke and full, ballerina skirt. She wore a yellow sunflower hat of molded nylon net, and carried a bouquet of red roses, mauve carnations and carnations and lily-of-the-valley.

Miss Edna McGhee, of Foxboro, was bridesmaid, and she provided the note of contrast, fashioned on lines similar to that of the matron of honor, with matching sunflower hat of nonkair and net and carrying a bouquet of yellow Talisman roses, mauve carnations and lily-of-the-valley.

Flower girl was Miss Pinkle, and Master Harold Pinkle, little four year old niece of the bridegroom, both wore ring-bearer and train-bearer, respectively.

Mr. Fred Dietz, of Belleville, was best man for the bridegroom, was groomsman, and Mr. Harvey Hopper, of Corbyville, and Mr. Wilbur Watson, Foxboro, were ushers.

At the reception, which was held at the home of the bride's mother, presided over by Mrs. Bartlett, with many kinds of cookies and corsage of pink carnations, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a navy blue dress with navy accessories and corsage of pink carnations, received the guests.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, Hamilton, and Buffalo, N.Y. the bride chose a dato-blue Chantilly lace dress with matching jacket and white accessories and white carnation corsage and corsage of pink roses. For the bridegroom's gift, rhinestone necklace, with matching earrings and bracelet. Upon their return they will reside at 277 Sidney St., Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Stirling, Harold and Frankford.

The bride's gifts to her matron of honor, bridesmaid and organist, were pioneer pins and matching earrings; to the soloist, gold and links and to the flower girl, a gold ring. To the bridegroom, an electric razor; to the ring-bearer and train-bearer, gold signet rings. The bride's groom's gift to his groomsman and ushers, gold cuff links and tie pins.

Prior to her marriage the bride was honored with a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Percy Johnston, on May 15, by the young ladies of the Church, and on Thursday evening of the bride's home, members of the Foxboro Presbyterian church and many neighbors, presented the bride-to-be with a beautiful tri-light floor lamp, during a miscellaneous shower in which she is held.

Prince Edward-Hastings Belleville W.A. Presbytery Holds 9th Annual Convention

The 9th annual convention of Women's Association of Prince Edward and Hastings Counties of Belleville and Kingston, United Church of Canada met in Bellevue Street United Church last Wednesday, May 24th, when without and the fragrance of lovely lilacs and lilies filling the church to it a memorable occasion.

Following the registration, the president, Mrs. Garn Dobbs, opened the morning session with Bethlehem, by the W.A. in charge of the devotional, Mrs. Lavrock read the Gospel. The exposition of the Scripture was given by Mrs. H. C. Vacluse, stressing the truth that the power of God was far greater than the power of any atomic bomb that the faith of the woman was powerful because it was the power of God. "Today we must also experience the reaching-out by faith to hands nail Lord, and by, to daring, receive power from Him to His will and to follow in His steps. At the conclusion of the Scripture lesson exposition, Mrs. Warren-president, sang the solo, "Come Unto Me", by Handel.

"Welcome" a Friendly Word

After the reading of the treasurer's report, Mrs. R. Moorman, Bellevue Street United Church, extended a cordial welcome to the various associations, quoting Psalm 90, verse 17: "Let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us; and establish thou the work of our hands upon us; yea, the work of our hands establish thou it", adding that the following is a friendly word, drawing people together in God's fellowship, that it was the principal feature of the convention, a fellowship in the service of God's kingdom. Mrs. R. J. Marsh replied, extending thanks on behalf of the Associations present.

Greetings were brought by Mrs. R. Parker from the Belleville Ministerial W.M.S.; Mrs. J. Wood from the newly formed conference of the Bay of Quinte district; Mrs. Garn Dobbs presbyterial president, told of the joy she had experienced in serving in her office and of her privileges in attending the Dominion Council, stating that she wished every organization represented could attend that presidents to it. "No church should function without a W.A.", she said. The W.A. and the Presbytery and the Presbytery needs the conference and the whole world needs the Dominion Council where the guidance in the Christian principles is brought and given, and where spiritual help and leadership with warm fellowship, Mrs. Warren, though needful, was secondary. Mary worshipped at the feet of Jesus. Communion was the experiences of Lazarus—a spiritual blessing.

Mrs. Garn Dobbs tendered thanks to Mrs. Strutt for her address following which luncheon was served in the spacious downstairs room and was heartily enjoyed by all.

Piano

The afternoon session was brought to order by the president. Mrs. Kennedy's W.A. was in charge of the devotional period. Mrs. R. Wood sang a solo, and Miss Ferguson read a verse from it. "The Lord will give thee power". Peace was the promise Jesus gave to His disciples; a peace that was different, that passed all understanding; peace in the midst of tribulation.

Mrs. Hackertney, Rossbill, and her sister, Mrs. Fox, of Bloomfield, sang as a duet, "It is No Secret What God can do", accompanied by their mother, Mrs. Stanley, at the piano. "Breathe on Me, Breath of God", brought the devotional to a close.

Conscience Stocks

A playette by the members of Bancroft W.A. was presented entitled "The Dream of a Society Matron". In her sleep, the society matron was given the privilege of science of her carelessness and neglect of duties; of her selfishness and sinfulness. On awakening the matron resolved to do all in her power to help others to be more like the Master. Mrs. William Vaughan, of Rossmore, sang "Consecration", which rendered the solo, "Bless This House", with Miss Ida Ferguson at the piano.

The guest speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. D. P. Camith, of Toronto, whose subject was "Let us be workers together with God". At this point Marmore W.A. favored with a solo, "The Lord is My Shepherd", which was followed by a condensed report of each association, including the number of members, visits, and amount of monies raised, read by Mrs. Fryer, who called each association in alphabetical order, giving a brief outline of the activities and disbursements.

Guest Speakers

The guest speaker of the morning, Mrs. Spratt, of Toronto, who was introduced by Miss A. Coulter, missionary on furlough in Bolivia, South America, was then called upon and pointed out from the Scripture lesson that Jesus is the Christian life, service, communion, and worship, having her talk on the home of Martha, Mary and Lazarus, where Jesus was always welcome. In the memorable discussion, between Martha and Jesus regarding Mary not helping with the preparation of the meal, Jesus pointed out that food for the body was far more needful than food for the body, with which she, Martha, was so absorbed. Martha's service, though needful, was secondary. Mary worshipped at the feet of Jesus. Communion was the experiences of Lazarus—a spiritual blessing.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She's Widowed and Lonely—Can She Go Out Now?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been married and have a baby a year old. Seven months ago my husband was killed.

Now I have met another boy whom I like very much, but people tell me that I shouldn't go with anyone for a long time because of my husband's death.

What do you think I should do? I loved my husband very much, but I am so lonesome and blue.

Mrs. M. W.

Dear Mrs. M. W.:

I don't think there is any harm in your going out with this other young man seven months after your husband's death. Naturally, people take it for granted that a woman who has cared deeply for her husband would not feel like getting serious over any other man for quite a while. But, at the same time, most widows, like yourself, are very lonesome and depressed and find it hard to adjust themselves to single life after they have been married. The best friends, and if they act with dignity and good sense, it is perfectly all right for them to have them.

I suggest that you go out with this chap reasonably often, but not so continuously, for a little while longer as to seem to cheapen your feeling for your husband. Then, if after a year, say, has passed, you and this man want to marry, go right ahead, and pay no attention to what people say.

Your Friends Should Respect Your Standards

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I was going steady with a boy, for awhile and then, like a fool, broke off with him. The trouble is, he goes in for heavy necking and petting, and I don't.

I still like him, though, and he likes me, and he said that he would ask me to go steady again only he thinks that I would break off with him all over again. I have tried to tell him different, but it's no use. I have also tried to forget him, but that is no use either, because I love him too much. Please tell me what I should do.

R. K.

Dear R.K.:

I know something else that would not be any use, and that is for you to start going with this boy again without a definite understanding on the petting business. You would be a very foolish girl to let down on your standards simply to get this boy back, and if you tried going with him without letting down on your standards, I'm sure he's quite right in thinking that you'd soon break up once more.

The only thing you can do is to tell him that if he wants to be friends with you he will have to do it on your own terms, if he won't do this, then let him go, and make new friends who have better manners.

COLOR HARMONY IN THE GARDEN OF ANNUALS

"The Worlds just brimming over
With Sweetness not half guessed,
Though Winds, To Try, and telling
And Flowers do their best."

In every garden it is possible to arrange borders or corner beds in which annuals may be grouped to provide a charming contrast of color. Above are indicated some simple arrangements and color combinations which are interesting and pleasing. While most of these annuals can be grown from seed, it is best in the small garden, to purchase sturdy, stocky plants from the florists. The ground should be thoroughly prepared and mixed with a proper amount of humus and sand, to which has been added some rotted manure or fertilizer. The plants should be thoroughly watered before planting and cultivated regularly. As the bloom starts in the garden, it is well to keep faded flowers cut off in order to prolong the season of bloom.

It is now possible to purchase what are known as Pelletized Seeds. These seeds are treated before planting and coated with a protective covering of plant hormones and food and enables the gardener to plant each seed at the actual space that the plant would occupy when fully grown. Almost all annuals and vegetables can be now purchased in this form. By following directions, some excellent results can be obtained.

BEAUTY

Reducing Hips and Thighs.

Overweight is a health menace, as any physician will tell you. Insurance companies aren't at all keen about fat customers; they are considered a risk. The middle-aged woman who has let her figure go to seed; who has acquired hips like the spreading chestnut tree, is not playing fair with herself. She can get rid of her adipose padding if she is determined to do so will follow a reducing regime for six months or so. She will look better and feel better.

A certain amount of adipose padding is necessary if the silhouette is to be pleasing, but it must not develop beyond a reasonable limit. Fat cells have a way of multiplying rapidly; that is why they should be caught young. If the bathroom scales report ten pounds more than normal, cutting down on fats, sweets and starches will retard the development of over-curves.

The plump girl always has an alibi; she says she lives on practically nothing a day. The truth is that excess fat is caused by overeating or eating the wrong foods. Lack of exercise, of course, is a factor, but not the main cause.

As the mid-section seems to be the favorite dwelling place for fat cells—mainly because the muscles there have less motion during the day's activities—the extra inches added to the waistline are the first warning that one is on the way to becoming a scale-crusher. There are simple exercises that will cause slack muscles to tighten and gain strength. Surely any woman can spare twenty minutes a day in an effort to keep in form.

We offer a few routines that are not strenuous. Many women, taking up calisthenics for the first time, are surprised to find that they look forward with pleasure to a daily workout.

Stand with feet up, tummy in. Hold the ankles firm, lift one foot as high as you can and march, doing the goosestep. The higher you lift the foot the harder will be the pull on the muscles of the hips and thighs. If you will place your thumb at the back of your waist, you will observe that fibres even that high are called into action. Fat cells do not thrive on a strong musculature.

Extend the arms at the sides on a line with the shoulders, feet tight inches apart. Lower your body—extending the knees out at the sides—until the buttocks rest on the heels. Up slowly and at it again. Chances are you'll take a few tumbles, but what is what in the great and glorious cause of pulchritude?

What the groom pays for:

Marriage license.

Wedding present to bride.

These flowers:

Bride's bouquet,

Bride's going-away corsage,

Corsage for both mothers,

Boutonnieres for best man, ushers, and for both fathers.

Presents to best man and ushers; and usually, particularly for a formal wedding, their wedding neckties and gloves.

Bachelor dinner (if he gives one).

Transportation for his best man and himself, from his house to the church.

Contribution to the minister.

All expenses of the wedding trip—beginning with the car in which he and his bride leave the reception.

The Best Man and Ushers Do Not Pay Any of the Wedding Expenses

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please settle a very serious discussion we are having, by answering the following questions: Exactly what wedding expenses does the best man pay for? And exactly what wedding expenses do the ushers pay for? Some say that the best man is expected to pay for the bride's bouquet and for the champagne and liquors for the wedding reception. And some say that each usher is expected to pay for the flowers carried by the bridesmaids' he is to escort in the wedding recessional. And is it true that the best man and ushers both in the expenses for the bachelor dinner for the groom?

We Four Couples.

The best man and ushers pay for only two things: (1) The entire they wear to the wedding, as prescribed by the groom, and (2) the wedding present each gives to the bride-to-be.

These are the only "financial responsibilities" of the best man and ushers. Their positions are honorary, not "financial". And they should not pay, or be expected to pay, for any of the wedding flowers or for any of the items of the reception. Also, and very definitely, if a bachelor dinner is given, the groom-to-be gives it, and pays for every expense of it.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

by

WINIFRED E. WILSON

ONCE AGAIN

There is a difference of opinion as to whether or not birds are supplied with brains which give them the ability to remember. On the whole, scientists are agreed that it is instinct, or some sense not understood, which guides their actions. At any rate, a vast number of individuals are definitely known to return year after year to their same summer localities, and even to the identical bush, tree rock, or spot on a certain beach.

Of course we can only guess that it was those very chipping sparrows which three times before built their tiny saucer in the vine-tree just outside the dining-room window. But surely one of the birds must be the same, or the nest would not be found within a few feet of the branch where a chipping sparrow's nest has rested each summer.
